A milk campaign should always be conducted as a health measure—this is the plan of the Ohio Milk Campaign Committee, a plan which might to advantage be adopted in Peterborough and district.

MISSIONARIES AT WORK IN MANDALAY

Adjutant and Mrs. W. Hood Are Deep Into Work They Began Since Leaving Canada a Year Ago.

Adjutant and Mrs. Hood of the Salvation Army, who were in Peterboro, a year ago are now engaged in missionary work in Mandalay, Upper Burma, which they have entered as utter strangers as pioneers of the Salvation Army. One of their first difficulties will be to learn the language of the country and to accustom themselves to the ways of the people and their modes of living. They have already acquired Indian names according to a letter received by Adjutant Buntin and are known as Gnana Ratnan and Halim. Adjutant Hood writes tht there are 11,000 heathen Buddhist priests in the city, but the Salvation Army missionaries are not discouraged by the problem ahead of them. They feel that they are honoured in being chosen for the difficult task in that part of Burma. The Army in India, Burma, and Ceylon has already strongly established itself with 340 European officers, 3,488 European and Indian workers including teachers. They have 3,038 corps and outposts where work is regularly carried on. The number of countries and provinces occupied is 14 and the languages used 12. The village day schools are 484 with 12,487 children enrolled. There are six farm colonies occupying a total of 22,500 acres, 5 rescue homes for fallen girls with 125 inmates; 19 loom factories and weaving schools; 150 looms at work one central bank; five silk farms; five hospitals and three dispensaries Their settlements for criminal tribes number 43 with 8,000 settlers.

Specially smart are veils of silvery mesh, with small, gleaming dots made of silver thread.

PREDICTS GROWTH DAIRY INDUSTRY

HON. DOHERTY TALKS TO DAIRY MEN OF BELLEVILLE DISTRICT

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 4.—At Mr. John Ellitot's fifteenth consecutive annual dinner to cheese men and dairy men of Belleville district yesterday, Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture under the Drury Administration, was the guest of honor. This function was held in Hotel Quinte, and Mr. Elliott's address referred especially to dairying and banking.

Discussing rural credits the Minister he believed, under good management, this plan would be of assistance to the regular chartered banks of the country. He predicted that in 25 or 50 years Ontario would be largely a dairying country, for the demand would be for that branch of agriculture which paid the highest turnover. Ontario's dairy output annually is approximately $105,000,000, and it might easily be $200,000,000 if there were a market and assurance of profitable prices for products. The best method of gaining and holding markets was by standardization of quality of product, he stated, citing instances to show the truth of this.

He favored the formation of strong co-operative marketing organizations to gain markets by imposition of grading conditions, and declared they could do more than a Government to foster trade. The Minister also urged increase of attention to home market. R. J. Graham stated that the same principles applied to the city industrial situation would result in a rapid growth of factories.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Frothingham initial production for Associated Producers, take the boss along for an evening at the movies and try to figure together just why your salary hasn't been advanced. BRIDE-TO-BE FINDS GROOM-ELECT AT "BACHELOR DINNER WITH DIVORCED WIFE Fancy the consternation when a bride-to-be, angry at having been unable to reach her prospective husband over the telephone, strides into his apartments to find that worthy partaking of a "bachelor dinner with his divorced wife.

This is only one of the genuine comedy gems in "Wedding Bells" Constance Talmadge's latest release through the Associated First National Pictures, Inc. and which will be shown at the Allen Theatre, commencing Monday. While "Wedding Bells" is taken almost scene for scene from Salisbury Field's very popular stage play of the same title the moments have undoubtedly been made funnier under the able direction of Chet Withey.

Harrison Ford plays the part of Reginald Carter and Miss Talmadge makes a most charming Rosalie Wayne. Others in the cast are Emily Chichester, Ida Darling, James Harrison, William Roselle, Polly Vann, Dallas Welford and Frank Honda.

The production will remain at the Allen Theatre for 3 days, commencing Monday.

TWO NOTED LEADING WOMEN IN LATEST OF CHRISTIE COMEDIES

Two leading women who have scoed notable successes in some of the biggest feature pictures are seen in "Let Me Explain," latest of the two-reel Christie comedies at the Allen Theatre on Monday. They are Viora Daniel, who was leading woman opposite Roscoe Arbuckle in "The Life of the Party," and Josephine Hill, who had the featured female role in "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath." The cast includes Earl Rodney, William Sloan, Donald Edwards and a big Christie cast.

"TEN DOLLAR RAISE" STRONG PLEA THE "UNDERDOGS"

Peter B. Kyne's Most Interesting Novel Visualizes Career of Poorly Pair Bookkeeper.

Because he knows the desires of the ninety-million-strong fan public as well as picture production, J. L. Frothingham, the newest producer to release his product through Associated Producers, Inc., has filmed a picture that will instantly make a hit throughout the country—"The Ten Dollar Raise," a human interest drama from the pen of Peter. B. Kyne and originally published in the Saturday Eevning Post.

Frothingham is already a producer of established reputation but to-day he is in a position to film pictures, as he knows the public demands them, and wants them, himself. For years he has been a deep student of what the fan public wants, and in "The Ten Dollar Raise," to be shown at the Capitol, Monday, Matinee and evening., he is offering it to them with every assurance that it will be gratefully acecpted.

In "The Ten Dollar Raise" sex problems which have so dominated recent productions, have been thrown to the winds. High society which so many producers have thought essential to master production, has been abandoned. Suggestiveness, which has sullied so many otherwise good pictures, has been abolished, and all the repulsiveness of crime has been eliminated.

In "The Ten Dollar Raise," J. L. Frothingham has chosen a story of life as the average movie goer sees it. It is a story of the trials and troubles of the great middle class—the foundation on which this great democracy rests. The theme is love and the lines of co-ordination are heart interest. It is a story in which the average man or woman can place himself or herself as a character and live through it from the introductory title to the final fade-out.

It is a story of the little circles, which combined, make the great cosmopolitan city. It is an appealing tale of everyday life of those who struggle for an existence and make up the great and respectable middle class. It is pregnant with those things nearest the heart, and is flavored with just sufficient pathos and comedy and melodrama to keep its balance from falling toward the morbid or the ridiculous.

The balance of this big program and the excellent music of the Capitol concert orchestra, will complete a splendid holiday show at this popular resort. Fan Fan.

UNDER THE SPOTLIGHT.

"We have with us tonight," for the last time, Morley Plunkett, the third member of the clever family to join the show business, and his pals, "The Maple Leafs." You saw them last year, some of you saw them last night, and yet tonight bids fair to being a capacity house. The review of last night's performance will appear elsewhere, so with this short mention, we'll have the subject of "Camouflage."

On Monday afternoon, November 7th, there will be a Thanksgiving matinee by the popular Rex Stock Company. In spite of many other out-of-doors attractions, I feel sure the Grand will be well patronized afternoon and evening. The bill is an unusually good one, the specialties a bit better than usual—the whole constituting a splendid programme. I understand the prices for the matinee will be the same as for the evening, but "The Man from Home" is well worth it.

When you see Mr. Snelgrove and Miss Vaughn, supported by the Rex Company, on Monday afternoon you will probably vote their engagement of a matinee and three nights much too short. I hope no one will neglect to see this play, because it is a splendid attraction.

LONDON'S PRIME FAVORITES IN DE COURVILLE'S REVUE—SHIRLEY KELLOGG, HARRY TATE

If you are at all superstitious and think that others are, especially theatrical people, you ought to hear what Harry Tate says on the subject. "Sometimes I hear them speak of me as lucky," said he, "but if a few of those people would spend less time cussing their luck and more time at hard work, they wouldn't have so much to kick about." And to prove his assertion the eminentable comedian tells us something of the early days in his profession before he was able to affix 'famous" to his name. He has often played six shows a night for six months, driving his own car sometimes fifty miles between theatres. Again, he played Manchester and London both in the same day for ten days. Can you fancy a man being still able to laugh and make others laugh after playing four music halls in London early in the evening, later catching a train for the great provincial city in time for the last performance and rehearsing in pantomime there the next day? I'll say he is full of pep and energy. I don't think that record could be beaten anywhere.

Miss Kellogg makes a great hit in the revue with her songs. Besides her voice, she possesses a very attractive personality. From the moment she comes upon the stage the audience loves her. Her acting is so natural it seems as though she were just performing for the fun of it—just having a good time. Her first song, "All Pull Together," is the keynote of the whole show—everyone works to give pleasure and amusement. "The Rag From Home" is the catchiest song of the show, Miss Kellogg doing full justice to the singing; the chorus, beautifully gowned in yards of many colored cloth, which they unwind, finally forming a huge Union Jack. The song, "Fair India," is a gorgeous number—there is no other name for it—and the star's costume is a wondrous silver creation, crystal fringe, scintillating jewels, a train ever so long of silver tissue; the whole topped by a most becoming silver turban in true Hindu fashion. Another one of Miss Kellogg's numbers that attracts much attention is "The Rainbow of Flowers. You can easily imagine from the title of the song what a pretty effect could be produced by the costuming of the chorus and rainbow-hued lights. There are so many things to tell about that I shall have to do it in installments. A violinist, who may be described as eccentric to say the least, in appearance is very talented and provides some splendid voice. Besides the dancing, there are the burlesques on favorite topics, such as the problem play, melo-drama, etc., and a beautiful scene called "In Old Versailles" gives a splendid opportunity for the display of lovely old-fashioned costumes and old-time music is played softly as though on a spinet.

"Hullo, Canada!" is unique in many ways, and to see it is the only way to appreciate it. LAURA.

"BLANCHE" SUES FOR LOVE LOAN

"Mystery Woman" Bobs Up to Recover $6,000 from Estate of "John L. Harding."

DETROIT, Nov. 5.—While Milwaukee attorneys were contemplating sending to Detroit a special investigator to seek "Blanche," the mysterious woman whose passionate letters were found among the possessions of "John L. Harding," wealthy sportsman and man of many loves, "Blanche" herself appeared.

She has retained Attorney Harold H. Smilansky, 1326 Dime Bank Building, to start suit in the Probate Court at Milwaukee in the effort to recover $6,000 which she contends she loaned Harding and certain articles of jewellery and clothing taken by him.

Marriage Day Set.

Smilansky tells a story which may be duplicated from various parts of the country and which may account, in part, for the fortune of $100,000 left behind by the man, who, when alive, Smilansky says, was well known to Detroit business men. He says "Harding" was not the man's name.

"He was a frequent caller at the home of 'Blanche'," said Smilansky. "He pretended love and was sincerely loved in return. Because the marriage day was set and the guests bidden, 'Blanche' felt no hesitation in acceding to his request for a 'loan' of $6,000 to tide him over a 'temporary embarrassment.'

"All was in readiness for the marriage ceremony and the honeymoon trip to follow. 'Harding' called a few hours before and asked for the baggage checks for 'Blanche's' trunks that he might complete all arrangements at the railroad station. That was the last heard from him.

"We are not yet prepared to disclose the man's real name, nor the last name of my client. Her daughter, Dorothy, 3½ years old, is still in school and she must be protected. Dorothy was not, as the letters were interpreted, the daughter of 'Harding' and 'Blanche.' Her father was the husband of 'Blanche' from whom she was divorced quite a while before."

"Blanche's" Letters Found.

"Harding" died in Milwaukee on Oct. 8. In going through his effects to determine who had claim to his fortune, the authorities found letters from "Blanche" as well as others from a school teacher in Cambridge, Mass., from a millionaire's daughter, a student at Smith College, and from half a dozen Milwaukee young women, all equally ardent, equally trusting, indited by women won by "Harding's" charm and grace of manner.

So far as is known, his conquests were limited only by the oceans, the Gulf and the Canadian border. The letters, it seemed, were preserved to serve as well for a card index of conquests as for pleasant reminders of his love episodes.

During times like these you should not be too particular—unless you're single.

A GOOD SHOWING.

Considering the period of depression Canada is passing through, Oshawa's building permit total of $204,295 makes a very creditable showing. It had been hoped that the $300,000 mark would have been reached.

29 ENTRIES FOR ROAD RACE THANKSGIVING DAY MORNING

16 JUNIORS AND 13 SENIORS HAVE REGISTERED FOR THE REVIVAL OF ANNUAL EVENT OVER THE COURSE ENTIRELY WITHIN THE CITY.

LIST OF COMPETITORS

The Examiner road race will be run again for the first time since the pre-war years on Thanksgiving Day morning with twenty-nine competitors, sixteen in the junior event and thirteen in the senior. Efforts to revive middle distance running have met with a decidedly favorable response. Most of the candidates are novices who will enter their first important race on Monday. Others broke into the game this year, the Canadian Woollens' Athletic Association's field day having aroused talent abilities and interest which will probably be greatly improved with experience. The race was thrown open to the city and district, and although the number of entries should have been larger, the response is most encouraging. The field numerically exceeds those of other years, and the boys have given proof of their interest by faithful training. Mr Chas. A Thorpe, victor of many distance contests in Canada and overseas, voluntarily offered to coach those who wished to avail themselves or his invitation, and this attention has been a big factor in stimulating the competitive spirit of many of the entrants and in awakening them to the benefits of the physical condition required in the five and ten-mile events.

With this year's revival the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association has been prominently identified. The race is, in fact, being conducted under the auspices of the P.A.A.A., whose broadening scope in athletics properly includes barrier and track and field sports. It is unnecessary to observe that the race is not intended as a holiday spectacle, but as an incentive to Peterborough's youths to participate in a contest that will redound not only to their physical development, but also in the upbuilding of character.

The Course.

The junior race will be started at 10 a.m., Monday, and the senior at 10.25, from the Y.M.C.A. corner, at George and Murray streets. The course is as follows: South on George to Sherbrooke, west to Park, north to McDonnel, east to Aylmer, north to Dublin, east to George and south to the finishing tape at the "Y."

10 Years of Eczema —A Sample Relieved Her

Are you reading the weekly Canadian letters, telling stories of suffering from skin diseases and how relief was obtained?

Here is part of a letter from Mrs. Henry Harvey, Black Lake, Que. Write her if you desire.

"Ten years of eczema on the face. Treated unavailingly by doctors. A sample alone of D.D.D. relieved me, etc."

The proof of the pudding is in the eating. When a prescription for skin disease has letters of endorsement from nearly every city and town in the Dominion, surely it is enough to convince the most skeptical.

Relief from itching torment is immediate. Just try one bottle of D. D. D. today on our positive guarantee. $1.00 a bottle. Try D.D.D Soap too.

STAGE AND SCREEN

AT THE CAPITOL.

Added to its programme of short reels and excellent feature picture, the Capitol Theatre offered five big local vaudeville acts last evening, and held a packed house of very enthusiastic people. Last evening's performance demonstrated beyond a doubt that it is not necessary to seek for talent of this sort beyond the borders of our own home town. Every act was conducted in the most professional manner, and received outbursts of real, genuine applause.

The first number was a piano solo, valiantly executed by Mr. E. G. Brown, the second a light and graceful Highland Fling, by Miss Flora Cassidy, the gay little dancer in her Scotch kilts getting a rousing encore. Messrs. Harry and Eddie Duggan followed with a blackface comedian stunt in the best professional manner, in regulation bow ties, black swallowtails and particolored trousers of red and blue checks. They had some good jokes and a couple of "darky" songs. "Mammy" and "The Darktown Strutters' Ball," and an excellent step received no less than three encores, obligingly responded to.

Miss Nancy Cassidy, a small maiden in a fetching pale-blue costume, tiny apron, pointed cap and heavy clogs, did a clacking Dutch dance, with stiff jerky gestures and jaunty footwork, which elicited rounds of applause. Mr. Joseph Dean made an admirable magician. With the help of little Eddie Bradshaw, he performed some amusing feats of legerdemain in a manner rivalling that of the Great Blackstone himself, and kept his audience mystified and entertained with the multiplying dollar bill, the disappearing egg and the vanishing balls.

On account of the excellence of the programme, Manager Abbey distributed the cash prizes of $50 equally among the five acts.

On Monday next, Mr. Ernest Hammond, baritone singer, will sing at the Capitol, featuring "Sweetheart" and other numbers.

—Jeannette.

AT THE GRAND.

THE MAPLE LEAFS.

With all their best numbers still on the programme and a few new ones added for good measure, the Maple Leafs, the concert party of the 4th Canadian Division are paying Peterborough a short visit in their 1921 version of their ovesreas revue, "Camouflage."

A large audience welcomed them back to the Grand last evening, and hundreds more of their friends will be on hand to greet them at the matinee to-day or at their final appearance to-night.

"Camouflage" is better than ever. There is not a dull moment—one splendid number following another with no tiresome waits. Speed, pep, and class—those are three things that are always associated with Captain Plunkett's soldier shows, and the Maple Leafs share honours in this repect with the Dumbells.

Ben Allen, famous for his sermon on "Kit Inspection" with the latter aggregation, is managing the Maple Leafs, and finds time, in spite of his other duties, to contribute some of his blackface comedy to the programme. Bob Anderson scores heavily with his song, ""Six Days' Leave," which deserves a niche on the shelf of fame alongside of Red Newman's 'Lovely War" number. He also makes a hit with "London Town." Pat Rafferty, the vest-pocket comedian, with his grotesque make-up, is a scream in all his numbers. Ernie Petch has amusing Hebrew monologue, while his song numbers are cleverly put across. The "girls" of the company, Harry Ashton, Jack Kelly, and Hughie Williamson are clever in their impersonations, and add to the laurels previously won here. Jim Graham's two numbers, "The Mountains of Mourne" and "A Bit of Scotch," are features of the performance. The Maple Leaf Quartette sing "Wang Wang Blues" and other favourites in finished style, and Art Sorenson makes the piano keys talk in his specialty.

The amusing skit, "Who Will Take the Papers?" is as funny as when first seen here, and the "Colonial Episode" is just as daintily done as last year.

Morley Plunkett, Jack Charles, and other members of the cast are decidedly clever, and the whole show is distinctly worth while.

There should be a capacity house at the Grand to-night for the final performance of 'Camouflage."

A NATURAL CONSEQUENCE

Every member of Smith's family performed on some instrument, which led a neighbor to remark that it must be a source of great pleasure to him. The father made no reply.

"I?" replied the old man. "I am a pessimist."—Ladies' Home Journal.

ACTION RESULTS FROM EXCHANGE OF CARGO

PORT HOPE, Nov. 5.— Of the nine cases entered for the fall sitting of the Supreme Court, which opens here on Monday, there is listed an action brought by the Robert Hicks Coal Co. of Cobourg, against A. J. Creighton, Owen Sound, for $1,961.03, for coal sold the defendant. Defendant claims he did not buy any coal from the Hicks Co., but that the cargo received was in charge for other coal delivered to A. J. Harrington, fuel controller for Ontario, in 1920. That year some dealers had coal taken over by the fuel controller for transfer to places, short, and defendant claims that if anyone owes plainitff it is the fuel controller.

This cantata is purely devotional in character, acknowledging joyfully the goodness of God in His bounteous gifts to humankind. Its appropriateness on Thanksgiving Sunday could not be improved upon.

The choir has practiced faithfully and, under the leadership of Mr. Walden, may be expected not only to sing the music, but interpret it in such a way as to convey the message of Thanksgiving to all who hear it.

AT THE ALLEN.

"Over the Hill" continues to draw full houses at the Allen Theatre. An interesting feature of the picture is the prologue, which illustrates the characteristics of the various actors in a striking manner. Immediately preceding this, and forming a pleasant introduction to the unfolding drama, is a song by Mr. Vern Morphet and a lightning illustration by Mr. H. H. Lush.

Against an artistic back drop, and with a stage setting extremely decorative, Mr. Vern Morphet, with his fine voice, renders effectively the pretty "Mother" song dedicated to this picture, while Mr. Lush, by a few rapid strokes and no perceptible effort, visualises, in coloured chalks, the sweet face of the heroine, Mary Carr, as lifelike a reproduction in a few moments as that which follows on the screen.

Be Watchful of Colds

Weekly Health Talk No. 3
By A. P. Rogers, D.C.

A cold, when neglected, may rapidly develop into disease of serious nature and extent. Immediate steps should always be taken to put it in check.

Uncle Ben Says
It's the weak in health who get a cold with the first frost.

Colds are due to retained wastes in the body and the cause usually is sluggish action of liver, kidneys and lungs. The cause of this sluggish action is the impingement, or squeezing, of spinal nerves at the spine. By chiropractic spinal adjustments this pressure or impingement is removed and the nerves are freed to carry normal impulses of vigor and strength.

COLD AND FEVER

"I developed a high fever and was so sick I could not raise my head from the pillow. Two chiropractic spinal adjustments changed the course of my trouble. It was quicker work with a cold and fever than I had experienced before."—Rebeh C. Hall, Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement, No. 1286H.

HEALTH FOLLOWS
CHIROPRACTIC CORRECTS PRESSURE ON SPINAL NERVES IN DISEASES OF THE FOLLOWING ORGANS:

THE LOWER NERVE UNDER THE MAGNIFYING GLASS IS PINCHED BY A MISALIGNED JOINT. PINCHED NERVES CANNOT TRANSMIT HEALTHFUL IMPULSES. CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTING REMOVES THE PRESSURE. THE UPPER NERVE IS FREE AS NATURE INTENDS.

A Bad Fall

may cause subluxations of the spinal vertebrae, resulting in severe suffering.

CHIROPRACTIC

adjusts the cause of so-called disease and proves Nature's key to health.

FOUR GREAT CHIROPRACTIC TRUTHS

That "Innate Intelligence" builds the body and governs it through the brain and nerve system by means of Mental Impulses.

That a vertebra (small bone or the spine) pinches the nerve and stops the flow of Mental Impulse to the organ or part of the body supplied by that nerve.

That the interruption of the flow of Mental Impulse over the nerve by the pressure of a subluxated (displaced) vertebra is the cause of most disease.

That by adjusting the subluxated vertebra (putting it back in normal position) the Chiropractor relieves the nerve pressure and health is the result.

Read these very carefully, let their significance sink deep down into your minds—then consult your Chiropractor and find out if this great Science is not what you have been seeking for years.

ULSTER PAPER ALLEGES PLOT BY LL. GEORGE

SAYS PREMIER HOPES TO SUCCEED IN THIS THROUGH TREACHERY BY SO-CALLED UNIONISTS BUT WILL FAIL.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE OVER ULSTER GOVERNMENT

LONDON, Nov. 8. — (Canadian Press.)— An important meeting for consideration of phases of the Irish question was held at Downing street this morning, the participants being the Premier, Winston Churchill, Austen Chamberlain, Lord Birkenhead and Sir Gordon Hewart. It is believed that the meeting concerned itself with the legal steps necessary for the functioning of Ulster's Parliament.

"PLOT" ALLEGED BY THE NORTHERN WHIG

BELFAST, Nov. 8. — (Canadian Press.)— The Northern Whig presents a typical Ulster view of the present Irish parley in commenting on the summoning to London of the Ulster Cabinet. It says: "Dragging Ulster into the picture is not an impulsive act, it is the essence of a careful, cunning plot which Lloyd George hopes to make successful through the treachery of men calling themselves Unionists."

It concludes that the "plot" will fail and that the authors will be driven from power.

GORDON TO ACCEPT NOMINATION; ENUNCIATES POLICY ON TARIFF; SCORES RECORD OF GOVERNMENT

TELLS LIBERAL CAUCUS HE STANDS FOR PROTECTION FOR ALL AND LEAST BURDEN ON THOSE LEAST ABLE TO BEAR IT

HALL RAPS GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS; CONVENTION TO BE HELD ON SATURDAY

At an enthusiastic causus of Liberal supporters in the Liberal Womens committee rooms Saturday night it was decided to hold the convention of the party in West Peterboro' in the G.W.V.A Hall, Saturday afternoon at 2.30, November 12, and G. N. Gordon, M. P., announced that he was willing to have his name brought before the convention.

Mr. Gordon told the caucus that he did not wish to be a candidate again as two campaigns in one year were too severe a strain. He said however, that friends had argued the matter with him and that he would accept the nomination if the names of no more able men were brought before the convention. This statement was received with prolonger applause.

His Tariff Platform

Mr. Gordon then proceeded to enunciate his platform on the tariff. "I am a protectionist' he stated, "but a broader one than sofe of the speakers at the Meighen meeting Wednesday night." He declared that he stood for a customs tariff reasonably and proportionately adjusted so as to furnish protection for all classes. Stressing protection of labor, he stated that the labor market was being glutted to-day because any man possessing $250 could ented the country. The tariff, he said, should be so balanced as to impose the least burdn upon those least able to bear it.

Referring to Premier Meighen's statement here Wednesday night last that he was a moderate protectionist, Mr. Gordon averred, "If he is really a moderate protectionist he stands on the same platform I do."

He characterized J. F. Strickland as "the soup kitchen expert", and intimated that the information on soup kichens contained in Mr Strickland's address Wednesday night was not from a very reliable scource Under the Fielding tariff, said Mr. Gordon, the population of Peterborough increased 63 1-2 per cent in ten years; under the Meighen tariff it his increased only 14 1-2 per cent. in ten years.

Strange Bed-Fellows.

Continuing his analysis of the Meighen meeting, he declared that the Premier and J. H. Burnham, ex-M.P., Conservative candidate, made strange bed fellows. It was strange, he said, to hear the Premier speaking in the interests of the man who, eight months ago, had said that Mr. Meighen's party was like Topsy—"it just grew up — a nigger foundling without reputed parents."

If the declarations made on the street by Roland Denne, Government candidate in the by-election, were true, Mr. Gordon went on to say, Mr. Denne was a most unwilling speaker at Wednesday's meeting.

Tariff Revision Needed.

Turning again to the tariff, the speaker declared that there had been no material revision of the tariff in ten years, in spite of the promises of Premier Meighen recently and in spite of the investigation conducted by the Tariff Commission last year. This, said Mr. Gordon, was because the Premier feared the interests which constituted the power behind the Government.

Trying to Evade Record.

The tariff was not the real issue, he contended. It was being raised as an issue because the Government sought to evade its record. Mr. Meighen had been projected into public life by Hon. Robert Rogers, who, Mr. Gordon said, had prostituted his public office to further his own interests, and had been associated with the Rodman - Roblin politicians, and had assisted in pillaging the treasury of Manitoba. The wheels of justice had been stopped, he stated, or the Roblin politicians would now be in jail.

Mr. Meighen's speeches showed that he realized that he was facing defeat. Of the 20 by-elections 16 had been lost by the Government and no province in the Dominion had a Conservative Government in power, while in all the provinces except Ontario there was practically no Conservative opposition left.

Wheat on Free List.

Again returning to the tariff question, he declared that after the Conservative opposition to reciprocity, Mr. Meighen had placed wheat, Canada's greatest export, on the free list, and had reduced the [illegible] half the articles contained in the reciprocity proposal.

In conclusion, he referred to his efforts during his one session in Parliament to further, not only national interests, but those of his riding, and thanked those who supported him in the by-election, laying particular stress on the efforts of the women, who are now organizing for the present campaign.

R. R. Hall, ex-M.P.

R. R. Hall, ex-M.P., declared that Mr. Gordon's announcement of his willingness to accept the Liberal nomination again was very gratifying, and expressed the hope that his nomination would be made unanimous.

Dealing briefly with the tariff, Mr. Hall stated that a Liberal Government would give the same careful consideration to the needs of all industries shown by the Laurier Government in the tariff revisions of 1897 and 1907. The Government, he said, was raising the tariff issue only to evade its record.

National Railways.

As one example of the maladministration of the Meighen Government he took the Canadian National Railways management. In any corporation, said Mr. Hall, the directors have an interest in the company, but in this case they have no money at stake. All except one are members of other companies which are able to supply the National Railways' requirements with the exception of labor. In spite of or because of this the Government had adopted a policy of concealment regarding the railways. Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the Progressive party, had supported the Government in this policy and this fact had seriously undermined the Progressives in East Peterborough and Durham.

J. J. Hartley.

J. J. Hartley, president of the West Peterborough Liberal Association, who presided, declared that if it had not been for the false prosperity induced by the war, Canada would have suffered a period of depression much earlier in the life of the Conservative Government. Pointing to the era of prosperity under the Laurier Government, he said that in 1896 men were working ten hours a day for 96 cents, and that under the Liberals, a year later, wages had been doubled.

Joseph Wearing.

Joseph Wearing, in moving that the convention be held Saturday, referred to Mr. Gordon's great personal sacrifice in accepting the nomination and expressed confidence in him. The motion was seconded by J. H. MacDonald.

Other Speakers.

Brief speeches were given by J. J. Duffus, president of the Chamber of Commerce; C. R. Banks, John Creighton, David Moore, G. G. Gladman, A. McFarlane, George Ball and Robert Hicks, chairman of the Utilities Commission. Mr. Ball characterized the Meighen meeting Wednesday night as "the wake."

ANSWERING CALL TO FIRE AT THE TIME

While answering a call to East City at 10 a.m. to-day the runabout of the Fire Department crashed into a new automobile owned by William Noftall, 188 Dalhousie street, at the corner of Hunter and Water streets. The resounding crash emptied the surrounding buildings, and an immense crowd had surrounded the cars. The Frie Chief's car was mounted on the sidewalk in front of the Crown Building. Its right front wheel was smashed, but it came out with little damage in comparison with the other automobile. The left wheel was demolished, the mudguard twisted and axle bent and the damage would be not less than $100, the Examiner was told. The automobile was pushed to the north-east street corner, facing north. It had only been driven a short time.

"Would they bring in a shipload of ammunition running to millions of dollars unless it was related to the present elections?" he asked, declaring that an explanation was necessary.

BEAT JAILERS GAIN LIBERTY

THREE CONVICTS ESCAPE FROM GUELPH JAIL—TWO ARE RECAPTURED SOON AFTERWARDS

THIRD MAKES GETAWAY IH STOLEN AUTOMOBILE

GUELPH, November 8. — After assaulting and knocking down Jailer John McNab and Turnkey George Everson, three prisoners awaiting removal to Kingston Penitentiary for two-year sentences — Samuel McArdle, Joseph Hobson, and John Bedard—escaped from the County Jail.

McArdle and Hobson wer recaptured, but Bedard is still at large.

Constable Brash, of the local police force, warned by telephone of the escape, was responsible for the capture of two of the escaped prisoners. He was joined in the short chase by scores of citizens.

The get-away had apparently been well planned and was carried out just as the two jail officials visited the prisoners' corridor about 5.10 o'clock to give them their supper. Although all three had been occupying individual cells, they had been permitted during the afternoon to take a little exercise in a small barred enclosure adjoining the cells, and referred to by the jail officials, as a corridor. Just as Jailer McNab unlocked the heavy iron door leading to the corridor the three men made a leap for liberty, two attacking Everson, while the other grabbed Jailer McNab.

Both of the officials put up a desperate fight, and immediately the prisoners saw that they had to battle for freedom, Hobson and McArdle, who are powerful men, shouted at Bedard to "slug them," and as the two stalwart prisoners tussled with the officials, Bedard drew out a heavy weight which he had wrapped in a handkerchief, and, yielding it with great force, struck both Jailer McNab and Turnkey Everson over the head several times.

Tore Telephone Away.

After receiving three or four vicious clouts, McNab, who is a man over 70 years of age, dropped to the floor, while Everson, who continued the fight single-handed, was finally overpowered, and as he staggered around the corridor in a half-dazed condition, the three men made their escape. Unable to find their bearings in the building, they first went to the cellar, and, finding no source of exit, dashed upstaids, only to find Mrs. Everson, wife of the turnkey, notifying the Guelph Police Department. McArdle, as he passed Mrs. Everson on the run, grabbed the telephone receiver from her hand, tearing the wire completely from the wall, after which he three convicts made their way upstairs, through Mr. Everson's private dwelling, and down the front stairway, making their exit through the front door of the turnkey's residence.

Constable's Quick Action.

Luckily the alarm given by Mrs. Everson over the telephone had been heard by Constable Brash, who was on duty at the time, and by using a bicycle he was in the jail grounds an instant after the prisoners had made their escape. Tracing the three men through the jail yard on to Quebec Street, the constable learned from a number of small boys who had seen the prisoners running away that they had leaped a fence and were making their way into Woolwich Street. A minute later the officer spotted two of the convicts crouched under an old wooden structure used as a children's playhouse in the back yard at the home of Thomas Dartnell, 42 Woolwich Street, and when he drew his revolver on them, both were willing to accompany the officer without a struggle.

Accompanied by a mob of excited citizens who had gathered in the meantime, the constable escorted the two men back to the jail, and they were returned to their cells within 10 minutes after their get-away.

The weapon which the prisoners used to "slug" the jail officials was discovered to be the metal top of a cap from one of the cells, which they had placed in the centre of a ball of soap, and wound into a handkerchief.

Bedard was chased by the police across Quebec Street into an old factory, where he managed to elude them, but his tracks showed that he had gone through the blacksmith shop of Penfold Bros., and out on to Macdonald Street, and from this point was lost.

At about 7.15 a new Studebaker car belonging to McNamara Bros. & Thornton, who are constructing a new concrete road between Guelph and Hamilton, was stolen, and one of the night watchmen said he saw it pass him going at a terrific rate of speed in the direction of Hamilton, and the police of all places had been notified to be on th watch for him.

START HUNT FOR TATOOED SEAMAN

MONTREAL, Nov. 8 — (Special Despatch to the Examiner). — If there is any virtue in tatoo marks then the able bodied seaman W. T. Davis, although he is wanted for deserting his ship, is not very far from grace. According to the detailed description given by his wife, of the tattoo marks on his body, one can sing, read a prayer and otherwise meditate on the Holy symbols that cover his entire person.

The description given by Mrs. Davis who is still anxiously looking for her erring spouse is as follows: "Height 5 feet, 10 inches, fair, blue eyes. Has a large amount of tatooing on his body. On his bald head was the Lord's head around his neck is a serpent, two angels are holding a Bible on his chest, while the Lord's Last Supper is tatooed across his stomach.

"On his back are several hymns "Nearer My God to Thee" "Abide With Me", and the Lord's Prayer on his arms and a crucifix and the usual tatooing of a sailor.

"He deserted the S. S. Barranca at Montreal, 1918, and I should be grateful for any inquiries made."

The above sailor has in the interval been known at 11 Princess street, Auckland, New Zealand, and has sailed under the name of W. T. Segg, his step-father'sname. There is little chance of finding this prodigy here but bald headed captains and mates are having their pates scrutinized at the local shipping masters offices by Captain J. O. Grey and wonder what the game is. Sailors who insist on keeping their hats on, are also suspected.

CENOTAPH UNVEILED BEFORE G. W. V. A. HALL BY BRIG.-GEN. KING AND THANKSGIVING SERVICE IN ARMOURIES.

GEN. KING EXPRESSES HOPE IN ARMS CONFERENCE

In commemoration of the noble dead, impressive services were held by the Great War Veterans' Association yesterday and the beautiful chaste cenotaph that stands on the lawn of the G. W. V. A., a lasting memorial to those who made the supreme sacrifice, was unveiled by Brigadier General W. B. M. King, D.S.O., C.M.G., G.O.C. M.D. No. 3.

Preceding the service in the Armouries a parade half a mile long took place. President Harvey Staunton, Vice-President Albert White, Sidney Whatley, secretary, and Brig.-Gen. King led the column, folloewd by Mayor A. A. McIntyre, Ald. Joseph Crowe and T. Tooms, M.L.A. In the following order the bands and other units taking part marched: G.W.V.A. band, Caledonian Pipe Band, War Veterans, 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, 4th Field Battery, Peterborough Rangers Band, Peterborough Rangers, Melodie Concert Band, Orangemen and Salvation Army Band.

At the Armouries.

Hundreds of people crowded the Armouries for the service which was not elaborate but impressive in the single voice of thanksgiving lifted up to the Divine for the blessings enjoyed in war that remain with Canada in peace, and for the noble product of manhood that sleeps in Flanders' fields.

President Harvey Staunton was chairman. The service opened with the singing of God Save the King and closed with the soldiers and citizens standing with bowed heads for one minute in memory yof the dead. Following the Doxology, Rev. R. B. Grobb of All Saints' church led in prayer. With massed bands supplying the music, "O God Our Help in Ages Past" was sung, and Judge E. C. S. Huycke gave an address.

A Holy Day.

Armistice Day is a holy day, and being a holy day it well becomes us to make it a holy day, said Judge Huycke. The day is not long past when peace was not with us. We should remember the God of those days. The God of our fathers is with us yet and we should give thanks to Him. We should give thanks for the life and memory of those who are gone, who, honoured in life will be more honoured in death."

After the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers," which was played by ythe Salvation Army Band, Capt. James Rollins spoke. Regarding Armistice Day, he said the war was not suspended, it was ended, and not only ended but won. "The enemy were allowed to saddle on history the word armistice when it should have been surrender."

Capt. Rollins spoke of those who died. "In our thoughtless fashion," he said, "we speak of the men who died as those who fell. They are the men who rose. We must do everything to keep the spirit of those men alive in Canada."

Will Never Die.

Mayor McIntyre said he was proud of the men who desired to do honour to their fallen comrades, and Ald. G. N. Gordon, ex-M.P., praised the activity of the G.W.V.A. in being the first to erect a monument in memory of those who died. He hoped the G.W.V.A. would never die and each Thanksgiving Day be devoted to such a service.

"Long may their memory live and long may we follow their noble example," said T. Tooms, M.L.A. "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung and the silent testimony to the fallen overseas paid.

The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered by the pastor Sundaymorning in the Methodist church. A large number availed themselves of the communion In the evening Dr. Manning of Toronto secretary of Home Missions, occupied the pulpit, ond gave a most practical address on Missions. The speaker spoke of the work being done by the Methodist church in China and Japan, and while not disparaging Foreign missions, emphasized the great need for Home Missions. Dr. Manning reviewed the work being done in Britsh Columbia, in Alberta and in Saskatchewan, showing the urgent need for hospitals and missionaries particularly in the foreign districts. The Home Mission Dept. is facing a deficit unless the people of the older districts increase their givings. Dr. Manning is a missionary enthusiast and his address was listened to with rapt attention and will no doubt produce increased givings to missions.

ANNIVERSARY CAVAN CHURCH

REV. T. DUNLOP, OF BRACEBRIDGE, PREACHED AT BOTH SERVICES

CAVANVILLE, Nov. 8.—The anniversary services of the Cavanville Methodist church were held on Sunday, November 6th, when Rev. T. Dunlop of Bracebridge, preached eloquent and helpful sermons to congregations which quite filled the church both morning and evening.

Special anthems had been prepared by the choir, there being two in the morning and one in the evening, "I will feed my flock," also, after the sermon, a quartette composed of Mrs. Archie Kennedy, Miss Annie Tinney and Messrs. McDowell and Carley, who sang, "There's a word of cheer and kindness," the words expressing most appropriately in music the thought the minister had been emphasizing throughout his discourse. The altar was beautifully decorated for the anniversary occasion with flowering chrysanthemums.

Mission Campaign.

The missionary campaign for the Peterborough district having been arranged to be carried out, as far as possible, in all the churches during November, the past, Rev. G. Rorks, announced that next Sunday Rev. D. R. Clare, of Colborne, would preach at all the appointments on the circuit and present the claims of Christian missions, and the following Sunday, Mr. J. K. Denyes, of Belleville, would present the matter from a layman's standpoint,

Rev. Mr. Dunlop, whose sermons showed evidence of much thought, chose his text in the evening from Isaiah, 58:11, "Like a watered garden," his subject being "The church, the Lord's garden."

After picturing the beauty of the Garden of Eden with its unmarred pleasure, peace, and happiness, its singing birds and flowers filling the air with fragrance, its calm and undisturbed purity and holiness, where all nature rang with praises to the Creator, the speaker turned to the sad change and desolation which sin brought; not noly was nature blighted by the curse, but, far worse, from man, too, the glory of body, mind and soul departed. But a merciful renovation was made possible through God's scheme of redemption. Now the garden of the church is very dear to the heart of the Master, it was planted in agony and tears, the purchase price was His own blood, and by His stripes we are healed. This garden, originally part of the waste wilderness, has been set apart by God Himself. "Ye are a peculiar people," hence Christians cannot deliberately select worldly-minded people as companions, because an unwashed soul has the leprosy of sin upon it and that is terribly infectious, thousands of people, both young and old, have perished through bad associations. God expects that members of His church-garden shall be like roses in the midst of a winter's bleakness and that their purity of heart and life shall be as unlike the world as a garden is unlike the desert.

No garden would long survive if it were not fenced, for a fence speaks of care and protection. And there is no uncertainty nor doubt about God's care for His own. "As the mountains are round about Jerusalem so the Lord is round about His people." He is their defence and protector against the repeated attacks of Satan. What garden would deserve the name if it were not cultivated? Ignorance and atheism and all manner of evil would soon overrun the Lord's garden but for His unceasing care; so He raises up men and employs laborers of all kinds to do His work, giving them an infallible guide book to direct their toil.

A garden without flowers would be like a face without a smile, or like a feast without a welcome. In God's garden the "flowers of the spirit" grow, and it owes much of its beauty to their wonderful variety. Some weak ones are there, some stunted from various causes perhaps over which they have no control, others sturdy, ripening out daily to full beauty. Some are like the violets, hard to find, only by the fragrance of their deeds and holy living is their presence recognized at all. Others are like the cactus, with sharp points of character, hard to handle, needing careful study if they are to be used at all; yet they are not just thorns, for the Heavenly Gardener loves them and bears long with them, knowing they have difficulties onlookers cannot even surmise, and by environment and constitution it is harder for some to do right than others.

Water is so indispensable to fertility and growth, and the church is a "watered garden," there is a river flowing through it, "the streams whereof shall make glad the city of our God." The supply, too, is never-failing for the Gardener once said: "If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink." And of course, the Lord expects a return of fruits from His garden and He gives the necessary treatment to each plant to bring these forth. The plant of prosperity bears the fruit of thankfulness, the plant of adversity, patience, and the plant of service, happiness. But only those that are grafted on the true and living vine will bring forth the "much fruit" which is the ideal the Heavenly Gardener ex-

ELECTION NEWS

GORDON TO RUN AGAIN.

At an enthusiastic caucus of Liberal supporters here on Saturday night, G. N. Gordon, M. P., announced that he was willing to accept the West Peterboro Liberal nomination again, and it was decided to hold the Liberal convention at 2:30 on Saturday afternoon, November 12.

In a brief speech, Mr. Gordon declared that he was a protectionist but a broader one than some of the speakers at the Meighen meeting on Wednesday night. He said that he stood for a tariff reasonably and equitably adjusted so as to place the least burden upon those least able to bear it. He declared for protection of labor.

The tariff was not the great issue, he contended. It was being raised as an issue in order to evade the record of the Government. Mr. Meighen, he continued, had been projected into political life, by Hon. Robert Rogers, who, Mr. Gordon said, had been associated with R. B. Roblin and his politicians, who had assisted in the pillaging of the treasury of Manitoba.

THE ROAD RACES.

The successful revival of The Examiner road races yesterday was rendered particularly significant by the victory of Albert Smoke in the Herald round-the-bay race at Hamilton. Smoke, three times winner of The Examiner race, did his first long distance running in the Lakefield to Peterborough contest promoted by this paper, and it is a happy augury for the successful continuation of the Examiner's races that its most famous graduate should win the greatest triumph of his career on the day that marked the revival of the competition in which he made his start.

To The Examiner's Thanksgiving Day races must be credited the fact that this district was on two different occasions represented on Canadian Olympic teams—Fred Simpson wearing the maple leaf in the Marathon at London before the war, and Albert Smoke competing in the last Olympic Marathon at Antwerp. In view of this fine showing, the interest taken in yesterday's races, the large number of entries, the assistance rendered by the P.A.A.A. and other officials, the generosity of those who contributed prizes and the general success of the contests, are particularly gratifying.

The Examiner promises to make the races an annual Thanksgiving feature, and it is expected that next year, with longer time for training and with the enthusiasm engendered as a result of yesterday's showing, there will be a record number of entries.

A PLAIN WARNING.

In sentencing to two years in jail a Toronto motorist who had run down a girl with his automobile and killed her, Mr. Justice Riddell delivered a warning that should be heeded by every person who drives a car. "The lesson must be taught," declared the Judge, "that an accident of this kind is not a misfortune, is not hard luck; it is a crime. The day of light sentences for manslaughter is over. The time has come when killing by motorists should be punished as killing ought to be. And if light sentences will not act as a deterrent, longer ones will have to be given."

Every driver who is inclined to take chances in operating his car should keep that warning before him. It is not sufficient to keep within the speed limit, for there are times when half the legal speed is too fast, having regard to the traffic conditions. Nor does the fact that one may have the right of way render one immune from indictment should an accident occur. Similarly, while a damage suit might not be successful if the person injured was negligent, the fact that the victim's carelessness was a contributory cause for an accident would be immaterial in a criminal prosecution, if it were proven that the driver himself was negligent. It therefore behoves every motorist to exercise care at all times, to avoid driving recklessly or in a manner dangerous to the public. As Mr. Justice Riddell declared, "Too many imagine that so long as they do not exceed the speed mentioned in the statute they are safe, and may proceed at their pleasure, leaving to others the duty of looking out for themselves. That is not the law; nothing could be more erroneous.

THE COMMUNITY SPIRIT.

The Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association movement is carrying all before it as the citizens of Peterborough realise what its success means to the city, and catch the enthusiasm that permeates those who have already identified themselves with the organisation. Some people deprecate the revival in athletics in Peterborough, declaring that too much attention is being paid to sporting events. The Examiner fails to sympathise with these critics. When sport is conducted on a clean basis, with the psuedo-amateur discarded and the gambling element eliminated, there is no other agency that can do as much to develop a community spirit and establish a pride in one's home town. You could not convince any one who watched the Picton crowd who accompanied their baseball team to Peterborough yesterday and went wild with joy when victory crowned their efforts that their enthusiasm over their heroes at the diamond did not bring them closer together in comradeship and mutual affection for their town than any other event could possibly do. Men and women, grandfathers and grandmothers some of them, too, went away from Riverside Park convinced that there is no team like theirs in Ontario. And the glow of enthusiasm that animated every one of them was good to see.

It is a community spirit like theirs that we hope to see the Amateur Athletic Association develop here, and we shall be very much disappointed if that result is not attained.

FARMERS' OCTOPUS TRUST.

(Brandon Sun.)

There are so many tentacles to the farmers' octopus trust that it would be a big task to find or to probe them all. Enquiry would be dangerous to the cliques that control the farmers' machine and disastrous in its effect upon the shareholders who put up the money. No bigger interests exist in Canada than the combines of the farmers; an army of men is employed under them and they have an enormous personnel of officers at extravagant salaries. The oddities in hangers-on are also well paid and they trade (mainly at losses) in every sort of business from sawmills to printing and journals.

In the mere side issue to farmers' corporations, the public terminal elevators that Mr. Crerar fears will be investigated, the figures are enormous. Moreover, any other body profiteering against the people's welfare as the farmers' octopus has at the head of the lakes would have constituted a public scandal in the eyes of the poor consumer who pays the eventual bill for high-priced farm products.

If the grain inquiry had not been bucked there might have been more impressive revelations in these and other multitudinous ramifications into the ways the farmers suffer under benevolent party governments in their much advertised struggle for "a square deal."

ANOMALOUS POSITION.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

German labor has had its wages boosted, and that will be accepted as an additional piece of evidence that losing a great war means nothing to the losers, though winning it may mean a distinct economic disadvantage to the victors. It bears out what Lord Cecil said the other day about the absolute futility of waging wars for gain in the future. German industries are paying enormous dividends on their business operations, and are enlarging their plants and finding it almost impossible to cope with the great rush of orders. It is a depressing contemplation for the nations which fought so gallantly, spent so lavishly, suffered so terribly—and won. France, with her ruined industries, Britain with her millions of unemployed, Italy with her acute industrial problems, Russia in her martyrdom — what a cynical thing it seems that Germany alone is able to report this extraordinary business activity, in spite of her crushing obligations and her debased currency. There we have the key to the whole situation. Germany is putting up a fair show of prosperity on her tons of paper money and her almost worthless marks. She is living on inflation, and it is really all a "bluff," a fictitious semblance of well-being cloaking economic bankruptcy.

Very much has been written on real and false prosperity. Canada, like other countries, has been through her period of artificial trade revival and perhaps might be keeping up the deception yet, if it were not for the fact that the "bluff" has been called. Our dollar, it was felt, had depreciated quite enough, and a determined effort is being made at deflation. When it comes to a choice of two evils, it is better to be living in a country which is making the attempt to put its house in order, than in a country which is living in a fool's paradise. By piling up debt, by setting the printing presses to work producing more and ever more paper currency, any country can do what Germany is doing— and what Russia has done. There is significance in that past participle; for the time inevitably arrives when the process must come to a stop —and the last stage is infinitely worse than the first. Any country which is subsisting on depreciated currencies is not to be envied.

It is said that the paper currency of the world is eleven times as much as it was at the beginning of the war, the ratio of gold having declined from 66 per cent. in 1914 to 10 per cent. in 1921. The United States, of course, has the bulk of the gold, and we have this anomalous position —that at a time when gold is everywhere else needed to back up the mountains of paper which do duty for money, the gold mines of the United States are closed down because of the glut of the metal in that country. Obviously, there is a great need of international readjustment to straighten out this ridiculous situation and to bring relief to overburdened countries. Though the taboo has been placed on the discussion of these problems at the Washington conference, it will be lamentable if this assembly of the world's diplomats is not taken advantage of to initiate plans to restore some sort of a balance to the top-heavy situation.

If You Have $300 or More Read This

IT is well to have money in a Savings Bank and get 3% or 4% on it. Nobody will find fault with your prudence.

But when you consider that Governments are borrowing money at 6% and higher and that there are enterprises in which you can invest with equal safety and get 8% on your money, surely it is the height of prudence to look into such investment offerings.

A case in point, and one worthy of your immediate attention, is the 8% Convertible Debentures of The Mount Royal Hotel Company, Limited, Montreal.

This enterprise is the largest of its kind in the British Empire. There is no city in Canada where the need of such an hotel is greater, and where the earning powers of the hotel is more certain than in Montreal.

Montreal is our greatest ocean port; it is our greatest transcontinental terminus and the centre of all Canadian tourist traffic from the Eastern and Southern United States. For these reasons, then, we recommend those who have the money to consider immediately the investment of a portion of it in the 8% Convertible Debentures of The Mount Royal Hotel Company, Limited.

By all the estimates which the United Hotels Company of America have prepared, the earnings will be not only ample to pay the interest on the Debentures, but there should be a very substantial margin available for dividends upon the Common Stock which is now given as a bonus. For, remember, King Edward Hotel Common Stock (another United Hotels enterprise) is now paying dividends at the rate of 10% per annum, although it, too, was also given away as a bonus three years ago.

In short, you may invest in the 8% Convertible Debentures of The Mount Royal Hotel Company, Limited, with the assurance that your money is safe—your 8% interest certain and your prospects good for a nice profit from your Common Stock Bonus.

The price of the Debentures is par, carrying a 50% Common Stock Bonus. Send your order now or write for full particulars. Address:

HASTINGS, November 8. — Rev. Dr. Manning of Toronto, secretary of the Mission Band, occupied the pulpit in the Methodist church on Sunday morning in the interest of Missions. In taking charge of the fellowship service after the sermon, Rev. Mr. Wilks stated that it was just fifty years since he had attended his first communion service in Canada, coming out from England as a young man and answering the call of the work here, afterwards moving to the States.

NEW DRUG WILL MAKE MILLIONS OF PEOPLE WELL

NEW DRUG WORTH MILLIONS TO SUFFERING HUMANITY. NUMBERLESS PEOPLE GO DOWN TO THEIR GRAVES 10 TO 20 YEARS BEFORE THEY SHOULD.

A poisoned system soon decays, causing early death. We are only as old as our livers. When the liver is out of order the system is unable to discharge the waste matter, causing a poisoning of the whole system, which no doubt causes all sorts of aches and pains. When the system becomes poisoned, some organ of the body is sure to suffer. It may be your stomach, Kidneys, Liver, Intestines, etc.

There is only one drug known that will relieve this, and that is Tanated Calomel, which is the only drug known that will act directly upon the Liver. Tanalated Calomel is very different from all forms of Calomel. It is very quickly taken up by the system, and acts on the Liver in a few minutes after taking. No Salts, Seidlitz, or Castor Oil are necessary to remove it from the system, as it is self-eliminating. No nausea, sick stomach, or griping after taking.

You no doubt have been taking all sorts of Tonics, Laxatives from time to time, with only temporary results. The reason is that none of these medicines act upon the Liver, and you cannot have good health with a disordered Liver.

Doctors recommend that you take One Tanated Calomel about 15 minutes before meals or take two at bedtime, and you will get a good sleep, waking in the morning feeling 100% better, full of vigor, bright, alert, clear-headed, and ready for a good day's work.

STUDENT BODIES ACT TO HALT BOOZE PARTIES

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Nov. 4.—Booze parties at Syracuse University are lowering the morale of that institution, according to the senior council and the women's league in an open appeal to sororities, fraternities, clubs and all living centres on Piety Hill. Those two organizations are the governing body of the under-graduates.

The use of intoxicating liquors, the appeal says, is a problem not only in the university but in the nation, state and city, and continues.

"You are members of the student body being accused of participating in a practice which tends to lower the morale of the university, and the morale of our university is being lowered, although the truth in its present unavoidable form hurts.

"Because a few people prefer to spend their time on booze parties of varying descriptions the moral standard of Syracuse University is being driven down to an amazingly low position.

"It is essential that the entire student body conduct its dances, smokers and all social functions in a manner that will command the respect of all people. Disgrace yourself and you disgrace Syracuse. The problem is yours to solve."

There are not many happinesses so complete as those that are snatched under the shadow of the sword.

FOWL SUPPER CAVAN CHURCH

GOOD PROGRAM PROVIDED FOR THE OCCASION—PETERBOROUGH TALENT PRESENT.

CAVANVILLE, Nov. 8.—The usual success attended the fowl supper given by the Cavanville Methodist church on the evening of Thanksgiving Day, November 7th, the church being filled to capacity when the programme began about eight-thirty.

The tables looked very attractive and were laden with a host of good things to tempt the appetite, the ladies of Cavan being noted for the excellent suppers which they invariably provide. The waiters were most attentive, and even after the last comers had been fully satisfied there was still abundance of provisions to have served at least one hundred more though the accommodation upstairs was taxed to its utmost limit.

Mr. S. S. Staples, M.P.P., acted as chairman for the evening, and made a brief address appropriate for the Thanksgiving occasion and referring especially to the significance of the signing of the armistice, after which the following artists took part in the programme: Miss Reta Scow of Peterborough, who gave several readings, Mr. Preston and three sons of Bethany, who sang in quartettes, solos and duets, and Mr. Clarke, of Peterborough, who rendered two banjo selections with encores.

When the gathering dispersed after singing the National anthem, an auction sale of the fowl, baking, etc., which was still on hand, was held in the basement, Mr. Carley acting as auctioneer. The total receipts were about $200.,

Amongst those from Millbrook and vicinity who attended the supper were noticed: Mr. and Mrs. J. McKnight, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fallis, Mr. and Mrs H Armstrong, Mr and Mrs M. Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. H. Ball, Mr. and Mrs. J. Perrin, Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. E. Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. R I. McKnight, Mr. and Mrs. Urry, Mr. C. Garside, Mrs. Crossley, Misses Marian Spence, F. Devell, T. Elson, Phyllis Richards, M. Morton, E. Greer, A. Armstrong and Messrs. D. Fowler, M. Grav, C. and Misses Marian Spence, F. Deyell, E. Eakin, R. Larmer and A. Armstrong.

Some of those who competed were Roy Loucks, Leo. Bush, James Dickson, Reginald Reynolds Frank Reynolds, Lloyd Copperwaithe, Harold Copperwaithe Master Copperwaithe, Ralph Plumpton, Wesley White, John Potts, Edwin Hicks, Roy Loucks lead the race making the trip in 33 minutes and was therefore the winner of the cup. Armistice Day.

A most impressive and befitting ceremony for the commemoration of Armistice Day was observed yesterday morning on the school grounds, and was arranged by the local chapter of the Daughters of the Empire. Despite the rather inclement weather, a very large crowd lining the sidewalk surrounding the grounds had assembled to pay tribute and to help perpetuate the memory of our fallen heroes, who lie in Flanders Fields. Mayor Meyers presided and Rev. C. F McIntosh led in the opening prayer, after which the Northumberland Band led in "O God Our Help in Ages Past" Rev. H. S. Bennett led the Lord's Prayer in which all united. "O Canada" was nicely rendered by the Public School pupils under the direction of Miss Payne. "C" company Northumberland Regiment members of the G.W.V.A. took part also Major Belford of Cordington, gave a very able and impressive address in which he expressed his pleasure at the fact of Armistice Day and Thanksgving Day being observed together. Amidst the innumerable blessings of the year we are proud to thankfully acknowledge a debt of gratitude to the great sacrifice made by our honored dead He recalled Vimy Ridge, Passchendaele and the second battle of Ypres where our brave boys held their lines in spite of the gas attack of the Hun. Canada, the speaker declared was the prize Germans coveted, and although perhaps it was not generally known, the German submarines were off the coast of Nova Scotia and were in the St. Lawrence Our boys asserted Major Belford, knew that behind them were the women of Canada and to the women he paid a glowing tribute The cross is the emblem of sacrifice and we owe all honor to the fallen heroes whom we are here today to pay honor. Major J. M. Bygott, O.C. of C. Company Northumberland regiment, then unveiled the cenotaph after which there was two minutes silence, preceded by two G's by trumpeter. The school children, cadets then marched past each dropping his spray of evergreen around the cenotaph. Miss Helen Wood on behalf of the Junior chapter of Daughters of Empire, Mrs. (Dr.) Haig, Mrs. Archer, Senior chapter and Mrs. Macoun, reverently laid their wreaths of poppies around the cenotaph. The last post was sounded and benediction pronounced after which Mayor Meyers presented the silver cup to Mr. Ray Loucks winner in the five mile races The crowd joined heartily in the

MOTHER, QUICK! GIVE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP FOR CHILD'S BOWELS

Even a sick child loves the 'fruity' taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels, and gives you a well, playful child again.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

TRIPLE CELEBRATION ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

The services in St. John's Church on Sunday were marked by large congregations in commendation not only of a combined Thanksgiving and Armistice Day, but also of the beautiful old edifice's dedication after its resoration on All Saint's Day in 1882. The original St. John's was built in 1835, during Rev. Samuel Armour's rectorship of the first Church of England parish in Peterborough, which was one of the fifty-seven Rectories created, at Dr. John Strachan's [illegible]tion, by Sir John Colborne in that year.

The service at night was fully choral, in keeping with the spirit of thanksgiving the day called for, and touching tribute to the memory of Canada's soldier dead in the great world-war found fitting reflection in the choir's singing of the Church's solemn requiem while the congregation stood at sympathetic attention. Another affecting reminder to not a few who attended the services here on Sunday of the supreme sacrifice made by loved ones in defence of home, democracy and Empire were the blood-red poppies of Flanders' fields, emblematically bordering both memorial tablet and cross to those members of St. John's who will never return from overseas.

The Vicar, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, Sunday evening, in a masterly discourse on God's goodness, his answer to prayer and present after-war problems and happenings carried his hearers back to those dark days in 1918, when the whole nation joined in a day of prayer for the triumph of right over might. In answer to that day of supplication he saw God's ordering hand in the discarding by the armies of Britain and France of all national martial jealousies, their unity under one commander-in-chief, and the Allies' victory which followed. He had faith in the efficacy of the League of Nations if backed by the sympathies of world-peoples, and hoped for universal peace to result from the disarmament conference to open at Washington, November 12. Emphasizing democracy as the only form of government capable of measuring up to the world's needs today, he extolled the British constitutional-monarchial-democratic system as the best form of administration yet devised by man. In support of the Harding arms parley the reverend gentleman emphasized its need from the deplorable fact that although we fought to end war for all time, yet certain nations were never more strongly armed, comparatively speaking, for war than these days. Existing depression and unrest, he contended, might have been anticipated, they being but the natural aftermath of a great war, in which victor as well as vanquished must pay so stupendous a price that subsequent conditions can never be the same. In summing up the cause of and remedy for regrettable delay in disarmament and in economic readjustment, he characterized man as deplorably slow and obtruse in applying the true principles of democracy—nationally and internationally—and could see no real great difficulties in the path to permanent world-peace.

Following the offertory, O Canada, and the National Anthem were sung.

PETERBOROUGH PAYS TRIBUTE

Crowds filled the street when, at 11 a.m., Brig.-Gen. King unveiled the cenotaph. Standing under a Union Jack at half-mast, guards with fixed bayonets at the base of the shaft, the brigadier-general gave a spirited address. The Thanksgiving service he said, proves conclusively not only to me but to one and all, the great interest the people of Peterborough take in their returned soldiers."

No More War.

The hope of Brig.-Gen. King was that there will be no monre war. He hoped for the success of the disamament conference. "I know, and these men know, what war was in its deadliest form and we do not want to see any more."

To the friends and relatives of those who died, he said he believed their loved ones died peacefully. He had never failed to find an expression of peace on dying soldiers' faces, he said. He believed the heroes were now soldiers with Him.

As Brigadier-General King pulled the cord that dropped the Union Jack from the cross, the flag above his head went to full mast and the four soldiers at each corner presented arms. Comrade Winning blew the Last Post, officers and men saluting the exposed cenotaph. After the ceremony a great many wreaths and bouquets were placed upon the memorial.

Requiem Mass.

Yesterday morning at 9.30 at St. Peter's Cathedral a Solemn Requiem Mass was sung for the Canadians who died in battle during the Great War. The celebrant was Rev. Father Costello, chaplain for three years at the front, with Rev. Father Cantillon acting as deacon and Rev. Father Gillogly as sub-deacon. His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, preached the sermon, an appropriate and touching tribute to the brave boys who fell in France and Flanders, dwelling on the duty which devolves on the living to pray for the repose of their souls.

After the ceremony, the congregation attended the ceremony of unveiling the cenotaph at the G.W.V.A. grounds.

EDWIN W FIELD
Milwaukee Wis

"I'm convinced if I had taken Tanlac two years ago, when my troubles first began, I would have been saved a world of suffering," said Ed. W. Field, 538 Jefferson St., Milwaukee, Wis.

"My case proved that when a man's stomach goes wrong, everything goes wrong with him. The first thing I noticed out of the way was loss of appetite and next, that no matter how sparingly I ate, I was sure to have an attack of indigestion. This was two years ago and from that time on, until after I started on Tanlac. I kept going down hill at a steady rate. I finally got so I couldn't walk a couple of blocks without having to stop and rest and I was so nervous that I often sat in a chair all night long.

"Tanlac has made a new man out of me, my stomach is as sound as a dollar and I feel fine all the time. I am a firm believer in Tanlac because I know it delivers the goods."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

GOOD PUBLICITY BRINGS GOOD RESULTS.

The Firm of Botnick Bros. Brings Business By "Boosting" For It.

Fall trade falls to the store that goes after it in earnest. Good publicity beats a rabbit's foot for lucky bargain shoppers. The "Overstock Sale" announcements of the pushing firm of Botnick Bros., 432 George street, have justified expectations, resulting in gratifying crowded shopping days to prove the value of generous advertising.

It was a bid for larger sales to reduce an overloaded stock quickly, with many responses following. Relief is being found from the unwieldy condition of this stock, which, it is claimed, is being a sacrfice of profits, as former selling prices were lost sight of, and hundreds of customers know what they have gained thereby.

Botnick Bros. contracted to-day for another full page advertisement in the Examiner, so encouraged are they with last week's busienss. The man with the pay envelope should investigate.

Answers to Correspondents:

ROMANTIC MAN—You are not "Over Romantic" just because you desire to have a clean, smooth face when you call on your sweetheart. And you certainly would not be business-like if you went to work with an unshaven face in the morning. Of course, frequent shaving will make any skin super-sensitive unless something is used to protect and to soften it. Try CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM. It will keep your skin soft and smooth and prevent cracking. It is also fine for the hands; rub some on after each washing. CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM really is marvellous. You can buy CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM at any Druggist. 40c a large bottle.

NERVOUS BREAKDOWN COULDN'T SLEEP NIGHT

To those on the verge of a nervous breakdown the following symptoms present themselves: nervous headaches, a feeling of depression, fitful, disturbed, restless and unrefreshing sleep, often troubled with frightful dreams, avoidance of crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, etc.

When the nerves become affected in this way the heart generally becomes affected too, and on the first signs of any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown do not wait until your case becomes hopeless, but get a remedy that will at once quieten the nerves, strengthen the heart and build up the entire system.

This you will find in

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. M. Damgand, Young's Cove Road, N.B., writes: "I was bothered very much with my heart and nerves; had nervous headaches and dizziness, could not sleep at nights, and my appetite was all gone. I was on a nervous breakdown when a neighbor told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. This I did, and before I had the second box used I was better and would advise anyone who has nerve trouble to take them."

Price, 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CRERAR ISSUES MANIFESTO

?WINNIPEG, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Charges that opponents of the Progressive cause are seeking to divert the mind of the people from the real issue, are made by Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the National Progressive party, in a manifesto which he has issued to the electors of Marquette, in which constituency he is seeking re-election.

"They are trying to do this" says Mr Crerar "by raising a class cry against the farmer, by impugning the loyalty of those who support the Progressive movement in Western Canada and by directing in the most unscrupulous manner, personal charges against myself." All these efforts, Mr. Crerar states, he will discuss an the public platform in Marquette from which his tours of the East have kept him away so far.

NEW YORK.—Four football players, grimy from the gridiron, tilted back their headguards in the Van Courtlandt Inn and yelled for liquor. It proved to be Izzy Einstein and his prohibition squad, in another disguise.

The Value of Advertising

No matter what particular merit a preparation may possess, if you wish to bring it before the public, it is necessary to advertise it.

For instance, Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills were just as good a year ago as they are to-day; and while they had a steady sale due to one friend telling another of the benefits derived from them the proprietors recognized this was a rather slow way of introducing them, and for the year 1921 they have placed a contract with this paper for 10,000 lines of advertising.

On another page of this paper you will find their large advertisement, and with merit and advertising we feel confident they will meet with success.

THANKSGIVING PARTY LANDED IN THE TOILS.

A Thanksgiving party was held in the Police Station yesterday, but it was a very sombre affair. No fewer than eight local men enjoyed the city's hospitality. They were found by Detective George Cookman struggling over a bottle of liquor in Hickey's shop on Sunday, and the detective took unto himself the bottle, and escorted the trio to the Water Street Rest Haven.

This morning Magistrate D. W. Dumble administered a rebuke for such conduct on the Sabbath in the form of a $200.00 fine, and costs.

The charge was jointly laid that they had liquor in an unlawful place.

It is alleged that the cause of contention was secured from Percy Kennedy, who arrived in Peterborough from Toronto on Wednesday last. He was one of the party, but because of his hard luck refused to take part in any Thanksgiving service. The charges preferred against him to-day were two—first, that he secured prescriptions from physicians by unlawful means, and secondly, having stolen property in his possession. He was remanded until the 15th inst.

FIFTEEN BOILS ON NECK AT ONE TIME

Any one who has suffered from boils can sympathize with poor old Job.

There was no Burdock Blood Bitters in those days, so Job had to suffer in silence. Nowadays no one need endure the misery of boils.

Boils are simply evidences of the bad blood within coming to the surface and just when you get rid of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your misery.

All the poulticing and lancing you may do will not stop more coming.

What you have to do is take

and the blood will be cleansed of all its impurities, and then every boil will disappear.

Mr. Roy McSwain, High Bank, P. E. I., writes: "I was troubled with boils for some time, and had as many as fifteen on my neck at once. After taking one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters they commenced to get better, and after I had taken two bottles I was relieved of them and felt much better. I think B. B. B. is a grand blood medicine, and can recommend it highly."

For the past 45 years B. B. B. has been manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CLERK OF PETERBOROUGH 28 YEARS TO-DAY.

Twenty-eight years ago to-day Mr. S. R. Armstrong became the Clerk of the town of Peterborough, and to-day he is City Clerk of Peterborough, and administering its affairs with an efficiency and endeavour that has been the marvel of Mayors and aldermen past and present.

His record has been one of splendid service, and his friends will hope that he may long enjoy the blessings that should come from such a whole-hearted attention to municipal matters.

FIRST-AID CORPS FOR THE PETERBOROUGH RANGERS.

Capt. H. M. Yelland, M.O. of the Peterborough Rangers, is building up a stretcher and first-aid corps for the unit, and all interested in this branch of the service have an opportunity of signing up.

Captain Yelland will be at the Armouries to-night to enlist men. It is hoped that those with experience in this work overseas will become members, for their service will be of great value in the instruction of the younger men.

BURNING CLOTH SET FIRE TO KITCHEN

From cleaning a hot stove with a cloth and throwing the dirty cloth in a bag of old clothes, Mrs. W. Walsh started a fire at her home, 547 Rogers street at 9.45 to-day. The cloth became ignited from the hot stove and was probably smoldering unnoticed when thrown into the bag. In a few minutes the bag was burning and the fire had secured a foothold in the kitchen. The fire department responded to a telephone call and extinguished the fire, which had sperad to the second storey, with a line of hose and chemicals. The loss will not be great.

"BULL-DOG DRUMMOND"

BY "SAPPER" (CYRIL McNEILE)

The Count advanced first to the American.

"Mr. Hocking, I believe," he remarked in English, holding out his hand. "I am glad you managed to come."

The American shook the proffered hand, while the two Germans looked at him with sudden interest. As the man at the head of the great American cotton trust, worth more in millions than he could count, he was entitled to their respect. . . .

"That's me, Count," returned the millionaire in his nasal twang. "I am interested to know to what I am indebted for this invitation."

"All in good time, Mr. Hocking," smiled the host. "I have hopes that the dinner will fill in that time satisfactorily."

He turned to the taller of the two Germans, who without his coat seemed more like a cod-fish than ever.

"Herr Steinemann, is it not?" This time he spoke in German.

The man whose interest in German coal was hardly less well known than Hocking's in cotton, bowed stiffly.

"And Herr von Gratz?" The Count turned to the last member of the party and shook hands. Though less well known than either of the other two in the realms of international finance, von Gratz's name in the steel trade of Central Europe was one to conjure with.

"Well, gentlemen," said the Count, "before we sit down to dinner, I may perhaps be permitted to say a few words of introduction. The nations of the world have recently been engaged in a performance of unrivalled stupidity. As far as one can tell that performance is now over. The last thing I wish to do is to discuss the war—except in so far as it concerns our meeting here to-night. Mr. Hocking is an American, you two gentlemen are Germans. I"—the Count smiled slightly—"have no nationality, or, rather, shall I say that I am completely cosmopolitan. . . . Gentlemen, the war was waged by idiots, and when idiots get busy on a large scale, it is time for clever men to step in. . . . That is the raison d'etre for this little dinner. . . . I claim that we four men are sufficiently international to be able to disregard any stupid and petty feelings about this country and that country, and to regard the world outlook at the present moment from one point of view and one point only—our own."

The gaunt American gave a hoarse chuckle.

"It will be my object after dinner," continued the Count, "to try and prove to you that we have a common point of view. Until then—shall we merely concentrate on a pious hope that the Hotel Nationale will not poison us with their food?"

"I guess," remarked the American, "that you've got a pretty healthy command of languages, Count."

"I speak four fluently—French, German, English, and Spanish," returned the other. "In addition, I can make myself understood in Russia, Japan, China, the Balkan States, and—America."

His smile, as he spoke, robbed the words of any suspicion of offence. The next moment the head waiter opened the door, and the four men sat down to dine.

It must be admitted that the average hostess, desirous of making a dinner a success, would have been filled with secret dismay at the general atmosphere in the room. The American, in accumulating his millions, had also accumulated a digestion of such an exotic and tender character that dry rusks and Vichy water were the limit of his capacity.

Herr Steinemann was of the common order of German, to whom food is sacred. He ate and drank enormously, and evidently considered that nothing further was required of him.

Von Gratz did his best to keep his end up, but she was apparently in a chronic condition of fear that the gaunt American would assault him with violence. He cannot be said to have contributed much to the gaiety of the meal.

And so to the host must be given the credit that the dinner was a success. Without appearing to monopolise the conversation he talked ceaselessly and well. More — he talked brilliantly. There seemed to be no corner of the globe with which he had not a nodding acquaintance at least; while with most places he was as familiar as a Londoner with Piccadilly Circus. But to even the most brilliant of conversationalists the strain of talking to a hypochondriacal American and two Germans—one greedy and the other frightened—is considerable; and the Count heaved an inward sigh of relief when the coffee had been handed round and the door closed behind the waiter. From now on the topic was an easy one—one where no effort on his part would be necessary to hold his audience. It was the topic of money—the common bond of his three guests. And yet, as he carefully cut the end of his cigar, and realised that the eyes of the other three were fixed on him expectantly, he knew that the hardest part of the evening was in front of him. Big financiers, in common with all other people, are fonder of having money put into their pockets than of taking it out. And that was the very thing the Count proposed they should do—in large quantities. . . .

"Gentlemen," he remarked, when his cigar was going to his satisfaction, "we are all men of business. I do not propose therefore to beat about the bush over the matter which I have to put before you, but to come to the point at once. I said before dinner that I considered we were sufficiently big to exclude any small arbitrary national difficulties from our minds. As men whose interests are international, such things are beneath us. I wish now to slightly qualify that remark." He turned to the American on his right, who with eyes half closed was thoughtfully picking his teeth. "At this stage, sir, I address myself particularly to you."

"Go right ahead," drawled Mr. Hocking.

"I do not wish to touch on the war—or its result; but though the Central Powers have been beaten by America and France and England, I think I can speak for you two gentlemen"—he bowed to the two Germans—"when I say that it is neither France nor America with whom they desire another round. England is German's main enemy; she always has been, she always will be."

American's eyes closed a little more.

Both Germans grunted assent and the "I have reason to believe, Mr. Hocking, that you personally do not love the English?"

"I guess I don't see what my private feelings have got to do with it. But if it's of any interest to the company you are correct in your belief."

"Good." The Count nodded his head as if satisfied. "I take it then that you would not be averse to seeing England down and out."

"Wal," remarked the American, "you can assume anything you feel like. Let's get to the show-down."

Once again the Count nodded his head; then he turned to the two Germans.

"Now you two gentlemen must admit that your plans have miscarried somewhat. It was no part of your original programme that a British Army should occupy Cologne. . . ."

"The war was the act of a fool," snarled Herr Steinemann. "In a few years more of peace, we should have beaten those swine. . . ."

"And now—they have beaten you." The Count smiled slightly. "Let us admit that the war was the act of a fool if you like, but as men of business we can only deal with the result . . . the result, gentlemen, as it concerns us. Both you gentlemen are sufficiently patriotic to resent the presence of that army at Cologne I have no doubt. And you, Mr. Hocking, have no love on personal grounds for the English. . . . But I am not proposing to appeal to financiers of your reputation on such grounds as those to support my scheme. . . . It is enough that your personal predilections run with and not against what I am about to put before you—the defeat of England . . . a defeat more utter and complete than if she had lost the war. . . ."

His voice sank a little, and instinctively his three listeners drew closer.

"Don't think that I am proposing this through motives of revenge merely. We are business men, and revenge is only worth our while if it pays. This will pay. I can give you no figures, but we are not of the type who deal in thousands, or even hundreds of thousands. There is a force in England which, if it be harnessed and led properly, will result in millions coming to you. . . . It is present now in every nation—fettered, inarticulate, unco-ordinated. . . . It is partly the result of the war—the war that the idiots have waged. . . . Harness that force, gentlemen, co-ordinate it, and use it for your own ends. . . . That is my proposal. Not only will you humble that cursed country to the dirt, but you will taste of power such as few men have tasted before. . . ." The Count stood up, his eyes blazing. "And I—I will do it for you."

He resumed his seat, and his left hand, slipping off the table, beat a tattoo on his knee.

"This is our opportunity—the opportunity of clever men. I have not got the money necessary: you have. . . ." He leaned forward in his chair, and glanced at the intent faces of his audience. Then he began to speak . . .

Ten minutes later he pushed back his chair.

"There is my proposal, gentlemen, in a nutshell. Unforeseen developments will doubtless occur; I have spent my life overcoming the unexpected. What is your answer?"

He rose and stood with his back to them by the fire, and for several minutes no one spoke. Each man was busy with his own thoughts, and showed it in his own particular way. The American, his eyes shut, rolled his toothpick backwards and forwards in his mouth slowly and methodically; Steinemann stared at the fire, breathing heavily after the exertions of dinner: von Gratz walked up and down—his hands behind his back—whistling under his breath. Only the Comte de Guy stared unconcernedly at the fire, as if indifferent to the result of their thoughts. In his attitude at that moment he gave a true expression to his attitude on life. Accustomed to play with great stakes, he had just dealt the cards for the most gigantic gamble of his life. . . . What matter to the three men, who were looking at the hands he had given them, that only a master criminal could have conceived such a game? The only question which occupied their minds was whether he could carry it through. And on that point they had only their judgment of his personality to rely on.

Strength

Strength of muscle does not indicate strength of nerves. On this account many people who look healthy enough suffer from nervous troubles and cannot understand what is ailing them. Sleeplessness and irritability are among the early symptoms. Indigestion and tired feelings soon follow.

Read this letter from an Ontario man:

Mr. W. L. Gregory, Charles St. E., Ingersoll, Ont., writes:

"I had been troubled for quite a while with indigestion. At times there would be a twitching of the nerves of my stomach; and I also found it difficult to get a good night's sleep. I am a moulder, and owing to the nature of my work my system became run-down. I took a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found great benefit from this medicine. They did me a great deal of good. I have not been bothered at all with indigestion since, and can sleep much better. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends, as I think it splendid for any one run-down and needing a tonic."

SUSPICION.

A Washington man tells of meeting a friend on the street on an occasion when he wore an entirely unaccustomed expression of anxiety.

"What seems to be the matter, old man?" asked the first-mentioned gentleman. "You look extremely worried."

"And I am worried," said the other. "To be honest with you, it's on account of some life insurance I took out last Friday."

"But," continuer the first, "what has that to do with the woe-begone expression on your face?"

"Well, the very next day after I had it written, my wife bought a new cook book. Possibly it's all right; but, old man, it certainly does look suspicious!"

CANCER LIKENED TO "RED" REVOLT

Dr. Olin aSsy Human Cells Grow Menacingly After Years of Normal Action.

LANSING, Mich., Nov. .—Cancer is nothing short of "Red" uprisings in the body-republic according to officials of the Michigan department of health, who are co-operating with the American Society for the Control of Cancer during "National Cancer Week."

"Subordination and loyalty are the catchwords everywhere in the cell-state until cancer apears," says Dr. R. M. Olin, commissioner of health: "But where cancer attacks we see anarchy and revolt. Certain cells of the body after 40 or more years of faithful service begin to grow at a more rapid rate than the normal cells of the organ. They throw off the bonds of growth which keep the normal cells within proper limits.

"Soon the cells block up the local area where they started and they begin to push tentacle-like growth into surrounding tissues. Breeding rapidly and spreading resistlessly in every direction they cause the entire gland and surrounding tissues to become hard and swollen. Unlike the invasion of egrms in a contagious disease which set up inflammation, in cancer the destroying agent is a group of pirate cells of the body itself. Eventually, part of the original growth may break up and be carried in the blood or lymph to start secondary growths."

Cancer may be likened to the spontaneous origin of a fire, residents of Michigan are being told this week. As time elapses the fire becomes progressively harder to control. Likewise, it is said, the longer the cancer suspect delays examination the competent treatment, the smaller are the chances for relief and recovery.

NAPKIN RINGS IN VOGUE.

There is a decided demand for napkin rings at the present time. They do duty as a wedding present in pairs, one with the initials of the bridegroom, and the other with the initials of the bride. There is a wide variety of styles, and baby rings are in innumerable designs. These are large for the baby's bib takes more space than a napkin. They are engraved with a little oxidation in fairy scenes, Mother Goose, biblical stories, Cain and Abel, Ruth gleaning, and the alphabet in many forms.

In 1918 there were approximately 80,000 women working underground in mines in Japan.

Be Suspicious of Tender Gums

Be suspicious of any tenderness or bleeding of the gums. This is usually the first stage of Pyorrhea—an insidious disease of the gums that destroys the teeth and undermines bodily health.

Gradually the gums become spongy. They inflame, then shrink, thus exposing the unenameled tooth-base to the ravages of decay. Tiny openings in the gums form gateways for disease germs to enter the system.

Medical science has traced many ills to these infecting germs in the gums weakened by Pyorrhea.

They are now known to be a frequent cause of indigestion, anaemia, rheumatism and other serious conditions.

So watch carefully for that first tenderness or bleeding of the gums. Try Forhan's immediately. It positively prevents Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease) if used in time and used consistently.

And in preventing Pyorrhea—it guards against other ills.

Forhan's (For the Gums) cleans teeth scientifically as well. Brush your teeth with it. It keeps them white and clean.

If gum shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment. 35c and 60c tubes in Canada and U. S. If your druggist cannot supply you, send price to us direct and we will mail tube postpaid.

WHAT'S NEW IN THE THEATRE

By BEN DEASON
Canadian Press Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The theatrical event of outstanding interest for Canadians this week is probably the opening of a new season of Shakespearian drama by E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe. Many thousands of devotees of the classic drama in the Dominion will doubtless recall with gratitude Sothern's ludicrously magnificent Malvolio, his boisterous yet artistic Petruchio, and his impressive Shylock and will have pleasant memories of Miss Marlowe's beguiling Viola, her dignified Portia, and the fascination of her portrayal of Katharina, the shrew. For Sothern and Marlowe have crossed the border many times and Canadians are numbered among their staunchest and most enthusiastic admirers. Just when they will reach the Dominion in their prospective tour, and what Canadian cities are to see them, are matters which are still to be settled, but the Shuberts, under whose auspices they travel, will undoubtedly see to it that Canada is not neglected.

The New York engagement is of four weeks. It opened at the Century Theatre recently with "Twelfth Night." Other plays in this season's repertoire are 'The Taming of the Shrew,' 'The Merchant of Venice,' and "Hamlet." All of these have been presented in Canada by the Sothern-Marlowe Company.

"Twelfth Night" offers Miss Marlowe exceptional opportunities for the display of her wonderful elocutionary powers. The role of all the classic roles in which she has appeared, probably best suits her poetic temperament and charm of personality. Last night a great audience at the Century sat spellbound, completely enthralled by the music of her tones and the delight of her presence. Her interpretation of the role has not changed a whit. Her Viola is still a study of changing moods, of tenderness, wistful longing, and heart-reaching melancholy, alternating with fascinating mischievlousness and delightful buoyancy of spirit. Fervent and unselfish love is still the dominant note.

Mr. Sothern once more fills the role of Malvolio with a wealth of comic gravity The steward's pomposity and egotism are emphasized, yet Mr. Sothern with consummate artistry, introduces an undercurrent of sincerity which at times serves to arouse a feeling of sympathy for the self-deceived dolt.

The noted Shakespearian stars, in returning to the stage after their lengthy vacation in England have brought back with them a number of the former members of their company, several of whom were with them on their last Canadian tour. Alma Kruger again portrays the love-lorn, romantic Olivia. Frederick Lewis, who played Ursino, is back in the same role. The drunken Sir Toby Belch, is again in the hands of Roland Buckstone, who provides a great deal of boisterous fun in the scenes in which the roistering old knight appears. The Sebastian is Sydney Mather, replacing Henry Stanford, whose death has come since last he played opposite Miss Marlowe. Mr. Mather gives an intelligent and sincere reading of the lines, but to regard him as a twin brother of Viola requires an earnest effort of imagination.

The scenic fitting of the play are similar to those used two seasons ago. Draperies blending dull green and gray are used as a background in preference to the conventional drops. These are beautifully arranged and with the articles of furniture required in the various scenes create an atmosphere of diguity and charm thoroughly in keeping with the high artistic levels of the performance.

One reason for the all-round excellence of the Sothern-Marlowe productions is that nothing is considered too insignificant to receive serious attention. Even the "heavy thinking parts," or most of them, are in the hands of experienced actors. There are eight understudies with the company. They are prepared to act in various roles at a moment's notice and when not required to substitute—and they don't get many chances at the regular roles, for the members of the company are a healthy lot—they appear in the court and mob scenes. Thus the old-time roughness and bungling of the "supers" is the scenes requiring large groups of people is done away with.

Anna Pavlowa, famous Russian dancing star, who opened a New York engagement at the Metropolitan Opera House last Monday night, is this year demonstrating that art and merriment will mix. Her new programme includes a novelty of rare gayety in a sort of pantomimic ballet, called "Fairy Tales." This picturesque ballet which is new to New York but has already been presented by Pavlowa in several Canadian cities, is an episode from Tschaikovsky's "Sleeping Beauty." The New York critics received it with high praise.

The remainder of the programme as presented in New York, last Monday night, is made up of a number of dances set to eight of Chopin's best known pieces, and a group of divertisements, all old friends of former seasons. Chief among Pavlowa's supporters is Laurent Novikoff.

Theodore Stier is in charge of the orchestra which like the supporting ballet is a large one. According to announcement, both orchestra and ballet will be kept up to its New York strength when the company goes on tour.

Three comedies, and a play by Eugene O'Neil are also announced for this week, though none of them have been presented at the time of writing. At the Lyceum David Belasco is to produce "The Grand Duke," a Parisian comedy by Sacha Guitry, author of 'Deburau." Lionel Atwell is the star. Charles Dillingworth is to thrust another musical comedy upon us. This is called "Good Morning Dearie," and is to be given at the Globe. The music is by Jerome Kern and the book and lyrics by Anne Caldwell. The featured player is Louise Groody. "Golden Days" described as "a comedy of youth," is to be given at the Gaiety. The O'Neil play is called "Anna Christie." Judging by past performances, it will be, oh! simply wonderfully artistic, and will contain a coupie of suicides.

YOUNG GIRL FINDS RELIEF

Wants to Tell Other Girls All About It

Evansville, Ind.—"I am eighteen years old and have been bothered for several months with irregular periods. Every month my back would ache and I always had a cold and felt drowsy and sleepy. I work in a millinery shop and I went to work everyday, but felt stupid and would have such cramps. I had seen Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and had heard several women talk of it, so mother got me some. This Vegetable Compound is wonderful and it helped me very much, so that during my periods I am not now sick or drowsy. I have told many girls about it and would be glad to help anyone who is troubled with similar ailments." — STELLA LINXWILER, 6 Second St., Evansville, Ind.

Some girls lead lives of luxury, while others toil for their livelihood, but all are subject to the same physical laws and suffer in proportion to their violation. When such symptoms develop as irregularities, headaches, backaches, bearing-down sensations and "the blues," girls should profit by Miss Linxwiler's experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

VIEWS ON CANADIANS

CHOICE OF GEN. ODLUM.

(Toronto Globe.)

The election of General Victor Odlum by South Vancouver would add greatly to British Columbia's strength in the Commons. General Odlum's record overseas was an excellent one, his knowledge of public affairs is most comprehensive and his political ideals are those of a young Canadian who loves his native land and believes in representative government.

PROTECTION.

(Toronto Telegram.)

Dr. Michael Clark, the eloquent advocate of "Free Trade as We Have it in England" will not be a candidate in the coming election. Consequently he should have ample time to explain how the embargo against Canadian cattle fits in with the doctrine of English Free Trade.

It is no longer pretended that the embargo is maintained as a protection against disease. It is there as an economic measure and Britain has a perfect right to keep it there is she wants to.

But this is only one of many evidences that Britain is practising a protectionist policy. So is practically every other country. And the Liberal and Agrarian parties who are against a protection policy would have Canada practically the only country in the world that provides a dumping ground for the products of these protected countries.

How could Canadian industries survive under such a handicap?

PLAYING THE GAME.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

If women are to take a hand in the game of politics they must expect to be treated according to the rules of the game. That, at least, appears to be the view of the Ottawa Journal, which describes Miss Agnes McPhail, the U. F. O. candidate in South Grey, as "gabby person, with a single-track mind, who talks like a fanatic." The Journal adds, probably in explanation of its treatment of the lady, that the published interviews on her free trade ideas have given it a pain. So that is is probably more in pain than in anger that The Journal speaks.

A PASSING CLOUD.

(Toronto Telegram.)

The nomination of J. H. Burnham as Government candidate is causing a lot of unnecessary surprise and comment. To be sure Mr. Burnham ran in opposition to the Government candidate in the by-election. Mr. Burnham resigned because he thought a general election necessary. In his general policy he was behind the Government. Premier Meighen came around to Mr. Burnham's way of thinking in regard to the election. With that slight difference of opinion removed Mr. Burnham fitted into the Government candidacy. And with this split in the party removed there is every probability that one Gordon ex-M.P. has ended his brief career as a statesman, and that what was hailed as a great victory for Ontario Liberalism was merely a shadow cast by passing clouds over West Peterboro's splendid record as a Conservative stronghold.

VIEWS ON CANADIAN [CONTD] Z BIG BUSINESS.

(Hamilton Herald.)

Mr. Crerar tries to sidetrack the tariff issue by representing the Government campaign fund to have been subscribed by "Big Business" and by demanding of Mr. Meighen that he reveal the sources of the fund. This is supposed by Mr. Crerar to be "good politics"—a permissible way of discrediting his opponents. But he should first set an example in revelation to Mr. Meighen by disclosing the amount contributed to his own campaign fund by the huge corporation of which he is the official head—the Grain Growers' Association, which is a sample, of the biggest kind of Big Business.

FOR A BEAUTIFUL SKIN.

A French remedy for a faded skin is to eat a small plateful of watercress with salt every day. The beauties of the harems of Constantinople rely upon any green salad eaten at breakfast with much salt for the same purpose.

Sometimes these internal remedies must be supplemented by external aids. One of the best is to moisten coarse cornmeal with milk, and filling hands with it, scrub the face gently yet with vigor. The friction opens the pores and relieves the muddy looking skin of the poison which has choked them.

COMB SAGE TEA IN FADED OR GRAY HAIR

If Mixed With Sulphur it Darkens so Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural colour and looks glossy, soft and beautful.

FOREST MORNING.

Dew to the long grass clinging,
Scent of the good brown earth,
And out o'er the hills, upswinging,
The Red Road wandering, flinging
Its lure to the brave as ever
It lured since the world had birth.

Out of the whisp'ring green seas
A bird-voice, wakening, thrills,
And a stream o'er the rough rocks falling
In its swift race pauses, calling
To the chanting voice, insistent,
Of a stream in the higher hills.

God walks in the woods at dawning,
And even the pines forget
Their sadness awhile, and ever
The soul, for its high endeavor,
Finds hope in the great green spaces
In the marvel of morning set.

According to estimates between 25,000,000 and 50,000,000 quarts of hard liquor a year are passing through the underground channels of the United States.

COURTESY

One of the best definitions to courtesy, as well as one of the best definitions of it we have ever read, is the following from Drews Imprint:

"Treating a customer like a rich uncle, so that you can extract his coins is not courtesy, that's foresight.

"Offering a chair to a man who enters your office is not courtesy, that's duty.

"Listening to the grumbling, growling and groaning of a bore without remonstrance is not courtesy, that's forebearance.

"Helping a pretty girl across the street by holding her umbrella or carrying her poodle dog, none of these is courtesy. The first two are pleasures the last is politeness.

"Courtesy is doing that which nothing under the sun makes you do but human kindness. Courtesy springs from the heart. If the mind prompts the action there is a reason. Courtesy is good will, and good will prompted by the heart full of love to be kind. Only the generous man is truly courteous. He gives freely without the thought of receiving anything in return. The generous man has developed kindness to such an extent that he considers everyone as good as himself—treats others not as they should be treated (for generosity asks nothing) but as he ought to be treated."

RECIPES

Date and Nut Paste Filing.

One cupful date and nut paste, one-third cupful boiling water, one-third cupful sugar, one tablespoonful lemon juice. Mix ingredients in order given. Cook in a double boiler ten minutes or until quite thick. Spread warm between layers of fresh cake. This amount is sufficient for two large layers of cake.

Holiday Tit-bits.

One-half pound of dates, one-half to three-quarters cupful of peanut butter, one-half pound of figs, confectioner's sugar. Pick out and remove stems from figs and stones from dates. Mix fruit well with peanut butter and force through a meat-chopper. Work, using the hands, on a board dredged with confectioner's sugar until well blended. Pat to onefourth inch in thickness, cut in three-fourth-inch squares, roll in confectioner's sugar and make a well-rounded ball. Chill thoroughly. These sweets keep indefinitely and are served at dinner with other bon-bons.

Date and Nut Sandwiches.

Spread brown bread with a layer of date-nut paste and then with a layer of peanut butter. Press the top layer of bread firmly down and then cut into circles, crescents and stars. Arrange on a dainty plate and garnish with a poinsettia.

DELEGATES ARRIVE.

RECORD PRICE PAID FOR BLUE BOY

A noted firm of American art dealers and collectors have just purchased from the Duke of Westminster the famous Gainsborough masterpiece, the "Blue Boy" for £170,000—approximately $800,000—a record price for an English painting. All of England is lamenting the taxation system that compelled the Duke, conceded to be England's richest peer, to part with such an art treasure but consolation is derived from the fact that it is the generous want of American art collectors to leave their spoils of European art treasures to public galleries. With the "Blue Boy" there was also purchased from the Duke of Westminster the famous Reynolds painting of "Mrs. Siddens as The Tragic Nurse," for £30,000, making a total of £200,000 for the two, or close to $1,000,000.

"THE MAN FROM HOME."

Probably the best individual performance that Mr. Snelgrove has given here is his portrayal of the part of Daniel Vorhees Pike in "The Man From Home," which the Rex Stock Company is offering at the Grand for the first three days of this week. Two capacity audiences saw the presentation of this splendid play yesterday and they were delighted with the production in general and the work of Rex himself in particular. William Hodge was seen here in "The Man From Home" ten or eleven years ago and playgoers who remember his portrayal of the title role found that Mr. Snelgrove's conception of the part did not compare unfavourably with that of the actor for whom it was originally written. As the shrewd but quaint attorney from Kokomo, Indiana, who rescues the American girl from the crew of Euorpean privateers, who have designs on her fortune, and who eventually wins her for himself, thus realizing the dream that has filled his life, Rex has a role that fits him like the proverbial glove, and he is most successful in his interpretation. Miss Zana Vaughn is of great assistance as the "girl from home," Billy Seymour wins laurels by his work as the Hon. Almeric, Wm. Mitchell is effective and convincing as Ivan and the rest of the cast are equal to the demands made upon them. "The Man From Home" deserves capacity business for its two remaining performances.

F. D. C.

HARRY TATE, THE HUMORIST, WITH "HULLO, CANADA."

Is there a member of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, from the biggest brass hat to the most insignificant rear rank private, who, when on leave in Blighty, failed to "pack up his troubles in his old kit bag" by hearing Harry Tate spill his barrel of fun? He was the best tonic of war days and a happy memory of these trips to the "Old Smoke," where his antics and anecdotes revived the flagging spirits of many a Tommy and served in no small way to keep their morals up to standard. This memory has lost none of its appeal and will be revived with double zeal upon the announcement that the great comedian will be here in person with Albert de Courville's latest revue, "Hullo, Canada."

The present tour of Harry Tate, the famous English comedian, with Albert de Courville's "Hullo, Canada," is his first visit to Canada and his second to this side of the Atlantic, the first being in 1906, when he played eight weeks in New York and Boston. Mr. Tate's company in "Motoring" has been seen in vaudeville throughout the country, but he has never appeared himself on this side except in the above-mentioned cities.

In "Hullo Canada," Mr. Tate will present his latest skit, "Selling the Car," which is a worthy successor to "Motoring," and another new interlude, "The Patent Office," as well as numerous other screamingly funny bits conceived by Mr. de Courville.

The entire show and cast are exactly the same as presented at the Princess Theatre in Toronto, and will be here for one night only, Thursday, Nov. 10th.

AT THE REGENT

PHOTOPLAY REFLECTS NOTED NEW YORK MYSTERY CASES.

New York's notorious mystery sensations which provide interesting reading matter to the public day in and day out are reflected vividly in the current attraction at the Regent Theatre, where "While New York Sleeps" is being shown. This widely heralded production, acclaimed as the greatest screen melodrama of all time, gives a very intimate knowledge into life among the gayest of New York's gay as well as an insight into the harried existence of the inhabitants of the East Side.

Director Charles J. Brabin, who staged the production for the Fox Film Corporation, has made the picture in episodic form, telling his story in three incidents, each of which is intensely dramatic and interesting. In order to insure perfect realism and fidelity to detail the director obtained the assistance of the New York police department and well-known newspaper reporters, who gave him the benefit of their knowledge of all degrees of New York society. The third episode is unusually sensational, depicting a tragedy of the East Side. The famous New York police boat is seen in a thrilling midnight pistol battle with a gang of robbers, staged on East River, within the shadow of the Brooklyn Bridge. Real policemen manned the boat and took part in the fight.

Among the many interesting features of the picture are scenes in a millionaire's home, along the Gay White Way and the river front district of the East Side. Many types of people who form the population of the great metropolis are encountered. The spectator is treated to a glimpse on the roof of the New Amsterdam Theatre and sees a dancing number from Ziegfeld's Midnight Frolic, together with gorgeous scenes filmed in the Palais Royal.

Estelle Taylor, Marc MacDermott, Earl Metcalfe, Harry Sothern and William Locke, composing an all-star cast, are the principal players.

AT THE CAPITOL.

An appreciative holiday crowd filled the Capitol Theatre last evening for the initial production of J. L. Frothingham's "Ten Dollar Raise," picturized from the Saturday Evening Post success from the pen of Peter B. Kyne. This is a new type of picture, something along the "Main Street" line, a dramatization of a situation which dominates the lives of eighty per cent. of the workaday people of any country. There are no sex problems in this picture, no high society backgrounds and no thrilling crime episodes. It is the story of life as the average man and woman sees it, a story of the trials and troubles of the great middle class, of the man Wilkins who slaved for years over a set of books before he got his "ten dollar raise."

Professor Keaton's "Hard Luck" comedy, a single-reel Rollins comedy, a spectatcular episode in the "Yellow Arm" serial, and the entertaining topics of the Day complete an excellent programme. The Thanksgiving offering included "Sweetheart" and several other song numbers by Mr. Ernest Hammond, of Toronto, the possessor of a fine baritone, which added immensely to the holiday programme.

AT THE ALLEN.

HIGHLIGHTS MANY IN CONSTANCE TALMADGE PLAY

Are Allen motion pitcure audiences made up of several different types of persons.

Or is "Wedding Bells," Constance Talmadge's latest release through Associated First National Pictures, Inc., radically different from other features which have been gracing the screen of the Allen Theatre?

"Wedding Bells" opened its engagement at the Allen Theatre on Monday. According to the management, the audiences at that performance seemed to get the most enjoyment out of the scenes wherein Harrison Ford, as Reginald Carter, is endeavoring to convince Rosalie Wayne, played by Constance Talmadge, that he is not in love with her, and merely glad to see her after a year's separation brought about by divorce.

As the various performances have progressed, the management reports that different audiences find different incidents to laugh at.

"It must be for the reason that 'Wedding Bells' is a picture made to appeal to one member of the Allen Theatre staff. "We have generally found that there are certain spots in pictures which are always sure to get the biggest laughs. This isn't the case with 'Wedding Bells,' for one audience no sooner picks what seems to be a sure-fire laugh than the next audience gets more amusement out of some other incident."

"Wedding Bells" was adapted from Salisbury Field's stage play of the same title. It was adapted for the screen by Zelda Crosby and directed by Chet Withey. Among those in the supporting cast are Harrison Ford, Emily Chichester, Ida Darling, James Harrison, William Rosselle, Polly Vann, Dallas Welford and Frank Honda.

"You can't tell just where you're going to laugh," said another member of the Allen Theatre's staff. "The more you see the picture the more humor you find."

When a girl says "He isn't handsome, but there's something about him I like," she is referring to his chummy roadster.

RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is produced by the accumulation of Uric Acid in the blood, and this poisonous substance attacks and inflames the membrane covering the joints and separating the muscles, thus producing severe pains. If the waste products of the human system are not properly carried off, Uric Acid forms and is deposited in the joints and between the different layers of muscles. DR. HENDERSON'S HERB TABLETS will correct this by its action on the kidneys and removing the Uric Acid from the blood. Try them and watch the results. If they fail your money will be refunded.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are put up three sizes—25c, 50c and $1 per box, at Warne's Drug Store, 351 George Street, Peterborough.

SUCCESSFUL REVIVAL OF EXAMINER ROAD RACE

HERB TRANTER WON SENIOR TEN MILE EVENT AND S. E. STACEY THE JUNIOR FIVE MILE CONTEST---ENTRIES WERE NUMEROUS AND BIG CROWD ATTENDED.

Herb. Tranter, son of W. J. Tranter, 607 Chamberlain Street, won the senior Examiner road race on Thanksgiving Day morning, covering the ten mile course within the city in 1 hr., 3 mins. and 25 seconds, finishing fresh and strong, and thirty seconds ahead of Dick Bates, nephew of F. W. Bates, 654 Stewart Street, whose time was 1 hr., 3 mins. and 55 seconds. Percy Luther was third with the time of 1 hr., 4 mins. and 25 seconds.

Tranter receives The Examiner shield, to be retained for one year, emblematic of the senior championship of the city, and also the gold watch presented by The Examiner. To Bates goes the diamond and amethyst stick pin and to Luther a signet ring, both prizes given by The Examiner.

The Junior Winners

S. E. Stacey captured the junior championship, doing the five miles in 33 mins. and 5 seconds with Ira Dundas only five seconds behind him at the finish and R. J. Miller third with the time of 33 mins. and 12 seconds. G. Frost was fourth, only twenty seconds behind the winner. Stacey gets possession of The Examiner junior shield and the honor of being junior champion, and also the silver watch donated by the Peterboro Amateur Athletic Association. Ira Dundas receives as second prize the "Little Ben' clock donated by the P. A. A. A., and a silver "Eversharp' pencil given by Mr. A. A. Fowler. Miller's prize is a "Satimo' safety razor presented by Mr. L. W. Lebarr, and Frost wins the focusing flashlight donated by Messrs. Grant & Thorpe.

Public Showed Interest

I any doubt existed as to the public's interest in the annual road race which used to be the sporting feature of Thanksgiving Day in the years before the war they were completely dispelled by the crowds that thronged George Street at the Y. M. C. A. corner, and for a block north and south of Murray Street. At various points along the course, especially at the corners where the route turned, groups of citizens watched the progress of the race from the first appearance of the juniors until the last senior had passed. Many of the residents viewed the contest from their verandahs, identifying the runners with the names and numbers as published in Saturday's Examiner, and checking off the contestants in the order in which they were strung along the road.

Few Entrants Missing

With the enthusiasm exhibited by the youths who had gone into training a month or six weeks ago upon the suggestion that the road race would be revived if the prospective number of entrants warranted it, with that spirit spontaneously aroused and stimulated as the holiday approached, there was no doubt of the success of both events when the entry list disclosed sixteen juniors and thirteen seniors ready for the gruelling grind. It is highly gratifying to note that only one junior and two seniors failed to answer the roll call when their groups were lined up before the official starter, Dr. N. H. Sutton.

Finished Strong

And the big majority of the boys finished, all the seniors went the whole distance, and while some of them were belated getting home everyone of them spurted the last hundred yards, except M. R. Smith, who, early in the race, deve'oped a contraction of musc'es in one leg which amed him bady. He hung, however, and his grit was rewarded by a specially warm round of applause by the crowd that had waited for him.

Every one of yesterday's runners were novices, facing the long trail for the first time. They gave a splendid account of themselves, and the fact that none of them were in distress at the end suggests that those who were outdistanced failed in their inexperience to gauge their resources of power, the demands on their strength and the lead they permitted the winners to open up on them. That, however, was one of the lessons of the day, and none of the boys have any reason to feel abashed over his performance. Any little disappointment may be wiped out next year, for they are all young and "game'.

A Happy Augury

A happy augury to the revival of The Examiner road race which this year was conducted under the patronage of the Peterboro Amateur Athletic Association, and virtually under their full direction was the inspiring victory of Albert Smoke in the Hamilton Herald race. Here was a graduate of The Examiner road race decisively defeating the flower of the marathon runners in the province and practically in the whole country. In the crowd also was Tommy McAuliffe who broke into the distance running game in one of the junior Examiner races before the war and whose latest distinction was captaining the Varsity harriers in the recent intercollegiate meet at Kingston in which he finished for his team, giving them first position. McAuliffe is a student in dentistry, and evidently has no regrets for his experience over the old course for the juniors from Nassau to The Examiner office. The exploits of these two men, not to mention Charlie Thorpe, Fred Simpson and other graduates of The Examiner races, suggested that some of the new crop who were just getting their first lessons yesterday may yet develop into first class marathoners worthy of those who have preceded them in bringing Peterboro's athletes ainto the foreground of Ontario athletics.

The Course

Getting back to the revival races, however, the juniors went twice over the two and a half mile course from the "Y" south to Sherbrooke, west to Park, north to McDonnel, east to Aylmer, north to Dublin, east to George and south to the "Y.' The senior race was four times around for a total of ten miles. The juniors were sent away about ten minutes after ten. At the corner of Hunter Street they ran into the Armistice Day parade, one of the sections of which paused for a few seconds to let the pack of youngsters through. This concession deserves a passing word of appreciation, and the committee in charge wish to acknowledge the act of whatever lodge made way for the runners. Ten of the fifteen finished the first lap, the others having abandoned the grind before covering the route. Only a few seconds separated the first and last man of the ten as they entered on the second and final lap. They were Stacey, Dundas, Miller, Frost, S. McIntosh, R. B. Kennedy, A. H. Davis, H. Jenkins, J. Cross, and N. R. Grose. Frost and Dundas did the lap in 17 mins., 51 secs., and Miller in 17 mins., and 58 secs. They bunched together nearly all the way, and the race was really decided in the sprints from Dublin Street south to the tape.

Stacey looked the strongest throughout the last mile and had plenty of reserve when he forged ahead on the home stretch, finishing the five miles in 33.05, Dundas following in 33.1 , Miller in 33.12 and Frost in 33.25. Frost had stayed up in front from the outset, but the sprint was too much for him.

The Senior Race

Tranter and Bates made the senior race. They began to draw away from the others early in the second lap, and on the third had a couple of blocks space between the main body of the field with Luther in between and going strong. On the last turn Tranter and Bates were at Bethune Street on Sherbrooke when the bunch were turning off George Street. North of Hunter Street on Park Street Tranter increased his pace and had a good hundred yards lead on Bates at McDonnel Street. He was content with that. Luther in that part of the stretch looked like a contender for second place, but Bates held him off and maintained a lead of thirty seconds on him. Luther s time was 64.25, Bates 63.55, and Tranter s 63.25. Tranter, by the way, was slightly handicapped by an ankle that bothered him all the way. He had strained it in a recent workout, but gave no indication of pain at any stage of the race.

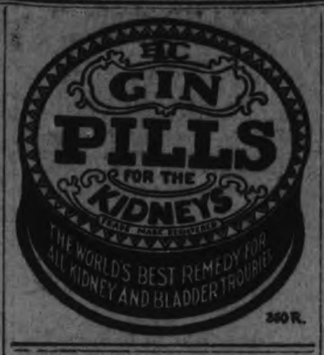
Everybody Helped

Not the least pleasing feature of the revival of The Examiner road race was the co-operation and the prompt readiness to help shown by everybody. That spirit contributed largely to the smoothness with which the events were run off and to their general success. The officials were all at their places just as they had promised, the crowd was enthusiastic and sympathetic, the police helped materially, and in short nothing was lacking. The road was muddy in stretches and a drier day will produce faster time than yesterday's. A special acknowledgement should be made of the hospitality of the Y. M. C. A., who kept open house all morning and gave the runners free use of all the privileges for the occasion. Doug. Loomis, physical director, had everything laid out to the last detail. After that the rest was easy. Mr. G. H. Roper, secretary of the "Y," turned out as one of the officials and also helped get the runners ready for the race. Mr. McNeeley, his assistant, was also mighty useful. Charlie Thorpe, of the committee, assumed the bulk of the duties of lining up the contestants as a final contribution to his efforts which began when the race was first mooted and continued twice a week in training most of the boys who entered. He and Mr. Loomis are real workers, and they are both keen for amateur athletics, especially for track and field sports The list of officials who assisted, including Ald. Morrison, who stuck to his post at the Bethune Street crossing on Sherbrooke Street, is too numerous to mention individually, but they all have the thanks of the committee, and also the satisfaction of knowing that their help counted materially in putting over The Examiner race. The next "item' on the programme is a theatre athletic night, at which the prizes will be presented. The first moves have already been made, and with another ladle full of that all-together spirit the summer season may be brought to a pleasant close and the winter opened with a little splurge by the P. A. A. A.



ENTHUSIASTIC WELCOME FOR HERALD WINNER

Albert Smoke, winner of the Hamilton Herald race yesterday, was tendered a rousing reception on his arrival home on the midnight C.P.R. train last night. The city officials and officers of the P.A.A.A. arranged the affair, and the citizens responded to the notices given out in the theatres during the evening by turning out in large numbers at the station. Mayor McIntyre and Ald. Gordon, Phelan, Whitehouse and Crowe represented the city, and the Melody Concert Band provided the music.

As the train pulled in, and Smoke was seen holding aloft the beautiful trophy he had won, round after round of cheering greeted the fleet-footed Indian, and he was carried on the shoulders of some of the crowd to the waiting-room, where Ald. Gordon expressed Peterborough's congratulations, at the same time pointing to his victory as a happy augury for the Peterborough Athletic Association. Ald. Gordon also voiced the thanks of the citizens generally to Mr. Arthur Johnston, whose interest in Albert Smoke was in a great measure responsible for his success. Cheers were given for the Herald winner and for Mr. Johnston.

Headed by the band, a motor car procession was then formed, and Smoke was escorted in triumph to the Windsor Hotel. He was accompanied to Hamilton by Arthur Johnston, Sr., and Arthur, Jr. The latter and his brother, "Buster," deserve great credit for the assistance they have given Smoke in his training.

DAVE WHITE WON LAST WEEK'S PRIZE

Mr Dave White won last week's prize in five pins with the score of 708 in three games. T. Curvin was next with 692.

PICTON CAPTURE THE INTERMEDIATE HONOURS

BEAT CALEDONIA IN THE PLAY-OFF AT RIVERSIDE PARK 10 TO 2 —BLOW-UP IN THE SEVENTH COST CALEDONIA THE TITLE

The Picton team captured the Intermediate championship of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association for the second year in susccession yesterday afternoon at Riverside Park, when they triumphed over the Caledonia team, Western Ontario winners, in the play-off for the title, by 10 runs to 2. A league baseball game in November, with the thermometer down below the freezing-point in the shade, constituted a new record for Peterborough, but in spite of the weather conditions, the game was a fine exhibition of baseball until Caledonia blew up in the seventh and made enough errors to give Picton six runs.

Up to that stage the Westerners, despite the fact that Wright, their pitching ace, was unable to play owing to the death of his father, looked like winners. Brown, the second string twirler, was working easily and smoothly, and with his team in front 2 to 1, the Intermediate trophy seemed to be due for a trip west. Caledonia had played errorless ball for six innings, and their collapse in the seventh was as complete as it was unexpected. Before they came down to earth the game was lost beyond recall.

Picton played snappy ball. They only had one misplay charged against them, and Croft, after allowing four hits and two runs in the first innings, had the Caledonia crew at his mercy thereafter, allowing only three scattered singles for the balance of the game. Welsh, the second baseman, and a left-hander at that, handled nine chances without an error.

Both teams had a flock of rooters with them, with the Picton fans in the majority, and the noise they made was worse than anything that Riverside Park has heard. Those Prince Edward County folks sure have great lungs, and more enthusiasm than an oil stock salesman. They won't be able to speak to-day, but what do they care, for the Intermediate Cup will winter besides the Bay of Quinte, and they are satisfied.

Caledonia did all their scoring in the first. With one down, W. Morrison singled to left, but was forced at second on Brown's tap to Mulholland. Shaw singled to right, sending Brown to third. Shaw stole second, and both runners came home on M. Morrison's Texas Leaguer to short centre. Todd singled to right, but Hibbard ended the run-getting with a fly to Hudgin in centre.

Picton got one back in the fourth. Hudgin started the counter by a double over Brand's head in left. He advanced to third on a passed ball, and when Hy. Campney, in trying to dodge a high one, accidentally tanped a slow roller to Todd, Hudgin scored, Croft fanned, and although Welsh followed with a single, Brown got out of trouble by whiffing Hd. Campney.

There was no further scoring until the Westerners blew up in the seventh. W. Morrison paved the way for the ascension by a wide throw to first on Welsh's roller, the batter reaching second. Hd. Campney rolled to Brown, Welsh going to third. C. Frederick laid down a neat bunt, scoring Welsh with the tying run, and reaching first safely when Todd missed the throw. Harrington dumped a pop fly back of the pitcher for a cheap hit, and when W. Morrison recovered the ball and tossed high to first, Frederick went all the way home, and Harrington reached second. J. Morrison dropped Mulholland's line to left. R. Frederick fouled out to Todd. Hudgin's single scored Harrington, and then Hy. Campney's single, Moyer's miss of Croft's drive to centre, and W. Morrison's error, sent three more runs over before Hibbard finally retired the side by tossing out Hd. Campney. It was a terrible innings.

Picton got three more in the eighth. With one down, Harrington singled through short and stole second. Mulholland hit to Brown, who threw to third, too late to get Harrington. R. Frederick singled to right centre, scoring Harrington. Hudgin bunted in front of the plate, and Brown, after holding the ball too long to get Mulholland, tossed it away from Morrison, and Frederick also scored on the play, while Hudgin went to third. He was doubled up at the plate on Campney's roller to W. Morrison.

ALBERT SMOKE WINS THE BIG HAMILTON ROAD RACE

PETERBORO' INDIAN CAPTURES THE ROAD RACE CLASSIC, FINISHING NEARLY FIVE MINUTES IN FRONT OF SECOND MAN.

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 7.—Toronto is seriously threatening Hamilton's fame as the home of long-distance runners. In the annual Herald road race of to-day around the bay, a distance of 19 miles 168 yards, out of 19 starters, six were from Toronto. They ran second, third and fifth, and five of the six finished. The winner proved to be Albert Smoke, the Peterborough Indian, who made the course in 1.50.04. The record is 1.46.15, made in 1912 by James Duffy.

While the day was pleasant enough overhead for the runners, the rains had made the route hard to negotiate, and the time was considered good under prevailing conditions. Arthur R. Scholes, Toronto, won second place, as he did last year, but his time, 1.54.27, was nearly five minutes better than last year. Another Toronto man, James Dellow, who won the race last year, came third, his time being 1.55.05. Norman General, a Brantford Indian, was fourth, time 1.56.54, and Percy Wyer, Toronto, was fifth in 1.57.29, making three Toronto men among the first five to finish.

Favorite Beaten.

It was believed that Dellow, last year's winner, had the best chance to win. He kept well up with the leaders nearly all the way around the course, being fourth most of the way. Several miles from the finish he improved his position to third, which proved to be the best he could do. Scholes led for several miles on the Plains road, but was overtaken by the winner near Hendrie's farm. The winner finished as fresh as though he had been out fro a short sprint. As he passed Scholes he tapped Scholes on the shoulder and smilingly invited him to "come on." The first Hamilton man to finish was Charles Morton, who got seventh place.

The six Toronto runners were: Percy Wyer, George Holland, James Dellow, Arthur Scholes, all running under the colors of the Gladstone A.C., and I. Lewis, D'Arcy A.C.' and A. G. Grainger of the Central "Y." The other starters were: Norman General, Brantford; Albert Smoke, Peterborough; James Graham and Robert Conby, Buffalo; Fred Makinson, St. Catharines; H. O. Williams, Thorold; Thomas Ellis, Charles Morton, Frances Hughes, Hamilton Central "Y"; Bruce Martin and Albert Merriam, Hamilton; George Brand, Jordan Station; E. M. Pleasant, Sanborn, N.Y.

Smoke's Early Lead.

J. M. Harris started them on their long journey at 9.06. Albert Smoke had the lead at the mile post, with Scholes, General, Dellow, Conboy and Ellis bunched behind him. Scholes took the lead from Smoke near the Beach Canal, about nine miles from the start, Smoke holding to second place. General maintained third and Dellow was satisfied with being fourth, having remained in a contending position from the start, and Wyer was fifth.

At Hendrie's farm, about fifteen miles, Smoke had regained the lead, and he was followed by Scholes, General, Dellow and Wyer. That was the order in which they finished, except that Dellow and General exchanged places. Others who finished and their time was:—6, E. M. Pleasant, 2.08.45; 7, Charlie Morton, 2.09.47; 8, George Holland, 2.18.51; 9, J. A. Graham, 2.19.10; 10, I. Lewis, 2.20.25; 11, Tom Ellis, 2.20.50; 12, Albert Granger.

OSHAWA WON FROM BELLEVILLE

The Oshawa Collegiate Institute defeated Belleville at Oshawa yesterday in an Interscholastic O.R.F.U. game by 21 points to 10, thus remaining in the running for the group honours. Oshawa can tie with Peterborough by beating the local Collegiate in Oshawa on Saturday and winning from Belleville in the latter town. Brown's kicking featured yesterday's game, the Oshawa punter booting 11 singles against Belleville. Maidens scored two trys for the losers.

COLLEGIATE WHITEWASH THEIR BELLEVILLE RIVALS

WON INTERSCHOLASTIC O.R.F.U. GAME SATURDAY BY 9 TO 0, IN A CONTEST FEATURED BY YOUNG'S 85 YARD RUN.

The Peterborough Collegiate Institute got a tight grip on this group of the inter-Scholastic O. R. F. U. series on Saturday when they defeated their rivals from the Belleville High School by 9 points to 0. It was the third straight win for the Central Park twelve and the second dose of whitewash they have administered to Belleville this season.

Saturday's game was featured by the work of Capt. Doug. Young at quarter back for the homesters. He not only had a sensational 85 yard that was directly responsible for the only touchdown scored by the P.C.I., but his runs around the ends and through holes in the line were the best ground gaining plays in the local repertoire. Young used rare judgment in his work, drawing out the Belleville wings by a fake pass, and then slipping through the openings thus made for big gains. The Peterboro line tackled splendidly and were good both offensively and defensively, while Brown, Ridpath, Grimes and Fanning all were in the limelight by reason of clever running plays, while Grime did some fine kicking.

For Belleville the most effective work was done by Cole and Marshall whose line plunging gained frequently for the visitors. Maidens, the sprinter, who was at flying wing, was watched too close to be effective. The P. C. I. know how fast he is and they gave him little chance to get away.

In spite of the Arctic breezes, a good sized crowd turned out to see the clash between the two old rivals. Bobby Armstrong of Toronto, was a most satisfactory referee while Mr. Affick of Belleville, handled the umpire's whistle in good style.

The line-up——

Belleville: Flying wing, Maidens; halves, Marshall, Allan, Dies; Quarter, Elliott; Snapback, Kerr; Inside Wings, Cole, J. Hurley; Middle Wings, J. Hurley, Tyers; outside wings, Yeomans, Christie; Subs, Emmerson, Cook, Ives.

Peterboro: Flying wing, Ridpath; Halves, Fanning, Grime, Brown; Quarter, Young; Snapback, Breyfogle; Inside wings, Stacey, Hay; Middle wings, Bookhout, Eastwood; Outside ings, Legon, Rishor; Subs, Maniece, H. Young, Stevens, Gilchrist, Parrington, Fleming.

Breyfogle kicked off for the Petes, and Belleville immediately assumed the aggressive. They gained on a couple of line plunges, and then Maidens went around the end for twenty yards on a third down when P.C.I. were expecting a kick. Peterboro braced and forced the visitors to kick, the ball going into touch close to the line. P.C.I. worked their way out to their fifteen yard line and then Young pulled off his great run. With the Belleville wings drawn out to stop a combination run around the end, the Petes' quarter back shot through a hole in the line, dodging through the Belleville backs, and set out for the distant touch line. He ran 85 yards before Maidens pulled him down from behind a yard out. On the first down Hay bucked over for a try, which Breyfogle converted neatly. Peterboro, 6; Belleville, 0.

P.C.I. continued to press and another fine run by Young carried the ball to Belleville's 15 yard line, and Grime kicked over and Rishor forced a rouge. Peterboro 7; Belleville 0.

In the second quarter the Petes maintained their advantage. Young's runs through the line and good work by the back division kept Belleville on the defensive, and twice in succession Grime kicked to the dead line for singles, bringing the total up to 9 to 0.

Getting offside lost them a try in the nexe few minutes and spoiled the effect of some of the prettiest work of the day. With the ball at midfield, Ridpath took a long pass, and tore off thirty yards before being downed. Fanning fifteen more on a neat pass from Young, and then another long pass to Ridpath enabled that player to carry the ball to Belleville's one yard line. P.C.I. bucked over in the first down, but one of the wings was offside and the play was not allowed, Belleville gaining possession of the ball and a golden chance was lost.

Play was much more even in the last half, and for the most part was confined to midfield. The Belleville line tightened up and stopped Peterboro's end runs by good tackling, while the backs kicked more frequently and gained ground as a result. The Petes had no chance of scoring in this third period, when Breyfogle tried to drop goal from the twenty yard line he kicked low. Dies saved a rouge by running the ball out in good style.

Neither side succeeded in getting within scoring range in the last period and the end of the game found the figures still 9 to 0.

The P. C. I. have had but one point scored on them in three games.

LITTLE WANT ADS.

At this time of the year there are any number of things that are badly needed, either by the man or woman.

These things can be done without, but the Summer is going to be not quite so happy without them, and they need not cost you nearly as much as you think, if you only use the Want Ads. to get them.

So many people lose a vast amount of pleasure simply because they have never learned the value of a simple little appeal to the Examiner Want Ad. Column. Don't let this bright month of June go by without satisfying little extra Summer wants through the Want Ads.

FIRE CHIEF REPORTS SEVERAL DRILLS BY THE DEPARTMENT--ENGINE TESTED AND FOUND FAULTY.

ROUTINE MATTERS COME BEFORE THE CITY COUNCIL

In the list of communications for the Council last night was an application from John Foster, 218 Wolfe street, for sewer connection. "I think he should have the sewer," said Ald. F. Whitehouse, and his request was referred to the Board of Works.

Notice was received from F. B. Carvell, Chief Commissioner of the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada, that an order had been passed rescinding a previous order that required the C.P.R. and the G. T. R. to flag all trains crossing Park street into the C.G.E. between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m., and the order limiting the time the tracks may be used to hours between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. The order substituted by the board is that all engines and trains of the C.P.R. and G.T.R. come to a stop before proceeding over the crossing, one member of the train crew to go forward and see that the track to be crossed is clear and act as flagman to protect traffic. The communication went to the Railway Committee.

G. A. Gillespie asked permission to run a steam pipe across Aylmer street from the milk plant to his garage, and he was given permission to do this work under the supervision of the City Engineer. It was also embodied in the resolution that was moved by Ald. Hamilton that the pavement be repaired to the satisfaction of the City Engineer. "It's a shame the way the pavements are being cut up, but what can we do 'bout it?" lamented Ald. Hamilton.

The Council received Miss Mary L. Stratton's resignation from the local Board of the Mother's Allowance and deferred appointing the new member until the next meeting.

Horace L. Brittain, Secretary-Treasurer of the Ontario Municipal Association, advised that the hearing of the Bell Telephone application for higher rates by the Railway Commissioners had been adjourned till Dec. 12, and if the city had any information or any protest to make to strengthen the case of the Municipal Association it would be received. Edward Bayly, K.C., will represent the association. The letter was referred to City Solicitor Widdifield.

Renewal of billiard table licenses was granted to Garrett Spencer and to Mrs. Bertha Munro, and a renewal of eating house license to Joseph Stewart.

Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Chief Medical Officer for Ontario, approved of the construction of sewers on George street from Prince to Lansdowne, on Hunter street from Armour road to a point 17 feet westerly and on Armour road from Hunter street to a point 325 feet southerly, at a total cost of $3,262.40.

City Engineer Parsons in a report estimated the cost of a nine-inch sewer on Walnut street from Cambridge street to Monaghan road at $2,677.50. There would be 780 feet, serving 20 houses. Of the total cost $1,476.73 would be chargeable to land, the other $400.86 to the corporation.

A lengthy statement received from the City Treasurer on the receipts and expenditures of the year showed that to Oct. 31 ordinary receipts had been $671,041.62 and payments $425,120.40. Appropriations were $806,135.28. Under the head of special accounts the total receipts were $600,695.86, total payments $422,-8--.-- with a credit balance to the city of $202,712.33.

(Special Despatch to The Examiner).

TORONTO, Nov. 9. — The answer of President A. A. Powers, of the U.F.O. Co-operative Company, to Dr. A. A. Farewell's criticisms of the company's management is that the Doctor is a Liberal politician, maliciously trying to prejudice the fortunes of the U.F.O. candidates. SHARP VERBAL EXCHANGES IN CITY COUNCIL

ALD. CROWE AND ALD. MORRISON TILT OVER LATTER'S EXPENSE ACCOUNT OF $151 AT CONVENTION.

SAYS EXPENSES EXCEED ESTIMATES' PROVISION

Never in many months has the tranquility of the council been threatened as it was last night. Ald Joseph Crowe and Ald. Robert Morrison did not advance beyond words, but some of these were very much of a vinegar variety. Ald. Joseph Crowe contested an account of $151 passed for expenses of Ald. Robert Morrison in connection with a convention in Three Rivers, Quebec.

Ald. Crowe spoke as follows: "Mr. Mayor, having noticed an item of $151.90 in last Finance Committee's report I find that it is charged to R. Morrison for expenses to convention of the Fire Chiefs. I take exception to it because there was $100 placed in the estimates for that purpose. The expenditure of $151.90 over and above that amount is not in accord with the policy that this council is endeavouring to pursue, and was uncalled for. Why should we create a precedent by having that done? I think that is an imposition on the liberties and generosity of this council which the ratepayers have every reason to take objection to for we are pledged to have their money put to the most serviceable use and not to excessive entertainment or pleasure of individuals.

Ald. Hay interjected and asked if he would have Ald. Morrison put up the difference when he was working for the city?

"I've been on deputations and I never took my wife," said Ald Crowe. "I for one moment would not stand if it was my own brother. Even the last chief, who was extravagant, did not have that nreve. I would like to see next year when the appropriations are made there is none for the Fire Chief's convention."

Ald. Whitehouse Sorry.

Ald. Hamilton interposed and said that Ald. Crowe was unfair to Ald. Morrison. "I am sure every member of the council only feels that Ald. Morrison was doing his duty in going down there and I am quite satisfied the council is justified to pass the expense account."

Ald. Whitehouse: "I am sorry Ald. Crowe brought that matter up."

Ald. Morrison said he was sent down. "I was told to go down, and I put in my account, that's all."

"It covered only the expenses of myself in connection with the convention. Any personal expenses of myself or my wife I paid out of my own pocket."

"I'm not like my friend, Ald Crowe —I've never asked either to go on any deputation. All I can say is that I have a little respect for old age," he said turning fiercely with pent-up anger on Ald Crowe, who was sitting beside him.

"Order! Order!" roared the mayor pounding his gavel on the desk.

"I am sorry myself this came up," said the mayor.

"I'm only looking after the city's business," continued Ald. Crowe.

"Now don't say any more," said Ald. Morrison. "I don't want any of the council to think I go out and spent the city's money unless I am sent".

"Yes, yes,' let's go on with the business," said the Mayor, and the council hurried on. The incident left the atmosphere very strained and tense though.

COUNCIL RESENTS THE PROPOSALS OF WHITEHOUSE

RECOMMENDATION REGARDING CONSTRUCTION OF SEWERS ONLY ONE OF QUINTETTE REMAINING.

SEWAGE AND PAVING PLANT QUESTIONS OPEN

The recommendation of Ald. Frank Whitehouse were pulled to pieces in Council last night and all that remained of the five recommendations was one relating to the construction of sewers on streets previously reported.

Recommendation No. 1; that the Board of Works strongly recommend the purchase of an asphalt paving plant was dealt with after three four and five were knocked out. The latter were passed at the Board of Works meeting last week and embraced the city's capitulation to the Provincial Board of Health in regard to the construction of an activated sludge plant. Clause three recommended the preparing of the by law authorizing the issue of debentures to construct the plant. Clause four, was a protest to the Provincial authorities in forcing the city to build a plant not approved by its city engineer and Clause five, authorized the advertising for tenders and the purchase of land for the pumping station.

"I conclude you might as well go ahead and build the activated sludge plant", said Ald. Crowe, following Ald. Whitehouse's explanation of the whole matter.

"I agree with Ald. Crowe, we can't do anything else," said Ald Whitehouse.

"I don't feel like putting in $200,-000 or $300,000 worth of stuff that won't be any use", said Ald. Jones. "The Council is always being held up for one thing or another. It seems we're just here to pass things" he declared warmly.

Ald. Hamilton was prepared to accept Mr. Parson's recommendation and refuse to follow the order of the Board. "I think the conclusion of Mr. Parsons is a pretty safe one. I don't know anything about this man Dallin

He undoubtedly knows his business but I dont think he knows any more about it than Mr. Parsons. I don't feel like taking his opinion over Mr. Parsons. I don't think if they brought it into court any judge would say we had to construct a plant we did not think was the right one."

Write a Letter

"We might write the Board of Health and tell them we got the letter and tell them we are still of the opinion the Imhoff is the best and we want to go ahead with it. If it is not they'll have to convince us further" declared Ald. Hamilton.

Mayor McIntyre said he was inclined to think the activated sludge was the best. They had worked satisfactorily in other places he said.

"You're quite right", said Ald. Gainey. I'm surprised at Ald. Hamilton taking the stand he does about Mr. Dallin.

"They both have to get information from the same source Mr. Dallin told us so", said Ald. Hay for Ald. Gainey's benefit. You can get men who have made a study of it more than Mr. Dallin.

"Well, I think he must know about it or he wouldn't be there," replied Ald. Gainey.

Ald. Phelan said it looked as if the city was being saddled with Engineer Dallin's experiment. "And we are the goats", added Ald. Hamilton.

"Exactly" commented Ald. White house.

"I don't think we ought to jump into this. We should take lots of time in this when we're spending the people's money."—Ald. Phelan.

Ald. Crowe—"How long do you want. We've been talking it for 15 years."

Ald. Whitehouse—"What I can't understand is if they did not intend to allow us to build the Imhoff system why did they ask us to come away and prepare plans for the Imhoff system."

Ald. Gainey suggested to end the discussion that was not getting them anywhere that they invite Dr. McCullough and Mr. Dallin to attend a Committee of the whole Council and discuss the matter.

"I put another motion like that once and they never paid any attention to it," said Ald. Crowe.

If they do it will be just another discourtesy. I think that's a good suggestion", remarked Ald. Whitehouse

Ald. Gainey's motion that Clause three, four and five be struck out and referred to the Committee of the Whole Council and that Dr. McCullough and Mr. Dallin be invited to attend a meeting of the committee in regard to the matter was adopted.

Asphalt Plant

Ald. Whitehouse said the recommendation to purchase an asphalt plant was only brought into promote discussion in Council. It did not promote much. Ald Gainey talked about getting a concrete plant. I think that clause ought to be referred back to the Committee for consideration. We can't buy it this year and if we waited till the spring I think they'd be cheaper", he said. This clause also went back to the Committee of the Whole.

Civic Relief

There was some discussion over the administration of relief in the city in the adoption of the Finance Committee's report and finally on Ald. Hay's motion Clause one the bone of contention, was referred back to the Finance Committee. Clause one was as follows:

"That the money which was in the hands of the Peterborough Relief Association and was authorized by an Act of the Legislature to be handed over to the City be placed in the hands of the Committee which acted as a relief committee for the Peterborough Relief Association with, Ald Phelan and the City Treasurer added to it, to be used for purposes of relief, and that the cheques be signed by the Mayor and City Treasurer as was done for the Relief Association.

KING'S SPEECH WILL DEAL WITH IRISH QUESTION

LONDON, Nov. 9.— (Canadian Press.)— Forecasts of the King's speech proroguing Parliament, which it is thought will be delivered to-morrow, are to the effect that it deals almost exclusively with the Irish situation.

The Premier presided last night over a Cabinet Council, at which the terms of the speech were said to have been discussed.

It is said that if the Ulsterites do not reconcile their views with those of the Premier he will resign.

REVISION OF VOTERS' LISTS NEXT STEP IN THEIR PREPARATION FOR PRINTING—LAST CHANCE NEXT WEEK FOR ELECTORS TO MAKE SURE NAMES NOT OMITTED

The revision of the voters' lists will begin at the Court House on Tuesday, November 15 and will continue daily except Sunday until Monday, Nov. 21. There will be two sessions on Saturday and Monday nights, commencing at 8 o'clock. This will be the last opportunity for the electors of the city, men and women, to make sure that their names are on the list, and Judge Huycke stated this morning that if any names are eventually missing it will be the fault only of those persons themselves. At the revision sessions His Honour will have any omitted names put on the list.

The ward registrations last week afforded every chance for citizens ascertaining whether or not their names were listed. In a sense they were information bureaus, and the responsibility of making inquiry fell upon the individual electors. The duty of the revising officer is therefore to make eny additions which are shown to him to have been admitted.

Judge Huycke expressed himself as anxious that the revision should be made as early as possible in order that there should be no last minute rush. The notices were being posted this afternoon, and everything done to inform the people of the sessions beginning on Tuesday next.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press.) — Democratic candidates headed by Mayor John Hylan, made a clean sewep of the city and county o ces yesterday, the Mayor receiving the unprecedented plurality of 417,986 ,the largest ever received by a Democratic candidate for any office in the city.

LABOR SHIFTS TO GIVE MORE WORK IN CITY

MOTION TO INAUGURATE TWO WEEKS' SHIFTS PASSES COUNCIL BY STRANGE TWIST OF PROCEDURE.

ONLY TWO ALDERMEN VOTED AND IT PASEED

A system of the city laborers working in shifts is to be applied to city work. Ald. Crowe moved a motion in council last night to bring this about ,and although there were only he and Ald. Gainey in favor of the motion it carried because the other aldermen did ot vote against it. They said they did not understand when the Mayor called for votes, but as it was all quite constitutional a second vote was not taken and Ald. Crowe and Ald. Gainey were victorious by a strange twist of the proceedings. The Council's adopted motion was that a system of laborers working in shifts of two weeks each be applied to the city work until further notice and a list of men and those belonging to the city as ratepayers be given the preference.

When Ald. Crowe took out his note book the council knew that something was coming. Ald. Frank Whitehouse thought he had not heard aright when Ald. Crowe read out the motion.

"Yes, Ald. Crowe, but you understand that the city engineer has to break these men in. You don't mean that to apply to the old hands?"

"I certainly do. We want to give as many men jobs as possible. If we put the two men on the one job that will help some."

Ald. Crowe said another man had his job. He was only working four days a week. Some measures had to be taken to cope with the unemployment," he said. Ald. Crowe said it would mean just the laborers.

When no one voted in opposition Council gave its assent to the shift system.

Ald. Whitehouse moved, seconded by Ald. Jones, and it was adopted, that any ratepayers out of employment in the city and desirous of work from the city be requested to register at the engineer's office.

Will Repair Car.

"I suppose you heard about a little accident we had to the Chief's car? What are we going to do for a car? For the present I have a car," said Ald. Morrison. "I want the authority to rent a car."

Ald. Gainey moved that the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Commtitee be given authority to engage a car for the Fire Department to replace the Fire Chief's car, while being repaired.

The car is now in the garage being examined.

The matter of firemens' uniforms was referred to the committee to bring in a report.

Other recommendations made by the council last night were as follows:

That the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario be asked to put on all the street cars some kind of a non-glare headlight.

That the Bell Telephone Company and the Utilities Commission be notified to remove the poles from the south side of the Hunter street bridge at the east and west ends.

That Mayor McIntyre, Ald. Phelan and Ald. Hay be appointed to represent the council on different bodies in connection with an Old Home week in Peterboro.

A bylaw was passed executing a lease from the city to the Alliance Brass Company of the Rapid Tool property, including the use of the right of way to the east, at a rental of $500 a year for two years, with the right on the part of the company to terminate the lease on one month's notice, and to convenant to repairs.

EXPLANATION MAY BE MADE BY THE PREMIER

(Special Despatch to the Examiner)

OTTAWA, Nov. 9. — Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, intimates this morning that he may have a statement to make later in the week regarding the promisery notes accepted by the Government from the Riordan Company in lieu of income and business profit taxes approximating $800,000 and due since 1916. "I have nothing to say on the subject this morning," he said, when questioned, "but may have something to say later on." R. W. Breadner, Commissioner of Taxation, was equally reticent, declaring that any statement must come from the Minister.

Inasmuch, however, as a telegram on the subject has been addressed directly to Premier Meighen requesting an explanation, such explanation may eventually come from the Premier.

An interesting speculation arises out of the situation as disclosed by the company's budget, it is scarcely reasonable to expect that this is the only corporation whose promisory notes have been taken in lieu of taxes. If it is, then the question is, why the discrimination and why can't the individual pay his taxes, or rather delay paying them in the same manner? There is no provision in either of the Acts for such action.

SUSTAIN RAIL WAGE CUT FOR SOME CLASSES

C. N. R. AWARD MADE PUBLIC SUSTAINS REDUCTIONS IN SALARIES OF THOSE GETTING OVER $125 A MONTH

RECOMMENDS SCHEDULE FOR THOSE PAID LESS

OTTAWA, Nov. 9. — (Canadian Press.)—The award of the arbitrators in the wage dispute between the Canadian National Railways and their employes handed out to-day, sustains the reductions in salaries of employes paid more than $125 a month and reductions in wages of stenographers, dining, parlor and sleeping car employes.

For employes receiving less than $125 monthly it recommends a railway schedule which provides a monthly reduction of $5 for those receiving $80 monthly, $7.50 for those receiving $81 to $95, $10 for those receiving $95 to $125, $12.50 for those receiving $125 to $150 and $15 for those receiving $150 and over.

NEW ORANGE HALL AT LINDSAY DEDICATED

LINDSAY, Nov. 9.—The new Orange Hall here was solemnly dedicated to God and the cause of Orangeism, Monday night before a capacity gathering of citizens and vsitors. For political and private reasons, the following special speakers wired their regrets: Hon. Dr. Edwards M.P., of Frontenac, Provincial Grand Master; Mr W. F. Tooman, of Tweed, Past Provincial Grand Master; Mayor J. I. Hart, of Orillia, Grand Organizer for Ontario West, and Hon. W. D. McPherson, M.P.P., Deputy Grand Master of British North America.

In consequence of this failure, mast of the speeches were of an impromptu nature.

THE SONS OF ENGLAND MARCHED IN PARADE

Through an unintentional oversight we omitted to mention in yesterday's Examiner that Lansdowne Lodge Sons of England took a prominent part in the Thanksgiving parade on Monday. This fraternal society is nothing if not intensely loyal and patriotic and that spirit was commendably demonstrated Thanksgiving Day, when the members turned out in goodly strength marching immediately following the Salvation Army band.

PRAISE FOR THE LOCAL SALVATION ARMY BAND

The local Salvation Army Band conducted a musical festival in the Salvation Army citadel at Lindsay, Sunday evening. Of this event the Lindsay Post says, "the Peterborough band, forty-five strong, as well as the individual soloists, was of a very high standard."

TO-DAY'S FASHIONS

TWO HATS

For hours of sports comes this thoroughbred hat of Angora wool knitted quite firmly enough to keep its shape. To wear with it is a scarf of the same brilliant tomato red as the hat. In more formal surroundings a wide hat of shirred brown chiffon velvet topped with tan ostrich lends a flattering background.

NORTHUMBERLAND LIBERALS STILL WITHOUT CANDIDATE

THIRD CONVENTION HELD AT COLBORNE ON TUESDAY DOMINATED BY SYMPATHISERS WITH OTHER PARTY OR PARTIES—LIBERAL OLD GUARD FAILED TO MUSTER SUFFICIENT NUMBERS.

C.W KERR MAY STAND ANYWAY

(By Staff Reporter)

COLBORNE, Nov. 9.—Thwarted for the third time in three weeks in their attempts and desire to nominate a candidate, Northumberland Liberals adjourned their latest convention here this afternoon hopelessly at odds and sharply divided for this campaign at least on the vital issue of loyalty to Liberalism first and before any other party whatsoever.

Urban members, mainly from Cobourg and Colborne,uncompromising old Grits of many a campaign and new recruits fresh and eager for the cause, not counting the cost and caring little whether they won or lost as long as they could fight under their own standard, were outnumbered, outmanoeuvred and outvoted by rural group largely from Murray Township and other southeast sections of the riding, some of whom frankly admitted having pledged themselves to Fred Slade, U.F.O. candidate and erstwhile Liberal, while all of them plainly evinced their conviction that Mr. Slade's success depended heavily upon a Liberal default in this section.

Not on Class Lines Entirely

The division was not precisely upon class lines. Some of the townspeople were prepared for a total eclipse of their party in this campaign, while the insurgents declared that inactivity meant not an eclipse but permanent extinction. Although this was the third effort of the Liberals since October 19th. when the first convention was held at Warkworth, it had not proceeded beyond the preliminary detail of the reading of the minutes when a resolution to abide by the decision at the second Warkworth convention on October 26, to the effect that the Liberals refrain form putting a man in the field, precipitated a debate

PUBLIC MEETING IN INTERESTS OF GOVERNMENT CANDIDATE

PERSONAL MENTION

OMEMEE, November 9. — A public meeting will be held in Coronation Hall on Wednesday evening, 9th November, in the interests of Mr. T. H. Stinson, of Lindsay, the Conservative candidate for this riding. Hon. H. G. Ferguson, leader of the Opposition in the Ontario House, will be present and address the meeting, also Dr. Wood, of Lindsay, and others.

Special Services.

The anniversary services held in the Methodist Church on Sunday were a decided success, as well as the fowl supper, which followed on Monday evening. Rev. Mr. Moore, of Bowmanville, occupied the pulpit on Sunday, and his addresses on each occasion were both interesting and helpful to the large congregations present. The choir rendered special music at each service.

On Monday evening a still greater crowd enjoyed the excellent supper provided by the ladies, and the splendid programme afterward. Rev. Mr. Stillman occupied the chair, and the following programme was given:

'All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

MR. ANDERSON TELLS FARMERS WHERE HE STANDS IN FIGHT

LEFT THE FARMERS' CLUB WHEN IT BECAME A POLITICAL ORGANIZATION --- MR. DEWART HELD A MEETING AT COLDSPRINGS.

ADDRESS BY MR. HALL

COLDSPRINGS, Nov. 9. — Mr. John Dewart, Liberal candidate in East Peterborough, held a meeting here last evening. There was a good attendance and the speakers, which included Mr. R. R. Hall and ex-Warden W. A. Anderson, were given an attentive hearing. The chair was occupied by Mr. Ernest Deyell.

In a vigorous address Mr. Dewart related some of the difficulties connected with the farming industry in many parts of the constituency such as Dummer where the nature of the soil in many cases proved a handicap to successful farming. Thrift is necessary to farm successfully to-day, declared Mr. Dewart, who went on to review what he characterized as the extravaagnce on the part of the present Government. To-day Canada is burdened with a huge public debt. Revenue is decreasing and taxation is increasing. The high tariff has resulted in trade stagnation. To-day the voter is confronted with three choices. The Meighen administration with its protective policy for the big interests; the Progressive party with its class or group form of government, and the Liberal policy which aims at the revision of the tariff downward. Mr. Dewart was glad to know that the women would have a vote in the present election and he expressed the hope that they would use it in the best interests of their country at this crucial hour.

National Debt.

Mr. R. R. Hall followed with a stirring address in which he referred to the national debt and the present cost of administration. When the Liberals were in power it cost seventy-nine million dollars annually to administer the affairs of this country and to-day it costs three hundred and three million dollars, exclusive of war expenditures. The speaker said an effort was being made to turn the House of Commons into a house of classes. During the past ten years the tariff has not been revised to meet existing conditions. There is some purpose to be served when you hear Premier Meighen shouting tariff. He has a record behind him and it is up to the electors to investigate this record before they mark their ballot on election day.

Mr. Hall named the directors of the Government railway board and went on to show that they were actively interested in many other companies. Everything required for the operation of the Government railways could be purchased from the companies represented by the directors. The Board is not called upon to report to Parliament. The deficit of the railways last year was greater than the total cost of the administration of government during the regime of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Yet in spite of this, information pertaining to the operations of these railways is concealed from the people. Every dollar expended by the postal department can be found in the audi-

ANNUAL DINNER OF METHODIST LADIES' AID AT LAKEFIELD

THANKSGIVING EVENT WAS UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS AS USUAL —SPLENDID PROGRAM, INTERESTING ADDRESSES.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 9.—The annual Thanksgiving dinner and entertainment of the Methodist Ladies' Aid took place on Thanksgiving evening and was, as usual, a great success. The Methodist ladies always have good weather and always a bumper crowd. This is somewhat of a tradition in the village, and this year was no exception. The supper was bountiful and well served by a committee of ladies, assisted by the sterner sex.

The entertainment was held in the church and the supper in the basement, according to custom.

Rev. S. F. Dixon occupied the chair. The programme opened by singing three verses of "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," followed by prayer and the usual Chairman's address. Mr. Dixon spoke briefly of the gratification such a successful affair gave him and proceeded to introduce the talent.

Mrs. Arthur Burrows rendered a splendid solo in a rich contralto, which was much appreciated. Miss Cullen and Dr. Smith sang "The Lost Chord" as a duet in a pleasing number. Master Morley Nixon gave a recitation, which elicited a hearty encore, and Misses Doidge and Webster followed with a duet. Rev. Francis Johnson here gave an address recalling his first appearance as a green Irish lad in the Lakefield circuit forty-nine years ago. The circuit included Bridgenorth in those days, and he had experienced a great deal of kindness he could never forget. The Government has proclaimed today as a day of national Thanksgiving, he said, and the President of the United States had also expressed a wish that his people would observe the occasion as one of thanksgiving to God for the gift of peace, and he also urges prayer for the disarmament conference, which we all hope will promote peace and harmony for years to come.

Although an Irishman, Mr. Johnson is glad to be a British subject, having always enjoyed safety and protection under the British crown. Queen Victoria, he said, in her pure, blameless and noble life did much to cleanse and purify the courts of Europe, and she was followed by King Edward the Peacemaker, and he in turn was succeeded by His Gracious Majesty King George the Wise, who by virtue of his great modesty has not always received a high enough estimate; but he has been a wonderful power for good among other nations as well as our own. He is a strong supporter of the Bible and its truths, and follows the precepts of holy writ.

In conclusion, Mr. Johnson declared we should be thankful for the good feeling between Canada and the United States, and also for the amny beautiful structures raised by Christianity.

BETTER WORLD TO BE RESULT OF ARMS MEET

BALFOUR EXPRESSES BELIEF THAT GREATEST STEP IN ALL HISTORY WILL BE TAKEN AT CONFERENCE.

JAPAN'S POSITION ON DISARMING EXPLAINED

QUEBEC, Que., November 9. — By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent. — "I don't believe this disarmament conference at Washington can do everything. I am personally confident it can do much. I am confident that of the steps that are gradually being made to produce a better and improved world—an international world—this history will be of all history the greatest. In that hope I go to Washington."

This was the message Arthur J. Balfour, British ex-Prime Minister, and present leader of the British delegation to Washington, in the absence of Lloyd George, gave to the newspapermen who welcomed him yesterday afternoon, when he landed from the liner Empress of France, which had conveyed him and his suite from Liverpool.

WASHINGTON, November 9. — Canadian Press. — After reiterating that Japan is ready to cut down her naval programme in agreement with the powers, provided the safety of Japan is assured, Admiral Baron Tomosaburo Kato, Minister of Marine, and ranking head of the Japanese delegation to the armament conference here, in a statement yesterday explained why the Oriental Empire had a big navy.

Owing to Japans' insular position, he declared, naval force alone must be relied on for her defence.

"The smallness or bigness of a navy depends upon the view of each nation concerned," said Admiral Kato. "I do not consider the navy of Japan a big one. The plans already adopted are much inferior to the programme adopted by Great Britain and the United States."

These were the Metagama and the Scandinavian which respectively carried thousands of cases of Scotch whiskey part of a 67,000 case order for the Quebec Liquor Commission and over 15,000 cases of French wines.

LIVES TO BE 102, DIES IN ACCIDENT

KINGSTON, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press.)—To live to be one hundred and two years old and then to die as the result of an accident, was the fate of Mrs. Mary Smith, who passed away in the General Hospital. Mrs. Smith, whose home was in Sillsville, recently celebrated her birthday and shortly after that broke her hip in a fall.

MARINES GUARD MAILS AGAINST TRAIN BANDITS

1000 SOLDIERS WITH ORDERS TO SHOOT TO KILL, TAKE OVER PROTECTION OF U.S. MAILS.

$6,300,000 STOLEN IN PAST YEAR FROM MAILS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press).—With orders to shoot to kill if necessary to prevent mail robberies, one thousand marines were ordered to duty to-day as guards of mail trains and trucks and at post offices in 15 cities. The marines are to be replaced eventually, he said, by a special force recruited from the postal service.

Arrangements for the services of the marines, the Postmaster General said, were made with the Secretary of the Navy. The matter was discussed at a Cabinet meeting, and President Harding is said to have expressed approval of Mr. Hays' plan to check looting of the mails.

The Postmaster General also announced that as a result of the recent New York robbery, orders had been issued suspending from the service three New York postoffice officials, Elijah E Morris, Superintendent of Mails; Henry Lippman, Superintendent of Registry, and Walter S. THE APPLE SITUATION.

The apple situation in Ontario is a problem that might be considered by the Farmers' Government in power at Toronto as worthy of engaging the attention of Hon. Manning Doherty and his Provincial Department of Agriculture. There is something wrong in the conditions that allow British Columbia apples to invade the very centre of the apple-growing sections of Ontario and crowd the home-grown product out of the fruit stores. Why should these apples from the Pacific Coast command a price of five cents each in a Province where the world's finest apples are grown Why are our Northern Spies and Snows and Talman Sweets outdistanced by the British Columbia article? And looking at it from the viewpoint of the consumer, why should good eating apples be as high-prized as the best quality of oranges in a country which grows so many and such fine apples as Canada does each year? The whole situation is a mystery to the man on the street and he looks to the Department of Agriculture as a proper body to supply him with the information he is lacking.

FRIDAY'S TRIBUTE.

Although, in accordance with the decision of the Dominion Government, that the celebration of Thanksgiving Day and Armistice Day should take place on the Monday preceding Nov. 11th, Peterborough observed Armistice Day on Monday, it should not be forgotten that the actual anniversary of the cessation of hostilities is the eleventh of this month, and that therefore on Friday, at 11 a.m.all business activities are to be suspended for two minutes as a tribute to the memory of the soldiers who did not come back. The whole British Empire is taking part in this ceremony on Friday. The wheels of industry are to be idle for two minutes, where possible trains will stop, street cars will be motionless and all normal activities will cease for the period designed by His Majesty the King. Peterborough's citizens are reminded of the two minutes' silence on Friday morning and are urged to patriotically carry out the Royal request and make the demonstration a sincere and whole-hearted honouring of the memory of the unreturning brave. Unless the interlude is generally recognized the whole effect of the tribute will be spoiled, and citizens' wherever they may be at 11 o'clock on Friday are requested to stand with uncovered heads and remember those who gave up their lives that victory might crown the efforts of the Allied armies.

THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER.

It is now proposed that Canada should follow the example of Great Britain, France, Italy and the United States, and arrange for the burial with appropriate ceremonies representative of the whole Dominion of an unknown Canadian soldier at Ottawa, selecting as did the other Allied countries the body of a Canadian who fell in France. The proposal will meet with favour among many Canadians, providing as it would a national shrine at the country's capital that would symbolize the valour of Canada's army and the sacrifices that were made; but, after all, Canada is represented just as is every other part of the British Empire by that unknown soldier to whose memory the highest honours of the Empire were given, and whose body lies in the heart of the Empire in Westminster Abbey. In view of this fact, he may have been a Canadian himself, for no one knows who the unknown was, whether an Imperial soldier or one who had come from the overseas Dominions. His body lies in the historic old Abbey as a tribute from a grateful commonwealth of nations to the millions of fighting men who helped to bring victory, a tribute that is as much Canada's or Australia's or New Zealand's as it is England's. No ceremony that could be arranged in Canada could more worthily honour the memory of the dead than it is honoured at Westminster.

In the cathedral clock at Strasbourg are twelve carved figures of the apostles, who parade at the noon hour.

THE SILENT VOTE.

There are features about the present election campaign that are puzzling the political experts or those who profess to be in that category. Newsapers in various parts of the country are commenting upon the fact that while political meetings are being largely attended and the speakers of the various parties are being given an attentive hearing, the old-time excitement is absent. People no longer cheer until they are red in the face; when they cheer at all it is rather a forced effort. Various reasons are assigned for this changed condition of affairs. Some old campaigners lay the blame on the granting of the franchise to the women; there are nearly as many of the fair sex at political rallies nowadays as there are men, and the latter no longer give vent to their enthusiasm as they did in former campaigns when they had the political game all to themselves. There may be more than a grain of truth in that contention, but while "cherchez la femme" may explain a lot of mysteries, we rather fancy that some other cause than the fact that the women have votes must be sought for the present apathy over political affairs. There is evidently to be much of that factor that is termed "the silent vote" in this campaign. People are not taking sides in public as generally as they did in the days of the two parties. They are keeping their intentions pretty well to themselves, and it is not as easy to get a line on the voters as it formerly was. With a new political party in the field and old ties loosened in many cases, the days seems to have gone when political workers could get together in a committee room, take a voters' list and check off the names into three classes—"with us," "against us" and "doubtful." They may still go over the names, but if they are honest in their checking the doubtful class will be much more numerous than in the past. That is why many observers declare that there is a real silent vote in the present campaign.

OSHAWA NEXT.

In its editorial columns The Oshawa Reformer has the following reference to sport conditions in the motor town:

"About a year ago the Oshawa Amateur Athletic Association was organized. It lived but a short time. Its passing was due largely to the fact that men who had the time, inclination and experience were not secured to conduct its affairs.

"Demise of the association does not prove such an organization is not needed here. Experience has shown, on the contrary, that Oshawa, as other places have found, needs a central organization to take charge of all the amateur sports in the town.

"Peterborough not only has an association, but it has also engaged a director of athletics, who will devote his entire time to coaching the various teams and developing the younger players. Galt, too, has such a director. In fact, Galt was the first city to try out having an all-the-year-round coach, and the experiment proved decidedly successful.

"There is certain dissatisfaction existing at present in some sporting circles in Oshawa. Oshawa will never attain the place it should in the sporting world until petty differences are forgotten. The best way to eliminate these diferences is to get a thoroughly organized central association formed. The initiative should be taken at once. The hockey season is almost at hand, and no time should be lost.

"Such an organization The Reformer not only believes is needed, but it believes that a body of that kind would be a success."

INTEGRITY IN TRADE.

(Ottawa Journal.)

Mr. Alexander R. Ziccolla has an exhaustive article in The Saturday Evening Post under the interrogative title "Can We Come Back as Exporters?" He has reference wholly to the United States, and what he says on the subject must make depressing reading for our neighbors. In effect, Mr. Ziccolla says American export trade has been entirely killed in South America, and to a large extent in European countries: and this he attributes to greed and dishonesty during the hectic war period, as well as to the adverse operations of the exchange situation. His picture of rapacity and disreputable trade tactics between 1916 and 1920 is balanced by his account of the completeness of retribution.

During the war South American countries were shut off wholly from British and continental sources of supply. They were compelled to buy from the United States, and to pay whatever prices were demanded. American exporters not only took full advantage of this situation in the matter of prices, but coupled their high charges, so Mr. Ziccolla says, with indifference as to quality or quantity. Eleven to a dozen and ninety to a hundred became almost the rule. Automobiles were shipped without engines. Cheating took place on a huge scale, and the prosperous but proud South Americans paid the bills — and waited. Then came the day of judgment for American trade in South America.

Great Britain, France, Italy and European countries in general were not able to respond to the trade calls of South America until near the close of 1920, and then the United States was cut off suddenly and absolutely. "Now," said the patient but mindful merchants of Buenos Aires, "you must swallow a dose of your own medicine." That medicine was certainly not homeopathic. Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of orders were cancelled, and all incoming consignments were permitted to pile up on the docks. More than $100,000,000 worth of American goods are still in storage, "eating their heads off in charges." The Latin buyers will not pay the high rate of exchange, nor will they accept any terms from the American exporters who forfeited their confidence during the war period.

Mr. Ziccolla asks any of his fellow American exporters who doubt the intense unpopularity of anything and everything bearing the stamp of the United States to go down there and find out for themselves, as he did. Yet he thinks there is a way out. That way is to open branches in South America. The South Americans will not order a dollar's worth of goods in the United States, but they are not averse to buying on the spot, with the merchandise under their eye and available for immediate delivery. Slowly, he thinks, trade connections may be built up by that method. And in this there is a lesson for Canadian exporters. If local depots are popular, it may pay to adopt that way of selling Canadian goods. No doubt our efficient Trade Intelligence Service in South America is keeping the business men of Canada well advised on this point.

There is still another lesson, broad and general, in this bitter experience of our neighbors. It does not pay in the long run to disregard the established canons of commercial integrity. Huge profits were made by American exporters during the war; but Mr. Ziccolla declares most emphatically that in the end the losses have outweighed the gains, and points to scores of failures in proof of his assertion. This is just as true of domestic as it is of foreign trade. A good name is a priceless asset.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The delegates to the disarmament conference at Washington are being so enthusiastically entertained that they are liable to forget all about the great mission that has brought them together.

They used to claim prohibition would empty the jails of Ontario. And a lot of the prisoners seem to be doing their best to have the prophecy fulfilled.

The Dominion election has narrowed down in the eyes of The Toronto Telegram to the constituency of West York.

Hon. Dr. Edwards and W. T. R. Preston, Liberal candidate in Durham, are billed to hold a joint meeting in Millbrook tomorrow night.

ANNUAL DINNER

Mr. Henry Batten rendered a solo in splendid voice and Mr. K. S. Madill gave an organ solo in his customary masterly style. Miss Ona Dunford contributed a reading, entitled 'Prayer and Potatoes," which pointed a strong moral on practical Christianity.

Mrs. Burrows here rendered another solo, after which Rev. P. L. Jull gave a short address, congratulating the Methodists on the general success of their anniversary. In our churches, he averred, if Jesus Christ is not the most prominent member, large crowds and plenty of money are in vain. That church in which He is an honored member will be a genial church, with no grouch and with a friendly greeting always. Such a church, he asserted, will be a busy Christian organization, and also a church in which the sacrificial spirit of Christ is fully reflected. Make Jesus Christ the most honored member of your church, he urged, and you will meet with abundant success. In conclusion, Mr. Jull hoped that all Christians may work together under a common banner for the best interests of Canada and Christendom.

Miss Cullen then gave a solo, which was much appreciated, and Mr. Dixon announced that the evening's proceeds were $265.

God Save the King brought the occasion to a happy close.

The entertainment was extremely good, all the talent of a high order. Mr. K. S. Madill, the efficient organist of the church, beguiled the period of waiting between the supper and concert with a highly appreciated organ recital.

Selfishness Pays No Dividends

FIFTEEN YEARS ago.
A TIRED work-worn woman.
ON A lean lonesome farm.
DOWN IN New Jersey.
TURNED HER thin face.
TOWARDS THE wall.
CLOSED HER tired eyes.
AND QUIETLY slipped out.
AND INTO the great beyond.
AND ALL the while.
THERE PLAYED about the floor.
HER ONLY child Mary.
HEEDLESS OF the grim tragedy.
THAT HAD cast its shadow.
ACROSS HER young life.
BUT MAMMA had a brother.
AND THAT brother was rich.
AND BEING childless.
LITTLE MARY was taken.
INTO HIS home and reared.
AS HIS own child.
IN THE lap of luxury.
AND JUST the other day.
THIS FOSTER father.
AND THE foster mother.
WHOM MARY thought
WERE HER very own.
TOOK COUNSEL together.
AND BECAUSE Mary had.
GROWN UP a cold.
SELFISH UNAFFECTIONATE girl.
WHO REFUSED to cheer.
THE PAIN ridden hours.
OF HER foster Dad.
WITH JUST a little jazz
TOLD HER the secret.
OF HER real parentage.
AND BUNDLED her back.
TO THE old farm.
TO LIVE once more.
WITH HER real Dad.
WHERE SHE can chase
THE HENS about.
AND FEED the pigs.
AND WORRY the geese.
AND MEDITATE upon.
THE FOLLY of selfishness.
BUT JUST the same.
I THINK the old folks.
PULLED THE low down.
ON LITTLE Mary.
DON'T YOU.

Selfishness manifests itself in many and various ways, and I often think that the parent who prizes a few pieces of silver more than the health of his children, and who allows them to grow up with crooked spines, maimed or palsied limbs, poor eyesight, or other physical disabilities, rather than be at the expense of the time and money it would require to take them to the osteopath for a few weeks and have these abnormalities adjusted, is surely mean, selfish and exceedingly shortsighted.

As you no doubt know, Osteopathy is the original method of curnig disease by adjustment of the various body structures, especially the little spinal bones, in a manner peculiar to osteopaths and only possible by their skilled hands.

which was almost word for word a repitition of the argument and discussion at the previous abortive meetings.

The new frustrative motion was proposed by J. W. McCarl of Colborne and seconded by Ben Ewing of Brighton.

An amendment by W. J. Maher of Cobourg that the convention nomiate a candidate was defeated in the proportion of three or four to one, while Mr. McCarl's motion carried with the support of the numerous rural block who killed the amendment.

Argument Repeated

The interim of two hours or more between the reading of the minutes and the taking of the vote by the chairman J. D. Hayden of Cobourg was crowded with a debate that frequently waxed warm and occassionally dipped into personalties .

The U.F.O. needn't think we will be forced to vote for their candidate," exclaimed one Cobourg young man. "We have another alternative, and believe me I'll vote for a Tory before I'll vote for the U.F.O.

This was not, however, the prevailing sentiment, or even a considerable opinion. Men like J. B. McColl ex-M.P. of Cobourg declared that if there wasn't a Liberal in the field he would support Mr. Slade. In that he was following the example of Sam Clarke M.P.P. who when he refused the nomination at the Warkworth convention on October 26th intimated that he would vote for Mr. Slade. Apparently a few felt so bitterly that they were ready to vote for Milton E. Maybee, the Conservative, in preference to swinging in behind the U.F.O.

Momentarily Unanimous

One interval of unanimity momentarily silenced the bickerings of the several factions. At a late stage of the meeting Mr. Hayden in an endeavor to get down to a working basis asked that everyone oposed to the Meighen Government stand up, and every man in the hall stood. It was a passing spell of accord, indicating a united family which swiftly broke into groups again and the Liberals were virtually dispossessed of their own household. When the men who had revealed their U.F.O. predilections were pleaded with by C. W. Kerr of Cobourg and Toronto, W. J. Maher, Dr. Robertson of Colborne, C. H. Curtis, prominent Warkworth farmer, ard by others, requesting them not to vote, as a matter of common honesty, on the question of whether the Liberals should nominate a candidate or not, the predominalty rural group responded by staying to the end and until their forces had routed the Liberal "old guard."

Called It a Farce

"It's a farce, a parody, Mr. Maher called out in disgust when the vote on his amendment overwhelmed the smaller group and once more gave a Liberal decision not to fight in North umberland.

May Run Anyway

When today's convention was announced a week ago it was generally understood that Mr. C. W. Kerr of Cobourg was prepared to accept the nomination. This afternoon he declared that the old guard died but never surrendered, but the old guard hadn't a chance against that formidable army of Liberals with Slade leaning, joined by others who felt that a U.F.O. victory was more acceptable than the election of the Conservtive candidate.

After the meeting Mr. Kerr told the old guard who were holding an impromptu indignation meeting that rather than see the real Liberals unrepresented he would seriously consider going to the nomintion at Warkworth, putting up the deposit of $200 and taking his chances no matter wht the result might be.

Would Not Exclude Them

In the drift toward the final and inevitable vote, it was proposed that those who did not intend to support a Liberal candidate, if one were nominated, leave the hall.

Mr. Hayden ruled that such exclusion was contrary to the Liberal idea.

"If you want to change my ruling" he said "vote me out of the chair and I'll vacate it."

No dissent was made.

Mr. Kerr suggested that all those who were already pledged to Mr. Slade should stand up, but this was met with derisive shouts from the dominant section.

Censure For Clark

In his review of the Liberal efforts Mr. Maher said he did not blame Sam Clarke for not accepting the nomination. That was at his option to be accepted or declined.

"But I do submit that he should have told the executive he couldn't accept it after he received the telegram in the west offering it to him. I wish Mr. Clark were here in order that I might say this before him. He should haven taken the electors into his confidence sufficiently to have said "I can't accept this but will take off coat and help elect any candidate you put in the field." He didn't say that however. Personally I'd rather go down to defeat a thousand times than runaway from the fight once. To the U.F.O., don't try deprive me of my right to vote as I wish for it can't be done."

U.F.O. or Liberal

C. H. Curtis interrupted a series of cross-examinations with the query—"Is this a U.F.O. or Liberal convention."

"You'll find out when you put it to a vote" said a man in a coonskin coat .

"These U.F.O.'s have no more right here than Tories" Mr. Curtis added.

"The U.F.O. principles are pure Liberalism" said F. W. Langdon of Brighton. "The U.F.O. are nearer to Liberalism than the Liberals. It is up to us to give them our endorsation."

C. W. Kerr's Address

Mr. Kerr spoke a considerable length, reviewing the Liberal campaigns of 1911 and 1917 and comparing the alleged issues with the present situation. He quoted a statement in the Globe of October 25th crediting J. J. Morrison, creator of the U.F.O. with having said that the Tories were trying to split the Liberal vote in Ontario by having former Liberals nominated so as to make three-cornered contests. Miss Agnes McPhail former Conservative according to Mr. Kerr had shown her color by helping bring out R. W. E. Burnaby against Mckenzie King in North York, and in Southeast Grey she had become the chief opposition to Mr. Hastie, the Liberal farmer.

"If the National Progressive party is anxious to have the Liberal principles prevail as some of our friends here tell us, tell me why is Miss McPhail working against the Liberal leader in North York by getting Mr. Burnaby to run and thus make it a three-cornered contest? I'm afraid you will have to tell that to the marines."

Crerar in 1917.

Mr. Kerr recalled that the Hon. A. Crerar had voted against Mckenzie King's resolutions for an early election.

"What's King's salary," called out a voice in the opposition group.

"Mr. King's salary is just what Mr. Crerar's will be if he happens to become leader of the opposition," retorted Mr. Kerr.

Continuing, he reminded the U. F. O. section that the Hon. T. A. Crerar was Minister of Agriculture in the Government that insulted the farmers of this Province by first telling them that their sons were more needed to produce food on the farms and would consequently be exempted from military service, and then after the election was assured summarily driving the farmers' sons into the conscripts' camps.

"If any member of that Cabinet should have known the conditions on the farms it was the Hon. T. A. Crerar. Did Mr. Crerar live up to that promise? The deputation of farmers that went to Ottawa to protest to he Government against the change in tactics, didn't get a very cordial treatment. They were virtually insulted and drummed out of Ottawa by the actions of the Government in which the Hon. T. A. Crerar was Minister of Agriculture. I am not surprised at the farmers for wanting to drive the Hon. Arthur Meighen out of power, but I am greatly surprised when I find the U.F.O. selecting the Hon. T. A. Crerar as their leader, and when I find some Liberals proclaiming him as their saviour."

U.F.O. Not for Liberalism.

Mr. Kerr submitted a series of questions to those in the audience who were predisposed toward the U.F.O.

"Was the U.F.O. candidate nominated for the purpose of bringing the Liberal party into power?"

The answer from all parts of the hall was "no."

"If the answer is no, then isn't it fair for every elector who desires the triumph of Liberalism over Meighenism to vote for a Liberal candidate?"

Following this line of reasoning, Mr. Kerr implied that any discussion of U.F.O. politics was out of place at a Liberal convention.

"If Mr. Slade will say that he will stand as a supporter of Mckenzie King I'll do all I can to see that he is given a fair and open field in Northumberland," said Mr. Kerr.

If the U.F.O. were sincere in their opposition to the present administration then they should not split the progressive forces by creating a third party.

"We don't object to any Liberal supporting anyone he choses, but we do object to men who have made up their minds opposite to those of us who are here today as Liberals and then trying to bulldoze those Liberals," said Mr. Kerr.

Answered Liberal, But Voted U.F.O.

Dr. Robertson of Colborne argued with the recalcitrant section if it was not fair that only those who intended to vote for a Liberal candidate should vote on the question of nominating one, and the answer was "that's right." But the majority wielded the club none the less gently when their chance came a few minutes later to show their Liberal sentiments.

Several of the speakers stated without contradiction that not only were there U.F.O. members present, but also Tories, and the fact that any other party or sympathizers with another party could pack a Liberal convention and dictate its course was the bitter realization that stayed with the "old-guard" in their realization that the third convention had got them no farther than the first.

tor-general's report. This cannot be said of the railways which are being operated at a loss to the people of Canada. Crerar voted for this policy of concealment at the last session of the House. As a result even the Auditor-General is denied access to the records except one small part. That portion which the Auditor-General has access to had an operating loss last year of thirty-eight per cent. That portion which the present government denied the Auditor-General access to had an operating loss of one hundred and fifty per cent.

Election Promises.

Mr. Hall recalled some of the incidents of the 1917 election in which he declared exemption was promised to the farmers. Ex-Warden Max Brown and Mr. Joseph Knox were named to sit on the Exemption Board, but they had no power to grant exemption to anyone. The boys in the trenches were writing home: "Vote for the Union Government and I will be home for Christmas." Two-thirds of the women of the country were denied votes at that election. These are things to be remembered, said Mr. Hall.

On the invitation o fthe chairman, Mr. W. A. Anderson gave a brief address in which he declared his allegiance to the Liberal cause. He was not one of those men who are seeking to control the government. He dropped out of the farmers' club when it became a political organization. He knew of many members of the U.F.O. who were glad that a Liberal had entered the fight in East Peterborough. They wanted to come back and serve the party that serves all people. "When we turn the riding over to the U.F.O." said Mr. Anderson, "we are leaving a lot of good men without representation. As a farmer I can tell you frankly I am not proud of the present political situation. I can go nearly as far as the U.F.O., but not quite. The farmers' platform aim at free trade with Great Britain in five years. The industries of Canada must be protected. That is the aim of the Liberal party." Mr. Anderson concurred in Mr. Hall's reference to the broken promises of the Government in 1917 and informed the meeting that Mr. Max Brown, who at that time was a strong Conservative, would be found supporting Mr. Dewart in the present campaign. I am proud of the past record of the Liberals in Canada, said Mr. Anderson in conclusion.

ORDINARY hosiery shaped with seams sooner or later becomes annoying—ripping and causing foot discomfort. Hosiery stretched into shape loses its shape in the washing.

CAVAN WORKERS HELD MEETING

PREPARING FOR THE ELECTION IN EAST DURHAM — MILLBROOK NEWS OF INTEREST.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 9.—A meeting of the ladies' organization for Cavan and Millbrook was held in the Conservative committee rooms last evening, the president, Mrs. W. S. Given, being in the chair. Several men were also present and, although the attendance altogether was not large, a spirit of enthusiasm and a desire to do everything possible in support of Mr. Bowen, who was at the meeting, was evident throughout.

The minutes of the last meeting, held in July, when Miss Boulton was present and had organized the ladies, were read by the secretary, Mrs. J. A. Vance, and on motion adpoted. The treasurer, Miss Needham, then gave her report, and on account of absence from home during the next few weeks, asked to be relieved of her office. On motion, Mrs. Vance was appointed secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Bowen made a brief but very practical address, urging amongst other things, the appointment of lady poll clerks and scrutineers, the men stating that they had left their final arrangements incomplete until the ladies decided what course they would take in this matter. The fact that over fifty per cent. of the voters in the riding are women made it very necessary, the speaker thought, to get out every vote possible since there are sixty polling subdivisions and one or two voters in each remaining at home might make a decided difference in the result of the election.

After discussion it was decided to leave the matter of appointing poll clerks and scrutineers with the president and secretary of the women's and men's organizations, this committee to report at the next meeting.

Mr. A. J. Fallis, who followed Mr. Boewn, after welcoming the ladies to the higher privilege of citizenship which the franchise afforded them, suggested particularly a house to house canvass, as there are undoubtedly many indifferent and uninterested voters who require attention and information to win their allegiance to any party. The men reported that this was the policy which they followed, dividing the village into four districts and appointing two or three canvassers for each.

The names suggested for the different wards were as follows:

South and east of King street: Misses Needham, Krieger and Hetherington.

South and west: Misses Whyte, Fitzgerald and Collins.

North and west: Mrs. Bradley, Misses Grandy and Stewart.

North and east: Mrs. Stinson, Mrs. Sayles and Mrs. Vance.

For the township: Ward No. 2, west: Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. S. Fallis and Mrs. Lowery.

Ward No. 2 east: Mrs. H. Earle, Mrs. W. Brown and Mrs. James McGill.

Ward No. 1 east: Mrs. Wm. Earle, Mrs. J. McCamus and Mrs. Geo. Fair.

Ward No. 1 west: Mrs. W. Thorn, Mrs. L. Gigson and Mrs. D. Armstrong.

Wards No. 3 and 4 were arranged for at a recent meeting held at Cavan, and No. 5 was left with Mr. Bowen, who would be attending a meeting in that vicinity next Tuesday.

The matter of again securing Miss Boulton of Toronto, to address a public meeting here was also left with Mr. Bowen.

The meeting adjourned after various minor matters had been satisfactorily disposed of, the candidate promising to be in the village next week if possible ,and do some necessary personal work.

Institute Meeting.

A Sunday School Institute meeting for Hope township will be held at Garden Hill November 10th, with two sessions, afternoon and evening, tea being served to the delegates at 5.30 p.m. Rev. Mr. Gervan, pastor of Grace Presbyterian church, will be one of the speakers at the afternoon gathering, his subject being along the line of 'Teen Age Work.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wickett, of Port Hope, and Mrs. W. D. Nugent of Millbrook, were guests of rMs. H. and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Kennedy on Thanksgiving day

Miss Abbott and Miss Brown have returned to their duties in the High and Public schools after spending the Thanksgiving holiday at their respective homes, Gananoque and Cannington.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Jewison, of Toronto, were guests of friends in Millbrook and Peterborough for the week end, motoring down from the city on Sunday.

The many friends of Mrs. Westmacott will be glad to learn that she is recovering nicely from the unfortunate accident which occurred during her recent visit to Toronto. In going through a rapidly revolving doorway into one of the business offices in the city, Mrs. Westmacott was struck by the iron railing and thrown to the tiled floor, injuring her hip. Confined to her bed for three days following the accident and at first quite lame, Mrs. Westmacott was able to return home on Friday, and can now walk with considerable less difficulty.

The fact that the choir of the Cavanville church furnished the opening chorus, which proved one of the most enjoyable numbers on the programme, was inadvertently omitted from the account of the fowl supper on Thanksgiving evening.

November Meeting.

The November meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Garside on Tuesday, November 8th at 3 p.m. Owing to illness in the homes of some of the members, and others being away, on having company, over holiday the attendance was not as large as usual. The president, Miss Needham, occupied the chair ,and during the discussion of business items it was decided to make some further improvements at the parsonage, this work being the special charge of the Ladies' Aid; and also to provide cut flowers for the church at Christmas. Afterwards sending these to the sick and shut-in members of the congregation.

The meeting closed in the usual manuer.

WINNIPEG, Man., November 9.—Canadian Press. — Declaring that the British Columbia application for the abolition of the "mountain scale" of freight rates was an organized effort to expand business generally in the coast province, and that the equalization of the freight rate would tend to destroy business and industries and manufactures in Winnipeg, Isaac Pitblado, K.C., counsel for the Winnipeg Board of Trade, told the Board of Railway Commissioners yesterday his clients would oppose it most strongly.

There, on your pattern envelope you will notice the Deltor's saving of 50c to $10

NOTICE the amount of yardage your Butterick pattern specifies! Did you ever dream that such a style could be made of so little material? It's less—as much as 1⅜ yards less—than was ever possible before. Which means that you will save 50c to $10 on the frock or suit you are planning! Think of the economy of that—the pattern paying for itself and saving money besides!

It's all possible because of a wonderful invention enclosed in the envelope with your new Butterick pattern—an invention individually planned for the pattern it accompanies—the Deltor!

And this Deltor not only saves money because you use less material, but endows you with even greater skill of sewing and opens to every woman new avenues of smartness!

The DELTOR

Saves 50c to $10 on materials alone

Follow through these three steps and see how simply the Deltor guides you to sewing ease, to economy, to Paris' own charm.

The first thing the Deltor does is to give you an individual layout chart, (yes, individual, not just a general chart but one for your exact size and for each suitable width of material). Because of this chart, your pattern calls for ¼ to 1⅜ yards less material than any other pattern can—a saving of 50c to $10 on materials alone.

Then you follow picture-and-word illustrations that guide your every stitch to perfect fit, drape and set. Your needle flies—you save hours of time—you instinctively do the right thing at the right time; and you always do the thing the Parisian modiste would do.

Finally—ideas of finish! Should your sleeves be the type that Martial and Armand favor, should the neckline hint of the Moyen Age, should embroideries follow Madeleine and Madeleine's gay lead, the Deltor explains just how to achieve the correct effect. From the first to the last detail, this most economical, most successful frock is a triumph of Paris!

GERMANY TO CURB EXCHANGE SPECULATION

BERLIN, Nov. 9. — (Canadian Press.)— The German Government announced yesterday during the course of a debate on taxes in the Reichstag that it was planning stringent measures to curb speculation and traffic in foreign exchange.

Minister of Economics Schmidt, who disclosed that one billion marks' worth of French wines, champagne and other liquors were entering Germany through the import control station at Ems, and that French perfumes, cosmetics and other "superfluous articles of luxury," were likewise pouring into the country.

"Were our situation not so tragic," declared Herr Schmidt, "this conception on the part of the Entente of our initial needs would have a humorous aspect. But the situation is simply that either we are to consume these French wines and snap our fingers at the reparations obligations, or that we are to resolve to fulfill our obligations; in which case we shall be compelled to decline the French libations."

SOME CANADIAN AUTHORS OF TO-DAY

If any evidence were required of the growing interest in Canadian literature, one need only point to the remarkable progress of the Canadian Authors' Association, which already numbers over seven hundred members, although it was organized only eight months ago. So far as poetry is concerned, Canada ranks exceptionally high in the world of poetry, with names such as Bliss Carman to her credit. In the world of fiction Arthur Stringer, Ralph Connor, L. M. Montgomery, Basil King, Bertrand Sinclair, Isabel Ecclestone Mackay, Madge Macbeth, and Frank L. Packard, are only a few of an army of popular novelists. Life on the prairies has been admirably depicted by Janey Canuck (Judge Emily Murphy), Nellie McClung, Robert Stead, and Sargeant Ralph Kendall with his stories of the North-West Mounted Police. Among those who have written of the life of the wild, Charles G. D. Roberts, Arthur Heming, W. A. Fraser, Archie P. McKishnie, and Ernest Thompson Seton, at once come to mind, while Stefansson is one of the world's greatest explorer-authors. Marshall Saunders, who wrote "Beautiful Joe", is famous as a sympathetic interpreter of animal life. F. W. Wallace is one of our best known authors of sea stories, and H. A. Cody has an immense following among boys. Among the humorists, Stephen Leacock and Peter McArthur stand exceptionally high. The chief object of the Canadian Authors' Association is to create a wider interest among Canadians themselves in their own literature.

It has an official organ called the "Canadian Bookman". It has helped to organize Canadian Authors' Week for the third week in November, in which libraries and bookstores will make special displays of Canadian books, and it has conducted a vigorous campaign for the improvement of Copyright conditions in Canada.

FIRE LOSS IN OCTOBER HERE

ment of the roll showed that to the end of Oct. $610,702.37 had been collected of a total due of $659,269.38. During October $2,805.75 was collected.

The report of Fire Chief G. Grange for the month of October indicates that the fire demon fortunately stayed away from Peterborough during the month. Total loss from fire was only $8. Thirteen alarms were responded to, 150 feet of hose and 21 gallons of chemicals and 24 feet of ladders used and the apparatus travelled 14 miles. During the month the horses were drilled twice daily. On the 6th ladder drill, using a 55-foot ladder, was held from 3.10 to 4 p.m. On the 24th, from 3.30 to 4.30, hose drill took place. Nichols Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital, Protestant Home, Children's Shelter, Dr. Barnardo's Home and all Public and Separate schools were inspected. Fire drills were held during the month in each school.

Chief Grange reported that the men were becoming acquainted with the position of every hydrant. He reported the painting of the hydrants, the placing of the red lights and he said that the alarm boxes were all tested and found to be right. "Max," a bay gelding, was sold in Port Hope, he reported, for $175. During the month he found it necessary to suspend for a short time one member of the department for a breach of discipline.

A second report by the Chief was in regard to the fire engine. It was that the engine when tested by L. D. Walker, the Inspector for the Fire Underwriters, on Nov. 3 had been found faulty. It would not lift the water from the lake, and it was found that evidently from the action of the chlorine the valve springs and rubber had been eaten away till their life and buoyancy was gone. New ones had been put in, and the Chief said the engine would be tested this week.

WHO INVENTED THE HONEYMOON?

By MRS. MARTHA LEE.

Who was it that invented the honeymoon? It must have been Adam and Eve. At all events, it was invented for them. And what happened? Nothing but trouble and lots of it.

The experience of those two earliest grandparents of ours might have suggested that honeymoons are perilous. But nobody took warning. Couples ever since then have gone on honeymoons, and the mischiefs suffered in consequence have been really terrible.

Suppose that you were maliciously to frame up a scheme for making two young people deadly tired of each other. You could not think of a better plan than to send them off together for a period of weeks to a strange place, where, knowing nobody, they would be wholly dependent upon each other for society. But that is exactly what a honeymoon is like.

The bride starts on her honeymoon tired out. Her nerves are worn to a frazzle.

And no wonder. For weeks she has lived in a state of confusion and scramble. She has spent many hours in the wearisome occupation of having dresses fitted—possibly doing some of the sewing herself. If the young woman is in well-to-do circumstances a round of entertainments will have been given in her honor.

The climax comes when she starts on her wedding journey. Then, suddenly, everything becomes as different as possible.

If the young couple have chosen a quiet place for the honeymoon they will have nothing to do but make love. But love-making, though a delightful form of diversion, is a mighty poor occupation. Besides, it is likely that they have done a very great deal of it for a long time previously.

If they go to a big city or travel a bit there will be many sights to see, but sightseeing is dreadfully fatiguing. After two or three days of it the honeymooners are liable to be "tuckered out."

Wherever they go the main trouble is that the two young people, far away from all their friends, are thrown entirely upon each other day after day for society. Ordinary human beings are not so constituted as to enjoy that sort of thing. It is not a condition under which anybody shows at his or her best. The new-made wife is, perhaps, tired and nervous, therefore irritable. It may be much the same with the young husband. Rarely does the first week of the honeymoon pass without at least one lively quarrel.

They are beginning for the first time to get really acquainted with each other. Both have many surprises coming to them, for during the progress of their courtship the man and the girl have been, so to speak, stage players, each of them pretending to be somebody altogether different.

Now they are married and there is no object in pretending any longer. The man may discover that the girl whose daintiness attracted him so much is really a slattern. She may find that the lover who was such a liberal spender is, as a husband, a tightwad. Things such as these begin to develop during the honeymoon. They are likely to spell disillusion.

One way to spend a honeymoon—commonly preferred by young couples who can afford the luxury—is to go abroad. Chances are that the bride will be seasick; quite possibly her husband also. Romance can with difficulty survive much of that sort of thing.

In the days when our great-grandfathers and great-grandmothers were young the honeymoon problem was solved in a much more satisfactory and commonsense way. Most folks did not have any; they simply went to housekeeping. But newly married couples rich enough to afford it used, in obedience to a delightful custom, to take all the bridesmaids and groomsmen with them on their wedding trip. It was a jolly party, in which nobody had a chance to get bored, and when they reached home again at least two or three of the men were usually engaged to a corresponding number of tht girls.

With ourselves, in this generation, the lonesome honeymoon has become recognized as an institution. Convention has made it almost obligatory. 'Tis pity, for it has 'queered" at the start many a marriage which might otherwise have turned out successfully.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $3.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make 16 ounces—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

DISMISS MURDER CHARGE AGAINST TOMACHUK.

MONTREAL, Q., November 9 (Canadian Press). — Judge Cusson yesterday dismissed the charge of murder preferred some weeks ago against Stanislaus Tomachuk in connection with the brutal killing of Onofre Batura and his wife in the lonely home of the aged couple on 14th Avenue, Lachine.

His Lordship decided that the proof made by the prosecution was insufficient to warrant committing Tomachuk to stand trial on the capital charge. He will, however, be tried on two charges of burglary alleged to have been committed by him in Lachine during last summer.

The New Laws

on teeth cleaning—five of them

Dental science has adopted new laws on teeth cleaning. They mean whiter, cleaner, safer teeth to those who follow them.

Millions employ these new methods, largely by dental advice. Now this ten-day test is offered to show every home the results.

1—Fight the film

The first law is to fight film—that viscous coat you feel. It dims the teeth and causes most tooth troubles.

Film clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Old ways of brushing do not end it. So few have escaped some form of film attack.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Two methods now

Two ways are now known to fight film. Able authorities have proved their efficiency. Leading dentists everywhere now advise their daily use.

Both are embodied in Pepsodent — a scientific tooth paste. They keep the teeth uniquely clean and also highly polished.

Three other laws

Modern starchy diet also calls for other helps to Nature. So every use of Pepsodent brings these three desired results.

1—A multiplied salivary flow.

2—Multiplied starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. 3—Multiplied alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize mouth acids which cause tooth decay.

Thus Pepsodent fights two deposits—film and starch—which may do great harm to teeth. Also the destroying acids, and in Nature's way.

Brings a new era

These mean vast improvements on old methods. In fact, old methods brought the opposite effects. Pepsodent has introduced a new era in teeth cleaning, and millions now enjoy it.

Now we urge that you send for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Feel the other good effects.

Then decide by what you see and feel. Do this for your own sake. Cut out the coupon now.

No Charge

for a 10-day test. Simply mail the coupon and watch the delightful results.

MR. WILFRED HENRY LEAL PASSES AWAY

On Thursday, Oct. 27th, Wilfred Herny Leal, a former resident of Marmora, passed away at his home near Millbrook, Ont. He was born in Freshwater, in the Isle of Wight, and came to Canada in May, 1885. He lived in Madoc for a number of years, but the greater part of his life, since coming to Canada, was spent in Marmora.

For some time he was a member of Marmora lacrosse team in the years when the local team was noted throughout Eastern Ontario and was a fine player. The deceased also was in partnership with the late Thomas Clement for a number of years and they handled some large contracts for concrete walks and other work.

Fifteen or twenty years ago the deceased suffered from blood poisoning as a result of stepping on a rusty nail, and he never recovered from the effects. In later years he also suffered from other ailments. Ever since the accident first occurred there had been periods when he was in agony for hours or days at a time and in recent years he was seldom free from pain. For years he fought with heroic courage to recover his health, and his patience and cheerfulness was remarkable even after hope of recovery was gone.

For several years "Harry," as he was known, was assessor for Marmora Village and the assessing has never been done more thoroughly or satisfactorily. He also acted as collector for three or four years and was equally successful in that work.

Besides his widow he leaves a family of seven children as follows: Mrs. R. A. Harris, of Marmora; Aubrey, of Coe Hill; and Cecil, Norman, Marion, Rayner and Winnifred at home. The sympathy of their many friends in this vicinity will go out to the family in their bereavement.

The late Harry Leal was one of the oldest members of Marmora Lodge, No. 222, A.F. & A.M. and the funeral service took place under Masonic auspices. About twnety-five members of the craft went from Marmora and they were assisted by members of Millbrook Lodge in conducting the Masonic burial service. Wor. Bro. Spencer, of Millbrook, Rector of the Anglican church in that place, conducted the regular service and gave a very appropriate address. The services were conducted at the house and interment took place at St. John's Anglican cemetery east of Cavan.

CENTREVILLE

The Hall was taxed to its utmost capacity by young men and ladies fair and gay from far and near to the onlooker it was a comely sight. The city has nothing on the country when it comes to fair women and unstanding men on the dance floor. Many of the parents were present and enjoyed a game on the side. It was a community affair and brought many friends together for a social hour.

The ladies supplied lunch in the basement in their usual efficient way. The Farmers' Club serves a useful purpose in catering for the social life of the community.

G. A. BRETHEN

EAST PETERBORO'S PROGRESSIVE CANDIDATE

In the candidature of Mr. G. A. Brethen, East Peterborough electors have the opportunity of placing their confidence in a capable and widely recognized leader with qualifications especially adapted to represent an agricultural constituency. Mr. Brethen's untiring efforts for many years in the various local branches of the farming industry as well as in organizations of Dominion wide importance are such as to merit consideration. In 1914 when the United Farmers of Ontario selected their first officers with Mr. E. C. Drury, now Premier of Ontario, as President, Mr. Brethen was the unanimous choice of the big gathering as his first Lieutenant. These early associations point to a close relationship between Premier Drury and Mr. Brethen in their depth of vision. There also exists a close similiarity in their broadness of view, which insures a fair and equitable treatment of all interests in the country.

Outside of his vocation and connection with political affairs Mr Brethen has always taken a prominent part in the promotion of any moral issue or worthy cause in his community. His firm belief in the dictates of conscience for a principle fearless of consequences, promise to win them wide support, regardless of party affiliations. As a native son who has already brought distinction to his country Mr. Brethen would bring further credit to the House if Commons.

His selection by the United Farmers of Ontario to stand second in office to Mr. E. C. Drury in the early days of the Association shows how favorably he is regarded by the leaders of the present party. These men have already expressed their gratification in Mr. Brethen's nomination as they believe in the event of Hon. T. A. Crerar being called upon to form a government he would proye of material assistance.

The hearty support of those of every class and creed and party is being accorded Mr. Brethen in his candidature and throughout the riding his suporters are looking for a substantial majority on the 6th of December.

We are getting back to Normalcy. To-day a fellow can rent a nice little three room flat for seventy dollars a month, and right next to a neighbour with all conveniences.

IS THE HUMAN RACE AS HEALTHY TO-DAY AS 100 YEARS AGO?

Eminent New York Phsycian Says "Yes—But Not As Robust, Perhaps."

The marvellous discoveries and advances in the realms of medicine and surgery during the past century might well lead one to suppose that with the isolation of germs, the diminution of danger of contagion, the overcoming of operational shock, and all the other benefits thus effected, the world today must of necessity be a healthier one than that of a hundred years ago. But—

"Not necessarily," said one of America's foremost physicians and specialists, in a recent interview. "All these advances, and more," he continued, "were necessary even to keep pace with the strides of modern commerce and industry, if nothing else. Think for a moment of the strain and stress of our present-day life! Breakfast in Newark—luncheon in Pittsburgh—dinner goodness knows where—for example. We have trains, autos, boats, even flying machines—each making different demands and causing different sudden strains on our constitutions. A hundred years ago a journey took long enough for one to become 'acclimatized' en route. Sudden changes of diet, climate and so on, were impossible. Meals were almost standardized in those olden days — no 'quick lunches,' but dignified proper repasts, they were. Then consider our homes—one is heated by hot-air, another by hot water, another by steam, another by electricity. All these mean a varjation of the atmosphere we breathe. And our occupations!

"As a matter of fact, I sometimes think it's a marvel that the race has survived at all. Our men have developed into machines that are marvels of efficiency—but at what a cost in nerve-strain and consumed energy! Why the 'plodder' has no chance in the world today—he must become a hustler, or perish by the wayside of commercial endeavour.

"Then consider our women: In our great-grandmothers' time, women were ornaments, with but one purpose—that of becoming efficient wives and mothers. If they did other things, it was in the form of healthful outdoor exercise—in some cases, such as the frontier pioneers, it was work, but even then healthful, if strenuous, outdoor work. Today, women have a thousand spheres of interest—and they are of the most gruelling nature to nerves and physique and delicate organs, that one could well imagine. Cooped up all day in an office—laboring over an intricate machine—wrestling with gigantic social or political problems—all these things cannot be disregarded when we come to weigh the health of the present generation with that of its predecessors.

"I would say that the world is healthier today, from a scientific aspect; our records show the almost total abolition of epidemics such as typhoid, cholera, smallpox, diphtheria, etc., that cut a swathe of havoc and death a hundred years ago, and we have made vast strides in reducing the loss from tuberculosis and pulmonary diseases. But it must be remembered that many of the ailments that afflict mankind today are resultant upon our present-day modes of life, and although we are reducing their mortality their causes are ever with us.

"Therefore, I would argue further, although the world may be healthier, it is not so robust. In other words, our sedentary occupations, our artificial surroundings, our constant rushing hither and thither sap our vitality—as compared with one hundred years ago, when almost every effort of business or pleasure entailed actual physical exercise that offset the mental drain.

"The present-day need, then, is for something to replace this tremendous sapping of our strength—something to replace the wasted tissues and revitalize our nerve forces—something that will make us not only scientifically healthy, but physically robust."

A MANUFACTURER'S SAMPLES (and some of our own stock)

We were very fortunate in being in a position to purchase these sample dresses. They are, without the slightest bit of exaggeration, the smartest and the most clever models shown for a considerable time (and there are no two dresses alike).

Among this choice assortment are dresses made in the new coat dress, also the circular overskirt effect, and one or two show the smart and chic cape effect. In this model the cape hangs from the shoulders in soft beautiful folds to about 2 or 3 inches above the waist. In the majority of cases these dresses exhibit some very fine and artistic work in braiding and beading, some in contrasting colors, others in light or darker shades of the same color. MEIGHEN HOLDS STORMY MEETING

AUDIENCE AT QUEBEC UNFRIENDLY—PREMIER CALLED "A LIAR"

QUEBEC, November 9. — Premier Meighen's meeting in Quebec last night proved stormy.

In an audience of about six thousand there was an appreciable element which was at first apparently opposed to him. It did not hesitate to make interruptions and many pointed questions were levelled at the Premier.

The Premier was bluntly told he was a "liar" when he declared that the tariff issue had been raised by the Liberals at their 1919 convention. He paid no attention to the remark and was quite equal to the occasion. "This country has pursued a sound fiscal policy," he declared.

"Yes, under Laurier," he was told.

"Under Laurier, Yes," agreed the premier, "and whenever that great leader followed the policies which were in force when he attained to power, he made no mistakes."

"We hafe a debt of two billion three hundred million dollars," Mr. Meighen declared when referring to the financial situation in Canada.

"Only that?" shouted a voice with much sarcasm.

"Only that," repeated the Premier, "and my friend in the audience is probably not one of those who will help to pay it. The people who pay taxes do not often talk nonsence at political meetings."

THIEVES ENTER CHURCH.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., November 9. Canadian Press. — Thieves visited St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church over the week end, pried open the door of the tabernacle and took two cyboriums, one of silver and one of gold. They also broke a basement window and tied up a bundle of the expensive garments worn by the priests in the performance of their church duties, but for some unknown reason left these behind in making their getaway.

LIVER TROUBLE

BAD BILIOUS ATTACKS

When your liver becomes sluggish and inactive your whole health suffers. Your bowels become constipated, the tongue coated, the breath bad, the stomach foul and sick, and bilious spells occur on account of the liver holding back the bile which is so essential to promote the movement of the bowels, and the bile gets into the blood instead of passing out through the usual channel.

The only way to keep the liver active and working properly, and thus get rid of the nasty bilious attacks, is to keep the bowels regular by using

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS.

They are purely vegetable, small and easy to take, work smoothly and gently, and there is nothing of the griping, weakening and sickening effects of the old fashioned purgatives.

Mr. John S. Caron ,Donavon, Sask. writes: "I was troubled with my liver and had severe bilious attacks. A friend advised me to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, so I took two vials and have had no more attacks."

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

are 25c a vial at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

RECIPES

GRAPE PRESERVES

Use any amount of grapes—preferably Tokays—remove seeds and add three-fourths of a pound of sugar to one pound of fruit. Do not add any water at all. Cook down until thick and seal in jars or glasses.

FRIED MUSH

Take one measure of wheat bran to three of corn meal, mix and dampen with cold water, have the teakettle of water boiling and pour into the dampened meal and bran, stirring it until it boils up. Then cover and place over a low fire, and let simmer for an hour, or more, according to the amount made. It browns more quickly in frying and is more crisp than plain cornmeal mush.

"ALL GOOD" PIE

Four eggs two cups sugar, nutmeg and vanilla to taste, two tablespoons flour, one cup seeded raisins, or one box is better, one cup chopped walnuts or pecans, pinch salt. Separate eggs, beat white stiff, fold in sugar beating all the while, cream flour in egg yolks beaten good, add to whites and sugar. Then add nutmeg, vanilla, raisins and nutmeats. Bake in pastry shell. No meringue is needed.

When you have veal loaf serve either pickled peaches or spiced crabapples with it. The combination in fine.

PROPHESIES OF MOTHER SHIPTON

Ques—Please quote Mother Shipton's prophecy. Ans.—It is now known that this famous "prophecy" was not made when claimed. It is also a question whether a real Mother Shipton ever existed. More likely the pretended prophecies were circulated after most of the predicted things came to pass. She is said to have been born near Knaresborough, Yorkshire, in 1488, and baptised as Ursula Southiel. The story holds that she died at 70 and that a pamphlet containing her alleged predictions appeared in 1641, was reprinted in 1662, and again in 1797. However the lines are well known and have been the cause of much discussion.

They follow:

"Carriages without horses shall go,
And accidents fill the world with woe,

Around the world thoughts shall fly
In the twinkling of an eye.

Waters shall yet more wonders do,
Now strange, yet shall be true.

The world upside down shall be,
And gold found at root of tree.

Through hills man shall ride,
And no horse nor ass be at his side.

Under water man shall walk,
Shall ride, shall sleep, shall talk.

In the air men shall be seen,
In black, in white, in green;

Iron in the water shall float,
As easy as a wooden boat.

Gold shall be found 'mid stone
In a land that's now unknown

Fire and waters shall wonders do,
England shall at last admit a Jew.

And this world to n end shall come
In eighteen hundred and eighty-one."

FEMININE ACTIVITIES

Mrs. Fanny Bullock-Workman, who has climbed many of the difficult peaks in the Himalayan mountains, is known as the "queen of women mountaineers."

Five per cent. of the divorces granted in France is due to the fact that marriage laws give the husband too much authority over the wife.

A large porportion of the hospitals and many of the schools and relief organizations in France are operated by women.

New women students this year at the Charing Cross Hospital Medical school in London slightly outnumber the men.

Sarah Bernhardt the French actress, celebrated her 77th birthday recently by appearing in a new play by Maurice Rostand.

In the treasury department at Washington there are many women who can count paper money at the rate of 1000 notes in five or six minutes.

In Japan widows designate themselves by arranging their hair in peculiar style which signifies whether they wish to marry again.

New York city has 20,000 women engaged in artistic pursuits, portraits and plaque painters, designers, mural decorators, illustrators and sculptors.

Many Paris surgeons are accumulating fortunes by performing a new operation on women with figures too developed for the straight-cut dresses of today.

STORM CLOUDS.

LONDON, November 8 (Canadian Press). — Storm clouds, in the form of a threatened hiatus in the Irish peace negotiations, are looming on the British political horizon, and whether they break depends on the attitude Ulster adopts towards the parleys now going on between the representatives of the Sinn Fein and the Government.

"I'm Happy and Well now for I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription"

Thousands of women in this country have reason to speak as above. From every part of Canada women write Doctor Pierce at the Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., as do these:

PHIPPE, SASK.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cured me when all other medicines failed. The home doctors could do nothing for me. I happened to see Dr. Pierce's advertisement in the paper, sent for the medicine, and felt great benefit from even the first few teaspoonfuls that I took. I took but a few bottles until I was well. I cannot speak too highly of its merits."—MRS. JANET BROWN, R. R. 1

SPRUCEDALE, ONT.—"I am only too glad to tell you what Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for me. I doctored three months, and the doctor said I would have to have an operation, but thanks to Dr. Pierce's medicine, I never felt better in my life than I have since taking the 'Prescription.' It surely is a woman's friend. I took the 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and also the 'Pleasant Pellets.' I was so weak and nervous I could scarcely do any work. That was eighteen years ago this summer, and I have never been troubled with the feminine trouble since."—MRS. JOHN W. HEWETT, Starrat.

All druggists sell Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in liquid or tablet form. Send 10c. to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ontario, for trial package of Favorite Prescription Tablets.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

FREE EXHIBIT AND SOUVENIRS

Canadian National - Grand Trunk Railway's officails, who are in charge of the Exhibit Train which will visit Peterboro on November 11, knowing how interested boys and girls are in engines and trains, are extending a special invitation to the school children to pay a visit to the Exhibit Train.

A kind attendant will explain how the great black steam engine works. Then they will be shown through the express car, the colonist car, the tourist and standard sleeping cars, where they will see how comfortably they can sleep when on a long journey that takes several days. They may go through the dining car, too, where the tables are set with snowy linen and shining silver.

Train will be open for inspection from 9 a.m., to 10 p.m., at the G.T. R. station.

Successful Men and Custom-Tailored Clothes

Most men labor under the impression that merchant-tailored clothes are far more expensive than ready-made clothes.

And yet they all have a desire to wear merchant-tailored garments.

Successful men are rarely to be seen wearing clothes made for the masses.

Custom-made garments are only slightly, if any, higher than the cost of the better grade of ready-to-wear garments.

To-day there is no noticeable difference between the cost of ordinary clothes made for the multitude and custom garments exclusively tailored for you.

BUT THERE IS A VAST DIFFERENCE IN THE CLOTHES. Come and let us show you.

Voice of the People

Editor Examiner:—

The ratepayers of this tax ridden City surely have some food for serious thought upon reading the front page of your paper Saturday night.

After all the delays of the plans for sewage disposal plant, and all the consideration, years of it, after all the large and small deputations, many personally conducted ones "playing lone hands," the aldermen are now of one accord that they will step into this $240,000 transaction and "go it blind" just as some of them in the council did in the Million Dollar Bridge job. However, we will surely hear more of this before tenders are called for.

Then we see this City is going to buy itself a brand new Paving Plant. Some good fellow has been here with a line of talk, possibly he is a friend of the fellow who sold the boys a Street Flusher, last Spring, which wasn't even a good leaker. These fellows on the road talk matters over and get to know where the easy marks are.

Now, as to the Paving plant. First it is noted that it is to be made in the United States. Mr. Parsons has had some paving experience and he knows this plant is made up of a lot of different kinds of machinery and assembled together. All of it could be made and bought in Canada.

A 1000 yard plant is a big one and the writer will defy any man to show him or any reasonable and practical man or body of men where the City can save one dollar by purchasing the plant even at the absurb low price mentioned, namely $23,000.

We did not lay any pavement last season and if we are a wise people we will not lay any next season as we have no streets needing it badly, and the other street work is not ready for it.

This talk of doing our own repairs is only the idle words of men who do not take the trouble to find out why our paved streets laid in 1914 and 1915 have not been kept up in first class condition by the Paving Company, called for in five and ten year guarantee given at that time. This, like many other things, has been neglected, and it is high time that someone would make a noise like a man who knows what the ratepayers are paying for and see that they get their money's worth.

Who is going to pay the taxes in this City during the next few years? The population is at a standstill and, according to one of census it has gone back. Taxes are now higher than rents were five years ago and our money is being spilled out like water. I do not mean the water in the Otonabee River, as it is the highest priced water in the whole province of Ontario, but just water like the Downie Street Creek for instance.

Surely this is the time for economy first, last always until we are past the crisis that all sane people appreciate.

Let us hear something from the City as to why these Paving Companies are let off so easily in their guarantee. This is no idle talk on this point, the writer was a tenderer on pavements in 1915 and has some little knowledge of the situation.

Yours truly

BUFFALO ELECTS A "WET" MAYOR

BUFFALO, N. Y., November 9th. Frank X. Schwab, Republican, running on a platform declaring for an amendment of the Volstead Act, to permit the sale of beer and light wines, was elected Mayor of Buffalo yesterday by a majority of 2,563 over Mayor George S. Buck, also a Republican. Mr. Schwab declared during his campaign speeches that a vote for him would be a protest against prohibition laws as they now stand. Mayor Buck was elected as Mayor four years ago by a plurality of 15,000.

Three of the five city commissioners carry over. John F. Malone, the only Democrat on the Board, was defeated by John H. Meahl, Republican.

The Board now stands four Republicans, and one Socialist.

NEW YORK, November 9. Canadian Press. — Mayor Hylan's reelection was conceded last night by United States Senator William M. Calder, head of the Republican campaign committee, in Brooklyn, and by several Anti-Hylan newspapers, including the New York World, the Evening Mail, the Eevening Sun, and the Globe.

The vote for Mayor in 760 out of 27097 election districts in the city was Curran, 84,861; Hylan 202,802; Ranken 22,506.

LIVED YEARS ON BREAD AND MILK

FOR MORE THAN DECADE MALADY OF ALABAMA WOMAN WAS CONTINUALLY SAPPING HER STRENGTH.

Mrs. H. P. Barrett, of Republic, suburb of Birmingham, Ala., gives the facts of her remarkable experience with Tanlac as follows:

"During the past fourteen years I have spent more than one thousand dollars trying to get rid of a complaint that was gradually sapping my strength, but until I got hold of Tanlac nothing helped me. For the past four years I have lived almost entirely on milk and bread, and finally even that went against me.

"Before I had finished the first bottle of Tanlac I got so I could eat anpthing, and I certainly bless the day I first got this medicine for I believe it has added years to my life. The people in my neighborhood were sa surprised at the change in me that fourteen of them by actual count are now taking Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

U. S. EMERGENCY TARIFF EXTENDED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press)—The Senate late yesterday passed the House Bill extending the emergency tariff, but amended so as to continue in effect until superceded by the permanent bill, instead of expiring February 1. All provisions of the temporary law, passed originally May 27, including the dye embargo, were retained in the measure.

Debate on the measure was brief and took the same course as that followed in the two prior appearances of the emergency tariff in Congress. There was no record vote.

Darn it! Just as we were beginning to get out of debt, the neighbor bought a car with two more cylinders.

PRICES OF BREAD IN CANADA TO-DAY

ONLY TWO DECLINES FROM HIGHEST WAR-TIME LEVEL

At this time of the year in 1914, flour was $3.20 per 98 pound sack, October wheat was $1.15½ per bushel and bread was selling at 5 to 7 cents per 16, 20, or 24 ounce loaf in most towns in Canada. To-day, with flour down to $3.90 per 98 pound sack, October wheat at $1.08½, the standard 24-ounce loaf sells at 10 to 12 cents, while the fancy loaves may go as high as 15 cents for a 12 ounce loaf. "Fancy" loaves may be almost any weight or any price, apparently, and this is where the discrepancy between flour prices and bread prices is most observable and least justifiable. There have only been two declines in bread prices from the highest point attained in war time, and, with flour down to nearly its pre-war level, it looks as though a further drop might be managed without any disastrous results to the baking industry.

The bakers will probablly claim that they have long contracts ahead for flour at higher prices, but this is unlikely, as the flour market has been falling for some time and there has been much harping on the lack of export demand which alone could have steadied the price. And, of course, bakers buy their supplies at a much lower figure than that quoted the ordinary consumer of flour, and, although the prices quoted are for the top grades of patents, the flour going into bakers' bread, as a general rule, as far from being of the top grades.

The Winnipeg Free Press of October 20th. reports in a private despatch from Vancouver: "Bread is retailing in four different stores on Grabville street at 5 cents for the 16-ounce loaf, other bakers are mostly selling two loaves of 18 to 20 ounces for 15 cents, while one of the leading firms of the coast is delivering three loaves of 18 ounces for 25 cents."

From Moose Jaw: "Bread can be purchased for five cents per loaf of one pound. Some chain of stores sell at 6 cents per loaf, and the regular price of the various bakery firms is three loaves for 25 cents." In Regina, "On account of the decrease in the cost of ingredients," bakers recently announced a drop in the price of bread which is now sold at a rate of 12 loaves of 20 ounce weight for a dollar or 8½ cents per loaf.

In Saskatoon bread is selling at the same price, in Winnipeg the cheaper class of bakeries are selling a 16-ounce loaf at 6 cents while the larger establishments are demanding 9 cents and contending that they cannot reduce the price. In Hamilton a certain chain of stores is doing good business with bread at 8 cents for a 20-ounce loaf, as compared with the 9 and 10 cents asked in other places.

The manager of one of the largest bread firms in Toronto, when interrogated on this question, said that high wages and oveheads keep prices up, and that competition will get the prices down, if they are coming.

can be more easily saved than most people imagine

The Man Who Saves

At age 19 his bills exceed his income.

At age 21 his Canada Life Policy creates an estate and saves his money.

At age 35 his "bills" include a "premium due," which, while counted as an expense, is really a saving.

At age 50 he can "spend" anything in reason.

At age 60 he has no anxiety for the future, and leisure for his many interests.

If you look ahead you can easily picture how useful $30,000 would be to you. If you were to start in and save $200 each six months and let it compound at 5½% you would have that substantial sum in 30 years, but—you know of many people who could have set aside this amount, yet who are still "drudging along."

You know yourself how hard it is to save cash. Human nature is such that very few people allow ready money to remain untouched for any length of time.

The Canada Life Plan

Provides that any sum you name will be delivered to you in cash at any age you desire, or to your beneficiary should you die in the meantime.

You see by this Plan how an IMMEDIATE ESTATE is created in event of death—the full face value of the insurance policy. At one stride you anticipate years of effort, you capitalize your present health and earning power, you make certain of many years of progress now. Take, for instance, an issued by the Canada Life. It makes saving money attractive, systematic and very profitable.

You can be certain that the full amount will be paid in any case whether you live or not. Other investments may fail—the Canada Life Endowment is a certainty. It will take care of your home, your business, your children's future, or yourself, as nothing else can.

Profits Will Hasten Maturity

If the profits are allowed to remain each year instead of being withdrawn and spent, a special clause provides that the face value of the policy will be paid some time well in advance of the due date.

Regular saving, an immediate estate, substantial profits, absolute safety—this is a combination that you should look into today.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Toronto, Nov. 4, 1921.
To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I notice that Albert de Courville's English revue, "Hullo, Canada!" is to play in Peterborough. I had the pleasure of witnessing the production in Toronto last week, and judging from the vast house and the continual thunderous applause that greeted its appearance in the second week, there was not to even the slightest doubt as to its popularity in Toronto. It is the exemplification of its title for the whole of this wonderful revue from beginning to end impresses one as forcibly as the greeting in its title.

The entire production is one of unparalleled magnificence, the scenery and costumes are marvellous creations, and the work of artistes. To see this revue is to appreciate the great difference between the English and American productions, and such a revue as this is indicative of the overwhelming superiority of the British style. Miss Kellogg, the leading lady, is a clever and accomplished actress, and is to be especially commended, while the famous and versatile Harry Tate is the cleverest comedian ever to appear in Peterborough. He provokes continuous laughter from start to finish, and there is no doubt as to his title as peer of comedians. The work of the famous Beauty Chorus in its singing and dancing shows the intensive training undergone and the effects created by their rich, striking costumes are not to be forgotten very quickly.

The whole revue borders on the miraculous, and it is to be hoped its appearance in Peterborough will be favoured by a full house, which it undoubtedly deserves. It is an opportunity for Peterborough to show its appreciation of a wholly British work, and of it every advantage should be taken. Thanking you for this valuable space.—Yours,

C. H. R. Devey.

Lindsay, 7th November, 1921.
Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—In your issue of 3rd November appears an editorial headed "Stop the Slaughter." This editorial, for various reasons, is actually past due, but though late, if it is successful in interesting the powers that be, you will have done more for Peterborough, Lindsay, and the whole chain of lakes in this district than could possibly be done by any of our Boards of Trade or City Councils. Without 'lunge and bass in our back waters, Lindsay and Peterborough would lose one of their very best assets, and, by the angler and tourist, be placed in the same category as Reaboro, Fraserville, etc. These tourists give us all kinds of publicity, and in addition, native-born Canadians by the thousands every season participate in the sport, and find in it both health and pleasure.

I was agent at Harwood for the old Cobourg Railway from 1877 to 1881. Previous to this time little or no attention or protection had been given these fish, and as a result the lake was almost depleted. American tourists, who for years had spent their vacation and money on Rice Lake, quit coming altogether. At this juncture Cobourg awakened and succeeded in inducing the Ontario Government to appoint a real business inspector. The gentleman selected was Mr. Charles Gilchrist, and from the day of his appointment to the present time, a vast imporvement was noticeable. In four years Rice Lake was again teeming with 'lunge and bass. During the sunning or spawning season for these fish, one district inspector is actually of no account. Mr. Gilchrist realised this, and after his first year obtained authority from the Government to engage extra men for from ten days to two weeks to assist him in covering the various spawning grounds.

The result fully warranted the small outlay, and unless inspectors are given this permission, the salary paid to themselves is just as good as thrown away, as no inspector can be in more than one place at a time.

In addition to the spear and usual submerged net, pirates on Sturgeon Lake are applying a new method. During calm summer nights, it is generally known that 'lunge and bass come to the surface to play, and while thus engaged it is quite common to hear and to see small motor boats at midnight working their nets along the surface and snaring them in this way. If fish are protected during their spawning season, which in no year exceeds two weeks, it will be impossible to deplete our lakes, as natural propagation would far exceed those taken by troll or in any other legal form.

Lindsay and Peterborough should take this matter up jointly with the Department and refuse to quit until the bass and 'lunge in their districts get the protection they are deserving of.—Yours,

A. W. Paton.

CHILD RETURNED TO THE SHELTER WITH DIPHTHERIA

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY TAKES STEPS TO PREVENT RECURRENCE—BOARD HELD MEETING

Yesterday afternoon, the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society held their regular monthly meeting in the office of the Patriotic Association, on Simcoe Street. Rev. F. E. Malott occupied the chair. Other members present were: Mesdames Fanning, Knox, Welsh, Evans, Gibbs and Mrs. Wright, and Messrs. Edgar, Dobbin, Powell, Cowan, Cummer and Dr. King.

Arrangements have been made for the Board to meet hereafter in the rooms available at the Chamber of Commerce, and the secretary was instructed to write to the Chamber of Commerce, thanking them for this favor, and also to the manager of the Bank of Montreal, expressing appreciation for the use of the rooms which the Board had used for such a length of time.

The notice of motion brought to the attention of the members at the last monthly meeting with regard to filling the places of those members who failed to report at a meeting for three consecutive times, was again agreed to. This motion will come up before the annual meeting on November 15th for confirmation.

Mr. Powell's report dealt with sundry matters, including the present total of tag-day funds, which has reached the sum of $1,913.51, exclusive of the sum of $54.15 received from the Taplin entertainment at the Opera House.

During the month of October, 5 applications for children were received at the Shelter; children (not wards) brought in, 4; wards placed out, 4; returned to the Shelter, 2; children returned to parents (not wards), 2.

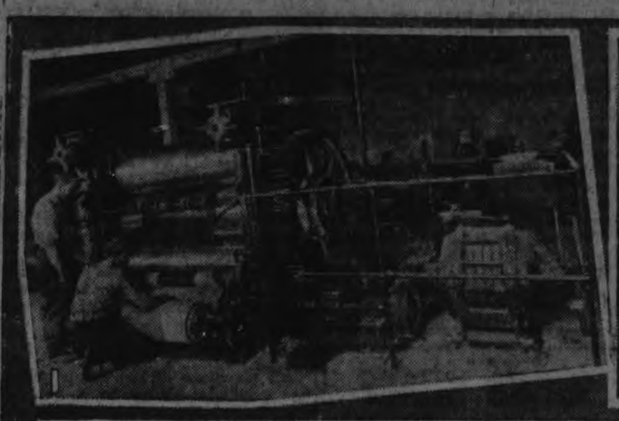
A letter of thanks will be sent to Mr. G. N. Gordon for his thoughtful gift of a turkey to the children of the Shelter on Thanksgiving Day.

Child Returned.

On account of the condition of quarantine now existing at the Shelter, it was impossible to procure the matron's report for the month. A child with a very bad case of diphtheria had been returned to the Shelter by the farmer with whom she had been placed. In consequence of this, the whole institution was quarantined, and the other children exposed to the danger of infection for a certain length of time, until the child could be removed to the Isolation Hospital. The girl was returned at night, and the extreme nature of her illness not discovered until next morning.

Arising out of this circumstances, a resolution fathered by Mr. J. Edgar was passed: That no child be returned to the Shelter until two weeks' notice has been received by the matron in charge. Failing this, the child must possess a physician's certificate of health.

Purchases for the month were reported as follows: Self-Serve Grocery, $21.15; R. Neill, Ltd., $3; Turnbulls, Ltd., $13; R. Hall & Son, $1; W. Stock Co., 72c; New Centre Meat Market, $3.93; Telephone, $2.46 and $2.82; G. W. Powell, $4.70; advertising, $15; printing arm bands, $1.50; 600 pennants, $11; school and street tags, $32.02; 600 tags, $1.05; typeing, $2.50; Mr. Powell, 45c; N. Brown, $13.50; Allin Ice Co., $1.80; Turnbulls, Ltd., $3.60; N. Asling, $10.95; total, $146.15.



TIGER TIRES

Entirely Canadian-made

A NEW, modern Tire Factory at Belleville, Ont. Equipped with the most up-to-date manufacturing machinery in Canada.

Tiger Tire plant contains apparatus designed to improve the resiliency and durability of tires which no other factory in Canada contains.

—A tire proven by use and gruelling tests to have the splendid stamina, tough wearing quality and dependability which every car owner wants in a tire.

Reasons Why

Two reasons why Tiger Tires are the best tires in Canada:—

Because made in the most modernly equipped tire factory in the Dominion.

Because made of rubber bought when the bottom fell out of the raw rubber market, at a cost of about one-third that of rubber now used in many factories.

This low cost of raw rubber enables the makers of Tiger Tires to use more pure rubber; to put on heavier treads, giving more wear surface, and to build thicker sidewalls, giving greater strength.

The result is a longer wearing, more resilient tire—a tire that can take more air pressure and therefore decrease traction friction and save gasoline, while its thick walls of pure rubber give greatest resiliency.

When you drive on Tiger Tires you will know your car is shod with the most dependable tire that is made in Canada.

Every size for every make of car.

Every model for every rim.

If you have partly worn tires on your car now, buy a Tiger for a spare.

No matter what your experience with tires has been, you'll say you've never had tires that gave better satisfaction than Tiger Tires after you have used them.

Tiger Tires for wear.
Tiger Tires for resiliency.
Tiger Tires for economy.

MOFFATS ELECTRIC RANGES

"BULL-DOG DRUMMOND"

BY "SAPPER" (CYRIL McNEILE)

Suddenly the American removed the toothpick from his mouth, and stretched out his legs.

"There is a question which occurs to me, Count, before I make up my mind on the matter. I guess you've got us sized up to the last button; you know who we are, what we're worth, and all about us. Are you disposed to be a little more communicative about yourself? If we agree to come in on this hand, it's going to cost big money. The handling of that money is with you. Wal—who are you?"

Von Gratz paused in his restless pacing and nodded his head in agreement; even Steinemann, with a great effort, raised his eyes to the Count's face as he turned and faced them. . . .

"A very fair question, gentlemen, and yet one which I regret I am unable to answer. I would not insult your intelligence by giving you the fictitious address of—a fictitious Count. Enough that I am a man whose livelihood lies in other people's pockets. As you say, Mr. Hocking, it is going to cost big money; but compared to the results the costs will be a flea-bite. . . Do I look—and you are all of you used to judging men—do I look the type who would steal the baby's money-box which lay on the mantelpiece, when the pearls could be had for opening the safe. . . You will have to trust me, even as I shall have to trust you. . . . You will have to trust me not to divert the money which you give me as working expenses into my own pocket. . . . I shall have to trust you to pay me when the job is finished. . . .

"And that payment will be—how much?" Steinemann's guttural voice broke the silence.

"One million pounds sterling—to be split up between you in any proportion you may decide, and to be paid within one month of the completion of my work. After that the matter will pass into your hands . . . and may you leave that cursed country grovelling in the dirty . . ." His eyes glowed with a fierce, vindictive fury; and then, as if replacing a mask which had slipped for a moment, the Count was once again the suave, courteous host. He had stated his terms frankly and without haggling: stated them as one big man states them to another of the same kidney, to whom time is money and indecision or beating about the bush anathema.

"Take them or leave them." So much had he said in effect, if not in actual words, and not one of his audience but was far too used to men and matters to have dreamed of suggesting any compromise. All or nothing: and no doctrine could have appealed more to the three men in whose hands lay the decision. . . .

"Perhaps, Count, you would be good enough to leave us for a few minutes." Von Gratz was speaking. "The decision is a big one, and . . ."

"Why, certainly, gentlemen." The Count moved toward the door. "I will return in ten minutes. By that time you will have decided—one way or the other."

Once in the lounge he sat down and lit a cigarette. The hotel was deserted save for one fat woman asleep in a chair opposite, and the Count gave himself up to thought. Genius that he was in the reading of men's minds, he felt that he knew the result of that ten minutes' deliberation. . . . And then . . . What then? . . . In his imagination he saw his plans growing and spreading, his tentacles reaching into every corner of a great people—until, at last, everything was ready. He saw himself supreme in power, glutted with it—a king, an autocrat, who had only to lift his finger to plunge his kingdom into destruction and annihilation. . . . And when he had done it, and the country he hated was in ruins, then he would claim his million and enjoy it as a great man should enjoy a great reward. . . . Thus for the space of ten minutes did the Count see visions and dream dreams. That the force he proposed to tamper with was a dangerous force disturbed him not at all: he was a dangerous man. That his scheme would bring ruin, perhaps death, to thousands of innocent men and women, caused him no qualm: he was a supreme egoist. All that appealed to him was that he had seen the opportunity that existed, and that he had the nerve and the brain to turn that opportunity to his own advantage. Only the necessary money was lacking . . . and . . . With a quick movement he pulled out his watch. They had had their ten minutes . . . the matter was settled, the die was cast. . . .

He rose and walked across the lounge. At the swing doors was the head waiter, bowing obsequiously. . . .

It was to be hoped that the dinner had been to the liking of Monsieur le Comte . . . the wines all that he could wish . . . that he had been comfortable and would return again. . . .

"That is improbable." The Count took out his pocket-book. "But one never knows; perhaps I shall." He gave the waiter a note. "Let my bill be prepared at once, and given to me as I pass through the hall."

Apparently without a care in the world the Count passed down the passage to his private room, while the head waiter regarded complacently the unusual appearance of an English five-pound note.

For an appreciable moment the Count paused by the door, and a faint smile came to his lips. Then he opened it, and passed into the room. . . .

The American was still chewing his toothpick; Steinemann was still breathing hard. Only von Gratz had changed his occupation, and he was sitting at the table smoking a long thin cigar. The Count closed the door, and walked over to the fireplace. . . .

"Well, gentlemen," he said quietly, "what have you decided?"

It was the American who answered.

"It goes. With one amendment. The money is too big for three of us: there must be a fourth. That will be a quarter of a million each."

The Count bowed.

"Have you any suggestions as to who the fourth should be?"

"Yep," said the American shortly "These two gentlemen agree with me that it should be another of my countrymen—so that we get equal numbers. The man we have decided on is coming to England in a few weeks—Hiram C. Potts. If you get him in, you can count us in too. If not, the deal's off."

The Count nodded, and if he felt any annoyance at this unexpected development he showed no sign of it on his face.

"I know of Mr. Potts," he answered quietly. "Your big shipping man, isn't he? I agree to your reservation."

"Good," said the American. "Let's discuss some details."

Without a trace of emotion on his face the Count drew up a chair to the table. It was only when he sat down that he started to play a tattoo on his knee with his left hand. . . .

Half an hour later he entered his luxurious suite of rooms at the Hotel Magnificent.

A girl, who had been lying by the fire reading a French novel, looked up at the sound of the door. She did not speak, for the look on his face told her all she wanted to know.

He crossed the sofa and smiled down at her.

"Successful . . on our own terms. To-morrow, Irma, the Comte de Guy dies, and Carl Peterson and his daughter leave for England. A country gentleman, I think, is Carl Peterson. He might keep hens, and possibly pigs."

The girl on the sofa rose, yawning.

"Mon Dieu what a prospect Pigs and hens—and in England How long is it going to take?"

The Count looked thoughtfully into the fire.

"Perhaps a year—perhaps six months . . . It is on the lap of the gods. . . ."

No Appetite

Nervous exhaustion leads to distaste for food. The nerves of the stomach are weak, digestion fails and you become generally upset and out of sorts.

The secret of complete restoration is in getting the nervous system fully built up.

Mrs. R. Cheney, 208 Richmond St., Chatham, Ont., writes:

"I was troubled with indigestion, which caused me many sleepless nights. I would be in terrible distress at times, and would get no relief for two or three hours. For sixteen months I ate nothing but Shredded Wheat biscuits, as I dare not eat anything else. I did not know what to do, as I had tried so many different remedies, as well as doctors' medicines, without gaining permanent relief. Finally I got some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and while on the second box noticed that I was improving. I continued the treatment until I am now fully restored, and have returned to my regular diet. My husband has also taken Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results, so we are glad to recommend it to others."

TOUCHING SERVICES MARK STREET CHURCH

MARKED TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF CHURCH'S FALLEN HEROES

Tender and touching were the services at Mark Street on Sabbath last. It was communion service in the morning and a memorial service at night. A large frame, containing the photos of our fallen heros, beautifully draped with bunting, flags and a wreath of poppies, leaned against the front of the pulpit, while on a table before the altar were laid the emblems of the broken body and shed blood of Christ. These symbols of a double sacrifice appealed with such silent eloquence as thrilled the soul to its very depths.

"The Magnetism of the Cross."

The above was the subject of the morning sermon, and was founded on the text found in John XII., 32, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." The following is an outline of the sermon:

The battle of the Standard, fought between the English and Scottish armies, in the year 1138 A.D., is a fact well known to every student of British history. It will be remembered that King David of Scotland espoused the cause of Maud, who claimed the British crown in opposition to Stephen of Blois. And what was the "Standard?" It was the mast of a ship, adorned with the ancient banners of three Saxon saints, having a cross at its summit, and a silver box containing the emblems of our Lord's broken body and spilt blood. This great Standard was bound to a rude car, and around it the English warriors joined hands and swore to conquer or die. Nothing could break through the line of English steel that surrounded that strange ensign. The dauntless swordsmen of unconquered Scotland struggled in vain. The red dragon flag of the North was borne tattered and blood-stained from the field, while 12,000 Scottish chiefs lay dead upon the plain. But the banners still waved around the central cross, nor felt the shock of battle. Just as surely as this strange and crude standard divided the armies of England and Scotland, nearly nine hundred years ago, the cross of Christ divides the world today. Hell and her numerous agencies are in battle array against the hosts of the living God. But the cross stands untouched 'mid the withering storm.

Silent Eloquence.

The cross speaks silently but surely of God's great love for sinful men. For this reason it has become the sign by which Christianity has won her way in a world of sin. This is not a theory of theology. It is a fact of history. Strange as it may seem, the cross is the emblem of shame, and reproach in the eyes of the world; and yet it has become the symbol of Christian faith, the treasure of Christian hope and the banner of Christian victory. How came it to be thus transformed? What miracle has changed this instrument of death to an exalted place of glory and power. When Christianity came to China the people wondered that the worshippers of Jesus should reverence the instrument of His agony. Surely a father would not hold as a souvenir the knife that slew his son. It is a searching question this, but there is an answer to it; and that answer is, that the cross of Jesus planted in the inner life becomes a tree of peace and blessing; the sign of pardon and divine love. "Hold thou thy cross before my closing eyes." "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Magnetic Power.

The attractive, healing, cleansing, convincing and pacifying power of the cross comes from its silent proclamation of the holy self-sacrificing love of God. Revealing Jesus as He is, eternally and willing to forgive, constitutes, no doubt, this wonderful attraction. He, lifted on the cross, becomes the mighty magnet of the centuries. Lift your great magnet in your mechanical operations and let it down into your heaps of scrap-iron and debris; then see what follows. It will attract, separate, tear out and lift as much as twenty tons of iron or steel out of the chaotic mass. What an affinity the magnet has for iron. And what an affinity Jesus has for humanity. Jesus will draw out and lift up sinful, suffering humanity no matter where it is to be found, and He will attract and draw nothing but the metal of humanity.

The Great Magnet.

Let your magnet grip a bar of steel, then that bar itself becomes a magnet. This bar will attract and hold a second, and that second will hold a third. You might have a chain of twenty bars, all held together and lifted by your magnet. If Christ lifts you, you in turn will attract others. All Christianity needs today is to get a chance. What was it that turned the Roman world upside down? It was the cross. What was it that sent the martyrs smiling through fire and flood to the most horrible death? It was the uplifted cross; and they held it high in death. During the Roman persecutions of the early church as many as two million martyrs passed through the portals of fire to heaven and to God. And these men and women were upheld by the power of the cross.

In these dark days a girl of eighteen years was arrested for being a follower of the Christ. First her body was pricked with spears at a dozen points. Then she was laid on red-hot coals of fire. After this she was wrapped in the skins of wild beasts and worried by the fierce Roman dogs. Calling off the beasts for a moment her tormentors uncovered her face. That face was aglow with the light of immortal beauty; and seeing her lips move they listened. What were her dying words? —"Jesus! Jesus! Jesus!" She had changed the cross for a crown.

Is the Cross Adapted to the Psychology the Crowd?

Well, what was the frame of mind of that crowd which surrounded the cross on Calvary? Malice, hate, contempt, jealousy, murder and death was the active principle. And yet the uplifted cross in the hands of the followers of the Crucified One changed the psychology of the Roman world in a few decades. Oh, do not fear, the cross will change the psychology of the crowd if we lift up Jesus. Remember the higher you hold the cross the higher up will you be held. Let nothing in heaven or earth take the place of Christ crucified. Let us keep ourselves out of sight as we lift up Jesus.

SPLENDID MUSIC IN KNOX CHURCH

Thanksgiving and Armistice Sunday was approriately observed at Knox Church, in the morning the pastor Rev. J. A. MacKenzie preached an eloquent sermon on the subject "Remembrance and Thanksgiving." The service of praise, too was in keeping with the pastor's theme, the anthem by the choir, and a solo by Mrs. Hughes being effectively rendered.

In the aftrenoon the "Brotherhood Class' held a rally to which the other organized classes were invited. The speaker was Mr. James Dutton of St. Pauls. His subject was "The Duty of Thanksgiving" and all who heard his able address would, be glad to hear him again. A solo by Mrs. Clark and a duet by Messrs. Jno. Anderson and Will Turnbull added to the interest of this service.

But the crowning event of the day was the evening service when after a brief but pointed address by the Minister, the sacred Cantata, "The Joyful Thanksgiving" by Simper was given by a choir of forty voices, The audience was so large that all available chairs were requisitioned for use in the gallery, and those present were amply repaid by the manner in which that beautiful cantata was rendered by the choir under the able leadership of Mr. F. E. Walden, organist and choirmaster. Those taking special parts were as follows:—Sopranos, Mrs. W. Byers, Mrs. Hughes, Miss E. Kennedy and Miss Pearson; Contraltos, Mrs. Clark and Misses Williamson and A. Crocker; Tenors, Messrs. Jno. Anderson and James Turnbull; Basses, Rev. J. A. MacKenzie and Messrs. Gillespie, W. Turnbull and Russel. The splendid work of the choir is very gratifying to the people of Knox Church and is undoubtely due to the fint spirit of cooperation which the leader inspires.

The flower of rememberance was in evidence in the services, the cross of poppies on the communion table, and the wreath placed on the members of the A.S.K. Class being most fitting.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN WHELAN LITIGATION

OTTAWA, Nov. 9. — Canadian Press. — Judgment was reserved by the Supreme Court yesteray in the case of M. F. Whelan vs. Pointe Anne Quarries, Limited, an appeal from the Exchequer Court. The tug Whelan was engaged by the Quarry Company to tow loaded barges under their (the respondents) control, from Pointe Anne to Toronto, and during a heavy storm a loaded scow was abandoned and the cargo lost.

In an action by the Quarry Company it was contended for the defence that the contract did not include the towing of the scows, which have no crew or rudder as the barges have. The local judge in admiralty found that the scows were intended to be included but they were omitted by inadvertence, and ordered the contract to be performed accordingly. He also found that the damage suffered was due to inefficient navigation. The exchequer court affirmed this judgment.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

To-morrow (Thursday) the Capitol offers Nazimova in her wonderful production of Camille. A first-class vaudeville act, the Wrens, will also be offered.

Commencing to-morrow night and for the balance of the week, the Capitol offers a remarkable programme of pictures and a first-class vaudeville act, the Wrens, Dick and Ruby and their wonderful little son, in songs, jokes, Irish and Scotch dances and musical selections. This is not an amateur or try-out act, but regular big-time stuff and a big hit everywhere over the Paramount circuit. Some very excellent short reel subjects and comedies.

It is an ultra-modern "Camille" who is presented in Nazimova's Metro production of Alexander Dumas' immortal love story, to be shown twice to-morrow and the balance of this week.

All of the picturesque settings for the action of the production—especially designed by Natacha Rambova—reveal the very last word in present-day luxury. And the gowns worn by Nazimova and members of her supporting company, all are the product of the combined ingenuity of star and artist.

One of the bizarre settings in this production is an almost circular boudoir quite different from anything seen in the Paris of Dumas' day. The bed, a unique object in the room, also is circular. An overhanging circular canopy drops down over the bed, giving a basket-like effect.

Another original idea is portrayed in the designing of the fireplace, which resembles a huge bowl. The grate, which is circular at its foundation, extends upward into the flue. On either side of the huge mantle, are wreaths of artistic flowers, grouped about the outer edges. A long curved piece of glass extends from the mantel upwards, enabling a person standing by the fire to watch the flames and smoke ascend. Small glass panles are inset at the sides of the fireplace to reveal the vagrant tongues of flames that may venture that way.

Many of the hangings and draperies used in this ultra-modern feminine sanctuary were imported from Paris by Nazimova herself—some have adorned her own home. All the furnishinsg of the boudoir and adjacent alcoves were especially constructed for the famous Russian actress for use in the production. Instead of striving for the elaborate and showy, the most simple and refined atmosphere was created by the perfect accord with which the furniture harmonizes with hangings and built-in features of the boudoir.

Miss Rambova, herself well known as a dancer, designed many of the elaborate costumes worn by Nazimova in the picture.

The cast for "Camille" includes, besides Nazimova: Rudolph Valentino, hero of the Rex Ingram productions, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "The Conquering Power," who will enact the part of Armand, the romantic lover; Rex Cherryman, Arthur Hoyt, Zeffie Tillbury, Ruth Miller and Consuelo Flowerton. Ray Smallwood, who directed Nazimova's three most recent productions for Metro, directed "Camille." Rudolph J. Berquist photographed it, and Joseph Calder was technical director. June Mathis adapted it.

AT THE ALLEN.

LAST PEAL OF "WEDDING BELLS" AT THE ALLEN THEATRE

"Wedding Bells," Constance Talmadge's latest photoplay, released as an Associated First National attraction, concludes its run at the Allen Theatre to-day.

This attraction has won the most favorable comment of any of Constance Talmadge's previous releases shown at the Allen, possibly on account of the naturally splendid story upon which the film version was based, but more likely on account of the unique performance given by Constance Talmadge as the rather capricious and temperamental Rosalie Wayne.

Harrison Ford, who supports Miss Talmadge as leading man in the role of Reginald Carter, is coming in for his share of the plaudits and the concensus of opinion is that Mr. Ford has rarely been seen to better advantage than in this production.

The picture is based on the hasty marriage of Rosalie and Reginald. After two days of wedded life, a most trifling incident causes Rosalie to become angered and she runs away, fully expecting her heartbroken husband to follow. All would have been well had Reggie not been stricken with a most irritating case of measles and confined to his bed. To follow was impossible, so Rosalie goes to Europe to forget and then to Reno to get a divorce.

The separation is not lasting, however, when each discovers that the other should not be married to any one else.

The picture was directed by Chet Withey and Emily Chichester. Ida Darling, James Harrison, William Roselle, Polly Vann, Dallas Welford and Frank Honda are seen in the supporting cast.

"After Midnight," a Ralph Ince Production released by Selznick, in which Conway Tearle is the star, will be the featured attraction at the Allen theatre for three days, beginning Thursday. "After Midnight" is a production in which the star is said to score one of his best performances, and according to the advance information the story is unusually strong and exciting throughout.

John Lynch wrote the story, which tells a tale of two brothers, both played by Conway Tearle, who choose extremely opposite paths in life. One becomes wealthy but degenerates into a drug addict, while the other becomes an aimless wanderer, poor and ambitionless, and bitterly revengeful toward his brother who, years past, had mulcted him of his share of the fortune left by their dead father.

They do not meet again until one day, in a Chinese restaurant, Warren Black, observing the striking resemblance between the wanderer and the man in the back room who was slowly poisoning himself to death with opium, suggested that he take his place for the purpose of obtaining the family riches. The wanderer consents and becomes the master of his brother's house and from that moment on the story progresses rapidly toward a startling climax that reveals many exciting episodes.

Zena Keefe, who scored successfully opposite Mr. Tearle in "Marooned Hearts," again is the star's leading lady and Macy Harlan a convincing heavy role.

IDA MAY McKENZIE DEMANDS BIGGER PART IN COMEDY

Little Ida May McKenzie, whom critics have called "the sweetest child on the screen," is ambitious. She showed this in the making of "Just In Time," the latest of the Chester Comedies featuring Snooky, the Humanzee, which comes to the Allen theatre to-morrow.

When the story was originally written there was practically no part for her. In some mysterious way—probably because she spends her spare time practising on typewriters in the scenario department—she learned of the fact, and the eight-year-old start put up just as strong a complaint as the most temperamental grand opera prima donna. Result was that she got the part, not so much because of her complaint, but because Director William Campbell realizes the wonderful appeal she has to the public.

In "Just In Time" Snooky adds to his laurels by showing that he can drive an automobile and then by double crossing the villains with whom he has consorted and saving Baby Alfred Austin from the path of a train. The comedy element is said to be unusually strong and the punch at the end to be one that will get a thrill for every spectator.

WINNIPEG KIDDIES.

There are rumours that we are to have a return engagement of the famous "Winnipeg Kiddies." These talented children have been here before and have always excited much interest and favorable comment. On the other hand, I have heard many people say that they thought that it was too bad to encourage children in the theatrical business at an age when they should be at school or in the nursery. In spite of assurances that the kiddies do go to school like all youngsters of the same age, the idea seems to persist that they are sophisticated and very precocious. I can tell you authoritatively that they are quite normal and child-like off stage—they like to play, they have little squabbles, and perhaps the chief difference between them and their fellow kiddies is that they are extremely clever.

Just as "The Dumbells" began their revue in the trenches to amuse their comrades when they came down the line from the front, so the "Winnipeg Kiddies" started their entertainment career to raise funds for war work. So successful were they that after the war was over they decided to continue and have constantly improved their work until their show now ranks with any professional performance put on by their elders. Those who saw the show last year will remember the clever little comedian Jackie Finesiler, the Holmes twins and that pretty, well trained chorus; this year a valuable addition to the cast has been made in the person of wee Dorothy Mackay, the juvenile star of "Babes in the Woods" and "Little Red Riding Hood." She is doing some impersonations, one particularly good one being of Captain Plunkett singing 'Now I Know Where Flies Go." If, as I said, there is any truth in the rumours we hear, it will not be long before we will have the Kiddies with us.

"HULLO, CANADA!"

The enthusiasm with which people are asking for tickets for the de Courville revue indicates a gala night. The production has raised so much favourable comment that people feel they are really going to see a big show—and they are right. Not very often do we get the opportunity to have actual reigning favourites of the London stage on this side of the water. It is a very difficult thing to properly stage this revue and preparations go on apace on all sides.

I wonder if Miss Kellogg will have any of her beautiful dogs with her. She is particularly fond of thoroughbred chows and owns ten of these canine aristocrats. There is a story current that she only made up her mind to come to Canada on the spur of the moment. Hearing that a friend of her in Vancouver was going to China, she cabled him to look out for a blue chow to be a mate for one she valued at $2,000. Shortly after arriving, her friend replied that he had bought and shipped from China a perfect mate for her precious pet. At once Shirley accepted Mr. de Courville's offer, and we have the beautiful revue artiste with us, while she is daily looking forward to meeting his royal chow highness in Vancouver.

Our Canadian furriers should patronize "Hullo, Canada!" because it is also a fact that Miss Kellogg wants to buy a large addition to her stock of furs. She says Canadian furs are so highly thought of in England that many actresses exclaim, "A Canadian tour? Why certainly, I'll go out. I really must buy some furs, you know." After they've been here, they say, "Oh, your lovely country, I adore it, also the kindness and hospitality of your people."

GOOD-BYE REX! AU-REVOIR ZANA!

You will ask, why the distinction? Well, it really doesn't matter; the pair are happily married, so the terms are reciprocal.

Only tonight remains to see "The Man From Home." Rex has never done better work in Peterborough, and the entire cast gives a pleasing, capable performance. I liked the scenery very much, including the new model McLaughlin car, so kindly loaned by Mr. Andrew Brown, and there were so many genuinely funny situations that the performance was over all too soon. Miss Vaughn's clothes caused much favourable comment—in fact, she wears two beautiful evening gowns, besides other attractive costumes.

Like Mr. Snelgrove, "I'll not say much about the coming attractions, "What Every Woman Wants." You say the four words—they sound very wonderment and the conclusion of simple and straight forward—but what a world of conjecture they cause! Intuitively you begin to think ideas rush pell-mell through your brain, and before you realize it you are enmeshed in a regular whirl of it is the thought, "What do women want," and evidently there is one object 'What Every Woman Wants." Qui sait! LAURA.

COMMANDING WIN BY ALBERT SMOKE SAYS "SPECTATOR"

HAMILTON PAPER SAYS HE SHOULD BE CANDIDATE FOR OLYMPIC MARATHON.

(From Hamilton Spectator.)

If Albert Smoke, of Peterborough, continues to show the speed in 1924 that he did in yesterday's Herald road race, Canada will have a great candidate for the Olympic Marathon.

The Peterborough Indian won in commanding style, finishing over four minutes ahead of the second man, and he sprinted the last 100 yards as if he had run but half a mile. Smoke's time was nearly 4 minutes behind the record of 1.46.15, made by the late Jimmy Duffy in 1912, but good judges who saw him run claim that he might have lowered the mark if the competition had been keener. At no stage of the race was the big Indian in distress, although he was not always in the lead, and for nearly 15 miles was given such an argument by Art Scholes, of the Gladstone A. C., Toronto, that he appeared worried at times. He covered the 19 miles 168 yards in 1.50.04, the fastest time since 1913, when Duffy ran the distance of 1.32.38. A field of 18 runners responded to the starting gun, and all but five of them finished, although the last man to breast the tape was nearly an hour behind the winner.

Scholes set the early pace, and went to the five-mile post in 27 minutes, with Smoke close behind, and Norman General, the Brantford Indian, right at Smoke's heels. When the seven-mile post was reached, Smoke was in the lead, with General up ahead of Scholes. Then Scholes on the back as he passed opponents stuck to the road, and before the canal was reached Scholes was again in front, and after crossing the G.T.R. bridge he started a sprint that gave him a lead of 100 yards. Smoke continued to remain in second place, with General right behind him, but after passing the Brant House, the Peterborough Redman again shot to the front, patting Schiles on the back as he passed him. But Scholes never lost heart, and before reaching the Plains Road he passed Smoke once more, returning the compliment by patting him on the back as he passed.

But try as he would, Scholes was unable to open up a lead, for the faster he stepped, the faster Smoke stepped behind him, and before Hendrie's farm was reached Smoke went to the front and soon opened up a lead that left no doubt as to who was going to win. That last sprint was too much for Scholes, who soon lost sight of the leader, and then settled down to make sure of second place.

Down the Valley Inn hill came Smoke with a steady stride, and he climbed up the other hill without the least bit of effort. He was so far in the lead that he could have slackened his pace, but he was taking no chances, and continued to hit a good clip, finishing at the Herald office as though he had only got nicely started. Scholes was never in trouble in the battle for second place, but Jimmy Dellow started a belated rally that enabled him to reach General, and the two had a great battle for third place. He passed General before reaching Dundurn Park, but Dellow in turn passed him just as they rounded to York Street, and he finished nearly half a minute ahead of the Brantford Indian.

TO ART JOHNSTON THE CREDIT.

The Spectator makes the following comment on Smoke's victory:

"Canada has a splendid prospect for the next Olympic Marathon in Albert Smoke, the Peterborough Indian, who won the Herald race yesterday. While Smoke did not break the record, he finished so fresh that he could have gone another six miles with little trouble. Many men have won Herald races in the past, but it is doubtful if a man ever finished with as much in reserve as Smoke had yesterday. He was trained for the event by Tommy Thompson, formerly of Hamilton, but now of Goderich, a man who has groomed more than one winner of the race. Some of Dellow's friends claim that if he had been a better judge of pace, he might have won yesterday, but Jimmy woud have had to show form which he never did before in order to trot down York Street in front of the Peterborough Indian."

The Spectator was wrongly informed in its reference to Tommy Thompson. The Goderich man has been trying to get hold of Smoke, but has failed every time he made an approach.

Smoke's manager is Arthur Johnston, manager of the Windsor Hotel here, and his trainer for this race was Arthur Johnston, Jr. In fact, Art. Johnston, Sr., retained his faith in Smoke after most people had regarded him as a failure in the running game.

OTTAWA TO MOVE FOR SWEEPING HOCKEY CHANGES

OTTAWA, November 9 (Canadian Press). — The Ottawa Hockey Club will move at the annual meeting of the National Hockey League for three important changes in the rules of the Eastern professional hockey series.

They will propose the adoption of the Pacific Coast play-off system with a straight schedule of 48 games and the first and second teams playing at the conclusion of this home and home matches to decide which team should qualify for the Stanley Cup series.

This would do away with the National League's split schedule arrangement in vogue for the past four years.

The Ottawas also move for a return to the old penalty system, whereby an offending player goes to the penalty while his team plays short. This would replace the substitute system which the N. H. L. had in operation last year. There would be at least five men on the ice at all times as a second penalty, if incurred, would be deferred until the first one had been served.

In addition, the Ottawas suggest the adoption, on a modified scale, of the goalkeeper's pass out, which has become so popular at the Coast. They would sanction the forward pass from the goalkeeper to the first red line, a distance of forty feet. The Ottawas claim that this should speed up hockey greatly, as it makes the goalkeeper one of the most important cogs offensively as well as defensively in every team.

Toronto St. Patricks will be requested to second Ottawa's motion for these sweeping changes. They will come up at the annual meeting of the National Hockey League, which taks place at Toronto the latter part of this week.

LEGION SUPPORTS WATSON CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press). — The Private Soldiers' and Sailors' Legion to-day in a letter to Secretary of War Weeks, declared that "unless the records of the War Department have been tampered with, scrutiny of them will furnish all the evidence necessary to prove conclusively that tyranny, brutality and abuse were the rule and not the exception in the attitude of officers toward enlisted men" in the American Expeditionary Force.

CITY CLERK ARMSTRONG HONOURED LAST NIGHT.

Aldermanic Board Recognise His Exceptional Work.

Speeches of a very happy nature, referring to Mr. S. R. Armstrong's work as City Clerk, were made in Council last night by the Mayor and each of the aldermen, this occasion marking Mr. Armstrong's 29th year in office.

Mr. Armstrong thanked each member for their many kind words. He said he had always kept one thought in view in his work—that he was a servant of the people—and he added that he was glad to know he had been to some extent successful.

Following the meeting, a midnight supper in honour of Mr. Armstrong was served in the Class Cafe.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. — (Canadian Press.)— Resumption of trading on the stock exchange after the election day recess was characterized by further professional buying of Oils and Equipments, the remainder of the list recording no material changes. Royal Dutch and Houston Oil gained 1 1-4 and 1 5-8 points respectively and Baldwin Locomotive and Haskell and Barker were one point higher, with Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and United Fruit. Specialties eased slightly on further pressure against Food and Rubber issues. Local utilities were ignored. German marks showed a fair rally on higher quotations from London.

Rails became active in the broader trading at midday, leading the Pacifics, Atchison, Reading and New York Central rose 1 to 1½ points. Shorts in Mexican Petroleum continued to cover as that stock increased its gain to 4 points. Shippings, Tobaccos, Sugars and Rubbers were moderately strong.

Mex. Petroleum was the only important stock of its class to lag in early dealings but suddenly came forward before noon on the higher prices quoted for crude products in various parts of the country. Standard Oil common and preferred of New Jersey rose 1 3-4 and 5 1-4 points. California Petroleum also strengthened. Losses of one to two points were made by Pullman, Sears, Roebuck, Pierce Arrow Preferred, Nova Scotia Steel and several of the rails such as St. Paul Preferred, Missouri Pacific Preferred and New Orleans, Texas and Mexico. Further strength was shown by miscellaneous shares of the chain stores group. Call money opened at 5 1-2 per cent. despite Liberal offerings.

EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, November 9. Canadian Press. — Sterling exchange was irregular. Demand Great Britain, 3.93 5-8; Canadian Dollar 7 7-8 per cent. discount.

Chicago, November 9. — Opening wheat quotations which ranged from 3-8 to 1-4c gain with December 1.04 1-4 to 1.04 3-8, and May 1.09 1-2 to 1.10, were followed by a slight sag and then by upturns all around to well above yesterday's finish.

Corn and oats held about steady awaiting the government report due this afternoon. Corn opened 1-8 lower to 1-8c higher. May 52 5-8 to 52 3-4, and kept near the initial range. Oats started 1-8c advance; May 37 5-8c, and showed only minor fluctuations.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Nov. 9. — (Canadian Press).—Extreme quietness that prevailed on the local Stock Exchange this morning can best be described by the statement that in no listed stock did the total sales reach one hundred shares, nor did the fluctuations in any one share exceed half a point. One feature of note, however, was the sale of 1937 Victory Loans at par.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9. Canadian Press. Trading on the local market during the first half hour this morning was very uninteresting, only four of the principal issues appearing.

Abitibi sold at 32 1-2, its closing quotation, while Brompton was unchanged at 26. Detroit United Ry. was down half a point at 63 1-2, and National Breweries was fractionally weaker at 67 5-8.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA ASSOCIATION MET

A very interesting meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association took place last evening in the school hall with a good attendance. Mrs H. A. Yenney presided. Discussion of business matters occupied the attention of the members, and the affiliation of this Association with the Home and School Council was officially confirmed last evening. Mrs. E. N. Frederick gave a brief but interesting talk on the objects and work of the Council.

Mrs. Jas. Kendry gave an illuminating discourse on the Well Babies' Clinic in Peterboro. Her introductory remarks dealt with the almost ideal conditions obtaining in New Zealand, where sane legislation has been enacted along child welfare lines, and where infant mortality is exceptionally low as compared with the high rate in the United States. Mrs. Kendry reviewed the work of the local clinic, emphasizing the fact that it is a well babies' clinic, where information with regard to keeping their children well is dispensed to enquiring mothers, and also that it is by no means an affair of charity.

The Association decided to make a donation of $25 towards the work of the Clinic.

Refreshments were served, and a pleasing musical programme rendered, with an instrumental solo by Miss Thelma Freeman, readings by Mrs. A. Nicholls and Max Parnall, a vocal solo by Mrs. Alex. Gibson, and instrumental selections by Mrs. Massey-Cooke, while Miss E. Clinkscale accompanied the vocal solos.

Several new members were received into the Association last evening. At the close of the entertainment, Mr. J. W. Frazer proposed a vote of thanks to Mrs Kendry and spoke in strong approbation of the relief work undertaken by the society.

McWilliams, formerly of Peterboro. Brother H. McWha proposed the toast to the A.O.F. High Chief Ranger H. C. Wilson responding. Brotherson and responded to by Brother Dr. W. D. Scott. Dr. G. Raymore Scott responded to the toast to the medical profession proposed by Brother H. Day.

During the evening enjoyable vocal solos were given by Brother R. Hendry and violin selections by Brother H. Farr, Alec. Seger playing the piano accompaniment. At a late hour the happy function concluded with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Terribly wearing on the system is the cough that comes at night and prevents sleep.

The constant coughing keeps the lungs and bronchial tubes in such an irritated and inflamed condition that they get no chance to heal.

You will find in

CANADIAN-BUILT BIRMINGHAM CARS FOR SPRING TRADE.

Such Was Optimistic Statement By Mr. Byron Lederer to the Press To-Day.

That Birmingham Motors hope to have their Canadian-built cars running on Canadian roads next spring was the optimistic statement made to the press by Mr. Byron Lederer to-day. And to this end, Mr. C. E. Weaver, the company's general factory manager and engineer, while in Peterborough over the week-end, made a thorough survey of the Henry Hope building, leased by Birmingham Motors, and carried back with him to the Falconer factory blue prints and data from which to lay out the floor area of the Peterborough building for car assembling. Engineer Weaver claims the Henry Hope building will afford scope for turning out 25 cars a day, and under pressure, even a maximum of 35 machines.

After investigating foundries and factories in Oshawa, Toronto and Hamilton, with a view to locating sources of parts supplies Mr. Weaver has expressed satisfaction that the larger percentage of component parts which enter into the Birmingham car construction can be procured in this country for assembling in the Peterborough factory. This policy, he declares, will facilitate early marketing of the cars in Canada, and at a price approximately the same as in the United States. Estimates for these parts are now being secured in preparation for the company's purchasing agents. Mr. Lederer advises that with timely delivery of such supplies, assembling of his company's autos in this city's factory will begin on January first next, and cars ready for the spring trade.

Moving pictures of the Birmingham Motors American factory, the process of car construction and of the recent demonstration in Falconer, will be shown here at an early date.

Will cause you to think about the importance of proper circulation of nerve energy. You can see how minutely the nerves are distributed, and can realize the damaging effect of pressure on a nerve trunk where it emits from the spinal column. Pressure hinders the circulation of nerve energy and the tissues supplied by that impinged nerve simply starve for lack of this life-giving force.

A LITTLE WISDOM

Too much cannot be written or said about the health science of CHIROPRACTIC, which seems, in the face of results, to be indispensable to afflicted persons of all ages. As the spine is the barometer of health, and the prevention of disease the great work of the present and the future, would it not be exercising a little wisdom for you to at least investigate this science which is doing so much for suffering humanity? When you have investigated with a receptive mind unhindered by prejudice, you will wish that you had investigated long ago.

IF YOUR HEALTH IS BELOW NORMAL YOU WILL UNDOUBTEDLY BE BENEFITED BY TAKING CHIROPRACTIC SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS.

STORM BEFORE CONTRACT FOR SNOW AWARDED

PETERBORO' WALKED TO WORK THIS MORNING IN SNOW REACHING TO ITS BOOT-TOPS BECAUSE OF DELAY.

SLEIGHS OUT TODAY

Sleigh bells were tingling merrily to-day, but it looks as if the triumph of the runners will be short-lived. One or two venturesome outfits were negotiating the snow-filled streets last night, but they did not get along with the ease of to-day. This morning the hard-packed snow on the pavements made the going as good as in February. While the coal men were the first to adopt runners, there were also quite a few express sleighs out.

Farmers are rejoicing over the snow, because of the liquid refreshment it contains for the ground. It was immaterial to them whether it rained or snowed, so long as moisture arrived in some form. With the ground soaked from melted snow, ploughing will be easier and the wells, which it is said are dry in many places in the country, will be filled up. Some farmers have had to draw water from their more fortunate neighbours' wells or from the river or lake for a couple of weeks, and if the heavy snowfall had not arrived one farmer told The Examiner to-day the situation would have been serious.

If the farmers feel happy over the mantle of white, the hunters that crowd the north woods will be no less whit joyful. The dogs will be able to pick up the trail with greater ease, and it will give the desirable winter touch to the scenery.

Peterborough walked to work this morning through snow up to the boot tops—those who were out first, of course, getting the full benefit of it. In a frolicsome way, the snow arrived just before the Board of Works let the snow ploughing tenders. Had it come a day later the streets would have presented a different appearance to-day, for the Board of Works awards the contract for the removal of snow at 5 p.m. to-day.

LOCAL ENGINEERS WILL MEET THIS EVENING.

General Invitation to Hear Address By Distinguished Visitor.

A meeting of the local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada will be held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce this (Thursday) evening, Nov. 10th, at eight o'clock.

An address will be delivered by Mr. A. G. Dalzell, M.E.I.C., of Toronto, consultant for the Vitrified Clay Pipe Publicity Bureau, on "Some Experiences of an Engineer-Contractor in the Construction of 140 Miles of Sewers in Vancouver, B.C." This will be illustrated by lantern slides.

The subject should be of great interest, not only to the engineers, but to all citizens. Mr. Dalzell is thoroughly conversant with this work, and may be relied upon to discourse his subject in an able manner. A cordial invitation is extended to all to hear this address. Mr. Dalzell was formerly City Engineer of Vancouver.

Don't fail to see Cliff Carruthers in the Girl in Red, Friday and Saturday.

The Allen Theatre has booked "A Virgin Paradise," the Fox special which created a sensation in New York during its run at a Broadway theatre, beginning next Monday. It is a story of the jungle and of civilized hypocrisy.

THEATRES

CAPITOL—Big vaudeville night. "The Wrens," a comedy worth while; also high class pictures.

GRAND—To-night, only performance of "Hullo, Canada," a stupendous attraction.

ALLEN—Goldwyn presents Conway Tearle in "After Midnight," an exciting adventure story of Life.

REGENT—"The Big Adventure," "The Fighting Actor," "Movie Struck," a high class comedy.

17 Apply to City for Work; To Make Plan to Aid Jobless

Before 11 a.m. to-day 17 men had registered at the City Engineer's office for work. They were told that the sewer work would not start for a week or so, but all their names were taken in the order they applied. Of the 17, four were house-owners. The average number of laborers employed by the city is about 30, and the wages average about $20 a week. House-owners and married men will be given the preference. It is likely that the Board of Works, when it meets at 5 p.m. to-day, will decide on the plan to be followed in employing the men.

REEVE EASSON OF KEENE IS A PROGRESSIVE

REMOVES ALL DOUBTS AS TO WHERE HE STANDS IN FEDERAL ELECTION CAMPAIGN — MISS M'CALLUM, OF WINNIPEG, ADDRESSES FARMERS.

MAKES FUN OF MEIGHEN

KEENE, Nov. 10. — A western speaker, Miss Mary McCallum, of Winnipeg, the assistant-secretary of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, was the principal speaker at a well-attended meeting held in the town hall at Keene, Wednesday evening, in the interests of Mr. G. A. Brethen, the Progressive candidate in East Peterborough. In spite of the snow and the fact that the hour of the meeting had been changed, the attendance was representative one and included a number of ladies.

The chairman of the evening was Reeve Easson of Keene, whose presence on the platform as well as his address settled all doubts as to where he stands in the present campaign. It has been currently reported that Mr. Easson was supporting the Liberal candidate. He made it very clear that this is not the case, and that he desires to have it known that he is supporting the Progressive cause, that he believes the Progres- He claimed that he had not changed if elected to power, and that he is doubtful if the Liberals will do so. He claiemd that he had not changed his policy as far as the tariff is concerned but that many Liberals had.

Ridiculed Meighen.

Miss McCallum poked a little fun at Hon. Mr. Meighen for claiming credit for having given women the vote. She said at one time she was the secretary of a Woman's Suffrage Organization, and she knew just how much the Hon. Mr. Meighen had had to do with that question. Women were given the vote by the Union government and then only those women who it was thought would support that government.

She said that everywhere she went she found an effort being made to discredit Hon. Mr. Crerar on the ground of his salary received from the Farmers' organization. She pointed out that Mr. Crerar is the president of a Farmers' Company of 36,000 shareholders, that this company holds an annual meeting at which he comes up for re-election each year, that the shareholders have the matter of his salary in their own hands, that it is a question between him and them, and that if they are satisfied, the country at large cannot have much ground for complaint.

Sowing Disunion.

Although Hon. Mr. Meighen claims to stand for the unity of the country, she said he was sowing disunion by questioning the loyalty of Western Canada, and by the uncalled attacks that are being made on Mr. H. W. Wood, of Alberta. Mr. Wood has lived in Canada for upwards of 20 years. He has been a naturalized Canadian subject for over 10 years. He has four sons in Alberta, all settled on farms and three of them married. He was offered a cabinet position during the war by Premier Borden but declined it. He was made a member of the Canadian Wheat Board during the war, when the Union government recognized his ability and used it to help the country in the time of war. He was recently unanimously offered the Premiership of Alberta, but declined it, and he absolutely refused to assist the Premier of Alberta in the selection of his cabinet. Miss McCallum declared that in the west where Mr. Wood is known, such attacks are not heard. They are made here in the east in the hope that people who do not know the man may be misled

BRITISH HOUSE IS PROROGATED

SEVERAL MEMBERS, VIEWING IRISH SITUATION WITH ALARM, PROPOSE ANOTHER ADJOURNMENT.

OBJECTION OVER-RULED

LONDON, Nov. 10. — (Canadian Press). — Parliament will be prorogated to-day. Several members, viewing with apprehension the uncertain state of Irish affairs, last night urged the Government to allow another adjournment instead of the definite closing which prorogation implies. Austen Chamberlain, however, stated that nothing stood in the way of prorogation, and reminded his inquirers that the Premier had promised nothing would be finally settled with regard to Ireland without calling the House together.

"NO SURRENDER" SAYS CRAIG.

LONDON, November 10. Canadian Press.—In a statement issued this morning following a meeting of the Ulster Cabinet, it was stated that Sir James Craig wishes it to be clearly understood, "There can be no surrender of Ulster's rights."

HOUSEWIVES WILL BE SPECIALLY INTERESTED IN EXHIBIT TRAIN

HERE TO-MORROW

In order that the people of Canada may be informed of the extent of their own road, the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways, the great amount of equipment required to keep up a daily transcontinental service and other interesting facts about railway travel, officials have prepared a most interesting and informative souvenir booklet which will be given to every visitor at the exhibition Train.

This train which was built in Canada by Canadian labor is a veritable travelling hotel and the public are entirely welcome to go over every part of it, through the express car, colonist car, tourist car, day coach, standard sleeping car and dining car Many people have often wondered just what the difference was between the standard and tourist sleepin car other than the cost and now they can see for themselves. The ladies will be particularly interested in the compact excellently equipped kitchen in the dining car and attendants in charge will be glad to answer any questions regarding the train, its equipment, and travel in general. Train will be at G.T.R. Station and will be open for inspection from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

NEW ATTEMPT TO END NEW YORK MILK STRIKE

The Commissioner will act as mediator.

Thousands of quarts of old and watered milk were confiscated yesterday by milk inspectors, and two men were arrested in the act of adding water to milk cans.

ROTARY CLUB HEAR ADDRESS BY F.D. KERR

CHATTY, PERSONAL TALK ON LAW, LEGAL LIGHTS OF WORLD AND GREAT BRITISH MINDS.

ENLISH LAW FOUNDATION

Seemed to be a question of cause and effect. Do Rotarians take to hunting or hunting draw Rotarians? For undoubtedly the many men who had gone out into the new snow-encumbered forest in pursuit of deer and other things incidental to a hunter's camp made a difference in the weekly attendance at Rotary luncheon. But that comes only once a year and may be excused. In fact those participating will take a week off whether excused or not. Still most of the stalwarts were there.

A couple of visitors were introduced and greeted. They came from across the line, and enjoyed Canadian associations and environment. The Rotary Club luncheon is a good place to bring a friend. He leaves with an impression of heartiness that is infectious. That is one of the attributes of Rotary.

Mr. F. D. Kerr had consented to address the members, and his chatty, personal, reminiscent relation of lawyers he had met, seen, listened to and gained impressions of, was delightful to hear. It is regrettable that even all too brief it may not be reported at length as it deserves. As a measure of reparation it might be suggested that various societies and gatherings who are now planning for the winter evenings should get after Mr. Kerr, who will do anything at all to oblige, so long as the enquirer be sincere, and pursuade the able sepaker to take on an evening or two. In listening, one gains impressions of lawyers, great lawyers and statesmen that in a general way are not written in the books. Any audience will be more than repaid in listening to an hour from Mr. Kerr at any time, but particularly when speaking to the above subbject.

Greatest Minds.

His reference to distinguished members of the English Bar, many of whom include the greatest minds in England and the men who are grappling with international problems, was illuminative. Also reference to the outstanding members of the American Bar, several of whom had been met and heard at conventions. Speaking of Ex-President William Taft, now the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, he paid acknowledgment to his genial personal qualities, strong common sense and skill as a jurist. A large man, physically and mentally. Worthy of the best traditions of the American Bar. Other prominent members of the profession were referred to, fellow countrymen of the Ex-President.

Foundation of Law.

At Winnipeg were met several jurists of Imperial renown. Mr. Kerr related his impressions, dwelling on Sir James Aikens, who organized the Canadian Bar Association and brought together men who were more than lawyers—citizens, legislators and statesmen. He referred to the personalities of distinguished French and Japanese lawyers he had met and listened to, and touched on the national characteristics and thought as expounded by each. In a brief reference to the foundation of English law ,on which the American and Canadian law is largely founded, he maintained that the British law, as was the constitution, was founded on precedent. On the other hand, French law was based on the Code Napoleon, and which with some exceptions is the law of the Province of Quebec. The French law did not adhere to precedent, but, in a way of speaking, tried to dispose of each case as presented on its individual merits and circumstances. But in the end both tried to attain that desirable thing, justice.

Outstanding Men.

A strong personality was Lord Cave, of the Privy Council, the man who investigated the German atrocities in Northern France and Belgium. Very quiet, rather reserved, and his statement of what was disclosed was in the highest degree interesting.

The gathering at Ottawa this year, brought together men outstanding in world affairs. Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to Washington, a man remarkable in his profession and well known for his connection with McGill College, Montreal. Not a lawyer, but of phen-

THE ANGLICAN YOUNG PEOPLE TO MEET HERE

BETWEEN 250 AND 300 DELEGATES EXPECTED TO ATTEND DOMINION CONFERENCE HERE NEXT WEEK.

TO LAST THREE DAYS

The Dominion Conference of the Anglican Young People's Association to be held here on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week, will bring together representatives of the society from all parts of Canada. Between 250 and 300 delegates are expected.

The conference opens at 3 p.m. on Tuesday in St. John's Parish Hall, and that evening will be mainly occupied with addresses of welcome and social intercourse. On Wednesday morning, at 8 o'clock, there will be corporate celebration of Holy Communion at St. John's Church, with the opening session of the general conference at 10 a.m. Business reports, discussion arising from these, and inspirational reports from the various branches will occupy the morning, with a luncheon at noon in St. John's Parish Hall, in which the delegates will be the guests of the Peterborough District A.Y.P.A.

Meetings after Wednesday noon take place in All Saints' Parish Hall, where the afternoon will be devoted to addresses on "How to Plan and Carry Out a Month's Programme," "The Open Door to Service," "How to Make a Membership Campaign Successful," and "How to Interest Young Men in the A. Y. P. A."

A sight-seeing tour of the city has been planned for this afternoon, when the delegates will be the guests of the Peterborough District A. Y. P. A., for an automobile tour of the city.

At 7 o'clock on Wednesday, an inspirational dinner will be given at All Saints' Parish Hall, when addresses will be given by Rev. Walter Cox, of Toronto, on "The A. Y. P. A. from the Rector's Point of View," by Mr. W. R. Sproule, vice-president of Toronto District A. Y. P. A. Local Council, and by Mr. E. G. Brown, secretary of Peterborough district local council.

On Thursday, the quiet hour at 9 o'clock will be conducted by the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Ontario, followed by a business session, reports of committees and election of officers. Addresses of interest will also be rendered at this session, and lunch at noon will be served at All Saints Parish House, when the delegates will be the guests of the Peterboro district branches.

Installation of new officers, unfinished business and addresses on "A.Y.P.A. Organized Bible Classes" and "Practical Suggestions from the Conference for Your Report," will end the conference, which closes at 3 o'clock on Thursday.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday's snow storm was a little early for this section, but it will likely disappear in a few days, to the regret of the children, at least, who have already resurrected their handsleighs from the attic and elsewhere. The first heavy snowstorms last year was on the 17th November, and was much heavier than the late little flurry. Ten inches of heavy wet snow fell that time. A cold wave is passing over the far north just now. At White River (that notorious cold spot north of Lake Superior) it was down to 14 below zero the day before yesterday, and 4 below yesterday. It has turned much milder once more in the Prairie Provinces..—W.P.

MAPLE LEAVES ON BIER OF UNKNOWN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press). — Great and small folk to-day moved in an endless procession through the rotunda of the Capitol to pay tribute to the "unknown" lying in state there as only martyred Presidents have lain. Hour by hour the heap of flowers on the casket grew mountain high and spread about the Chamber. There were bluebells of France, roses of England, maple leaves of Canada and the most beautiful blooms of South Africa, nine thousand miles away.

From the British Embassy there was arranged a parade, headed by Hon. A. J. Balfour, who was accompanied by Sir Robert Borden. A score of motor trucks carried the flowers from many nations.

On the wreath from Canada were the words, "But that which put the glory of grace into all that he did was that he did it of pure love to his country."

CATTLE MARKET SHOWS LOT OF THIN STOCK

PRICES IN TORONTO FOR CANNERS WEAKENED YESTERDAY AND DROPPED TO 31.75 PER CWT

Cattle sales and shipments by U.F.O. and independent dealers have been considerably heavier than usual of late, due to the decision of farmers to unload the bulk of their stock instead of feeding them all winter. Dairy cattle, it is understood, are being kept but a lot of the other stock is being sacrificed. Some of the stuff that is being marketed is extremely poor and in the Toronto yards yesterday canners dropped as low as $1.75 per cwt. Shippers state that some farmers turning out this poor stock imagine that they will get the price for the better grades, and also that they have done little on their own part to improve the stock they are now getting rid of.

RICHEST GIRL ASKS WEE BIT FOR SCHOOL

"King of Sahara's" Daughter Bucks $50,000,000 Estate.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Heiress to a fortune estimated at $50,000,000 and yet without sufficient means for her education and support, Jacqueline Lebaudy has applied to surrogate Howell in Nassau County for $40,000 of her father's estate.

The 16-year-old daughter of Jacques Lebaudy, self-styled "Emperor of the Sahara," who was slain in January, 1919, by his wife in their home at Westbury, L. I., is one of the richest girls in the world.

But despite the vast fortune that rightly belongs to her, Jacqueline has been unable to enjoy the comforts and luxuries to which a girl of her wealth would be entitled. Litigation extending from the courts of Nassau County to France, Chile, Bolivia, England and South Africa has prevented the collection of any of the estate.

PREMIER DRURY HAS SCHEME TO FINANCE ROADS

LEGISLATION PLANNED TO CAPITALIZE REVENUE FROM AUTOMOBILE LICENSES FOR NEXT 20 YEARS.

$50,000,000 AT LEAST

PICTON, November 10. — Premier Drury speaking here yesterday with Hon. T. A. Crerar, the leader of the Progessive party, announced that at the next session of the Legislature, legislation would be introduced whereby the permanent road construction would be financed from the revenue derived from motor licenses.

It is proposed to capitalize the revenue of the motor licenses for the next 20 years. With 200,000 motor cars in the Province, with even the minimum license fee of $13, it will be seen that the revenue for even one year is tremendous. Without any increase in the number of cars the capital for 20 years would be more than 50 million dollars. It is the intention of the government, it is understood, to make an estimate on this year's revenue.

With such a plan, the Premier said, a network of highways would be turned over to the province at the end of 20 years without cosing he municipaliies through which they ran one cent, nor would they be charged against capital account of the Province. The Premier said the roads were being built for posterity, and must be good. The foundations of the present road which the government was building, were good for many years. The new scheme will take the building of the main highways out of the hands of the municipalities and will be financed by practically a separate unit from the general Treasury of the Province.

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

NEWS EVENTS FROM APSLEY

LARGER NUMBER OF MEN LEAVE FOR THE HUNT—CHASING A WOLF—DOWN TO ZERO.

APSLEY, Nov. 10.—Guy Fawkes Day was commemorated by the local Orange Lodge on Saturday, by the holding of a Basket Social and entertainment in the Orange Hall, with the object of raising funds for the reseating of the hall. The Rev. W. Hall gave a talk on Canada illustrated with lantern views and a pleasant evening was spent. The audience was not as large as was expected but the baskets brought fairly good prices, and a sum of about $30 was realized.

Thanksgiving Day was appropriately observed by a special service in the evening at St George's Church.

Armistice Day will be observed by the holding of a memorial service in St. George's Church at 3 o'clock in the afternoon to which the relatives of the men, whose names are inscribed on the war monument are specially invited

The Hunters

The hunting season is in full swing, a larger number of hunters being in this vicinity than in previous years, and according to reports received to date the deer are very scarce, very few having been killed the first day. The scarcity of deer and the fact of the opening day falling on Saturday may account for the open violation of section 12 of the Game Laws around Apsley.

A Hunting Story.

Apropos of Sunday hunting the following incident is worth erelating Last Sunday a minister who had been conducting morning service in a church not a hundred miles from Apsley took a little used trail through the backwoods as a short cut to another church where he was due to preach in the afternoon, met one of his parishioners with a rifle under his arm. The latter had no time to evade the meeting so he advanced in as nonchalant a manner as he could assume. "Ah Jock", said the minister "caught in the act. I don't think much of man who would neglect his church to go hunting on the Sabbath." "Wee noo" replied Jock. "I'm no thinking veera much either of the meenister who would drive along the trail on the Sabbath during the hunting season." The "meenister" evidently somewhat of a sport himself and therefore having a fellow feeling for the culprit said as he drove on "It's all right Jock, I generaly drive along here with my eyes shut, so of course see nothing." And Jock much relieved went on his way rejoicing.

Chased a Wolf

Mrs. John Tucker exhibited a rare amount of nerve the other evening in endeavouring to "shoo" off a huge wolf that was attacking a calf in the barnyard just about dusk. Finding her "shooing" disregarded she who came armed with rifles in a few minutes, and fired at the wolf but without killing him. The calf was so badly lacerated it had to be killed.

DRAYTON DEFENDS ACCEPTING PROMISSORY NOTES FOR TAXES FROM RIORDON PAPER COMPANY

STATEMENT SAYS GOVERNMENT HAD TO CHOOSE BETWEEN SHERIFF'S SALE AND NURSING RIORDON ACCOUNT.

AVERS SHERIFF'S SALE WOULD CAUSE HARDSHIP

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.— (By Canadian Press.)—In a memorandum issued last night replying to the statement made by H. J. Ellard, Progressive candidate in Wright Constituency, that the government had accepted notes from the Riordan Lumber Company in lieu of some $800,000 owing for excess profit taxes, Sir Henry Drayton, minister of finance, declares that in dealing with the problem the question for determination "was a sheriff's sale, on the one hand, or nursing the account, on the other, so that the business of the company might be carried on." The action of the government was the only possible one, he asserts, in view of the fact that a sheriff's sale would have resulted in severe hardship to many citizens doing business with the company and to the company's employees. Sir Henry emphasized that the government has not waived the claim in any way, but that the claim for taxes has priority over the claims of pulp producers, jobbers and bankers and carries interest at the rate of seven per cent. An interesting point brought out by Sir Henry is that the principle is exactly the same as that applied to the farmers of the northwest who through crop failure are unable to meet their obligations.

EDMONTON, Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press)—Changes in the Alberta laws relating to mortgages, in order that this province may be made more attractive as a field of investment, were asked for by a delegation of mortgage and loan companies' managers in conference with Premier Greenfield yesterday. Reinstatement of the personal covenant simplifying of processes and the abolition of farm liens taking precedence over mortgages were among the amendments desired.

ELECTION NEWS

MEIGHEN DENIES THAT HE MISREPRESENTS LIBERALS.

FARNHAM, Que., November 10 (Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). — Three meetings were necessary to take care of Missisquoi County voters who gathered here yesterday to listen to a discussion of political issues by Premier Meighen, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, the Hon. Rodolphe Monty, and F. X. Giroux, Conservative candidate in the riding, and others.

Mr. Meighen said in opening that his voice had been somewhat strained by the recent meetings. He would therefore make his remarks brief. 'There will come a time, and it won't be long, before those who have somersaulted twice on this mercantile marine will do so once more, and will be trying to convince people that they never approved the shipbuilding policy," he said. He insisted that the port of Montreal would be terribly congested were it not for the Government vessels.

"We would have paid off the debt of this country if it had not been for war expenditures," declared the Premier in dealing with the assertion that Canada's financial condition was grave. He compared financial conditions here with those of the other Empire Dominions which participated in the war, to the great advantage of Canada. He also asserted that Canada has the least unemployment of any country in the world in proportion to her population. "In the city of New York alone they have two or three times the unemployment that we have in Canada," asserted the Premier.

LIBERAL OPPONENTS NUMEROUS IN QUEBEC

MONTREAL, Que., Nov 10— (Canadian Press)—In practically every constituency in the province of Quebec, candidates to oppose the Liberal party have been selected, and are in active campaign, said Arthur Lalonde, organizer of the National Liberal and Conservative Party to-day. "In many cases they are running under our ticket, but in others they have preferred to retain their independence on minor points, such as the conscription issue. The main point, however, is that they are supporting the Meighen government on financial and tariff issues, in fact they are with the government on all really important issues of the day."

SHERBROOKE, Nov. 10—(Canadian Press).—"Don't bother about the window, we don't care what they knock down. They certainly will not knock us down." These words from Premier Meighen accompanied by a smile, followed the crash of broken glass and the thud of a stone which struck the canopy over the platform from which he spoke here last night. On the platform were Mrs. Meighen, Mrs. Scott of Montreal, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Hon. Rudolphe Monty, and Hon. Dr. Normand.

The premier had been speaking for some time when the incident occurred. He had dealt with the tariff policy of the government and the policies proposed by the Opposition.

BAILIEBORO

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 10. — The annual meeting of the Cavan and South Monaghan branch of the Bible Society was held on Tuesday night in the Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Paterson presiding over a good attendance. New office bearers were elected and the work organized for another year. Reports showed that ninety-two dollars had been sent to Toronto last year. Business being despatched, a very interesting lecture was delivered by the Rev. Jesse Gibson, entitled, "A Trip Across Africa."

A splendid lantern and pictures held the attention even of the young. The lecturer succeeded in impressing the audience with the bigness of Africa and the greatness of its problem, "Was Christ or Mohammed to rule." Missions had made great progress within the last thirty years, opening up the country at the same time to the trader and merchant. elling references were made to the King's interest in the Bible Society. In 1917 the directors had decided to cut down the work for lack of funds. King George interposed and begged them to go on, giving himself one of the largest donations ever received by the Society. The Bible Society is facing a big deficit now, and the speaker pleaded for sacrificial giving.

The thanks of the meeting were genuine for one of the most profitable addresses ever given in these parts on the great missionary work of the Bible Society.

LLOYD GEORGE IS OPTIMISTIC REGARDING FUTURE; BLUE SKY BEGINNING TO EMERGE, HE SAYS

PREMIER DECLARES WASHINGTON CONFERENCE IS LIKE RAINBOW IN SKY AND HE SEES HOPE FOR IRISH PEACE.

THINKS TRADE REVIVAL IS NOW NEAR AT HAND

LONDON, November 10 (Canadian Press). — The Lord Mayor's banquet last evening assumed more than national importance when the Prime Minister, replying to the Lord Mayor's toast to the Cabinet Ministers, followed the custom of such gatherings at the historic Guildhall, of speaking his mind regarding foreign affairs.

The tradition has been that the Prime Minister must touch only on foreign politics in his annual Guildhall speech, but in response to the Lord Mayor's suggestion that the guests anxiously awaited news of the Irish conference, Mr. Lloyd-George quickly expanded the statement made earlier in his speech, that "the Washington conference is like a rainbow in the sky," and then proceeded to the question of Ireland.

He declared that there was a better prospect of Great Britain's proposals to Ireland being heeded today and of Ireland accepting the invitation to enter the British Commonwealth as an equal than for years, but that the conference was still in a critical stage. Beyond this he carefully refrained from divulging the results or the possibilities of the conference which are now being held with the Irish representatives.

In his opening remarks the Prime Minister alluded to the economic troubles afflicting the world, such as followed the Napoleonic Wars. He expressed the conviction that the force of the cyclone was already spent, and followed with a recital of numerous symptoms indicating that a revival was coming, particularly the fact that 'in every land the sickness that seemed to overcome labour is passing away."

"The world is settling down to work," said Mr. Lloyd-George, "and it is work alone that will fill the depleted tills which will enable purchasers to come to the markets. The blue sky is beginning to emerge; the Washington conference, summoned by President Harding, is like a rainbow in the sky. For, without the assurance of peace, restoration of business is impossible.

"This conference comes none too soon. So far, the war has not had the effect which every sane man anticipated from it in arresting the growths of armaments.

"Man is the most unteachable of all animals. If you inflict punishment upon any other animal he quickly learns the lesson. But, take the late war; it was the most terribly destructive in the history of the world. For that devastaion competition in arms is largely responsible. That lesson was scourged deep into the flesh of the world, and yet no sooner are we out of it than the nations spend their substance in devising and amassing fresh engines for war; fresh subjects spring up everywhere to justify war. You might imagine that the one purpose

Ministers Change Places For a Day With Laboringmen

BOSTON, November 10 (Canadian Press). — Seven clergymen yesterday exchanged the ministerial frock for labourers' overalls, and went to work in the building trades. It was a one-day job for them, the result of an invitation by the Central Labour Union in return for the clergymen's courtesy in asking labour leaders recently to speak from their pulpits.

In a pelting rain, Rev. W. Harry Freda drove a cement waggon. Rev. Newton C. Fetter and Rev. C. A. Young worked as labourers on the new municipal Latin school. Rev. Frank Kingdon and Rev. F. D. Parker plied brooms on a Winter Street building, and Rev. C. S. Stephenson and Rev. A. Smith did odd jobs on other buildings under construction in the business district.

BRITAIN, POPE LEND SUPPORT TO ARMS MEET

LLOYD GEORGE REGRETS ABSENCE BUT SENDS CHEERING ASSURANCES—POPE MAY OFFICIALLY ENDORSE PARLEYS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—While the delegations of the powers were quietly at work perfecting their plans for the armament conference, cheering assurances of support for the purposes of the negotiations reached Washington from two important quarters of the Old World yesterday.

Mr. Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, in a message expressing regret that he could not attend the opening session on Saturday, declared the heart of Britain was "deeply set upon the success of the conference," and promised the diligent efforts of the United Kingdom towards a solution of the problem of armaments.

At the same time it became known through unofficial channels that Pope Benedict had given his approval to the purposes set forth for the conference and might pronounce the official sanction of the Holy See at the Consistory of November 21. He has prepared to remain in close contact with the negotiations as they develop. Although the Pope has no representative at the conference, Mgr. Bonzano, Apostolic Delegate in Washington, will follow the proceedings and report them to the Vatican. The attitude of the Holy See is considered, especially by those of the Catholic faith, as extremely important, since it secures to the conference the support of what is termed by many "the greatest moral and spiritual power in the world."

ONE MORE CHANCE.

Local citizens qualified to vote in the coming Dominion election whose names were not on the lists used last February, and who did not appear before the registrars last week, have one more chance to ensure themselves a vote on December 6th. It is announced that the revision of the voters' lists by His Honour Judge Huycke will begin on Tuesday next, November 15th, and continue daily, except Sunday, until Monday, November 21st, with night sessions on Saturday and Monday. This revision will provide an opportunity—and the final one—for city voters who have neglected to protect their franchise to have their names added. If after Judge Huycke has concluded his work there are still citizens whose names have been omitted it is clear that they will have nobody but themselves to blame for the fact that they will be unable to vote. If it were as indifferent to the importance of the election as many of the electors seem to be, The Examiner would doubtless not take the trouble to remind its readers of the necessity of taking care of their privilege as voters; but realizing that it is the duty of every citizen to vote, if possible, we urge upon the people the imperative necessity of attending to the matter of getting on the lists.

PROVIDING EMPLOYMENT.

With winter at hand and the unemployment situation showing no signs of improvement, the decision of the City Council to work the municipal labourers in shifts of two weeks each seems to be a wise one. Complaints are being heard that no matter what city work has been undertaken the same gang of labourers has been used, to the exclusion of the unemployed. In normal times, of course, such a policy would be commendable, for it would lead to greater efficiency and the men would be trained to their work, but with conditions as they are at present efficiency must to some extent give way to expediency. Men who have been steadily in the municipal employ may feel aggrieved at being forced to share up the plums with other citizens who have known weeks of unemployment and no pay envelopes, but their complaints will fall on deaf ears so far as the unemployed are concerned. In the general interest it would seem much better to provide work for 80 men, working two weeks each month, than to give 40 men steady employment. Municipal work carried out with the intention of relieving the distress caused by industrial depression must be rationed if it is to be effective. Otherwise to undertake it when the cost of such work is at its highest would be folly.

STRANGE MIX-UPS.

The involved nature of the present political campaign, with its new groups in the field and a shifting of alignment, is illustrated by the peculiar developments that are taking place in different sections of the Dominion. Witness the situation at Colborne on Tuesday when farmer Liberals, now allied with the United Farmers, attended a Liberal convention, and although they having accepted the Progressive standard-bearer as their own should have had no voice in the proceedings, actually outvoted the Liberals who wanted a supporter of Hon. Mackenzie King placed in the field. And in Regina an even more curious mix-up has been engaging the attention of the electorate. Here the Progressive party have nominated a candidate against the Government and Liberals, and the strange part of it is that the Chairman of the meeting at which the Agrarian candidate was chosed was the Hon. Mr. Maharg, elected as a Unionist in 1917 but taken into the Saskatchewan Cabinet this year by Premier Martin. Thus we find a member of a Liberal Cabinet presiding over a convention called to nominate a Farmer candidate to oppose a Liberal chosen a short while before by a meeting endorsed by the Liberal Premier of the Province and by Hon. C. A. Dunning, also a member of the Cabinet to which Hon. Mr. Maharg owes allegiance. Under normal conditions a demand from the Premier for Mr. Maharg's resignation would have been the inevitable result of his attitude. But the conditions are far from normal.

THE WASHINGTON CONFERENCE.

The disarmament conference which opens at Washington on Saturday is perhaps the most momentous meeting that has been held on this Continent—yet Canadians as a whole are strangely cold in their interest in this historic gathering, which, it is hoped, will lift the dread of war from the shoulders of the peoples of the world. They would be more concerned in a championship prize fight than they are over a conference which may have results of inestimable value to humanity. It is not exactly scepticism that causes this indifference, although many are doubtless convinced that the Washington gathering will fall far short of its object; it seems to be simply an extension to the international field of that indifference and apathy towards matters of moment that exists in civic and political circles at home. The blame cannot be laid upon the newspapers. Their news columns are full of information about the conference and the personnel of the various delegations; their editorial pages have sought to interpret the news and indicate the importance of what is taking place. Interviews with important delegates have been "played up" on the front page, and, in short, the newspapers have treated the conference as its significance warrants. And yet our people seem scarcely awake to a realization of the fact that the whole current of the world's history may be changed by the developments of the next few weeks. The prayers of every Canadian should be offered for the successful culmination of the conference.

INSIDIOUS POISON.

(London Advertiser.)

A speaker at a recent political gathering in Western Ontario referred to the press, outside of The Farmers' Sun, as spreading "insidious poison."

Of course, there is nothing particularly new in the statement, neither is there anything particularly true. There are some speakers, though, who never let an occasion pass without trying to get the idea impressed on their audience that a newspaper is not to be relied upon—that they know the truth and will not go ahead and publish it—that their mission generally is to play favorites, and in such a way that the man on the outside of some influential body has no chance whatever of getting a hearing or having justice meted out to him through the columns of the press.

There is a certain amount of malice in these statements, and a great deal of positive and absolute ignorance of facts. There are very few newspapers in this country that do not aim to give the facts. It must be borne in mind that there are many times when it is very hard for papers to get all the facts, for there are many people more interested in keeping things out of a paper than there are in getting things in a paper.

The average newspaper has its hard and fast rules posted up in the reporters' rooms. It might do some of the doubters good some time to make a visit to the reportorial department of a daily paper and see the rules that are there for the guidance of the men gathering the news, and to learn something of the efforts that are made to try and make the news columns of the paper accurate and clean.

Papers receive small encouragement in this matter. Very seldom do we hear from any speaker that the press is trying to perform a service for the community. Very seldom do we hear any person state that there is a commendable effort on the part of the Canadian press to make the news columns so clean that any member of the family can read the thing from top to bottom in perfect safety.

As far as The Advertiser is concerned, all through this political campaign there has been an effort made to report without bias all political gatherings, no matter whether they are Liberal, Conservative or Progressive. Our paper has carried column after column of the speeches of Meighen and Crerar, just the same as much space has been given to the addresses of Mackenzie King and his followers. This paper is no exception, but rather representative of what is happening all over the country. It is in recognition of the fact that the first duty of a newspaper is to print the news, without color, bias or editorial interpretation.

We have made this statement because we think it only right that readers of daily papers should know the facts. As we stated before, we invite any doubter to look into these facts carefully, especially before launching any broadsides about the spreading of "insidious poison." All the press asks is that these speakers accord it the same degree of honor and candor which they claim for themselves.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There is evidently no political apathy in Kentucky, judging from the extent of the casualty list in Tuesday's election.

New York's choice of Hylan as Mayor makes the average Canadian glad he does not live in Gotham.

The optimist looked at yesterday's snow and remarked cheerfully: "Now for Indian summer." But the pessimist only saw in the fall of the beautiful snow proof that the winter is here.

It is a queer old world. Some politicians who have been angling for a Senatorship for years cannnot get one, while the Macdonells pass a seat in the upper chamber from one brother to another.

Remember at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning to observe the two-minute period of silence in memory of Canada's heroic dead. Well may we bow our heads for those two brief minutes, grateful for the sacrifice made in our behalf and breathe at the same time a prayer for those whose sons went forth so gallantly but came not back.

When you call a team nowadays a "home-brew" aggregation the phrase is liable to be misunderstood.

Wise and Otherwise

It may be better to have loved and lost than to have had to live with her.

Often it happens that at a political meeting which the party organ terms "enthuiastic" the most enthusiam is shown when the motion for adjournment is made.

When a man feels keen he is said to be "on his toes." If that is true he is not likely to feel keen while on a street car, for there he is most likely to be some other person's toes.

Among the pests we have met is the man who thinks he knows more than we do.

The days of one-cylinder engines in automobiles are past, but one-cylinder brains in politicians and public speokers still seem to be the mode.

The French custom of promiscuous kissing is looked upon askance here, but the reception which the professional seekers after the limelight give newspapers closely approaches it.

LITERARY GEMS

MUST HAVE OUR DREAMS

Prophecy is hazardous and the wise do ont indulge in it except by way of suplying beacons to light up the landscope. If they do that it isn't at all necessary that they be true. And, anyway, we like grandiose figures. We can understand them, just as children understand the magic of the pumpkin turned into the coach and six much better than they understand the mystery of the motor car. The system does release a good deal of irresponsible talk, but nobody is much harmed by it. It would be a lonesome world with nothing in it but untalkative humans and attested facts.

20,000,000 BARRELS OF PETROLEUM STORED AWAY.

MEXICO CITY, November 10 (Canadian Press). — More than 20,000,000 barrels of petroleum are stored in tanks and behind dams in Mexico, of which two-thirds is American-owned, according to recent figures given out by the Department of Industry and Commerce.

Reports from Tampico indicate that oil shipments are exceedingly heavy from that port, and that approximately 12,000,000 barrels were exported in September. Less than 5,000,000 barels were taken out during August, prior to the settlement of the controversy at Tampico between American oil producers and the Mexican Government.

PAIN

Probably of all the things that send people rushing off to the doctor's office, the most common is PAIN; pain in the back or pain in the hip; pain in the knee, ankle or foot; pain in the side or under the shoulder blade; pain in the chest or in the abdomen; pain in the back of the neck or in the shoulder and down the arms; pain that may be in any one of a hundred different places.

Sometimes there is a definite pathology back of these pains; some organic trouble or some functional derangement that can be relieved, in a measure, by old-fashioned methods. But how often these pains persist for months and even years, and nothing seems to do them any permanent good; that is, nothing that old-fashioned doctors can do.

Consult an osteopath and the chances are ten to one that by tracing back to the segment of the spine related to the area of pain, he will find some pressure or impingement upon the nerve leading to the area of pain. As soon as this pressure is removed, the tissues relaxed and normalized, the pain that has been making you utterly miserable, for maybe weeks and weeks, will be relieved.

Nerve pressure and irritation being the cause of pain, and osteopathy being a specific for nerve impingements generally, is therefore practically a specific for PAIN.

For those pains peculiar to womankind, osteopathy has become almost a panacea.

I'm So Tired

Fatigue is the result of poisons in the blood. So when the kidneys fail to purify the blood one of the first indications is unusual and persistent tired feelings and pains in the back.

Neglected kidney troubles lead to years of suffering from rheumatism or develop into such fatal ailments as Bright's disease.

The kidney action is promptly corrected by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills — the best known regulator of kidneys, liver and bowels.

Mrs. John Ireland, R.R. No. 2, King, Ont., writes:

"I was a great sufferer from severe headaches and bilious spells. I tried a number of remedies without obtaining any benefit until I was advised to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. These completely relieved me and made me feel like a new person. I am very grateful to Dr. Chase's medicines for what they have done for me, and you may use my letter for the benefit of others."

LLOYD GEORGE IS OPTIMISTIC

and glory of national organisation was human sacrifice.

"Armaments to-day are thrice as expensive in men and material as they were before the Great War; at the present rate they will soon be a hundred times as destructive and terrible to contemplate.

"Disarmament is the only road to safety for the human race. Suspicions, fears, misunderstandings, even quarrels, are as inevitable among nations as among individuals, and if a deadly weapon is ready at hand, one day they will strike. The United States conference has the future of civilisation in its charge; therefore, I earnestly pray for its success.

"Twenty-five years ago Lord Salisbury in this room expressed satisfaction which the people of this country felt at the peaceful solution which had just been reached of our last serious difference with the United States of America. Every man who is a man of British blood has been taught to regard a serious quarrel with the United States as unthinkable. That attitude of mind is in itself a guarantee of peace between the two countries.

"But this conference held under the auspices of the United States ought to carry us a stage further; it is the inculcation of a similar attitude towards and between all other peoples. If that is achieved at this assembly, the Washington conference will be the greatest event of the last nineteen hundred years."

Of the Irish negotiations, he said, in conclusion:

"I canont reveal any secrets of the conference room; that is the way to bring a conference to naught. All I can say is that there is a better prospect of our invitation to the people of Ireland to come into free partnership in the British Empire as equals being heeded to-day than at any time for years."

WAS TROUBLED WITH HER STOMACH FOR FIVE YEARS

Mrs. Samuel Ward, Millerdale, Sask., writes:—'I feel that I must write to you before another day passes I am so happy and so grateful for your splendid medicine, Burdock Blood Bitters, for after an illness of five years I am better.

I had stomach trouble so bad, I could not bear the smell or taste of food of any kind, and got so thin and weak I could not work. I was in pain, but felt so ill, at times, I thought I would die, in fact, all my friends were sure I could not live many weeks.

This time last year I saw where a man was relieved of stomach trouble by Burdock Blood Bitters, so my husband got me two bottles, but I had no faith in it after all the different medicines I had taken, however he insisted, and after the first two days I must say I began to feel better, and after the first bottle I felt so much better I went out every day, but I soon got so I could walk and eat and have got quite stout.

I am nearly seventy years of age and I feel better than I have for years, and can now do all my housework.

You may make use of this letter if you wish, as it may be the means of making others as well and as happy as I am."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir—Allow me to draw the attention of some of your readers to the fact that Monday's meeting at the Armouries was a citizens' gathering, not a political occasion, and every speaker spoke from the standpoint of a citizen. But there seemed to arise an outburst of enthusiam at the back of the hall after one of the speakers, which seemed to have a political complexion. Whether this was organized for that purpose or not, I am not prepared to say; but surely Judge Huckye, whose kindred blood is on Flanders field, or Capt. Rollins, who gave up his position in this city and went overseas for the good of his country, the boys who went with him, and all other speakers were entitled to just as much applause. Then their addresses were just as eloquent and to the point: "Never fail the man who did not fail us in the dark days of the war." Thanking you, I remain, yours,

W. H. MERRILL.

STREET MARKETS OPEN IN RUSSIAN CITIES

MOSCOW, Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press)—In cities the size of Petrograd and Moscow scores of street markets have lately been opened. Food is the drawing card People who haven't money to buy white bread go to the markets to look at the large tempting loaves, and they generally take something with them to sell or barter. They wander from market to market. It is the best way to meet one's friends and hear the news.

The wide streets and boulevards of Russian cities, and the great circles and squares afford ample space for markets which, however, cannot be confined to the market spaces of imperial days because of the lack of shops and the universal necessity for barter and sale.

CROP REPORT

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

The root crops are practically all in, and are giving fair satisfaction with the exception of turnips, which are affected with rot in many parts of the Province.

Potatoes are bringing from $1.75 to $2.00 a bag. Huron says that while some farmers have good yields others did not get their seed.

Halton reports apple sales at from $5 to $6 a barrel for No. 1 to $4 for No. 2.

Hay is selling around $20 a ton in Western Ontario, and from $30 to $35 a ton in some of the eastern and northern districts.

Grain is moving rather slowly outward, but some western oats are being brought in at 65c a bushel.

Prescott and Russell says: "Farmers are actively organizing themselves to have their clover hulled in co-operation. We have so far from 6 to 700 acres of clover which will be threshed by one outfit at $3 per 10 lbs. of clean seeds."

Norfolk observes that a good deal of nursery stock is being purchased for spring planting, but farmers think prices are too high.

While some are through with their fall plowing, fully 20 per cent. of the work yet remains to be done. The land is excellent in condition for plowing.

Many farmers in Lennox and Addington have plowed and disced their corn fields for the purpose of destroying the ear worm.

Fall wheat has gone ahead so rapidly in some parts of Manitoulin that several farmers have been pasturing the fields in order to keep the growth in check.

Farm help has been more plentiful this season than for many seasons, and wages for winter work are lower than for years.

Manitoulin says that five carloads of cattle and three of sheep were shipped from the island recently, most of them in good condition.

Halton is of opinion that the marketing of livestock is fairly heavy in spite of the decline in prices.

Elgin says that some pure-bred cattle are selling at but little above beef prices.

At a recent sale of good grade Holstein cows in Waterloo County, prices ranged at from $75 to $100.

Glengarry states that farmers are selling all surplus livestock and the poorer milking cows, and that fair milkers are going at $35.

Peterborough reports that a carload of mixed cattle sold for from $3.35 to $3.50 a cwt. during the past week, and adds: "The livestock situation is very bad, as farmers are losing money on practically all the cattle they ship out. At auction sales which have been held things are going very cheap. At one sale good calves sold for $5 apiece. Mill feeds, such as bran and shorts, however, are away down in price, about pre-war levels, and this may lead some farmers to change to the dairy business. There is quite a scarcity of water in the wells and a great deal more rain is required to help out the farmer for the winter to water his stock."

South Simcoe says: "A number of car loads of cattle have been shipped from the county during the past week, the bulk of these are the light stocker class, along which a few cows of the cutter type. The hog shipment has been an average one. The bulk of the good lamb have been shipped. There has been a heavy run of poultry on the various local markets toward the end of the week, previous to Thanksgiving. The supply of dressed poultry was much heavier than the local demand, resulting in sales at a much lower figure than could have been obtained had shipments been made to the larger towns. Dressed geese made a ready sale at 18c."

Bruce reports that pure-bred cattle sold at a sale at Paisley on Nov. 1st in many cases for beef prices. The lowest priced animal was $50, while the highest priced one sold for $1--. Several of these animals were of top Scotch breeding.

PRESIDENT ATTENDS BANQUET OF WAITERS

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 10.—(Associated Press).—Newspapers here cite as evidence of President Obregon's democracy his recent attendance at the annual dinner of the local waiters' union at which he made an extended address. Several members of the President's Cabinet also attended.

RICHARD HALL & SON LTD

CANADA STEAMSHIP LINES EXPANSION KEEPS PACE WITH TRANSPORTATION DEVELOPMENTS OF ENTIRE COUNTRY

Steady Growth of Canada's Largest Transportation Company From River Line to Complete Unit of Transportation From Head of Canadian Lakes to British and European Markets—Company's Financing Has to Grow With Addition of New Services.

It was only a few years ago that the centenary of steam navigation on the St. Lawrence was observed. Since the first crude craft was propelled up the river current by steam power there have been a series of wonderful developments which rank prominently in the industrial and economic annals of the Dominion.

The various stages of development of river craft as passenger and cargo carriers stand out distinctively to those who have followed the history of Canadian navigation. As a correlative development the industrial development of the territory served can be definitely traced.

As the country grows and its commerce expands the transportation facilities must of necessity keep pace. The tremendous value of our chief waterway as it stands today, and without which Canada's industrial history would have been dwarfed, suggests what the possession of the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes will mean a few decades hence.

Growing Up With the Dominion.

At the same time the development of traffic facilities must take place at a tremendous rate to keep up with the requirements. It is only a comparatively few years ago that the business was done by the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company and a few lesser barge companies carrying grain in small bottoms. Then came Canada Steamship Lines, with its acquisition of the principal facilities for river and lake transportation, later developing into a trans-Atlantic carrier.

This company can no more stand still in its development than the current of the St. Lawrence can cease its progress to join the waters of the Atlantic. One sees in the present offering of bonds which the company is now making to the investment public, one of the signs which are merely incidental to the onward march of events as they affect the Dominion as a whole.

This cannot be regarded as a local incident. It is one of the broader measurings of our future capacity to carry on. The larger the funnel of our country's productiveness grows so must the spout extend its size to permit of the outflow to the markets of the world beyond the seas.

Keeping Pace With Transportation.

Canada Steamships is one of the vital factors in the task of keeping the spout big enough to perform its function. If it is to do this adequately it must from time to time seek the means from the investment public. There can be hardly any question of the value of this class of security. The service is so vital to the nation that it must be maintained in first-class efficency and the security should rank in the same class as high-grade railway bonds.

That earnings sufficient to meet interest requirements could execute a retrograde movement, or even stand still, is inconceivable. In the past five years gross earnings have increased from something in excess of twelve millions to over twenty millions per annum. Net earnings in the same period averaged $4,120,707, some years running slightly over four millions and sometimes slightly under that level. The value of the property employed in the creation of these earnings, according to their appraised value, amounts to $41,870,848. As the intertst charges on the present and existing obligations amount to $695,843.86 per annum, it will be seen that the five years' average of net earnings is sufficient to pay the charges six times over.

With the trade of the Dominion continually expanding, as the western country increases its production, it will prove one of the most interesting incidents of our economic expansion to watch the growth of the shipping facilities of the lakes and St. Lawrence in which Canada Steamships will have such an important part to play.

RUPTURE RELIEF

RETENTION NOT AFFECTED BY AGE, SO REPORTS VISITING EXPERT.

J. Y. Egan, 1057 College, Toronto, Surgical Appliance Specialist, will visit Peterborough, Empress Hotel, Saturday, Sunday (all day and night), 2 days only, November 12-13.

The "Curatrus," with new sanitary retentive shield, acts, feels and retains rupture more like the human hand than anything yet invented, the pliable flesh-like touch of the velvety finished shield gives a mild life-like massage, exercising and allowing a free blood circulation around the hernial opening. Its free action permits of rapid constriction and is intended to assist nature to strengthen the muscles in the shortest time known and at small cost—specifically prepared to order for men, women and children.

These new surgical appliances have received the highest approval wherever shown, and are designed in conformity with the science of anatomy as set forth by the world's text book authorities on this subject; prepared and effecting results here the same as in the New York, Chicago and Philadelphia offices. SENTENCED TO 40 DAYS FOR DISRESPECT TO QUEEN.

Greek Doctor Wrote Her That Parcels to Soldiers Miscarried.

ATHENS, Nov. 10. — (Canadian Press).—At a time when all the hospitals in Athens are crowded with wounded from the Anatolian front, one of the ablest of Greek surgeons has been sentenced to 40 days' imprisonment for alleged disrespect to Queen Sophie.

The Athenian press of all shades of opinion is up in arms against the sentence passed upon Dr. Polibius Corrilos, who, in his capacity of honorary surgeon of the Greek army, committed the offence of writing to Queen Sophie from the front to call her attention to the fact that parcels containing candy and cigarettes sent to soldiers at the front by their relatives and friends hardly ever reach their destination. The powers that be, however, ignore this general outcry.

Queen Sophie is at the head of the Greek Red Cross, and, indeed, of all the benevolent institutions in Greece. She never misses an opportunity for marking her interest in the soldiers at the front. It is contended that Dr. Corillos could not have done better than bring to the Queen's knowledge the many irregularities in the despatch of parcels; but he should have communicated with the Queen through her secretary. For this omission he is undergoing the sentence.

Dr. Corrilos took up his abode in Athens some four years ago, and he married the daughter of the Minister of Finance in the Venizelist Government. He is himself an ardent supporter of the late Prime Minister.

PORTRAITS OF HUN RULERS GET LOW BIDS

GENEVA, Nov. 10.—(Associated Press).—Paintings of the Hohenzollerns and the Hapsburgs have slumped in the market until what are considered by dealers good portraits of the former German Emperor and the late Emperor, Francis Joseph of Austia, brought only bids of 100 francs each at a recent art sale in Zurich.

Portraits of the former German Crown Prince, Frederick William, in his Death's Head uniform brought offers of only 50 francs.

The dealers offering these and other similar pictures guaranteed them as coming from the various royal palaces. The pictures are to be taken to the United States and to England, where the dealers hope the markets will be better.

NEW SUBS TO MAKE 10,000-MILE TRIPS

U. S. Combines Gas, Electricity for Propulsion.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—A new type of submarine native plant, comprising a combination of gas and electric propulsion, will be installed in three American submarines of the V-type, two of which have been laid down at the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard. Naval engineers are said to be watching construction with great interest because of their expectation of improved operation of submersible watercraft to result from the new installation. A cruising radius of 10,000 miles is said to be one possibility.

It is estimated by submarine experts that these vessels will be able to operate for a month away from their bases or tenders, and that the maximum cruising radius at an average speed is approximately 10,000 miles. These estimates indicate that the submarines will be able, as designed, to accompany naval fleets on long cruises.

The crew of these ships will include four officers and about 50 men, an increase of 20 men over the underwater craft now in the United States service. The new craft will be completed in 1923.

DO YOU SMOKE TOO MUCH?

There are many men on whose heart and nervous system tobacco produces the most serious results. It causes palpitation, pain in the heart, irregularity of its beat, makes the hands tremble, sets the nerves on edge, causes shortness of breath and loss of sleep.

To counteract this demoralizing influence on the heart and nerves there is no remedy to equal

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

They make the heart beat strong and steady, restore tone and vigor to the nerves, and remove all the evil results caused by tobacco.

Mr. Frank Lutes, 71 Terrace Hill St., Brantford, Ont. writes:—"I had been troubled witr palpitation of the heart for a number of years, and by spells it would bother me a lot. The doctor told me it would stop sometime if I could cut out tobacco. When I would get a spell my heart would pound and would break out in perspiration, and get so weak I would have to sit down and quit my work; also in the night I would wake up and my heart would be going, I should say, about 120 beats a minute. About three years ago I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, took them, and found that they did the job. I am feeling fine and have gained over 20 pounds in weight."

Price 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto Ont.

TO ADULTERATE BEER.

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—(Associated Press).—German beer may hereafter be adulterated. The Reichstag has over-ridden the Bavarian Deputies' objections to altering the beer stamp law so as to allow the use of corn and rice in brewing.

Speaking for the Bavarian Peoples party, Deputy Jaud said: "The practice of adulterating beer must cease. Its purity must be preserved."

His protest met with only scattering applause.

SCIENTISTS PROBING SLEEPING SICKNESS

EXPEDITION LEAVES FOR HOME OF DISEASE IN AFRICA.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(Associated Press). — An expedition formed by the Tropical Diseases Pevention Association will soon leave to make the first organized attempt to investigate on the spot the treatment of sleeping sickness, as distinct from the question of the mere transmission or cause of the disease.

The expedition will be conducted by four physicians and two veterinary scientists, and it is expected the work will occupy two and a half years. It is sought to carry out the work in different centres with the sanction and support of the Governments interested and it is hoped that it will result in a general system of vaccination whereby all individuals arriving in a danger zone will be inoculated and so gradually rendered immune.

The expedition will first work in Uganda. It will probably proceed later to the Belgian Congo, and it is hoped to extend the work to Rhodesia and the Sudan where there is a big epidemic of the disease.

The sleeping sickness has been prevalent among the natives of West Africa for 100 years. It is generally attributed to a parasite carried by a species of the tsetse fly which infects cattle. The disease has caused heavy mortality among the natives of the Congo and Uganda for many years and is greatly dreaded by Europeans in the parts of Africa where it exists. Its origin has been the subject of much medical research.

The dainty girl with an appetite like a bird must be "caged".

An the old town pump is another thing that prohibition has eliminated.

PHONOGRAPH FOR CHILDREN'S SHELTER

A LITTLE AHEAD OF CHRISTMAS BUT IN TIME FOR MUSIC

At the meeting of the Executive of the Children's Aid Society, after business had been disposed of, one of the lady members, rather timidly, put forward the suggestion that if a second-hand phonograph could be had, either as a gift or at a very, indeed extra very, reasonable price that the Shelter would be able to interest the little ones, possibly encourage singing and contribute to the junior enjoyment. And it was admitted that it would be very desirable. But it looked rather preposterous to take the funds from tag day or other sources to expend on a vocalion, orallion or other form of phonograph.

Now here is a chance for some deserving person to do good. That is, he or she deserves to be permitted good to do. If any one has a phonograph that can be spared or torn from the family circle, and it will evolve sweet sounds, why, the obvious thing to do is to send it to the Shelter with compliments of the subscriber and that sort of thing. And the name of the donor will be as apples of gold in pictures of silver. What say you. Who will be the beneficent party? With a few records, just to start the thing going.

Or the other alternative. Possibly there is a machine, or instrument, or musical effort that could be parted with for a moderate fee. There would, of course, be a maximum but no minimum. If so, an effort would be made within and without the Society to raise the coin. So, to further this laudable idea of giving to the kids a little music, those who have offers to make might communicate with the chairman of the purchasing committee, care of Rev. F. E. Malott, the official chairman of the society in this city. His address is at 302 Reid Street, and if anyone is in extreme haste the 'phone is 705.

This writing looks and sounds like a barefaced attempt to get an advertisement, free of cost. In fact, it is just that. But it is assumed that the end justifies the means, and that the press will be not only lenient but helpful, as it ever is.

The Iron Food for Vitality

He needs it— "The Iron Food for Vitality"

Iron and Energy

—give them to your husband in a pie that he'll crave because of its luscious flavor

Real* Raisin Pie

Men are quickly refreshed at night by a dessert like this

2 cups Sun-Maid Seeded Raisins
2 cups water
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon corn starch
1 teaspoon sugar

Wash the raisins, put in saucepan with 1 cup cold water and bring slowly to a boil. Add sugar, salt and corn starch, which has been mixed with 1 cup cold water. Boil 3 minutes; add lemon juice. Pour in pie tin which has been lined with crust, while hot cover; brush top with cold milk and bake in moderate oven until brown.

All measurements for this recipe are level.

THE man for whom you choose the food, madam, depends largely on you to keep him fit for the modern business grind.

He needs foods that give him luscious flavor to enjoy, and energy and iron to refresh and vitalize him.

Raisin pie is prime food in both respects.

Raisins are rich in iron. Men need but a small bit of iron daily, yet that need is vital. Raisins furnish 1,560 calories of energizing nutriment per pound—in practically pre-digested form.

So this pie is ideal dessert for the hard-worked, tired man at night.

Make according to the recipe shown here. You don't know real raisin pie, nor does he, until you've tried this kind. You'll serve it at least once a week at his request. You'll please him and improve him, and you'll enjoy the pie yourself.

Delicious raisin pie and raisin bread are sold by bake shops and groceries everywhere. Buy of them to save baking at home.

Real raisin pie is made with lots of raisins. Insist on it. First-class bakers do not stint.

MR. JOHN DEWART HELD A MEETING

ADDRESSED GATHERING OF THE ELECTORS AT WARSAW—LOCAL SPEAKERS PRESENT.

WARSAW, November 10. — Despite the inclement weather, and the fact that many men are away on the hunt, quite a crowd gathered in the Town Hall to hear Capt. John Dewart.

Dr. Donald Munro presided, and in his introduction, remarked that the times when each party followed a leader are now past and gone. Now, each man thinks for himself.

Mr. Dewart opened his address by saying that he knew the circumstances of the farmers in the district, knew how hard the dollars were wrested from the soil, how hard the farmers worked, how hard the women worked also, and how difficult it had been for his own father and mother to bring up their family, and do for them as they did. He was glad that the women had the franchise. They would demand clean men at the head of affairs.

He spoke of the extravagance of the present administration at Ottawa, touched on the high tariff and taxes, declared that the U.F.O. was a class organisation, and affirmed his belief that the Government should not be for anyone in particular, but for all, the farmer included. He objected to Hon. Mr. Crerar as a leader, because he was a profiteer in grain, and declared that Mr. King had no charges of that kind against him.

Capt. Dewart closed his speech by saying that there was no place where votes would be more appreciated than from Warsaw. It was his old home village. His heart was here, and his endeavours would be towards what was best for the farmers.

Further Addresses.

Mr. C. R. Widdifield followed with a humorous recital of the extent to which the population is taxed. Our tax bills this year are even larger than those of last year.

Mr. R. R. Hall spoke very strongly in favour of Capt. Dewart, whom he characterised as a young man of energy, one who had been at the Front, helping to preserve the liberty of the world, who had been wounded, and received his commission as captain on the field, and because of exceptional bravery, had been awarded the coveted decoration, the Military Cross.

Mr. Hall then reviewed in detail the extravagance of the present Government, showing clearly that the increased expenses have very little to do with the war. He went very minutely also into the expenses of the management of the National Railways.

The addresses proved in every instance most interesting, and were heard with close attention.

BATTLEFIELDS SEARCHED FOR BODIES SIX TIMES

LONDON, Nov. 10.— (Canadian Press Cable.) — In the House of Commons yesterday, at question time, Rt. Hcn. Sir L. Worthington-Evans, Secretary of State for War, stated that all the battlefields in France and Flanders had been systematically searched for bodies of soldiers who had given their lives in the war. The battlefields had all been searched at least six times, he said, and in the areas where the fighting had been very bad the search had been made fully twenty times, in order that it should be as thorough as possible.

The Army Council had decided to cease work and withdraw the exhumation troops, the Secretary of State for War said. It was practically certain, he added, that certain bodies hitherto not suspected as being on the battlefields would be found in the course of reconstruction and drainage, and this process might continue for years; hence, arrangements had been made with the French and Belgian civil authorities to report the discovery of soldiers' bodies to the local representatives of the Imperial War Graves Commission.

Sir L. Worthington-Evans said that where relatives could produce evidence that a body was findable in a particular locality search would be made, if a prima facie case were made out.

LONDON PAPER SUPPORTS GRAND TRUNK AWARD

LONDON, Nov. 10.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—The financial editor of the Evening Standard advises the Grand Trunk shareholders to read carefully the arbitration award which fixes the price which it is presumed the Canadian government will pay for the assets of the Grand Trunk railway. The award has just been received here. The editor adds: "Having read the award the shareholder must in fairness admit that the award is just and in no way bears out the contention that the arbitrators were out to support confiscation. Some evidence relating to the actions of the late board of directors leaves a nasty flavor in the mouth."

The Morning Post also speaks of the unpleasant impression created on first sight regarding the manipulation of the accounts in recent years by the directors, but says a rather different complexion is placed on the Chairman's review by the memorandum of ex-President Taft, another member of the board.

CAN'T GRANT PROBE OF STEEL WAGE CUT

SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press.)— That he must have further information before he can grant a baord of inquiry on the recent ten per cent. wage cut at the Sydney plant of the Dominion Steel Company, is the reply received yesterday from the Minister of Labor by the local steel workers' union.

Several days ago the steel workers asked the Minister to appoint a board to investigtae the wage cut.

D.U.R. OUSTED FROM TWO DETROIT STREETS

DETROIT, Nov. 10. —(Canadian Press.)— Conforming to an ouster ordinance adopted by the voters here Tuesday, the Detroit United Railway will discontinue operations on two of the principal thoroughfares by November 25, to make way for municipal street car lines, it was announced last night by A. F. Edwards, Vice-President of the company.

Submission of the ordinance to a vote, followed refusal of the company to accept the city's offer of $388,000 for the lines on Fort street and lower Woodward avenue, where the company's franchise had expired.

TAMMANY CELEBRATES ROUT OF REPUBLICANS

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.— (Canadian Press.)—Tammany chiefs last night were celebrating the results of Tuesday's election which promised absolutely unchallenged control of the city's governmental machinery after January 1.

In the greatest Republican rout ever experienced in a city election here, Mayor Hylan was returned to office, as was every one of his running mates on the Democratic ticket. He had a plurality of 417,986 over his Coalitionist opponent, Henry H. Curran, garnered through a clean sweep of every borough, and was outdistanced in but five of the 62 Assembly districts.

Ninety-three per cent. of the 1,268,464 votes registered cast their ballots— a turnout which political observers declared was the heaviest in New York's history.

NEW ATTEMPT TO SETTLE NEW YORK MILK STRIKE

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.— (Canadian Press.)— At the suggestion of leaders of New York's 11,000 idle milk wagon drivers and platform men, Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland will make another attempt to-day to bring the strikers and the milk companies together. Union leaders suggested group conferences between their men and the individual companies, and Dr. Copeland said he would try to bring them about.

ROME IS ISOLATED BY GENERAL STRIKE.

ROME, Nov. 10. — (Canadian Press).—This city is completely isolated by reason of the general strike called by the Chamber of Labor because of differences between railway workers and the Fascisti, who are holding a convention in Rome. No trains are arriving or leaving the city, and partial darkness prevails owing to the electrical workers having quit their jobs. Strong patrols of Carabineers and Royal Guards are on the streets.

U. S. UNKNOWN SOLDIER LIES ON BIER OF FAMOUS MARTYRS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press). — The United States unknown soldier now lies in the place where only the martyred Presidents of his country, Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley have slept in death, lying in state, under the vast, shadowy dome of the Capitol, the representative of America's sacrifice, in triumphant peace. Only the motionless figures of five armed men, once his comrades, share the watch, one at the head and one facing inward at each corner of the bier.

When the casket had been set in place, President and Mrs. Harding entered, the latter placing a wide white ribbon across the rain-soaked flag. Then the President pinned to the ribbon the silver shield of the United States set with 48 golden stars. A great wreath of crimson flowers was handed to the President, and he laid it gently on the casket near the head.

RAIL CAR DRIVEN BY PROPELLER WRECKED

BAKU, Azerbaijan, Nov. 10—(Canadian Press).—A new Russian invention for propelling railroad cars by the use of airplanes propellers has just resulted in a smash up.

Captain Simolov of the Soviet army had rigged up a flat car with a motor to drive a big airplane propeller and built a little triangular house on the car. At a railroad junction outside of Baku, he tried to hitch his airplane car on behind. The conductor refused and the train went on for about three miles and halted.

As the passengers in the rear coach were making tea, the air plane car came around a curve going at about 60 miles an hour. Most of the passengers got out of their cars by way of the windows and the captain and girl companion leaped from his flat car which banged into the rear coach, doubled itself up and jumped the track, a mass of wreckage. Nobody was hurt but the proud invention of Bolshevik land had gone to smash.

The captain said he did not see the train in time to stop but, he added, "anyway the brake does not work."

The Russians have been applying this airplane propeller device to push trains, automobiles and boats.

1,500,000 FACING SLOW BUT CERTAIN DEATH IN RUSSIA

WEAKENED BY STARVATION, FALL PREY TO DISEASES—NO MEDICINE TO TREAT THEM.

SAMARA, Nov 10—(By a Staff Correspondent of The Associated Press).—The whole truth about the famine becomes readily apparent after observation here. Reports of millions of people eating grass or lying in a dying condition on the banks of the Volga River or migrating en masse are rather far-fetched.

Entering the famine area the correspondent had provided himself with canned meats and hard bread but was not compelled to use any of it in the first two weeks of travel as food was always available at reasonable prices.

People do not die of hunger in one week. It takes months of underfeeding. Then they reach the point where they are unable to eat food at all. Their hands, feet and stomachs begin to swell or they succumb to an epidemic of malaria or else the new disease described as aneuria, no cure for which is known here. Or they may be killed by cold winds, snows, and rains, which have been setting in for the past two weeks, with each hour taking a toll of hundreds.

The people of the provinces of Samara, Kazan and Simbirsk are in a starving condition. In these three provinces, there are probably 500,000 children and 1,000,000 adults who must die before Christmas.

The American Relief Administration is feeding barely 200,000 children but is giving no food to the adults. One of the best effects of its food distribution will be to cheapen prices and check the hoarding of foodstuffs.

The Moscow government appears to be unable to send food into this district owing to lack of money and poor organization. Also the typical Russian indifference to misery is evident.

The correspondent while sitting on the platform of a railway station throughout a long, cold night, waiting for a train, saw a barefooted, little insane girl tripping along but the trainbands and other refugees let her wander unaided until she drifted past the Red Sentry into a waiting room already filled to overflowing with several thousands of persons lying asleep on the floor.

A member of the local Soviet who lived in the United States for seven years showed no pity but said: "You foreigners do not realize how much our peasants can stand. They are used to starvation."

The famine area does not present a forbidding aspect, except in the fields from which no harvests were obtained. The meadows and grazing lands showed many herds of horses and cattle. The villages seemed abnormally quiet, yet their workers were abroad putting in winter rye and wheat. To the visitor they made the customary charge that if it had not been for the Soviet requistions their crops would have been sufficient.

"Now our only hope for bread is America," they say; yet many know they must die by winter and accept their fate with stoicism.

"Why leave our homes and go to die in the railway stations?" many of them retort when asked why they do not desert their land.

Medical conditions are distressing. The country doctors are unable to practice as they are without medicines and the situation is almost the same in the 15 hospitals, having 180 patients said: "We have no quinine, no bandages, no aspirin, no chloroform nothing."

The same condition exists in the children's hosptals and also in the dozen of homes open for the care of refugees, for there are no sanitary arrangements. In one such home 300 children are crowded into two rooms, without blankets, fires or mattreses and without little or no clothing. Thier only advantage is that they have a real roof over them and receive hot soup daily.

LACK OF MEDICINE IN RED RUSSIA SERIOUS

HOSPITALS WITHOUT EVEN GRAIN OF QUININE

TZARITZIN, Russia, November the Associated Press.) -- The lack of medicine in Russian hospitals becomes accentuated here. It is even worse than further down the Volga. Tzaritzin has five hospitals, none of which has a single grain of quinine or of any of the other simpler medicines, nor have they money with which to purchase nourishing food for their patients.

At the Second Soviet hosptial for typhus patients, established here in a converted private residence, there are 50 patients with a lone woman doctor in charge, and with a few servant girls os nurses. She is totally without olive oil, camphor, alcohol, bed clothing or fresh garments. In the First Soviet hospital, at the outskirts of the city, there are 150 patients, but no medicines, no lye soaps, no carbolic acid for washing the germ-infested floors.

The daily food of the convalescents consists of one dish of hot soup, one sixth of a pound of meat and three quarters of a pound of bread.

The Soviet government formerly supplied all the medicines free to hospital patients and the general public but it ceased doing so some months ago.

Doctors and hosptial attendants are thin and hungry despite the fact that Tzaritzin now is the best and cheapest food centre in the entire Volga distric. Here the public market is fully stocked. But as in other Volga cities, at prices beyond the purse of most of the inhabitants.

The market lies between the river and the railway station at each of which may be seen from 5000 to 10,000 refugees in various conditions of underfeeding. They are living in cold mud. Many refugees are arriving from points as far east as Orenburg, where the crops are thin. They are striving to each Poltava, and the Don districts, but the trains are irregular, due to bad railways, and to the "green army" bands or non-Bolshevik peasants, who sometimes cut the tracks and otherwise interrupt the traffic.

Other than the small trading in foodstuffs, there is no business in the Tzaritzn district nor is there any prospect of any. Its arms factory is idle.

Members of the soldiers of the red army themselves, are hungy. Their pay and rations have ceased since the Russian civil war in the south has ended.

omenal grasp and ability. The outstanding figure was Sir John Simon, who was Solicitor General of Great Britain at the age of thirty-seven, admittedly the leader of the British Bar, and who made most interesting and instructive addresses.

Mr. Kerr also sketched the composition and relation of the judicial committee of the Privy Council, to which Canadian and in fact all colonial appeals go. These en who discuss and determine are men of great prestige, phenomenal ability, and a galaxy of which no country could be ashamed.

Other and brief references to law, lawyers, the oath of service, the Bar in Canada and what all Anglo-Saxon peoples owe to England, whose law and decisions are now accepted all over the world as definite, informative and decisive, concluded a most interesting address.

FOR YOUR WINTER WINDOW

A pretty window decoration for the winter is made by soaking a small sponge in warm water, then after squeezing dry scatter into the holes in sponge, rye, red clover, oat and millet seeds. Hang the sponge in the window where the sun shines part of the day and sprinkle it lightly with yater every morning. Young leaves will shoot out very soon and the whole will soon be a mass of vivid green.

Successful Men and Custom-Tailored Clothes

Most men labor under the impression that merchant-tailored clothes are far more expensive than ready-made clothes.

And yet they all have a desire to wear merchant-tailored garments.

Successful men are rarely to be seen wearing clothes made for the masses.

Custom-made garments are only slightly, if any, higher than the cost of the better grade of ready-to-wear garments.

To-day there is no noticeable difference between the cost of ordinary clothes made for the multitude and custom garments exclusively tailored for you.

BUT THERE IS A VAST DIFFERENCE IN THE CLOTHES. Come and let us show you.

Thoughts Turn To Christmas With Near Approach of December Month

Suggestions For Chistmas Gifts--Get An Early Start On Your Gift Preparations and Make a List Of Friends You Wish To Remember.

Christmas gifts for the woman who likes things for her room include all sorts of dainty fancies. Some of the ideas illustrated in a popular magazine are extremely fetching. One is a lovely handkerchief case, made in the following manner: Gather 3-8 yard of 36-inch rose satin over cord, fasten it with rose made from 1 3-8 yards of No. 12 ribbon, line it with white quilted satin, add a plain circle of rose satin for the back and leave a 9-inch opening at edge.

A novel pincushion is formed by enameling a tiny basket in ivory, putting in an ivory satin bag loosely filled with bran, and topping it with fruits fashioned from left-over varicolored silks.

A dainty old fashioned, paper-frilled bouquet for her room is composed of pastel-colored chiffon flowers, each of which conceals within its petals some sewing convenience.

Those empty perfume bottles which seem too nice to throw away can be made into charming bureau accessories with the aid of the needle, scissors, some mucilage and odd bits of silver or gold lace. If the mesh is very open, it is well to back the lace with pastel silk.

An adjustable band to put around lingerie is made from 1 1-4 yards of No. ribbon 2 1-2 yards Valenciennes and two tiny roses, with one end of ribbon turned back 1 1-2 inches for sachet. Another band which will give negligee or nightgown an Empire effect and save the bottom from dust is made of 1 1-4 yards each of No. 12 and No. 5 ribbon, 30 inches of elastic and 2 yards of No. 2 ribbon for rosette.

Peterboro Housekeepers Declare Christmas Cakes Are Good Gifts

Home Made Cooking Appreciated By The Boarding House Fraternity Who Seldom Get A Sniff of Real, Home-Made Cooking

Christmas cakes make dainty gifts to send your friends. If you are the sort of housewife who is a good cook and possesses all the facilities for the exercise of your talent, you may not think so much of a Christmas cake, but the "shut ins," the people who board or room in large cities, and never get a sniff of real, home-made cooking from one year's end to another the bachelor friends who still remember with homesick, (especially at Christmas time) the delights of a childhood table, will apreciate your Christmas cakes.

Fascinating picture cookies may be used with any good cookie recipe, with confectioner's sugar used for the icing. Let the icing harden overnight and then paint picture designs on the cookies with a small brush, using vegetable pastes of red, pink, green, purple and yellow.

Gingerbread is the newest building material. Bake it in a deep, square pan, cut in shape of a house and add a cardboard chimney. Then cot the house itself with chocolate icing, and the snow-covered roof and chimney with hard white icing, which is also used to paint the window and cover the candystick fence.

Individual baskets of cake are made by hollowing out squares, filled with ice cream or whipped cream. For the woven basket effect, paint over a coat of white icing with a small brush dipped in chocolate icing. The handle is fine wire covered with ribbon.

A jolly snow man for sick youngsters may be made entirely of marshmallows strung on small wires with a few dabs of icing to fill chinks. The recipe for the cake on which the snow man rests is as follows: 2 cupfuls sugar; ¾ cupful butter; 1 cupful water; 8 egg whites 3 cupfuls cake flour; 3 teaspoonfuls baking powder; 1 teaspoonful salt, 1 teaspoonful vanilla; ½ teaspoonful almond extract; ¼ teaspoonful cream of tartar. Cream butter, add sugar and cream together sift dry ingredients and add alternately with water. Add extracts; beat thoroughly; fold in stiffly beaten egg whites with cream of tartar in them. Bake in slow over one hour.

Small individual home made fruit cakes, have an icing like this; Beat whites of 2 eggs until stiff, adding pinch of cream of tartar; cook in 1 1-3 cupfuls of sugar until thick; beat 3 tablespoonfuls of syrup slowly into whites; cook remainder until light and fluffy.

OUTSTANDING FIGURES

(By MRS. J. E. LESLIE)

In every woman's life there is always a figure that stands out above all others—a some one to whom she defers—to whom her thoughts instinctively turn in any plan or situation that occurs in her life.

In childhood 'tis Mother—or possibly Father, or perhaps a beloved teacher; in girlhood there is the lad of her girlish romance; then her husband, to the end of days.

If she is left alone by the death of these loved ones there will be some friend whom she glorifies to place of importance, or perhaps a business associate who steps into her blank life and appears as its outstanding influential figure. But someone must be in that place—it is an essential to the feminine being. I don't know whether it is the same with a man or not, but I think it is.

It seems as if life would be very empty without that outstanding figure — whether for man or women. Perhaps it is the lack of that that makes so much loneliness in the world—perhaps it is that figure that is being missed, though, as a rule, a woman will fill that place either voluntarily or involuntarily. If there is no one who is truly real enough, she will unconsciously raise someone to the pedestal and make him genuine till a real one does appear.

It is not always a man—this outstanding figure in a woman's life—though it is more natural for her to turn toward the stronger sex for a type to fill the important place in her little world.

In reality she doesn't make the choice at all. Fate does it for her and she accepts without argument. There must be someone, and she is glad to have it decided for her.

A Cure For Sallow Complexion

Sometimes the skin becomes decidedly sallow and a general air of lassitude pervades the system. It may be that the tiny glands which nourish the skin are out of order, and the waste products are not being removed as they should.

Perhaps in your case you may be dried out, and instead of proceeding with your rigorous systems of exercise and bathing you have neglected somewhat the care of your body.

Nothing will help to tone up your skin more readily than a beauty bath. In order that you may get the full benefit of such a bath you should cover yourself with a thorough soapy-lather. Use only a pure soap, such as castile. Then, after you have soaped yourself well, thus opening the pores of your skin, for, of course, you must use hot water with the soap, rinse well in warm water.

Now comes the beauty bath, but the ingredients must be assembled and prepared a full week in advance, so that they are properly mingled. To make this mixture you should have four ounces of rosewater, to which you should add one teaspoonful of powdered borax, one ounce of tincture of benzion, one ounce of pure alcohol, and one ounce of glycerine. Mix these ingredients well together and let them stand at least one week. During this period shake the bottle occasionally, as it should be thoroughly well mixed.

After this time has elapsed you should add two ounces of rosewater, and then this delightful mixture will be ready for use. Add a little of this mixture in your bath of tepid water and you will feel greatly refreshed, while your skin will be greatly toned up.

Such a bath should be taken at least once a week until you get your skin in good condition. Then, after you have thoroughly laved yourself with a little of the mixture diluted in the water you should wipe your body with a soft towel. Do not the mistake of rubbing your skin with a rough towel after such a bath, as you do not wish to make it over stimulating, but rather refreshing.

If you are fortunate enough to be able to use rain water for your bath you will apreciate its softness. But if this is impossible to obtain, and the water which you use is very hard, you can remedy this condition by adding a little borax to it.

If you do not wish to go to the expense of purchasing these ingredients for a beauty bath, or you do not wish to take the trouble of preparing this bath lotion, there are other ways of securing a refreshing bath which also has beautifying qualities.

One of the simplest is the salt water bath. Now, this may be enjoyed at home, for sea salt may be obtained at any drug store for a few cents, and all you need for this is a cupful to your bath. You will find such a bath most invigorating, although you should not expect to enjoy all the exhilarating effects that a swim in the sea gives you.

Some women prefer to use Epsom salts, as it is better stimulant for the skin. In this case you do not need to use much. If you will take two ounces of Epsom salts and add this to the water in your ub, you will have a most invigorating bath. Of course, in taking such a bath it is not necessary to fill the bath to the brim, but if you do so, you this to the water in your tub, you should add a greater quantity of the salts.

Canadian National Railway Train Will Interest Women

There will doubtless be much of interest to the feminine poulation in the visit here on Friday of the "across Canada" Canadian National Railway train. The dinuing-car is equipped with the latest innovations in cooking facilities and lightning arrangements. Among the features of the kitchen equipment are removable carving tables, hot tables for cooked meats and poultry, and arrangements for heating cups and dishes. Refrigerators have the Bohn system of refrigeration, with separate compartments for poultry, meats, milks and vegetables. Stewards, chefs and waiters will be on hand to explain the equipment.

The tourist car is also equipped with a modern kitchen, containing range, refrigerator, sink, cupboard, etc. for the convenience of travellers who wish to provide their own meals.

A special invitation has been extended to children to pay a visit to the train and have its mysteries explained to them, so that young Canada may get a good working knowledge of the passenger accomodations afforded by its country's railways.

The train in many cities has been visited by larger crowds than those which inspected the French train, and will be open for inspection at the C.T.R. station from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The railway strike is off but the big railway wage controversy is decidedly on.—New York Sun.

Jack Swan will give you 60 laughs a minute in the Girl in Red, at the Grand Friday and Saturday.

Local Campaign

The campaign in aid of the million Dollar Emergency Consumptive Fund, which is receiving a generous response in Peterboro, will doubtless receive a further boost by reason of the tea which the 57th Chapter of the I.O.D.E. is holding on Friday of this week in the officers' quarters at the Armouries. This Chapter is the only one that has actively interested itself as a body in the campaign, and should therefore receive an excellent patronage when the worth of the cause is considered. There could hardly be a better cause for the disposal of such funds than the one which will receive the benefit of patronage at this event. The great white plague which takes its toll of young and old in the most insidious manner is one of the most expensive of diseases to combat, by reason of the lingering nature of the iliness, and would think that women fortunate enough to have escaped its clutches either in themselves or in their facilies would only be too glad to do what they could to help the sufferers, many of whom are from poverty-stricken homes.

Guests attending the tea on Friday afternoon will be received by Mrs. (Col.) Clegg, with Mrs. J. C. Davidson as guest of honor. Mrs. H. Rush and Mrs. (Col.) McPherson will pour tea. The ladies forming the committee in charge with Miss Flora Davidson as convenor, are Mrs. A. Sharpe, Mrs. D. Walker, Mrs. R. G. Cotterel, Mrs. E. B. Clegg, Mrs. H. O. Fisk and Miss Florence Cameron.

GIRL'S STATEMENT WILL HELP PETERBOROUGH

Many women will profit by the following statement of one of their sex: "I was afraid to eat on account of stomach trouble. Even rice did not agree. After taking Adler-i-ka I can eat anything." Alder-i-ka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing foul matter which poisoned stomach. EXCELLENT for gas on the stomach or sour stomach. Guards against appendicitis. It brings out poisonous matter you never thought was in your system. McDermid & Jury and E. L. Payne, Druggists.

To Hold Concert

The Queen Mary Home and School Association is putting on a concert at the Conservatory of Music next Monday evening. The proceeds are to be devoted to paying off the balance still owing on the piano which is used at the Queen Mary School. The programme, which is in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Gliddon, and will be presented entirely by the faculty of the Conservatory of Music, promises to be very interesting.

Among the excellent numbers will be a reading by Miss Greta Scarrow, a violin selection by Miss Edwina Palmer, vocal solos by Miss Ina Allen and Miss Florence Scott, and renditions of popular music by Mr. Harry Wagner's clever aggregation of Hawaiian players.

The objects of the Home and School Association, which directly aims at closer cooperation between the three important fators in child life, the home, the school, and the pupil, are worthy of the support of all members of the community. Without cooperation between these three important units, the education of the child will be a one-sided programme, and the different Associations have already done much in drawing together in a spirit of unity and understanding the teacher, the parents and the pupils.

"BULL-DOG DRUMMOND"

BY "SAPPER" (CYRIL McNEILE)

CHAPTER I

In Which he Takes Tea at the Carlton and is Surprised.

I

Captain Hugh Drummond, D.S.O., M.C., late of His Majesty's Royal Loamshires, was whistling in his morning bath. Being by nature of a cheerful disposition, the symptom did not surprise his servant, late private of the same famous regiment, who was laying breakfast in an adjoining room.

After a while the whistling ceased, and the musical gurgle of escaping water announced that the concert was over. It was the signal for James Denny—the square-jawed ex-batman—to disappear into the back regions and get from his wife the kidneys and bacon which that most excellent woman had grilled to a turn. But on this particular morning the invariable routine was broken. James Denny seemed preoccupied, distrait.

Once or twice he scratched his head, and stared out of the window with a puzzled frown. And each time, after a brief survey of the other side of Half Moon Street, he turned back again to the breakfast table with a grin.

"What's you looking for, James Denny?" The irate voice of his wife at the door made him turn round guiltily. "Them kidneys is ready and waiting these five minutes."

Her eyes fell on the table, and she advanced into the room wiping her hands on her apron.

"Did you ever see such a bunch of letters?" she said.

"Forty-five," returned her husband grimly, "and more to come." He picked up the newspaper lying beside the chair and opened it out.

"Them's the result of that," he continued cryptically, indicating a paragraph with a square finger, and thrusting the paper under his wife's nose.

"Demobilised officer," she read slowly, "finding peace incredibly tedious, would welcome diversion. Legitimate, if possible; but crime, if of a comparatively humorous description, no objection. Excitement essential. Would be prepared to consider permanent job if suitably impressed by applicant for his services. Reply at once Box X10."

She put down the paper on a chair and stared first at her husband and then at the rows of letters neatly arranged on the table.

"I calls it wicked," she announced at length. "Fair flying in the face of Providence. Crime, Denny—crime. Don't you get 'aving nothing to do with such mad pranks, my man, or you and me will be having words." She shook an admonitory finger at him, and retired slowly to the kitchen. In the days of his youth James Denny had been a bit wild, and there was a look in his eyes this morning—the suspicion of a glint—which recalled old memories.

A moment or two later Hugh Drummond came in. Slightly under six feet in height, he was broad in proportion. His best friend would not have called him good-looking, but he was the fortunate possessor of that cheerful type of ugliness which inspires immediate confidence in its owner. His nose had never quite recovered from the final one year in the Public Schools Heavy Weights; his mouth was not small. In fact, to be strictly accurate, only his eyes redeemed his face from being what is known in the vernacular as the Frozen Limit.

Deep-set and steady, with eyelashes that many a woman had envied, they showed the man for what he was—a sportsman and a gentleman. And the combination of the two is an unbeatable production.

He paused as he got to the table, and glanced at the rows of letters. His servant, pretending to busy himself at the other end of the room, was watching him surreptitiously, and noted the grin which slowly spread over Drummond's face as he picked up two or three and examined the envelopes.

"Who would have thought it, James?" he remarked at length. "Great Scot! I shall have to get a partner."

With disapproval showing in every line of her face, Mrs. Denny entered the room, carrying the kidneys, and Drummond glanced at her with a smile.

"Good morning, Mrs. Denny," he said. "Wherefore this worried look on your face? Has that reprobate James been misbehaving himself?"

The worthy woman snorted. "He has not, sir—not yet, eastwise. And if so be that he does"—her eyes travelled up and down the back of the hapless Denny, who was quite unnecessarily pulling books off shelves and putting them back again—"if so be that he does," she continued grimly, "him and me will have words—as I've told him already this morning." She stalked from the room, after staring pointedly at the letters in Drummond's hand, and the two men looked at one another.

"It's that there reference to crime, sir, that's torn it," said Denny in a hoarse whisper.

"Thinks I'm going to lead you astray, does she, James?"

Hugh helped himself to bacon. "My dear fellow, she can think what she likes so long as she continues to grill bacon like this. Your wife is a treasure, James—a pearl amongst women: and you can tell her so with my love." He was opening the first envelope, and suddenly he looked up with a twinkle in his eye. "Just to set her mind at rest," he remarked gravely, "you might tell her that, as far as I can see at present, I shall only undertake murder in exceptional cases."

He propped the letter up against the toast-rack and commenced his breakfast. "Don't go, James.' With a slight frown he was studying the typewritten sheet. "I'm certain to want your advice before long. Though not over this one. . . . It does not appeal to me—not at all. To assist Messrs. Jones & Jones, whose business is to advance money on note of hand alone, to obtain fresh clients, is a form of amusement which leaves me cold. The waste-paper basket, please, James. Tear the effusion up and we will pass on to the next."

He looked at the mauve envelope doubtfully, and examined the postmark. "Where is Pudlington, James? and one might almost ask—why is Pudlington? No town has any right to such an offensive name." He glanced through the letter and shook his head. "Tush! tush! And the wife of the bank manager too—the bank manager of Pudlington, James! Can you conceive of anything so dreadful? But I'm afraid Mrs. Bank Manager is a puss—a distinct puss. It's when they get on the soul-mate stunt that the furniture begins to fly."

Drummond tore up the letter and dropped the pieces into the basket beside him. Then he turned to his servant and handed him the remainder of the envelopes.

"Go through them, James, while I assault the kidneys, and pick two or three out for me. I see that you will have to become my secretary. No man could tackle that little bunch alone."

"Do you want me to open them, sir?" asked Denny doubtfully.

"You've hit it, James—hit it in one. Classify them for me in groups. Criminal; sporting; amatory—that means of or pertaining to love; stupid and merely boring; and as a last resort, miscellaneous." He stirred his coffee thoughtfully. "I feel that as a first venture in our new career—ours, I said, James—love appeals to me irresistibly. Find me a damsel in distress; a beautiful girl helpless in the clutches of knaves. Let me feel that I can fly to her succour, clad in my new grey suiting."

He finished the last piece of bacon and pushed away his plate. "Amongst all that mass of paper there must surely be one from a lovely maiden, James, at whose disposal I can place my rusty sword. Incidentally, what has become of the damned thing?"

RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is produced by the accumulation of Uric Acid in the blood, and this poisonous substance attacks and inflames the membrane covering the joints and separating the muscles, thus producing severe pains. If the waste products of the human system are not properly carried off, Uric Acid forms and is deposited in the joints and between the different layers of muscles. DR. HENDERSON'S HERB TABLETS will correct this by its action on the kidneys and removing the Uric Acid from the blood. Try them and watch the results. If they fail your money will be refunded.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are put up three sizes—25c, 50c and $1 per box, at Warne's Drug Store, 351 George Street, Peterborough.

THE AULD SCOTCH SANGS.

(By Rev. Dr. Bethune.)

O sing to me the auld Scotch sangs,
I' the braid, Scottish tongue,
The sangs my faither loved tae hear,
The sangs my mither sang,
When she sat beside my cradle,
Or crooned me on her knee.
And I wadna sleep, she sang sae sweet,
The auld Scotch sangs to me.

Sing ony o' the auld Scotch sangs,
The blithesome or the sad,
They make me smile when I am wae,
And greet when I am glad,
My heart goes back to auld Scotland,
The saut tear dims my e't,
And the Scotch blood leaps in a' my veins,
As ye sing the sangs to me.

Sing on, sing mair o' thae auld sangs,
For ilka ane can tell,
O' joy or sorrow i' the past,
Where mem'ry lo'es to dwell;
Tho' hair grows grey, and limbs grow auld,
Until the day I dee
I'll bless the Scottish tongue that sings
The auld Scotch sangs to me.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

Nazimova the peerless Russian star in Camille, also vaudeville, Dick and Ruby Wren, the international singers and dancers and musical act. Usual prices.

For the balance of this week commencing today, the Capitol offers a very excellent program of pictures and vaudeville, Dick and Ruby Wren known on the big time Amercian vaudeville circuits as the international Scotch and Irish comiques, singers and dancers and musical artists of real merit. The picture part of the program will consist of the usual excellent short reel subjects.

It is obvious why Nazimova is called "the incomparable." This brilliant actress' perfomance in "Camille" evinces such a mastery of technique and emotional quality as makes her deserve the epithet to perfection. Here she is at her best, and it is no exaggeration to say in this picture she shows herself one of the greatest actresses of the screen.

In "Camille" Nazimova has done for the silver screen what Bernhardt, Eleanora Duse, Clara Morris, Olga Nethersole, and Ethel Barrymore did for the stage. These artists won fame for their interpretation of the role of "Camille." Nazimova, no less than they, has endowed the part with a charm and power.

Local picturegoers will not miss this picture. It is rarely that such a masterpiece is seen, seldom that a great drama and a great actress are united. And after seeing the picture, one easily understands the statement that it is one of the finest love stories of all times, and that the play still thrills and delights, seventy years after being produced in Paris.

Nazimova has the role of Camille, the woman of the underworld whom the love of a law student lifts to heights of devotion and sacrifice, and who returns to her showy, pitiful life upon learning that her sweetheart has abandoned his career for her sake.

It is a poignant tragedy that will not fail to hold interest until the very end.

Praise must be given to Ray C. Smallwood for his consummate direction; and to Rudolph J. Bergquist for the unusual photography. Natacha Rambova had charge of the art direction in this Metro production. June Mathis wrote the screen version. Nazimova's supporting cast includes Rudolph Valentino, celebrated for his performance in "The Four Horseman of Apocalypse" and "The Conquering Power"; Edward Connelly, Rex Cherryman, Arthur Hoyt, Zeffie Tillbury, Ruth Miller, Consuelo Flowerton, Mrs. Oliver and William Orland.

Usual prices combined with excellent music of Mrs. Foster's Orchestra makes a most enjoyable entertainment for the balance of this week.

FAN—FAN

AT THE ALLEN.

SNOOKY PROVES IN NEW FILM THAT HE CAN WRITE, TOO

People who do not believe that Snooky, the Humanzee, who is featured in Chester Comedies, can write, and promised a visual demonstration of the fact in "Just in Time," latest of the series at the Allen Theatre to-day, Friday and Saturday.

Snooky is a chauffeur at the start of the story—and there he shows his amazing intelligence; but he is fired for smoking and reading a newspaper on duty. Then he joins a band of crooks who plot to rob his former mistress. They send him to paint a warning on the door of her home and the screen shows Snooky writing "Beware" and drawing a skull and a "black hand." According to the producers no trick photography was used, though it is admitted that it took several hours to teach Snooky, through his power of imitation, to do it.

But after that Snooky has a change of heart when the villains kidnap his former baby pal and thrills the audience by rescuing the child from the path of a train.

Little Ida May McKenzie, sweetest child on the screen, has an important part and several animals co-operate with Snooky to create wonder-laughs.

Entertainment of the most dramatic and thrilling sort is offered in "After Midnight," the latest Selznick picture starring Conway Tearle, which is the feature at the Allen theatre to-day, Friday and Saturday.

"After Midnight" is a stirring tale with most of the action laid in the underworld, and Conway Tearle is seen to splendid advantage in the roles of the two brothers of different character which he plays. The star does fine work as Wallace Phillips, the brother who has been tricked out of his share of his father's fortune by Gordon Phillips, the evil half of the family. Complications arise when Wallace changes place with his brother Gordon so cleverly that even Gordon's beautiful wife is fooled.

The thrilling police raid and an exciting fight in Chinatown climaxed by the sudden death of Gordon brings the story to an eventful close with everything ending happily.

Zena Keefe plays opposite the star with all the charm that has won her so many admirers and a very capable cast includes such names as Mary Harlam, Harry R. Allen and Charlie Fag.

The production has been perfectly directed by Ralph Ince, and, as with all pictures bearing his name, splendid sets, backgrounds and grouping are noticeable throughout the play.

FUNNIEST MAN IN CITY TO-DAY

BIG BEAUTY CHORUS HERE FOR TONIGHT'S BIG SHOW AT THE GRAND.

The funniest man in London has arrived. Canadians must live in actual terror of their reputations because I, like all the rest of the general public, felt that Mr. Tate would spend a few moments with me wreathed in smiles, and constantly joking. He did not say "Thanks, very much," once. Perhaps that was my fault, and he was too honest to be merely polite. Be that as it may, Mr. Tate was most interesting. He told me the Canadian tour was wonderful. "I enjoy these one night stands, you know—they are so different." Well, even a man of such wide experience evidently can find something new, so I told him that hospitable as we wished to be, it is nevertheless gratifying to find whole souled appreciation.

During the course of our short talk, Mr. Tate told me of his experience in trying to cross over into the U.S.A. "Foolishly, I asked, 'What time does the next boat go? So they knew I was a stranger. An over-officious important looking customs inspector, said, "Where's your passport? How many teeth have you got? How many fingers on your feet, and other serious questions. So having told him my passport was on the other side, and not feeling inclined to answer the other questions, I merely declined further conversation. I was then with Mrs. Tate shown into an ante room to be further questioned, meanwhile telling the important official that I was quite comfortable inside, the snow outside falling very fast and heavily. About twenty minutes cleared the air and I was allowed to proceed. At Sarnia we put up at an hotel where one of the boys thought he could telephone and found to his surprise there was no phone in the house. Another man remarked that he had left his pyjamas at the Grand in a certain town, but we reminded him he had not been there for a week.

Luncheon time was approaching, and renewing his assertions as to the pleasure of playing to such large and apreciative audiences, Mr. Tate and I said Au Revoir.

by the false reports that are circulated.

Miss McCallum showed very clearly how the tariff takes money out of the pockets of the masses of the people and puts it in the pockets of the few. She spoke in a convincing and able manner and made an excellent impression.

H. B. Cowan Speaks

Speeches were made also by the candidate, G. A. Brethen and H. B. Cowan, of Farm and Dairy. Mr. Cowan stated that he had been a Liberal and believed in true Liberal principles. The fact remained that the Liberal party had been elected in power in 1896 pledged to lower the tariff. They remained in power for 15 years during which period they made scarcely any reduction in the tariff, for while they lowered it in some cases, they advanced it in others. They were defeated on Reciprocity when they tried to give the farmers what they wanted without hurting the manufacturers. Up until 1919 they were urged frequently to take an outspoken stand in favor of lower tariffs and in support of the Farmers' Platform, but refused to do so. Not until the Farmers' Party became powerful would they take a stand and then it was too late. Even now all over the country, particularly in towns and cities, Liberal candidates are vieing with their Conservative opponents in shouting that they believe in protective tariffs. Under such circumstances, he said, there is good reason to doubt that the Liberals would carry their policy into effect if elected, any more than they did in 1896. Mr. Cowan stated that he knew the Progressive leaders, and that he believed they would carry their policy into effect The biggest issue before the country was not the protective tariff—it was rural depopulaion. Unless that was stopped, the results were going to be serious The government offered no remedy for rural depopulation.

Predicts Success

A well known farmer in Otonabee made the estimate last night that the Conservative and Liberal candidates should each poll about 350 votes in Otonabee or a total of 700. He estimated that Mr. G. A. Brethen would poll 800.

SEEK HIDDEN GEMS OF HANNIBAL'S ERA.

Diggers Directed by Parchment Given by Monk.

ROME, Nov. 11.—A romantic story comes from Bisceglie, in the province of Bari. Recently an Italian widow returned from Jerusalem declaring that she was in possession of an old parchment written in Italian and given to her father by a monk of Bisceglie, which contains indications of the whereabouts of an enormous hidden treasure.

Until recently the widow has not had enough money to carry out the excavation for the treasure, which is said to consist of 150 silver vases and 20 other vases full of gold coins, 31 of silver, five of antique works of art, 30 boxes of jewels and a large earthenware vessel full of pearls. Now the excavation has begun.

According to telegrams from Bisceglie, the first indication mentioned in the parchment, namely, a large stone with a serpent engraved on it, has already been discovered two miles from the town.

The treasure is supposed to have belonged to a Roman matron who buried it at the approach of Hannibal's troops in 216 B.C., but there is nothing to explain why so many centuries were allowed to elapse between the concealment of the treasure and the preparation of the parchment.

IS OSHAWA TO HAVE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Reformer: Is Oshawa to have an amateur athletic association? That is the question that is being asked by not a few local sportsmen who are interested in the advancement of amateur sport in Oshawa. In speaking to several of those who have taken more than ordinary interest in the various branches of athletics and have done much towards putting Oshawa on the map, the Reformer learns that the general feeling is that until an association is formed, hopes cannot be entertained to any extent for success in any branch of sport here.

HERE IS A CHANCE FOR ROUGH AND WILLING MEN

"HELP WANTED" SIGN IS OUT ON BROADWAY AND NO FREIGHT HANDLER OR TAXI DRIVER NEED SPEND IDLE WINTER

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Take a dozen young retired freight handlers or taxi-drivers, give them mean-sounding names like "Murdering Maxie MacTavish, the Hell-Gate Goniff," set up an office with one desk and a phone in any old building along Broadway in the Forties—the older the cheaper— and the fight promoters of America will do their best to make you a rich man in less time than it takes to earn a fortune by honest work. If there should chance to be on your staff of young men a specimen weighing 175 pounds or more, able to stand up for eight rounds against Harry Greb or Bill Brennan, he by himself will make a fortune for you, and perhaps a little something for his own folks, depending on your generosity.

Here is a business still awaiting perfect exploitation although half a dozen firms are doing very well in New York right now, controlling as they do, a large proportion of all the fighters in these regions.

The biggest is the house of Leo P. Flynn, matchmaker of Madison Square Garden, and head-man or padrone for a troupe of some 50 odd prize fighters, good, bad, awful and terrible. Bill Brennan, of course, is the sacred bull of the Flynn herd, Bill being the only heavy ever to go more than 10 rounds against Jack Dempsey and generally accepted as the next best white heavyweight in all this highly advertised world.

Then there are Kid Norfolk and Eddie O'Hara, light-heavyweights, and a well-mannered troupe of middles, welters, lightweights and such like creatures, each one of whom works, say once or twice a month and pays Leo one-third of the boodle for each fight, Leo's job being to get the match, collect the money and fix it up with the lieutenant whenever one of the young men has a little misunderstanding with the law, as any young man is likely to do in New York.

Fighters around town refer to the firm as "Flynn, Flynn & Flynn" (and Leo P., is all three partners in the order named. Leo P. wears no ingrown nose, his ears are as unscrambled as yours or mine and no teeth are missing when he smiles. Leo Flynn is wealthy and there isn't even a champion's cousin in his entire stable.

Eddie, the Fat Boy.

In the Gaiety Theatre building, up town on Broadway, is the office of Mead and Cox, with an anteroom filled with rows of chairs which in turn are usually filled with the contours of reposeful young men under contract to fight for the firm.

Eddie Mead is a fat boy who used to rub Kid Williams when the Kid was champion, for two bits a rub, if he got the money which more often than not, he didn't. Some years ago he made a bargain with Joe Lynch, then a gymnasium bird, and brought him along to the bantamweight title, earning for Joe something like $125,000 whereof he clipped off a little better than $40,000 for himself.

Young Johnny Cox is the traveling man who takes the "road" fighters out on their tours to Bridgeport, Providence, Akron, Columbus, New Orleans, Memphis, Louisville and St. Louis.

Although no longer a champion, Joe Lynch remains the prize possession of Meade and Cox and with fair handling this winter, should make at least $50,000, which may not be much but which isn't so bad for a 23-year-old wagon driver from the oven of Hell's Kitchen, New York.

Chaney Not Busy.

Andy Chaney also works for the firm but not much because times are very dull in the featherweight line owing to Johnny Kilbane's retirement with the title. Chaney can fight like a cageful of tom panthers but he can't very well fight himself and he has beaten most of the others.

Joe Woodman, who made many thousands of Sam Langford, also has a stable of bruisers coming to him for lunch-money and Willie Lewis, the old fighter who discovered Paris, has a small but very remunerative business with Abie Goldstein and a half-dozen other little scrappers. Frank Bagley, with Willie Jackson as his star, and a long list of ordinary ring workmen, makes more money than any one of his fighters and Billie Gibson, manager of Benny Leonard, keeps a staff of journeymen scrappers in work in return for which they keep him in silk shirts, than which, he inquires, what could be fairer without cheating?

These and a few other business concerns control the work of the majority of presentable local talent. Their game is very much like that of the vaudeville agencies. Promoters in all parts of the staes and Canada where fighting is permitted are constantly sending in to them for ring entertainers. The majority of the fighters are chronic loafers and a good many belong to the toughest gang of the east side and upper west side.

But that's neither here nor there. Bring on your freight-handlers!

In the Church Bowling League on the Y.M.C.A. alleys last night George Street took three games from St. Andrew's. CANADIAN WOOLLENS MASQUERADE NIGHT

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION ARRANGE FOR VERITABLE CARNIVAL OF PLEASURE.

The grand masquerade to be given by the Canadian Woollens Athletic Association in the G. W. V. A. Hall, on Friday evening, November 11th, commencing at 8 o'clock, will offer oppotunity for lovers of the Terpsichorean art to trip the light fantastic impelled by the irresistible artains of an orchestra acceptably skilled in dance music. A masquerade always affords fun and jollity, and humorous incidents, with sometimes perfectly astounding denouements at the hour for unmasking, and no doubt this occasion will prove no exception to the rule. Then, whether one dances or merely resorts to cards and "looking on," a brilliant scene may be anticipated to-morrow evening, in a hundred and one varied impersonations—comic or fancy—to say nothing of the clean, cooperative merry-making which goes therewith. Light refreshments will be served, prizes for costumes awarded, and altogether preparations by the committee in charge foreshadows a veritable carnival of unalloyed pleasure. This masquerade is in support of an Athletic Association which has contributed its no inconsiderable quota to clean wholesome amateur sport in this community, and if for no other reason the event should be generously patronized.

WILLARD-DEMPSEY FIGHT UNLIKELY?

ARRANGEMENTS NOW ON VERGE OF DISSOLUTION

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.— (Canadian Press.)—Arrangements for the return world's heavyweight championship bout between the champion Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard, regarded as practically completed several weeks ago, now appear on the verge of dissolution. It is now thought Willard would not devote the necessary time for training.

WHAT WOMEN MAY VOTE?

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.— (By Canadian Press.)— When has a woman the right to vote? This question is being generally asked in Canada today, especially in view of the recent amendments to the Dominion Election Act, which give women a wider share in political affairs than formerly.

Under the present act, as amended at the last session of Parliament, any woman who is a British subject of the full age of 21 years, and who is not prohibited for any reason, has equal rights with men in holding election offices; being a candidate for the House of Commons, and in voting.

Foreign women who were not born in North America, but who through marriage become British subjects, do not have the right to vote despite their British citizenship, unless they secure a certificate from a judge certifying that they possess qualifications entitling them to become naturalized. Any foreign woman, who has not been personally naturalized but who has acquired the status of a British subject through marriage, can nevertheless not vote, unless born on the continent of North America, without a certificate of qualification from a judge. This means that if an Italian woman, born in Italy, becomes a British subject by marrying a Canadian she would not be entitled to vote in the Dominion elections. But if the same woman happened to be born in United States, or even Mexico, and acquired British citizenship through matrimony she would be entitled to vote because of her citizenship and without the qualifying certificate demanded in the case of the woman born outside of North America.

The same rule applies to any woman born in North America, and outside of Canada, who secures British citizenship through marriage no matter what her race or creed or color. Any woman, born of foreign born parents in Canada, is a natural born British subject, and neither needs to marry nor secure a certificate from a judge in order to cast a ballot.

Prior to the latest interpretation of the Dominion Election Act there was one rather curious anomaly with regard to women voting. This rule, and with dealing in the formal praseology, carried the meaning that if a Canadian woman married an American resident in Canada she would be unable to vote because of her loss of British nationality. It also carried the meaning that if an English born woman married an American resident in Canada, she would be able to vote despite her lost British nationality. Colonel O. M. Biggar, chief electoral officer, overcame this apparent discrimination against former Canadian women by ruling that neither had the right to exercise the franchise.

Aside from the question of naturalization there are other rules which women must observe before being allowed to vote, although these rules apply equally to male voters. The person must have resided in Canada for the year immediately preceding the date of the issue of the writ of election, and must have ordinarily resided in the electoral district in which he or she votes for the two months immediately preceding the polling day. Women, as well as men, may not vote, who, in the province in which they desire to vote, are disqualified by their particular provincial laws from voting for a member of the legislative assembly. Prisoners undergoing punishment for criminal offences, patients in lunatic asylums, persons maintained partially or wholly in municipal poorhouses or houses of industry, persons who are inmates of any charitable institution receiving provincial government aid and those persons disfranchised for corrupt or illegal practises cannot vote.

Voice of the People

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Sir:—At the outset let me say that I have no wish to criticise Mr. G. N. Gordon personally, but let me again say that the position which he is reported in The Globe and Examiner to have taken on the tariff is not that of his leader Mr. Mackenzie King or of the Liberal party adopted at its great convention at Ottawa in 1919. Let me quote from Mr. King at the great Liberal meeting held in conjunction with Mr. Fielding in Toronto in September, Mr. King said as reported in The Globe, "It is for the principle of a tariff for revenue that the Liberal party has stood in by-gone years; it is for that principle the Liberal party stands to-day and it is for the principle of a tariff for revenue that the Liberal party will continue to stand if returned to power in the present contest."

Reporting the same great meeting in Toronto, The Examiner of that date quotes Mr. King as saying: "It is because we believe that in no other way can the battle be won throughout this Dominion from ocean to ocean, we propose to place Liberal candidates in the field * * * solely to make sure triumph of Liberal principles and policies at the polls."

Then again Mr. King's meeting at Ottawa, The Globe reports that: "the tariff was referred to with the utmost frankness and the Liberal Leader responded to Premier Meighen's utterances about the tariff by definitely declaring that the Liberals stand for revising the tariff downwards".

Now then what does Mr. Gordon say as reported in The Globe of Nov 7th., Mr. Gordon says: "I am a protectionist but a broader one than some of the speakers at the Meighen meeting, Wednesday night."

Will the Liberal convention called for Saturday endorse Hon. Mackenzie King or Mr. G. N. Gordon?

It will be remembered that Mr. King in a special manifesto published in panel form on the front page of the Globe, repudiated all candidates who set themselves up in this contest independent of his leadership, and of the Liberal party. Would Mr King say, "I am a protectionist"? The issue is clear between the Liberal party here and elsewhere if it endorses Mr. Gordon, and it is surely manifest that it would then repudiate Mr. King. In conclusion, let me say I have no issue with Mr. Gordon personally. If he does not clearly and unmistakably endorse and adopt Mr. King's tariff policy, and if he does not state that he will vote, if elected, for Mr. King's tariff policy, as most honestly and clearly set forth by that gentleman, then Mr. Gordon virtually drops out of this campaign, so far as I am concerned. It is what Mr. King will do to the tariff, not what Mr. Gordon will do to it, that concerns me. There are things that candidates can hold views about differing from those of their leader, but not when they are laid down as planks in a party's platform which a candidate is required beforehand to take his stand upon. He then pledges himself to represent those views, and it is such a case that we are now considering. When we differ on questions arising in the House, it is, I think, our duty to stand out from under, and if necessary in our estimation for the public good, let us fight a leader, and even a government. But in a long premeditated conflict, such as a general election, we must let the people know whether we follow a leader, or otherwise, in crucial questions long considered and prepared for, especially when the party and its leader are agreed and at one. It is not given to ordinary mortals to be perfectly consistent, but clearly we must try. With respect,

J. H. BURNHAM.

SAYS ACID STOMACH CAUSES INDIGESTION

Excess of hydrochloric acid sours the food and forms gases.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that Indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydro-chloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

CHILDREN'S FRIEND IS CAUGHT STEALING.

Even His Victim Regrets Discovery of the Crime.

NEW YORK, November 10. — The children of Yorktown, Westchester County, wondered why their beloved builder of boats and doll carts had disappeared. They will not be told, for their venerable friend, Samuel Ackerman, white-haired and with patrfarchal beard, who made them toys fine and prettier than any they could buy, left town in disgrace.

It is an odd story.

Weston Barrett has a general store in Yorktown. For four years it has been robbed of trivial articles on Sundays while the Barretts were motoring. First there was a paper of pins gone, the thief having entered the side door with a key. The following Sunday several thimbles and raisins were missed. The police found no clues [illegible] pilfering was not serious [illegible] excited over. So, [illegible] nday the thefts contin

But finall [illegible] decided to find out who [illegible] it. They had Leon Washburn, a neighbour, hide himself under the counter, then they cranked up their car and rode away.

Soon the door was opened with a skeleton key, and in walked Ackerman, the children's friend. He almost collapsed when confronted. He was arraigned on a charge of taking articles worth less than a dollar. He and his wife are comfortably fixed financially, and he could not explain his actions. He was given six months by Judge Brown, and sentence was suspended when a friend put up $200.00 cash bail.

He left for parts unknown, and everybody, even his victim, was sorry he went.

HEIR TO FORTUNE REFUSES PALACES

BOLOGNA, Italy, Nov. 10.—(Associated Press).—Giacomo Lusardi, a carpenter who says he has suddenly become heir to millions by the death of a brother in America has been offered large palaces to live in. He has refused them and declared that he intends to reside in his present humble home in Ferrara.

Lusardi is sailing for America soon to claim the fortune.

Nobody in Paris recognized Mary Pickford because her husband wore a mustache. Think of that! In fact "Doug's" camouflage worked so well he finally had to put Mary's picture in the papers.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.— (Canadian Press.) —Prices were mainly higher at the opening of to-day's stock market, although profit taking over the approaching holiday was looked for. Mexican Petroleum, yesterday's outstanding feature, reacted a large fraction at the outset, but soon more than recovered its loss. Other foreign oils as well as prominent domestic issues were higher by fractions to one point. Rails of the Transcontinental and coal divisions also improved. American Car was among the strong equipments with Baldwin Locomotive.

Further realizing sales among stocks which featured yesterday's advance and short covering in some of the less conspicuous industrials and specialties contributed to the uneven course of the market during the active forenoon. Mexican Petroleum extended its early rally, but this was cancelled under pressure. Standard Oil of New Jersey was the strongest of the domestic group, rising 6 3-4 points. Minor Steels and Equipments, also Coppers, Motors and their accessories, were firm, but the demand for Rails was checked by offerings of Great Northern and Northern Pacific. Call money opened and renewed into next week at 5½ per cent.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange irregular; demand, Great Britain, 3.94 1-8; Canadian dollars, 8¼ per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10. — (Canadian Press).—Opening wheat quotations, which ranged from ¼ to 7-8c lower, with December 1.05½ to 1.05 3-4 and May 1.10 3-4 to 1.11¼, were followed by slight rallies which, however, proved transient.

In the corn market gossip was current that the country has held very freely overnight. After opening 3-8 to 3-4 lower, corn prices sagged a little and then rallied somewhat.

Oats started 1-8 to ¼ to 3-8 off, May 37 3-8 to 37½, and apparently were without much power to rally.

LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, Nov. 10. — (Canadian Press.)—Receipts 412, trade active. Heavy beef steers, $6 to $6.50; choice butcher steers, $5.50 to $6; butcher cows, medium $3 to $4; calves, $10 to $11.50; lambs, $8 to $8.40; hogs, selects, $8.85 to $9.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—The market was active and prices were strong during the first half hour this morning. Atlantic Sugar registered a quarter point gain to 32, while Brazilian advanced from 25 1-2, its closing quotation, to 26 3-4. Brompton strengthened a quarter to the same figure, and Laurentide was also stronger by a quarter point at 80, as was National Breweries at 58 3-4. Spanish River was fractionally stronger at 68 7-8.

TWO PERFORMANCES SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE CAPITOL THEATRE

The management of the Capitol Theatre announces two performances, Saturday night, at regular admission prices. Mr. Abbey has decided to try out this change of policy the coming week-end in response to frequently expressed wishes by hundreds of patrons the past few months that such an innovation be inaugurated, and increased Saturday night charges eliminated. The theatre-going public are therefore asked to notice that the coming Saturday evening two entire offerings will be given at the Capitol where wicker chairs can be reserved for the first performance only, while admission to the whole balance of the house will be 27 cents only. Should this experiment meet with public approval the new Saturday night policy will be continued.

ECONOMIC POSITION OF EASTERN REPUBLIC.

RIGA, November 10 (Canadian Press). — The economic position of the Far Eastern Republic, with headquarters in Chita, has much improved lately, affirms A. T. Krasnotchekoff, formerly a Chicago lawyer, and until recently Premier of that Republic.

Interviewed in Moscow by the newspaper Novy Put, he said:

"Government undertakings are approaching the level of pre-war production. The Republic has nationalised only industrial enterprises of state importance, or owned by enemies. Private external and internal trading is legalised. Finance is based on the free circulation of gold and silver roubles, while 1,000 paper roubles equal 10 copeks, gold. (A copek normally was 1-100th part of a rouble.)

"At the head of the Foreign, War, and Home Departments are Communsts. A powerful revolutionary army safeguards the Republic's independence, assisted by Red guerilla troops, which, combined, constitute a considerable force.

"The increasing number of applications made for gold and lumber concessions indicate the favourable resources. Many proposals have also opinion entertained abroad of our been received from Japanese capitalists seeking concessions, but the Republic is disinclined to entertain them until its teritory is cleared of Japanese troops."

IN MEMORIAN

SAGE—In fond and loving memory of Leslie Garfield Sage, who died in Peterboro one year ago today, November 10, 1920.

Is there rememberance with the dead?
For us in lieu of clasp and kiss
Our love can compass only this
To heap the low green mound with flowers,
There is no more that we can do,
They need not any gift of ours;
But it were not so hard to bear
These days that they no longer share,
If we could know that somewhere, they,
Still one with us, keep holiday,
And through the years remember too.

MARRIED GET PREFERENCE

Fifty-five men had applied for work from the city up to noon today and the list of unemployed is still growing. Of this number 14 own their own homes. Those who are married and have been out of work longest will be given the preference. Some of the men have been out of work since May and a great many from July.

"We don't want charity, we want work," one of the applicants, who has three children and has been out of work ten weeks, said. One man with a family of ten children, only two of whom are working, has had no work in six weeks. A great many of the men are absolutely despondent. Some have been out of work so long that it is hard for them to realize they once did have steady employment. Others, possibly the majority, are hoping for the best, but these are the ones that have been more fortunate in getting work. Many of their circumstances are summed up in the note jotted after so many names, "had work off and on since May."

SUNDAY DEER HUNTERS FINED

HUNTERS DISARMED IN THE WOODS — ENFORCING GAME LAWS.

Inspector M. G. Woodcock, of the Game and Fisheries Department, in the enforcement of the game laws, goes far afield. On a recent Saturday he went 46 miles to Burnt River, and on Sunday found H. B. Parker, formerly a game overseer, and G. C. Oliver out seeking a deer. He confiscated their four rifles and brought the two men before Magistrate O. A. Langley. The twain pleaded guilty to unlawfully breaking the Lord's Day Act by shooting on Sunday, and were fined $10 each and $10.62 and $11.63 costs respectively. The rifles will be returned by the Department.

"Lest We Forget"

1918—ARMISTICE DAY—1921

IN FLANDERS FIELDS.

In Flanders' fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the dead; short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders' fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders' fields.

—Lt.-Col. John McCrae.

WHOLE COUNTRY OFFERS SILENT TRIBUTE TODAY

TWO-MINUTE CESSATION OF WORK AT ELEVENTH HOUR BRINGS BACK MEMORY OF GREAT SACRIFICE.

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press.)— All Canada combined thanksgiving and reverence in celebration and observance of Armistice Day. Flags flew at the tops of poles for the glory of the great victory which the day commemorated, but red poppies and the two minute cessation from work at the eleventh hour brought back to Canadian minds and hearts the memory of the sacrifice of sixty thousand sons whose bones lie mingling with the soil of Flanders, topped with the bluebells of France and the significant forget-me-nots.

BRITAIN HONORS FALLEN.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — (Canadian Press).—On the stroke of the hour, marking the third anniversary of the Armistice of the Great War, London to-day paused for a mute two minutes' testimony to the nation's grateful remembrance of the victory and reverent tribute to the fallen. A few minutes before 11 o'clock all vehicular traffic was diverted from Whitehall, Piccadilly Circus, Stock Exchange Place, Trafalgar Square and other public open spaces. Into these spaces great crowds gathered, and as the hour approached the throng joined in singing "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

TRIBUTE TO BRITISH DEAD.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — (Canadian Press).—The permanent inscription on the new stone erected at the grave of Great Britain's "unknown" warrior in Westminster Abbey was revealed to-day. It is as follows, in part: "Beneath this stone rests the body of the British warrior, unknown by name or rank, brought from France to lie among the illustrious of the land, and buried here on Armistice Day, November 11, 1920, in the presence of His Majesty King George V., his Ministers of State, the chiefs of his forces and a vast concourse of the nation. They buried him among Kings because he had done good toward God and toward his house."

LABOR DELEGATES OBSERVE SILENCE

GENEVA, Nov. 11. — (Canadian Press.)—Allied delegates to the International Labor Conference slipped out of the meeting shortly after eleven this morning, leaving the delegates of neutral and former enemy countries to continue the session. They returned after observance of the two minutes' silence.

Fame is fickle. Now an adventurous youth has volunteered to lead an expedition to look for Doctor Cook.

UNITED STATES PAYS HONOR TO UNKNOWN DEAD

CAISSON BEARING BODY FOLLOWED BY ADMINISTRATION, CONGRESS AND COMRADES FROM CAPITOL TO TOMB.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press).—The funeral cortege escorting the United States "unknown" to his tomb in Arlington Cemetery left the Capitol at 8.30 this morning. Preceded only by a guard of honor, made up of a composite regiment of an infantry, a battalion of artillery and a squadron of cavalry, the caisson bearing the casket was followed by the President, Vice-President, Chief Justice Taft and the eight associate judges of the Supreme Court, members of the Cabinet, members of Congress, a group of medal and honor men, and delegations from the American Legion and G.A.R. The route was along Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House, where President Harding reviewed the parade, on to the Aqueduct Bridge and across the Potomac to the Amphitheatre, where the ceremonies were under the supervision of Secretary of War Weeks.

After the invocation and silence of two minutes, President Harding delivered his address, referring to those who had fought in France as "armed exponents of the nation's conscience," and declared "the burial here is rather more than a sign of the Government's favor. It is a suggestion of a tomb in the heart of a nation."

Following came the decoration of the "unknown" by Allied chiefs. President Harding placed the Congressional medal, Earl Beatty the Victoria Cross, Baron Jacques, Belgium's Croix de Guerra, Marshal Foch the Croix de Guerre and Medaille Militaire.

Long before the rising sun broke through the low bank of clouds this morning long columns of soldiers, sailors and marines began making their way to the Capitol plaza to receive into their keeping the United States "unknown," and to accompany him to his resting place at Arlington. All the approaches and Pennsylvania Avenue were lined with spectators, and trucks waited to transfer the mountain of flowers to the cemetery as the body-bearers placed the coffin on their shoulders, while the band rendered "Nearer My God to Thee."

As the flower-strewn casket was borne down the steps of the Capitol, soldiers stationed in line stood at attention. The flags of the color-bearers were dropped, while those on the Capitol were at half-mast. As the cortege swung into the avenue it was joined by ex-President and Mrs. Wilson, who were heartily cheered. After the soldier and sailor escort came the clergy, generals and admirals. Immediately behind the unknown hero's body walked President Harding and General Pershing, followed by Chief Justice Taft, Supreme Court Judges, members of the Senate, Speaker Gillett and members of the House of Representatives. Soldiers of medals of honor came next, then 132 Representatives, all of whom served in the war.

The invited at the cemetery included the great chieftains of the war: Earl Beatty, Marshal Foch, General Diaz and Baron Jacques.

About 11 o'clock the coffin was removed by the body-bearers as it reached the west entrance to the cemetery. The great audience rose and uncovered as it passed in, followed by General Pershing and the distinguished fighters of the Allied nations, ambassadors and embassy officials.

SNOW REMOVAL COST $66 LESS THAN IN 1920

CONTRACTS FOR THIS YEAR TOTAL $1419 AS COMPARED WITH $1485 LAST WINTER.

CITY SKATING RINK

The removal of snow from the city's sidewalks this winter will cost $66 less than last year. At a meeting of the Board of Works yesterday afternoon the contracts were awarded; the sum total of the seven contracts being $1,419, as compared with $1,485 in 1920-21.

The contracts were awarded as follows: District No. 2—W. J. Stinson, $200; No. 3—A. Deal, $285; No. 4—Herbert Cooney, $175; No. 5 — George Sexsmith, $150; No. 6 — George Sexsmith, $200; No. 7—D. Conroy, $169; No. 8—H. W. Kerr, $220. Last year the prices were as follows, beginning with No. 2—$225, $285, $200, $150, $200, $180, $245.

On motion of Ald. J. Hamilton and Ald. G. L. Hay, the contracts were given in every case to the lowest tenderer, except in the case of Thomas Flannery, where there was a difference of 50 cents. The Board seemed to feel that Mr. Stinson's experience was worth 50 cents more. The tenders received were as follows:

No. 2—W. J. Stinson, $220; Thos. Flannery, $219.50; E. J. Ferguson, $325.

No. 3—A. Deal, $285; E. J. Ferguson, $350.

No. 4—Herbert Cooney, $175; Robert Manley, $200; E. J. Ferguson, $300.

No. 5—George Sexsmith, $150.

No. 6—George Sexsmith, $200.

No. 7—D. Conroy, $169; E. J. Ferguson, $300.

No. 8—Henry W. Kerr, $220; T. J. McDonald, $240; A. Vallois, $225; Benjamin Revoir, $250.

The Board of Works took the first step last night towards providing free skating rinks this year, when, on Ald. Hamilton's suggestion, the vacant property, a miniature of No Man's Land, at the east end of the Ashburnham Bridge, will be used for an ice rink. On Ald. Hay's motion, seconded by Ald. N. Phelan, City Engineer R. H. Parsons was instructed to prepare a good-sized rink on the city's property at the corner of Burnham and Hunter Streets.

Ald. Hamilton did not need to say a great deal about the rink, for the suggestion was favorably received at once. "It's an ideal spot for a rink," said Ald. Hamilton.

WEEK-END AT ROLLER ACADEMY

B'G CROWD LAST NIGHT--CROWDS EXPECTED TO-NIGHT AND TO-MORROW.

One of the best mid-week night crowds was present at the Roller Academy last evening. A contest for two-stepping on rollers was conducted, but many of those who could have competed hesitated to do so, consequently the winners won the two good prizes without competition.

Big crowds are expected to-night and again to-morrow afternoon and evening. Special musical programmes.

LOOK FOR GREAT INFLUX FROM U. S. TO CANADIAN WEST

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11. — (Canadian Press). — Increased immigration into Western Canada from the agricultural population of the Middle West and North-West States of this country is expected to be marked in the next year or two, and perhaps for a longer period. This is the view of officials who are keeping in close touch with the movement of the population into the United States and out of it, and who are familiar with conditions between the United States and Canada.

HEALTH DEPOT HERE PLANNED BY RED CROSS

LOCAL BRANCH HAS FINALLY DECIDED TO ESTABLISH STATION IN CHARGE OF PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE.

HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

The seventh annual meeting of the local branch of the Red Cross Society took place yesterday afternoon at the Public Library, with the following members present: Mrs. Jas. Wood, Mrs. R. Denne, Mrs. E. C. S. Huycke, Mrs. J. A. Aylmer, Mrs. R. H. Turner, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, Mrs. Robt. Harstone, Miss Morrow, Miss Laura Davidson, Miss Flora Davidson and Mr. H. Rush. In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. C. Davidson, the chair was taken by Mrs. Jas. Wood.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, and Miss L. Davidson, corresponding secretary, read a letter from Mrs. J. C. Davidson, of Toronto, the president of the local association, regretting her inability to be present, congratulating the society on their donation to the Gravenhurst Consumptive Hospital and to the Soldiers' Memorial, and recommending their attention to the promotion of the health interests of the community, and to a closer co-operation with all organizations whose aim is the bettering of the health of the community at large. A retrospect of the war work of the society gave a great deal of credit to the organizing ability and steady hard work of the committee of men who served as an involuntary advisory board.

Treasurer's Report.

The report of the treasurer, Miss Morrow, disclosed a satisfactory balance remaining on hand. The balance on hand in October, 1920, was $18,440.17, which, with a sale of material of $3,361.19, interest on bank balances of $615.72, membership fees, etc., brought a grand total of receipts during the year to $22,509.79. Disbursements from this fund were as follows: To the Roumanian Nurses' Fund, $350; British War Relief, $515; War Memorial Fund, $15,000; sundries, $7.08, making a total of $15,872.08, and leaving a balance on hand of $6,637.71.

Establishment of Health Depot.

The report of the secretary, Mrs. Kenner, followed. The peace time policy of the Head Office had been thoroughly discussed, recommending progress along community health lines not already undertaken by older societies. The local association had finally decided to establish a depot in charge of a public health nurse on full time, who would give her services wherever needed. Plans for this depot are already under way.

Supplies on Hand.

Miss Laura Davidson reported supplies on hand as follows: 27 cases of flannellette; 10 cases of grey flannel; 95 cases of towelling; 12 lbs. absorbent cotton; 6 pieces canton flannel, the whole with an estimated rough value of $1,500.

Miss Davidson also read a letter from Mrs. Adelaide M. Plumptre, of Toronto, president of the Red Cross Society, outlining some of the work which might be undertaken by this organization. During the year 135,000 senior members have been added to the membership of this society, 19,443 of whom are in Ontario, and junior branches are steadily increasing in size and interest. The senior branches were recommended to take an interest in the literature circulat-

ULSTER CABINET REJECTS PLAN PUT FORWARD BY BRITISH GOVT. FOR A SETTLEMENT IN IRELAND

CLAIM PLAN CONTAINED FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES WHICH ULSTER CONSIDERS IMPOSSIBLE OF ATTAINMENT.

COUNTER PROPOSALS ARE TO BE PRESENTED, HOWEVER

LONDON, Nov. 11.— (Canadian Press.)—The Ulster Cabinet to-day rejected the government's plan for settlement of the Irish question on the ground that it contained fundamental principles which, under existing conditions, were impossible of attainment.

It is, however, putting forward counter proposals. A communique issued by the Northern Ireland Cabinet suggests that the government should consider these counter proposals before the proposed meeting of the British and Ulster Cabinets.

Ulster's objection to the plan is believed to be that it would deprive her of representation in the Imperial Parliament, which she regards as her strongest safeguard, and also that it would give the Sinn Fein a majority on the proposed Central Council for Ireland. Another objection was that the Sinn Fein majority would so adjust taxation as to favor the agricultural South to the detriment of the manufacturing North.

The Sinn Fein, commenting on the points raised, declared it could not consent to any constitutional provision which would give Ulster a privileged position, "making one Ulsterman equal to four Southerners."

MOTHERS OF DEAD HEAR SERVICE FOR UNKNOWN BY 'PHONE

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press.)— A little army of grey-haired women, New York's gold-starred mothers, marched this morning to Madison Square Garden to sit for an hour in the seats of honor and listen while the Unknown Soldier's body, symbolizing all the sons they gave to their country, was laid to rest with the nation's homage at Arlington Cemetery.

They were escorted by a guard of honor, made up of infantrymen, blue jackets and marines. For them and them only had seats been reserved in the great hall, which long before their coming had begun to fill with citizens from every walk of life, reverently eager to follow the Arlington service through the telephonic amplifying devices with which the Garden and Madison Square had been equipped.

SAGE AND SULPHER DARKENS GRAY HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Colour, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, and attractive.

HON. DR. EDWARDS AND W.T.R. PRESTON IN POLITICAL DUEL

CHARGES MADE IN DURHAM RECENTLY REPEATED AT MILLBROOK BEFORE BIG CROWD THURSDAY NIGHT—MR. PRESTON DECLARES HIS PUBLIC LIFE HAS BEEN STAINLESS.

AUDIENCE NOTABLY FAIR

MILLBROOK, Nov. 11. —Probably nowhere in Canada was more political bitterness centred on Thursday night than in the debate at Millbrook between the Hon. Dr. Edwards, Minister of Immigration and Health, and W. T. A. Preston, Liberal candidate in Durham county. The genesis of the verbal conflict dates back a few weeks to Dr. Edwards' appearance in the riding in support of the candidature of F. W. Bowen, standard-bearer of the Conservatives. At several places the fiery Minister made certain charges of ancient origin against Mr. Preston. They promptly met with a challenge to repeat them on any platform in the county at which Mr. Preston would have the opportunity to reply. Deputies, or perhaps seconds, of the two parties, met recently in Port Hope to arrange the details of the duel, and last night the armoury was packed to the door with an expectant crowd that was all set for a joust in debate after the fashion that was the vogue of a generation that fought even politically at arms length, and without asking for or giving quarter, and not with billboard legends and cartoons and columns of type.

In a sense the audience seemed a bit disappointed with the affair. It was a no decision bout, except in so far as partizans went away satisfied that their respective representatives had got the best of the argument. Mr. Preston seemed to take a keen delight in calling the doughty Doctor a coward, and once boldly passed the lie. Dr. Edwards on his part contented himself with describing Mr. Preston as a man with "absolutely no conception of political decency or public morality, whatever he may be in private life and he may be a saint."

Exchanges of such felicities were not frequent, but they came often enough to keep the crowd keyed up and prepared for more. The audience for such an occasion was most orderly. Partisanship was not sharply displayed, although Millbrook's historic Conservatism weighed heavily in the applause that greeted some of Dr. Edwards' thrusts. Mr. Preston, however, received a large share of it, and from that manifestation the honours were about even, but occasioanlly shading in favour of the Minister.

A. J. Fallis was chairman of the meeting, and D. H. Chisholm presided over the debate Their control was a notable feature of the debate, and the fairness of the audience towards both speakers was a factor deserving special mention.

Dr. Edward's Charges

One of Dr. Edwards' charges was contained in what he called the Southworth letter which he said Mr. Preston had written in 1901 while he was Commissioner of Immigration in England, to which position he had

G. A. BRETHEN IN NORWOOD

MEETING IN THE INTERESTS OF THE PROGRESSIVE CANDIDATE

NORWOOD, Nov. 11.—Mr. G. A. Brethen, candidate of the National Progressive Party in East Peterborough, held two well attended meetings last night In Norwood, the town hall was filled to capacity, in spite of the threatening weather, to hear J. W. Kennedy, Vice-President of the United Grain Growers' Ltd., Winnipeg, F. E. Ellis, Editor of Farm and Dairy, Peterborough, and the candidate discuss the issues of the day. At Havelock, fully 300 people stayed to a late hour and gave an attentive hearing to Mr. Brethen, Mr. J. C. Campbell, Progressive candidate for West Peterborough in the by-election; Warden Griffith and J. W. Kennedy. As is characteristic of Progressive meetings in that constituency, public questions were discussed earnestly but with no attempt at old time political bombast or besmirching of the reputations of those opposed to them.

Mr. Kennedy, who has long been one of the leading figures in the grain business of the west, through his connection with the United Grain Growers, told of his long association with Mr. T. A. Crerar and gave the meeting his assurance that the Progressive leader "would rather lose his right hand than play the people false in the slightest detail." He then gave the result of extensive investigations, which proved that the tariff increased the cost of operating a one-half section farm by over $500 a year and that it adds to the cost of living of the average laborer by at least $250 a year. "These figures have been before the public for some years now," said the speaker, "but no serious attempt has ever been made to prove them incorrect." He contended that for every dollar that the tariff put into the Federal treasury, it took four dollars out of the pockets of Canadian consumers as a result of the increased costs of domestic goods resulting from the tariff. Allowing a revenue of $150,000,000 a year from the tariff, this would mean that indirect taxation takes out of the Canadian people $600,000,000 yearly and in this Mr. Kennedy found a sufficient explanation of the failure of both farmers and wage earners to make financial progress under normal conditions. It is the work of the Progressive Party, he said, to reduce this impost and, on the other hand, through the direct taxation of idle lands, to force this land into production and prevent speculators from becoming multi-millionaires at the expense of the people.

The Source of Campaign Funds.

Mr. Ellis straightly charged that both of the old political parties had fallen under the evil influence of the money power of this country. In defence of his statement, he quoted from Hansard a speech by Mr. C. E. Bennett, Solicitor-General of Canada, in which Mr. Bennett had revealed the way in which campaign funds are raised and had characterized as "disgraceful" the lobbying that went on at Ottawa. He also quoted from Mr. Arthur Meighen, who, when in opposition ten years ago, charged that the government of the day "had allowed protection to run rampant," and "were maintained in power behind ramparts of gold." The charges of Mr. Murdock regarding abuses in connection with the Board of Commerce were then

STEWART HALL ELECTORS HEARD CAPT. JOHN DEWART

NRTIONAL ISSUES DISCUSSED FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE ELECTORS.

THE RAILWAY DEFICIT

STEWART HALL, Nov. 11. — Four political addresses were delivered at Stewart Hall last night at a well-attended Liberal meeting. The speakers were Capt. John Dewart, M.C., Liberal candidate in East Peterborough, Mr. R. R. Hall, K.C., Ernest Deyell, ex-Deputy-Reeve, and Mr W. A. Anderson, ex-Warden of the County. Mr. Ernest Deyell presided and in a short address said the farmers should not support G. A. Brethen because he had stated he was solely representing the farmers, and this the chairman did not believe was a sound policy with coun(try and city interdpendent. He said John A. Sexsmith, ex-M.P., only showed up at Stewart Hall at election times, when he told them he had not done any harm. Mr. Deyell said he thought he might add "and no good."

Ex-Warden W. A. Anderson said he almost felt that Mr. Crerar should be referred to as the dishonorable Mr. Crerar instead of the honorable Mr. Crerar .He double-dealed with the farmers in 1917 Mr. Anderson declared. The Liberal party stood on the same principles and policy it had always maintained.

The Candidate.

Capt. John Dewart referred to the thrift and economy that had to be applied to farming. He said he regretted the same thing had not been carried out in the administration of public affairs. Many public expenditures were not justifiable.

Going into the National Railway question Mr. Dewart said Sir Wilfrid Laurier, before involving the country in railway expenditure, appealed to the people, but the Borden-Meighen administration from 1918-21 took over nearly 20,000 miles without any reference to the people. In the construction of these same lines Sir Wilfrid had been given a mandate twice by the people. Last year he said the deficit on the government railways of $70,000,000 was short of the total coast of administration in 1911 by only $9,000,000. Other items which accounted for the high taxes he said were the extension of credits to the now bankrupt countries of Greece and Bulgaria, reports by an American firm on the civil service and over-expenditure in militia and defence.

The Liberal candidate said he realized the country and city were interdependent. "The welfare of the city is the welfare of the country. Industry is essential. The home market is the best market," he said. Capt. Dewart said he felt that in the Liberal party was to be found the general equitable representation needed in Canada and not class representation as in the Progressive party.

National Issues.

In opening his address, Mr. R. I. Hall, K.C., pointed out taht the coming election is the first since 1911 involving national issues He charged calumny, misrepresentation and deceit on the part of their opponents in regard to the Liberal tariff policy. Mr. Hall said the tariff under Laurier stimulated trade, induced firms and people to settle in Canada. English trade was assisted by the English preference. She was unable to bring about reciprocity with the United States but in 1911 this question of wider markets became the issue, and bringing it home to East

TEN KILLED IN WRECK — EXTREMISTS ARE BLAMED.

LISBON, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Ten persons are reported to have been killed and eight injured, when a passenger train from the Province of Algarve, bound for Lisbon, was wrecked by rails placed across the track.

Many of the killed and wounded were women and children.

Railway workers have issued a manifesto declaring that they had no part in the wrecking of the train.

The Government has started an investigation in an endeavour to locate those responsible for the wreck, who are believed to be Extremists. The Director of the Railway says that recently four attempts have been made to derail trains. He has requested that the tracks be guarded by soldiers.

WARSAW, Poland,, November 11 (Canadian Press). — General Joseph Pilsudski, President of Poland, tendered his resignation yesterday to the Government, basing his action on the rejection by the Ministrs of the plan for the creation of a middle Lithuanian tate. His resignation was not accepted.

FOCH AND ARMISTICE DAY RECOGNITION.

PITTSBURG, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Marshal Foch last night gave out an Armistice Day statement addressed to the American Legion, in which he declared that the day should be made sacred throughout the entire world.

"It is a day when we think of the noble sacrifice made by her dead," he said, "of the brilliant deeds of duty performed on the field of battle, of the spirit of patriotism and bravery shown by those who, fortunately, escaped shot and shell.'

OTTAWA READY TO GO FURTHER WITH RULE CHARGES.

OTTAWA, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Officers of the Ottawa Hockey Club expressed themselves to-day as willing to go still further with their proposed amendments to the National Hockey League penalty rules.

They stated that they did not wish to be too drastic with their motions, but added that if other clubs were willing, they would revert altogether to the old system, whereby each and every offender must spend his time on the penalty bench, with a minimum of three minutes and the balance of the match for a serious offence.

GOOD PROGRESS HAS BEEN MADE KING DECLARES

IN SPEECH PROROGUING PARLIAMENT HE REVIEWS ADVANCEMENT MADE TOWARD RETURN TO NORMAL.

CO-OPERATION ALONE CAN BRING PROSPERITY

LONDON, Nov. 11.— (Canadian Press.)—The British Parliament was prorogued last night by King George, who spoke as follows:

"My Lord and Members of the House of Commons:

"The session of Parliament which closes to-day has been marked by events of great importance to the welfare of the British Empire and the peace of the world. It is not yet possible to say that peace is firmly established in Europe, and it must be long before the world can recover from the sacrifices of the war, but good progress has been made to-ward a solution of the utmost critical problems of home and foreign affairs."

After referring with satisfaction to the work of the Imperial Conference, particularly its deliberations with respect to foreign policy, questions relating to the Pacific and the Far East and the Empire's obligations under the Treaty of Versailles and other peace treaties, the King said:

"I am happy to know that on all these issues my governments here and overseas are in perfect accord. The conference gave serious attention to the defence of the Empire and the maintenance of an adequate measure of sea power; it was unanimously decided that the naval strength of the Empire should be equal to that of any other power."

Brief conferences followed to the satisfactory progress made by Germany in the execution of the financial and disarmament obligations under the Treaty of Versailles, the settlement of the trouble in Upper Silesia and the League Council's Silesian award. Upon the latter subject the King said:

"There is reason to hope that the recommendations of the award will be loyally carried out by the two parties principally concerned and that a peaceful and honorable settlement will result."

The establishment of peace between the Allied powers and Hungary by the treaty signed at Tianon and ratified in July was referred to, and the King continued:

"The efforts by my government at the Allied conference in March and renewed in June to establish peace in the Near East were in each case rendered fruitless by a renewed outbreak of hostilities between the Greek and Turkish forces in Anatolia. It is my earnest desire to see these hostilities followed by an early and just peace, and my government is prepared, in conjunction with their Allies, to take the first opportunity of furthering this."

Noting the negotiations for a settlement in Egypt have not yet been concluded, the King referred to the eastern tour of the Prince of Wales, adding:

"I pray that his visit may still further strengthen the ties of affec-

BRITISH RESOLVED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Delegates of the British Empire approach the armament and Far Eastern conference "in a spirit of confidence and high resolve," the acting head of the delegation, Arthur J. Balfour, declared upon his arrival in Washington.

"We must not indeed either ask for or expect the impossible although what is within our reach is worth our utmost efforts," said Mr. Balfour in a formal statement. "I cannot doubt that under the wise guidance of your President we shall be fortunate enough to attain it. * * I am convinced that all those who are going to meet here in common counsel, and the governments whom they represent, are resolved to the best of their ability to co-operate with him in making it a success. This is the world's desire; it will not fail of accomplishment".

The arrival of Mr Balfour and his party early in the day from Quebec where they landed Tuesday, completed the British delegation with the exception of Mr. Lloyd George, who has announced his detention at home by domestic questions, but who has informed the United States Government of his expectation to come to Washington as soon as possible. Shortly before the chief British delegate reached the Capital, the British Dominion representation was made complete

ARBUCKLE SAID TO BE CLEARED BY STATEMENT

AFFIDAVIT OF HOTEL DETECTIVE QUOTES MISS RAPPE AS DENYING COMEDIAN RESPONSIBLE

TALKED TO GIRL JUST AFTER THE FATAL PARTY

SAN FRANCISCO, November 11 (Canadian Press). — A sworn statement by George Glennon, house detective of the Hotel St. Francis, which purports to clear Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle of criminal responsibility for the death of Virginia Rappe, motion picture actress, is in the hands of District Attorney Matthew F. Brady, Gavin McNab, chief counsel of Arbuckle, declared yesterday.

Mr. Brady admitted having taken a statement from Glennon several weeks ago, but said that he had so many other matters to attend to that he did not remember the nature of its contents.

The statement is of the question and answer type, according to the defense. The detective asked the girl if the hotel, where she sustained her injuries, was responsible for her hurts, in any way, and she replied, "No."

"Did Mr. Arbuckle hurt you?" she was asked by Glennon, according to the defence statement.

"No."

"Then, who hurt you?"

"I do not know. I may have been hurt by falling off the bed," she replied, according to Arbuckle's counsel.

McNab said he was advised that the statement was made in the girl's room at the St. Francis immediately after the party in Arbuckle's rooms there, in which she was alleged to have received her fatal injuries, and that she was "suffering no pain, and had a perfectly clear head," when she made it .

Arbuckle is to go to trial on Monday on a charge of manslaughter growing out of Miss Rappe's death.

CANADA'S RAILWAYS.

With the railway question bobbing up every now and then in the election campaign—although not as often as many people consider it should—Canada's National Railway system is receiving an unusual amount of publicity, which makes the visit of the Government Railway Exhibition train to Peterborough today a matter of unusual interest. It provides the people with an opportunity of seeing for themselves the accommodation that is provided on their own national railway, and the effect cannot fail to be good, inasmuch as the fact that this complete travelling hotel was built in Canada by Canadian labour and is owned by the Canadian people themselves, will be impressed upon all visitors to the exhibition train, while the souvenir booklets that are given out will furnish a lot of information unknown, or at least hitherto unappreciated by the general public. The whole scheme is an example of good propaganda work. These railways are ours and must be made to pay; therefore anything that brings the National Railways before the Canadian people and makes them realize that so far as possible they should travel by the railway system in which they are all shareholders is to be commended. But outside of this consideration, a visit to this splendid train is well worth while on its own account.

A SPLENDID SERVICE.

The clean-up campaign that is being carried out by the Great War Veterans' Association throughout the Dominion is one that should be of splendid service to many returned men who for some reason or another have re-establishment claims that have not been adjusted. The G.W.V.A. has, wisely decided to utilize the newspapers to bring its drive before the ex-service men, and the advertisements that are appearing from coast to coast should prevent this splendid chance from being overlooked by the men for whose benefit it is designed. A staff of Great War Veteran officials will be on duty at Ottawa until all claims submitted to the various branches have been investigated and settled. To the general public it may be a surprise that three years after the cessation of hostilities there should be any necessity for a campaign of this sort. The fact is, however, that there are many returned soldiers who, from ignorance of the regulations or lack of knowledge of how to take advantage of the re-establishment plans inaugurated by the Canadian Government, have failed to benefit from some of the re-establishment schemes to which they may be entitled to participate. It is to deal with cases of this kind that the G.W.V.A. has embarked upon its present campaign, and returned soldiers, whether members of the organization or not, would be well advised in getting in touch with the nearest headquarters of the Association.

THREE YEARS AGO.

Three years ago to-day, at the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month of 1918, the last shots were fired in the great world war. It seems but yesterday as the intervening days drop out of our recollection and we remember the wild repoicing that told in its very spontaneity how great had been the burden in the hearts of the Canadian people, how heavy the anxiety that had weighed them down. And yet in the three years that have passed much has taken place. The armies who were on the battle front when the gun-fire ceased for good, are long since home. The world has made some strides towards getting back to normal conditions. It was not to be expected that the effect of the upheaval caused by a world war could be repaired at once, but progress has been made, and the outlook is reassuring. To-day our thoughts should be of the heroic dead, whose great sacrifice made peace possible, and also of their comrades who came back. It is fitting indeed that we should remember the men who fell, but the living have a strong claim on us as well. Have we done all that could be done for them? How are they faring to-day? Is there suffering in the families of the men who fought? Is there anything that Peterborough as a community should provide for them? These are questions that are appropriate for to-day.

POLICE COURT FINES.

The Toronto City Council has passed a resolution to be forwarded to the Federal Government asking that a change be made in the Act covering the disposition of police court fines, so that the revenue obtained from this source may be retained by the municipalities in which the fines are collected instead of having half of them go to the Provincial government. It would be well for other Ontario municipalities to pass similar resolutions and to organize their forces so that there will be no doubt of the feeling that exists in the province over this question. It is a ridiculous state of affairs when municipalities are compelled to maintain a police force, provide police accommodation and pay magistrates' salaries and yet have to turn over half of the revenue to the province. In cases where fines are collected as a result of the activity of Provincial officers, the province of course is entitled to a fair share of the revenue thus obtained, but it is difficult to see wherein the claim lies when the work has all been done by the municipalities. Instead of taking away from them half their revenue, the Provincial government should in many cases recompense the municipalities for extra expenditure incurred in police work that lies outside their own jurisdiction and yet is in the public interest. Incidents in connection with the recent bank robberies in Western Ontario illustrates the truth of that connection. In several instances members of the police force of towns and cities joined in a long chase of the bandits, going many miles away from their own district. The ratepayers of these towns and cities have to pay the expense incurred in this long pursuit, an arrangement that is manifestly unfair.

MUST GET TOGETHER.

(Ottawa Journal.)

If these two parties, producers and consumers, could bridge the gulf which at present separates them, it cannot be doubted that each would gain. The farmer would get a better price for his produce, and the consumer would pay less. During the inflation which grew out of the war the burden which was thrown on the people of the larger centres compelled serious planning in relation to this matter of getting closer to the producer, and when people think hard enough and intelligently enough along any given line they are apt to attain some definite results. That was the logical solution of the food problem during the war. But the war was scarcely out of the way before the farmers took up a strong and militant class position. They declared themselves set to the task of getting possession of the reins of Government for the attainment of certain definite ends.

One of these ends was the lowering of the burden of taxation on the agricultural community. That burden happened to be very much the lightest borne by any class in the Dominion; yet no objection could be urged against the bare idea of the farmers, as a party, seeking to make things easier for themselves. If objection has since been asserted that has been due to the way in which the thing is to be done. The organised farmers say quite definitely, so as to leave no room for misunderstanding, that when they are in control of the House of Commons they propose to lighten their own load of taxation by transferring part of it over to the shoulders of their customers in the cities. On that issue the city people have views of their own.

The city customers of the farmers feel that they are carrying just about all their strength will permit, and official statistics sustain them in that conviction. They therefore think that it is not a friendly thing on the part of the farmers to get relief for themselves in that way. It certainly is not the way which promises to bring these two great classes to a broader and more intimate basis of mutuality. Quite to the contrary. In fact, if it is attempted it will inevitably widen the cleavage, which is precisely what the city people do not want. They are all for better relations and co-operation; but co-operation with a class which proposes to add to the strain on the pockets of the townsfolk is scarcely likely to go very far. Human nature is apt to rebel against a proposition so unjust, and rebellion is always a nasty thing. It kills friendship at the first blast.

A single moment of reflection would lead even a superficial thinker to the conclusion that our economic problems can never be solved by such a method. On the contrary, they are sure to be intensified. And we could get along very well in Canada without either the complication or the multiplication of our difficulties in this time of crisis. We urgently need something of quite the opposite nature. The situation calls, as perhaps never before, for unity of purpose and a cheerful pulling together. Which suggests that this Progressive movement is the product of impulse rather than sound thinking—a destructive rather than a constructive venture. As Mr. Babson would probably say: 'Somebody is monkeying with the safety valve, and there is likely to be an explosion."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Some people will doubtless consider British Columbia lucky because none of the three political leaders are to speak there.

To the numerous interests already represented by candidates in the political fight, the returned soldiers must be added. They are to nominate two standard-bearers in Toronto.

A man named Snowball is a candidate down east. He should have a good chance in a winter campaign.

Shakespeare has said "A woman moved is like a fountain troubled, muddy, ill-seeming, thick, bereft of beauty," and the same may be said of many females of the species who are now holding forth from political rostrums. If there is one thing more than another that will induce women to petition for their own disfranchisement, it is the sorry spectacle of members of their sex cutting such capers before the public gaze as would make the angels weep.—Catholic Register.

LITERARY GEMS

END OF AN AULD SANG

When high on his Norwegian pine no longer sings the thrush.
And on the little garden now hath fallen a summer hush,
Full well I know that on his tree my thrush shall perch again,
And pour from that brown branch he loves the sweet familiar strain
But when the Master Singer flies away beyond our ken.
And hushed is now the strong sweet voice that thrilled thro' hearts of men.
A shadow creeps across the world, for out into the night.
Passed, passed for ever hath the song, the old song of its delight.

A WARSAW MOTHER ASSAULTS THE TEACHER IN PUBLIC SCHOOL.

Treatment of Slight, Delicate Girl Teacher by Irate Woman Characterised as Cowardly.

WARSAW, Nov. 11.—On Monday afternoon, just after 4 o'clock, an irate mother visited the school here and administered some corporal punishment to the school teacher. The latter was just about to dismiss her class, when the woman came to the bottom of the stairs and started yelling for her son to come down. The boy started off, and the teacher told him to sit down, going out to see what the trouble was. The boy, seemingly terrified of his mother, ran on down without his cap and the woman came up the stairs. She attacked the teacher, striking her more than once on the breast, and throwing her back against the heavy hooks on the wall. She used her tongue at the same time as freely as her clenched fists.

The teacher is a slight girl and unable, physically, to get around as easily as most can, which made the treatment accorded her more cowardly. Her one perceptible fault, as a teacher, in the general opinion of the community, is the fact that she works too hard for her pupils. Nothing is too great a trouble for her. The little boy appears to be a highly-strung, nervous little fellow, who is in habit of leaving school just when he chooses. The family are newcomers to the village

Headache

Recurring headaches usually come from an exhaustion of the nervous system, and they do not disappear until the vigor of the nerve cells is restored by such upbuilding treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Temporary relief by use of powders is often obtained at an enormous expense to the nervous system and the general health.

Get the nerves right and the headaches will not return.

Mrs. W. J. Pearse, Nunn St., Cobourg, Ont., writes:

"My system became run-down and I suffered greatly with pain in my head. This was so severe that I would have to bind a cloth tightly about my head so that I could get my work done. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after taking the first box I found quite an improvement in my condition. I continued using them until I had taken about seven boxes, and they strengthened and built up my system splendidly, completely relieving the pain in my head."

ENGINEER RISKS LIFE TO HALT WILD TRAIN

Lets Runaway Crash into Engine, Setting Brakes.

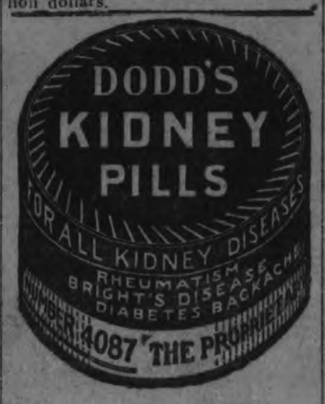
COLORADO SPRINGS, Nov. 11—A runaway D. &R' G. stock train with cattle valued at $300,000 glided out of Colorada Springs and started sputh on a wild dash which ended near Bragdon, 30 miles from here, when Charles Laws, engineer of Denver, did a movie thriller by crashing his engine into the speeding train.

The train had "gone in the hole" here while the crew took time out to eat dinner. When they finished their meal they found the train had departed.

About that time down at Buttes, the station agent heard something go by. He had a farmer friend who wanted to load some cow hides on the freight, but the train went through like a flash.

"What's the matter with the fellows on the freight-" he snapped to the agent at Colorado Springs. "They went through here without stopping." He was then told that it was a runaway train.

At Bragdon, Engineer Law ran his engine out ahead of the runaway. Four miles up the track he allowed the engine of the freight train to crash into his tender, just hard enough to clamp the air brakes on the runaway and stop it. Law had saved the Denver & Rio Grande Western a possible quarter of a million dollars.



STEWART HALL ELECTORS HEARD CAPT. J. DEWART

Peterborough, he said the farmers rejected the wider markets for their products by electing Sexsmith.

Mr. Hall said the issue of wider markets would never die, and he said that the United States offer still stood on their statute books, and if a Liberal government was eelcted it would seek to pass a bill to have this recognized, unless Congress has withdrawn its offer. Apart from war interest, which was $140,000,000, Canada's yearly expenditure has increased four times since Sir Robert Borden went into power, he said. Her population, however, he said, has not increased four times. The result, he said, has been impossible taxation, and still there has been a deficit.

Premier Meighen, Ton. T. A. Crerar and John Sexsmith voted for concealment of the administration of the Canadian National railways on March 26th last, when Mr. King submitted a motion that light be thrown on this subject, charged Mr. Hall, and discussing the railway situation as some length, he declared that the personal interests of the directors had conflicted with their public duties.

Mr. Hall concluded his address with a denunciation of the present government's action in not recognizing promises of exemption to farmers and other workers in 1917 and said that the appointment of Mr. Max Brown and Robert Knox as a board to hear exemption appeals was merely to catch votes, and also that he knew of forged cablegrams ostensibly sent to parents and others from soldier boys advising them to vote for the Union government.

Mr. Hall spoke with pride of the Canadians who served in France, and he referred to Capt. John Dewart's enlistment as a private, his promotion on the field and his receiving the Military Cross from King George.

GOOD PROGRESS HAS BEEN MADE

tion which have for so long linked my house with the princes and peoples of India. Upon the conclusion of his Indian tour, he will proceed to visit the great and friendly empire of Japan."

With reference to trade depression, the King said: "I learn with satisfaction, nevertheless, that it is anticipated that while the estimated surplus of the debt will not be realized, the financial year will end without a deficit on the budget, our debts, however, are great and our taxation heavy and burdensome to industry and the revenue cannot be maintained on the scale of the last three years. It is accordingly of vital importance to the financial stability of the country that the expenditure should be still further restricted in every department of life, both public and private.

"The Government will continue to take advantage of every possible means to achieve this essential object in the field of public expenditure, and I confidently rely upon my people in their own practice to support the efforts of my government."

The King, discussing the subject of Ireland, said:

"The situation in Ireland still causes me great anxiety," and added that he hoped peace would "finally be achieved."

"The past summer has been notable for the occurrence of the most serious industrial conflict which ever menaced the prosperity of the realm. I take pride in the calm and serene spirit with which the trials of the coal stoppage were met by my people and the freedom from strife and violence which characterized its course. This dispute, unhappily, was aggravated by the adverse effect of the sudden world-wide trade depression which has inflicted upon the industries of this country the most grievous experience in their history."

The measures recently passed by Parliament for dealing with the problem of unemployment and the revival of trade were reviewed, and the King continued:

"The peaceful settlement of many difficult disputes by mutual negotiation between the employers and the work people, together with some indications of the revival of trade, encourage my hope that the worst may be over and that the state of employment may show from now onwards a steady, if slow, improvement. But the position is still full of anxiety, and my ministers will continue to devote to this problem vigilant care.

"It is not, however, so much to acts of Parliament as to the proved good sense of employers and operatives working toegther for the promotion of thier common interests, that I look for the restoration of trade and prosperity."

Concluding with an allusion to the difficult financial situation, the King said: "The imperative need for the further curtailment of expenditure has required the modification of some measures already passed and the postponement to happier times, of the completion of other reforms. I pray that the blessing of Almighty God may rest upon your labors."

FEELING INCREASES IN ROME STRIKE

ROME, Nov. 11.—(By Associated Press).—The feeling between the railway workers and the Fascisti which yesterday culminated in the calling of a general strike, increased yesterday. There were numerous disturbances in various parts of the city in which many persons were beaten with clubs. Members of the Fascisti who are here to attend the congress of their organization, again paraded the streets, many of them wearing tin helmets.

PRETTY STENCILED GIFTS

One can use a stenciling outfit for decorating many little gifts, such as lamp and candle shades, dresser scarfs, and pretty other things which one does not care to expend deal of work on. To outline the design with black or any harmonizing color, adds much to the effect. The colors can be made practically fast by pressing the design with a hot iron after stenciling it. If your paint has been mixed too thin, and has run or smeared the fabric, place a blotter over the spot and press with the hot iron. The blotter will absorb the extra oil and the spot will not be noticed. Using heavy paper, you can cut any small designs to suit your purpose, and will be able to attain most artistic results.

HON. DR. EDWARDS AND W. T. R. PRESTON IN POLITICAL DUEL

been appointed by the Laurier government.

Quoting the letter Dr. Edwards emphasized the passage that "a good class of foreigners scattered abou old Ontario would do much to preserve the propotion of the agricultural population. Politically speaking two or three hundred families placed in close constituencies would would preserve many doubtful seats in that province."

"I want to ask Mr. Preston, did he write that letter," Dr. Edwards added with a pause to add effect to his interrogation mark.

Immigration Company

His next charge was involved in the history of the North Atlantic Trading Company and its affairs, a generation or more ago. One of its agents, Leopold Lazarus, occupied a room across the hall in the building in which Mr. Preston's offices as Commissioner of Imigration were located, and the solicitor of the company was a son-in-law of Mr. Preston. By an agreement with the North Atlantic Trading Company they were to receive a bonus on every agricultural immigrant over 12 years of age brought to Canada. That agreement was made November 4, 1899. It was later changed, Dr. Edwards said, to apply to all immigrants no matter what their age and included babes in arms.

"We've been unable to obtain the names of those who were connected with that company" said Dr. Edwards, but he inferred that Mr. Preston because of his close connection with Lazarus and that his son-in-law was solicitor of the company was interested in the company which from 1892 to 1896 had received $367,245 in bonuses for immigrants and costs of advertsing.

Figures of Immigration

"I understand he takes credit for bringing one and a half million immigrants into Canada," Dr. Edwards proceeded, "and that he has since raised the number to 1,900,000. I have a statement from the officials of my department, I am Minister of Immigration, showing that the total number of immigrants in the years from 1899 to 1906 was 518,145, exclusive of those who came from the United States. I think he has shown himself as unreliable in this statemen of the immigration figures as in other things."

Election Overseas

I understand he has made another statement to effect that men overseas in the 1917 elections were intimidated into voting for the Union Government, that they were threatened with being sent to firing line if they didn't. I want to say that is absolutely false. I ask any of the young men in the hall who wear the soldiers' button were any young men from Durham county intimidated and told that unless they polled their votes for the Governent candidate they would be sent to the firing line? If Mr. Preston makes that statement I ask him to give the name of any soldier so threatened and who were guilty of making the threats."

How Officials Were Chosen

Dr. Edwards enumerated the officials appointed for taking the overseas vote. The general returning officer was W. F. O'Connor who Dr. Edwards commended in the highest terms by Rudolf Lemieux and others Of the six scrutineers three were appointed by the Government and three by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and of the special returning officers half of them wee named by Laurier and half by Sir Robert Borden.

"Was there anything in those appointments to indicate that the Government wished to be unfair?" Dr. Edwards asked.

"I want to call attention to what this man Preston did in an attempt to mislead the soldiers in their voting. He issued an advertisement in the Penryth "Observer" in Wales on the date of December 1, 1917 "Vote for Sir Wilfrid Laurier and conscription". (Laughter). Was that the conception in this country of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's attitude toward conscription? You know that he was opposed to conscription and in Quebec they are making an issue of the conscription in 1917.

W. T. R. Preston was the special agent overseas of the Liberal candidates. He knew different to that, and not only was trere a piece of deception practiced over there, but the man who practiced deception of that kind will practice deception in this riding if he is elected.'

Dr. Edwards elaborated this point saying that Mr. Preston had sought to deceive the soldiers in the matter of the so-called floating vote.

To Deceive Soldiers

"He named three classes of those who could vote where they liked. One class were the soldiers who didn't know the name of their constituency. You know that was false because you were provided with the information. Another class were those not domiciled long enough in Canada to be entitled to vote. I can only think he issued that with the intention to deceive because there was no ime restriction. Another class were thousands of American citizens. The very first line of instructions said that the voter must be a British subject.

How then could he put that advertisement in that paper saying thousands of United States citizens could vote. No American soldier was entitled to vote in that election. He knew that was a false statement. I say it was made for the purpose of deceiving soldiers and that it had that effect. Thousands were deceived."

Dr. Edwards also charged that Mr. Preston had been guilty of political corruption in a West Elgin election of years ago, he said that men were brought into the riding, and that Mr. Preston had been instrumental in bringing in at least some of them.

Mr. Preston's Reply

Mr. Preston began his reply by saying that three yeas ago Dr. Edwards had made a speech in the House of Commons in regard to the West Elgin allegations. He was protected by the walls of the Commons.

"Twenty-four hours hadn't gone when I challenged to make those statements on a public platform. What did he do, the coward. (Cheers)

For three long years he has been hiding in his hole. If he can produce one solitary particle of evidence outside of his own lying tongue that I had anything to do with the frauds in West Elgin, I'll write out my resignation now. He has his chance, but he knows he's lying. I have the report of three judges Two of them are still living."

Mr. Preston read this report of the investigation held at that time wenty years ago which, he painted out, exonertted him from any connection with wrong-doing in that riding.

Says Telegram a Forgery

Mr. Preston denied having sent a telegram of congratulation to McNish. It was a forgery, he asserted, as was proved by the fact that the telegraph could not produce it. They would have gone to hell to have got me if they could, but there was nothing against me. Yet he comes here now and vouches for it as a member of the Meighen Cabinet. Lord save this country if that is an evidence of the men who would govern it." (Cheers).

"I came back 3,000 miles to face my accusers but they took to the woods like he did. I tell him now, produce a solitary bit of evidence and I'll get out of my place tonight and leave the field."

His Immigration Policy

"He says I brought out only 400,000 immigrants. Will he tell me the name of any other man who brought even 4,000, let alone 400,000. When I went to Great Britain not ten per cent of the British immigrants were going to the British colonies. When I got through 90 per cent of them were going to British colonies. Why doesn't he give you all the figures down to 1914. The plans I laid out and which were adopted resulted in 1,900,000 immigrants coming to this country."

"Regarding the North Atlantic Trading Company will be produce a particle of evidence that I had any connection with it whatever.

Dr. Edwards said he would reply when his turn came.

Mr. Preston—No, you'll reply when I have a chance to answer.

Dr. Edwards—I gave you my authority for the statement.

Mr. Preston—What?

Dr. Edwards—The fact that your association with Lazarus and your son-in-lw being solicitor for the company, and the fact that the North Atantic Trading Company was supposed to have brought out immigrants. (Cheers).

Mr. Preston—If he'll prove any connection other than official that I had with the company, I mean financial connection or benefits, I'll resign this minute. But he knows he can't. I ask him to produce such evidence, or take back that statement, otherwise I stamp him as a liar. He says the company got $340,000. They did, but did they get it through me? No.

Payment In Canada

Did I receive anything from the company? No. The Government paid them through officials on this side, officials who made report of the immigrants who came here. But he'd leave the impression in your minds that some of that money came into my hands. I ask you electors as man to man, I'm fighting for my life, if you were in my place would you be one bit less earnest; and I call for proof.'

Mr. Preston admitted that Lazarus, the agent of the company had offices near his own, but all the shipping companies were located in the same district. Had Lord Lord Strathcona approved of Mr. Preston's request the North Atlantic Trading Company wouldn' have been in that building, but it would have been reserved for the Immigration commission.

A Family Skeleton

"He says my son-in-law was solicitor for the company" Mr. Preston continued, dropping his voice to lower key and speaking slowly. "Have I to expose a family skeleton? I haven't spoken to my son-in-law for years and years. This blatant coward says because my son-in-law was solicitor for that company that money came to me. Is it pleasant to expose a family skeleton? It is not."

"Let him ask Clifford Sifton who was the late political associate, and if he does not send back word that Preston's service under him was performed with honor I'll resign. It should not be difficult to get him on the phone. I say that I left the Immigration commission a poorer man than when I joined it.'

The Overseas Vote

In his support of his charge that soldiers were intimidated into voting for the Union Government, Mr. Preston read from the Hansard of the House of Commons May 22, 1918, the affidavit of Private Darcy to the effect that his adjutan had ordered him to vote for the Government under threat of sending him to the firing line. He did vote for the Government, but a week later was sent to the trenches. The Government had been furnished with fifteen such affidavits, said Mr. Preston, and those fifteen men sent to the firing line under those conditions only four or five could be traced afterward.

The Southworth Letter.

Replying to Dr. Edwards' charges about bringing in foreigners, Mr. Preston said that in his travels through South Europe he had been struck by the men and women and the young folks going through the harvest fields plucking out the weeds until there wasn't one weed left. He had believed that if the families of such people were scattered in Ontario not a mustard seed would in time be left in the harvest fields of the province between the Ottawa and the St. Clair Rivers. He desired that the agricultural population of Ontario should be maintained that the people coming in as laborers to-day would be the tenants and farm owners to-morrow.

British Immigrants.

Mr. Preston defended his policy of immigration from Great Britain saying that he had anticipated by 20 years the policy of Lloyd George as indicated by his letter to the Times twenty years ago advocating the sending of British immigrants to the British colonies.

"If he says I tried to discriminate against Britishers coming to Canada he knows that statement is an untruth. In regard to the McNish telegram he produced here, it is not only a forgery but worse. And it is brought here after twenty years by the Minister of Immigration, Minister of Imagination rather. (Laughter.) He comes here with cowardly imputations without a solitary bit of truth."

Mr. Preston referred Dr. Edwards tc the approbation which he said Sir George Foster had expressed of his work and of the special report he had prepared at the request of the Minister of Commerce. Mr. Preston said his public and private life was without a stain.

"I challenge him to produce one particle of proof against me. He smiles, but it is the smile of a whipped cur. He comes out here trying to traduce the character of one who would have disappeared from public life long ago if such cowards as he had their way. When he comes here with 'I believe,' let him produce proof."

Dr. Edwards' Rebuttal.

"Mr. Prseton has indulged in a good many harsh words," said Dr. Edwards in his rebuttal. I dont' blame him for that. He says that his whole career over yonder was that of an honorable man, and he asks for one tittle of proof to the contrary. He does not deny having written the Southworth letter. He would if I did not haye it here. — (Laugher.)

"Mr. Preston hasn't any conception of political decency or public morality. Here is his letter as Commissioner of Imigration in which he expresses his preference for the foreign element rather than the British, and says it would be a good thing to plant two or three hundred of such families in close constituencies, with the view to controlling those constiuencies at election time. Evidently that is honorable in his yes. Evidenly the man is blind to all that is honorable.

"But I'll venture this statement, Mr. Preston, that you are the only man in this room who doesn't see anything wrong in it. It was the shameless misuse of the office by a man who was lost to all sense of shame from a political standpoint."

Referring to the West Elgin episode Dr. Edwards said:

"I ask you did you not collect money in St. Thomas to pay the expenses of four men to come there?

Mr. Preston—No.

Dr. Edwards—You said under oath you collected between $200 and $300 to pay their expenses.

Mr. Preston—I did nothing of the kind.

When Mr. Preston attempted to follow up this denial his words were lost in shouts of "Shut up," and "Sit down."

Dr. Edwards—I believe my statement will go against yours in connection with West Elgin. And I'll say this, I don't believe your explanation of the Southworth letter you would scatter families of foreigners throughout Ontario to pull mustard seed.

Dr. Edwards called attention to Mr. Preston's omission of a denial to the false advertisements put up in England during the 1917 election.

Mr. Preston—I hadn't time.

Dr. Edwards—You have got it now.

Mr. Preston, referring to Dr. Edwards' point—No; I didn't.

Dr. Edwards—Write to the Penryth "Observer" in Wales which contained the advertisement, and you will find it in another paper with Mr. Preston's name signed to it.

Mr. Preston—Who put it there?

Adjutants not Officials.

Dealing with Mr. Preston's charges of intimidation of soldiers overseas. Dr. Edwards said that an adjutant was not an election official.

"Unless Mr. Preston can show that an official was connected with some intimidation his statement does not amount to a hill of beans."

Touching upon Mr. Preston's profession of rectitude, Dr. Edwards said: "I have no doubt the Preston family tree is a fine one, indeed, except that part represented by this gentleman on the platform. Whatever his conduct in private life, and he may be a saint, in political matters he has no conception whatever of right or wrong, or of public morality."

FIRST DAY OF ARMS PARLEYS

through the arrival of Sir J. W. Salmond and George Foster Pearce, representatives of New Zealand and Australia, respectively.

The British Empire delegates were met at the station by Secretary of State, Hughes, General Pershing Admiral Coontz and other high officials and military officers. Late in the day they began a round of calls, going to the White House to pay their respects to President Harding and then calling on Secretaries Hughes, Weeks and Denby at their respective offices. Last night they were entertained at dinner at the British Embassy by Ambassador and Lady Geddes.

Before the series of official calls began Mr. Balfour received newspapermen and while chatting informally was asked his opinion as to the probable length of the conference.

"If we do not spin out the time in talk," he replied, "I see no reason why we should not finish the conference quickly. We have all come no doubt for work and although there is a good deal to do I am confident that we can do it quickly. Mr. Hughes with his talent for making a quick beginning, will no doubt assist in arranging the work so that we may get along rapidly with it. We have all heard a good deal of talk of the length of the Paris conference, but after all, when one thinks of the complexity of the questions considered there and the new maps that were made, it was not really so long. We have not so much work to do here but we have subjects of very deep importance for the future of the world."

G. A. BRETHEN IN NORWOOD

quoted from as proof that the government was more interested in the enrichment of the big interests than in the welfare of the masses. The Progressive movement, he said, is a revolt against this new influence in our public life. It is the one party before the people to-day that derives its whole support from the common people, is financed by them in small contributions and has no entangling alliances with predatory interests. In closing, Mr. Ellis presented much definite and concrete evidence to prove that the articles which the Progressive Party proposes to place on the free list can be produced as cheaply in Canada as elsewhere and that an all round reduction in the protective tariff would not be disastrous to any phase of the manufacturing industry—except excess profits.

The esteem in which Mr. Brethen is held in his own neighborhood, was proved by the warm applause which greeted his appearance in the hall at Norwood on his return from the Havelock meeting. As the hour was late, the candidate did not enter into a discussion of the Progressive platform, but he did express his sincere desire to serve well his country and the people of East Peterborough. "It is not what I can get out of politics that interests me," said he, "it is what I can put into politics and the service I can render to you and to Canada that concerns me most."

During the evening Mrs. F. E. Ellis, Peterborough, contributed a couple of vocal numbers, which were appreciated.

The speakers at the Havelock meeting discussed much the same issues as were placed before the electors of Norwood and, although the meeting lasted till a very late hour, Mr. Kennedy, not arriving from Norwood until after ten o'clock, there were very few who did not show sufficient interest to stay for the end.

REFUSAL OF SUBSIDY TO MINERS APPROVED.

LONDN, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Premier Lloyd-George's sympathetic but firm refusal to approve of a further State subsidy to the miners meets with a chorus of approval. Although the Premier uttered not a single sentence of reproach to the deputation that recently waited upon him with regard to the question, there are not a few critics to-day who tell the miners that the present undoubted hard straits of the experienced workers in many districts is largely due to the miners having been badly led by those whose actions meant playing with industry's prosperity.

Catarrh Of The Stomach Is Dangerous

"Thousands Have It and Don't Know It," Says Physician. Frequently Mistaken for Indigestion—How To Recognize and Treat.

"Thousands of people suffer more or less constantly from furred, coated tongue, bad breath, sour burning stomach, frequent vomiting, rumbling in stomach, bitter eructations, gas, wind and stomach acidity, and call it indigestion when in reality their trouble is due to gastric catarrh of the stomach," writes a New York physician.

Catarrh of the stomach is dangerous, because the mucous membrane lining of the stomach is thickened and a coating of phlegm covers the surface so that the digestive fluids cannot mix with the food and digest them. This condition soon breeds deadly disease in the fermented, unassimilated food. The blood is polluted and carries the infection throughout the body. Gastric ulcers are apt to form and frequently an ulcer is the first sign of a deadly cancer.

In catarrh of the stomach a good and safe treatment is to take before meals a teaspoonful of pure Bisurated Magnesia in half a glass of hot water as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water washes the mucous from the stomach walls and draws the blood to the stomach, while the Bisurated Magnesia is an excellent solvent for mucus and increases the efficiency of the hot water treatment. Moreover, the Bisurated Magnesia will serve as a powerful but harmless antacid which will neutralize any excess hydrochloric acid that may be in your stomach, and sweeten its food contents. Easy, natural digestion without distress of any kind should soon follow. Bisurated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless, pleasant, and easy to take, and can be obtained from any local druggist. Don't confuse Bisurated Magnesia with other forms of magnesia, milks, citrates, etc., but get it in the pure Bisurated form (powder or tablets), especially prepared for this purpose.

CANADA'S TRANSCONTINENTAL TRAIN MODEL OF EFFICIENCY AND SERVICE

A VERITABLE TRAVELLING HOTEL, AFFORDING PASSENGERS VIA THE CANADIAN NATIONAL ALL THE COMFORTS OF HOME IN COMPACT FORM.

The transcontinental train, with its half dozen glistening steel coaches, arrived this morning at the Grand Trunk station, where it will remain until 10 o'clock this evening. The train is equipped with a first-class day coach, colonist car, tourist and standard sleepers, a diner and a baggage coach, in which express parcels are also handled. Each of the coaches has been in service for the last two or three years, and were not built especially ror this trip, but simply to give the public a knowledge of the facilities afforded by the Canadian National in its service from Halifax to Vancouver. The general impression of the entire train is one of service and efficiency, combined with the most compact of equipment and luxurious fittings Plain concrete flooring prevails in the day coaches, with quiet green carpeting in the sleepers and diner, comfortable leather upholstering finishes the seats in the tourist and colonist cars, and green short-nap, dustless plush in the sleeper. The very latest devices in modern, up-to-date equipment are apparent on every side, from the vaporized heating system to the phophorus push-buttons.

Colonial Car.

Special attention is given to harvest and home-seekers' excursions and immigrant travel, as exemplified in the colonist car, where there are many conveniences for this class of patronage, including a kitchenette attended by the porter, who keeps the stove stoked at all times for hot water and cooking conveniences. Here are spaces also for the travellers' own dishes, food supplies, and here they may cook and bake, and prepare the meals which are later served on the little sliding tables attached to each double compartment.

Dining Car.

The dining car is elaborately fitted up with luxurious silver and linen appointments, with accommodations for 30 people. Quarter cut oak, soft carpeting, spotless linen, gleaming glassware, and the heavy Rogers' "Heirloom" silver make it a very attractive coach, with a curved buffet in the vestibule, where china is lodged behind leaded glass doors. The large pantry adjoining would delight the heart of any housewife. It would especially appeal to the heart of the apartment dweller, with its compact perfection and conveniences of all sorts, its individual lockers for every imaginable want, easily-cleaned copper floor, refrigerator system, its spotless porcelain and nickel fittings.

Wonderful Kitchen.

The kitchen has a wonderful coal range, narrow and effective, with separate covered compartment for keeping roasts, etc., in condition, with its double refrigerator, with slatted shelves for every want, miniature butcher shop where the fresh meat hangs suspended from hooks, special place for fish, its receptacles for dry sundries, for vegetables, ventilated beneath and special ice-cream chest.

In the vestibule, are wonderful linen lockers and the separate switchboards which keep every car entirely independent of its fellows. To supplement the heating system, also, there are installed the auxilary steam Baker heaters, for emergency use, there are electric fans everywhere, submerged lights to mark the seats at night when the overhead or 'deck' lights are dimmed in the sleepers, and, in the beautifully-appointed lavatories, there is open plumbing throughout, with sanitary arrangements carried out to the smallest detail, in the separate compartments for ice in the water tanks, in the filtered water, and the extra dental bowl at the wash basins.

Sleeping Comfort.

In the sleepers, nothing has been overlooked to provide for the comfort of patrons, down to an elongated ladder for upper- berths, double heavy curtains for ensuring privacy in lower berths, and the attachments which prevent falling out from the uppers.

The train, which has visited twenty-two towns, and will include twenty-four in its itinerary, which ends at Kingston, has been visited by over 60,000 people, exclusive of school-children. Mr. C. K. Howard, general tourist agent, is in charge, with Messrs. W. C. Potts, R. E. Richmond, and R. W. McGonegal, and carries four men in the dining car, a sleeping-car conductor with two porters, an electrician, and men to keep the train clean and engine in order.

The management of this train reported a great interest taken by the population of the towns passed through, and expressed its appreciation of the action of Mayor A. A. McIntyre and Council in closing King street to traffic for the occasion, a favor which aided materially in the parking of the train here.

COSTS MORE TO WORK MEN WEEK ABOUT

WAS DECLARATION OF A. G. DALZELL BEFORE LOCAL ENGINEERS

Last night's meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada was addressed by A. G. Dalzell, A.M.E.I.C., former Sewer Engineer for the City of Vancouver. He is now situated in Toronto, where he is in charge of the Vitrified Clay Pipe Publicity Bureau.

Mr. Dalzell's address was on "Some Experiences of an Engineer-Contractor in the Construction of 140 miles of sewers in Vancouver B.C." The first portion of his remarks was a discussion of the Asiatic problem in British Columbia and the part engineers should take in the solution of the very important situation. In Vancouver 18 per cent. of the population are Chinese, in Victoria, 24 per cent. and in British Columbia one person in every 28 is of Asiatic birth

Mr. Dalzell pointed out the mistakes that had been made in the location of cities in the West, more by the installation of sewerage systems had been made much more expensive than need be. Where the streets follow the contours of the ground the sewers remain at practically the same depth, thus lessening greatly the cost of construction.

Mr. Dalzell showed by a table of costs in construction of an actual sewer job that it costs twice as much to do work with a gang of men half working week about, than to use the same men all the time. This statement is very interesting in view of the City Council's decision to adopt this policy on sewer work the coming winter.

Mr. Dalzell used a large number of lantern slides in describing the construction of the sewerage system for Vancouver, and its various outfalls.

CHILDREN'S COUGHS QUICKLY RELIEVED

It is hard to keep the children from catching cold, they will run out doors not properly wrapped, or have too much clothing on, and get overheated and cool off too suddenly, they get their feet wet, kick off the clothes at night; the mother cannot watch them all the time so what is she going to do?

Mothers should never neglect the childrens' coughs or colds, but on the first sign should procure a bottle of——

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

It is pleasant and nice to take and relieves the cough or cold in a very short time, and thus prevents bronchitis, pneumonia, or perhaps consumption getting a foothold on their system.

Mrs. E. Smith, 288 Victoria Ave., North Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I have three children who have had very bad colds, due to change of climate. I have tried different remedies but I seem to get the best results from Dr. Wood's Pine Syrup. I have no difficulty in giving it to them as they like it. I always have at least one bottle in the house."

Price, 35c. and 60c a bottle at all dealers. Put up only by the T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DRAWINGS WHICH AFRICANS THOUGHT DIVINELY MADE

These Sketches Regarded as Preliminary to the Creative Plan

Recently Unearthed Designs from Southwest Africa

Figures of Men and Beasts Ascribed to the God Eloba

THESE crude drawings, made in the dim, unrecorded days of antiquity, may have told some story of the life at that time, but the natives of Southwest Africa declare that they were the building plans of Eloba, a careful god, who, to be perfectly certain in his handiwork, first made sketches on the walls of cliffs of the living things he desired to create. He was a good god besides being a modernly methodical deity. Archaeologists, however, find in these examples distinct signs of the leisure of ruling propertied class, and conclude that the art dwindled during the struggle of the people for existence, and declined at the coming of a new civilisation.

To these bushmen drawings Egyptian influence has often been ascribed. It is claimed that the whole art and style of the figures, together with the head-dress, and the high figure, are reminiscent of Egyptian paintings. This, in fact, will at once occur to the layman not fortified by special knowledge.

The bushmen are the primitive people of South Africa. Different characteristic signs in the drawings of the men's bodies show clearly that the present bushmen are very nearly related to the old bushmen; for example, the so-called grease padding, or "cushion," and the drawn-in lumbar regions.

This old, genuine bushmen race is now dying out. It is incorrect to designate as "bushmen" all those clear-colored natives that one meets today more or less scattered in the bush. Generally they are the hybrid descendants of the old race.

The genuine little bushman, despised and hated by the other natives, and driven out of his own region, took refuge in the thick thorn bush, carrying on his wretched existence in arid waste districts. He only exists in small numbers now and is seldom seen by Europeans.

Only sometimes when a sportsman has brought down his game by a well aimed shot he finds himself suddenly surrounded by little yellow-brown people who appear as if they grew out of the ground. The expectation of fresh, easily-acquired flesh brings them.

Among these folk the sportsman may find some genuine bushmen whose ancestors once spread all over South Africa as far as the Zambesi, and who painted pictures everywhere over the whole country, in caves and on high rocky walls.

Civilization has made little apparent progress among the natives of South Africa since the degree reached by the aborigines.

The Hottentots, among others, are also credited with the origin of the paintings, although they themselves deny knowledge of them. The Hottentot has undoubted skill in representing human life. The children make clay models of animals and human figures as playthings, and show considerable gifts of sharp observation and some aptness in modelling.

Also the grease padding shown in the painted figures is characteristic of the Hottentots as well as of the bushmen; indeed, it is often supposed that the Hottentots and the bushmen are descended from the same primitive race.

The pictures are generally painted in bright or dark red, but are occasionally colored violet, yellow, brown or white. The colors are only with difficulty soluble with water, and it is thought that by being so weather-proof they have protected the cliffs from decomposition.

The bushmen artists obtained their colors from the earth. The white is chalk; the red comes from peroxide of iron. The human figures, which are always drawn with great vivacity, show the bodily structure most distinctly.

The clothing was very primitive; a skin apron seems to have been worn as a luxury. The coiffure in the paintings is now an obsolete form of head-dress. The weapons—bows, arrow and quiver—are clearly shown.

It is easy to recognize a certain similarity between the animals portrayed and those of the cave-dwellers of Europe. Among the pictures are some marked with a cross, showing curious beings—half animal, half man—human limbs with animal heads. Probably this is a legendary beast belonging to bushman fable. But these shapes were fashioned so long, long ago that in the folk stories surviving today there is no discernible word of them.

Significant Facts About SPEED

ALL ideas of speed are really comparative, and to grasp the point we must see the difference. If one second is taken as a unit of time, we may compare speeds and learn many interesting points. In this second a snail crawls one-half a line, while electricity jumps 250,000 miles. Light travels 186,000 miles a second, and in that time the earth has revolved around the sun only 19 miles, but at the equator the earth has turned on its axis 480 yards, precisely the speed of a cannon ball.

When you go out for a leisurely walk you cover 3½ feet a second, and a horse walks four feet, but if you walk very rapidly you may cover 6 2-3 feet. A horse trots ordinarily 11½ feet a second, just a little slower than a gentle breeze blows, its rate being 13 feet. A horse gallops 15 feet a second, and river steamers go but 15 feet in this time.

A sailboat, in a good breeze, goes at an average rate of nine yards. The ocean steamer covers 11 in this time, and can easily be outdistanced by a skater, who glides along at the rate of 13 yards.

A freight train passes a point at the rate of 13 yards and is easily overtaken by a storm, which rushes on at the rate of 19 yards, almost as fast as the famous English parliamentary train, which travels 20 yards a second, precisely the rate of flight of a carrier pigeon.

The racing bicycle travels 22 yards and the race horse about 27. The ordinary express train covers 28 yards, but the swallow goes almost twice as fast, 50 yards, in that time.

A rifle ball would hit you long before you heard the sound of the shot, for sound travels about 360 yards a second, while the breech-loading rifle ball goes at the speed of 470 yards.

Why Poisonous ALCOHOL Makes You Feel "Good"

EVEN if you are given to the use of strong drink as a polite social custom and know something of its stimulation, you will probably be unable to tell why it makes you feel "good"—a palpable misuse of a very respectable word, by the way.

When a man introduces an alcoholic drink into his system the vasamotor nerve fibres are excited, whereby the blood pressure in the arteries rises, while, at the same time, the arteries dilate and there results an increased supply of blood to the brain and heart. Hence comes the feeling of warmth and well-being which follows strong drink, though the effect of alcohol in quantity is to lower rather than to raise the temperature of the body by its dilation of the blood vessels of the skin.

The period of stimulation is ordinarily followed by one of depression, when the circulation becomes slower instead of quicker. A genius who has figured how the strong drink, which experts have declared to be food, under certain conditions, can be harmonized with the regular gustatory processes, points out that the real diet can be so arranged that the alcoholic depression may correspond to the hours of sleep.

In the mean time the stimulant will probably have done its work by increasing the appetite, and, in some small measure, assisting digestion.

As to the form in which it should be taken, it has been shown that wine and beer contain, in varying quantities, extractive matters which retard, although it does not follow that they thereby injuriously affect, digestion, while spirits, when diluted, do not.

The quantity which ordinary persons can take with advantage is said to be two ounces of whiskey a day. But, after all has been said—after we have assimilated the opinions of experts and interested observers, who have approached the subject as the big problem, which it really is—why should we build up an elaborate system to enable us to do what we would be safer without doing?

Even if whiskey is a food—how the newspapers did have fun when the United States expert, Prof. Atwater of Wesleyan, announced the fact about 12 years ago!—there are a great many edibles in the world richer in the promise and in the giving of benefits.

For if whiskey is a food, it is also a rank poison—you need no scientific demonstration to prove that while you have eyes in your head. And what man, sure in his control of himself, and drinking the stuff, can tell when he will make a miscalculation and go over the poison line?

The Methuselah of MONKEYS

HERE is the Methuselah of apeman, who, to those interested in the Darwinian theory, will afford an interesting study. He is quite a distinguished personage of his kind and, in this picture, at least, possesses unmistakable dignity. He is senile, say the authorities of the Amsterdam zoo, where he is spending his remaining days, and is believed to be of "immense age."

The Oldest Orang-Outang Who Lives in the Amsterdam Zoo

Naturalists tell us that one of the vital differences between the human and the simian is that the latter is incapable of any sustained mental effort; that the mind is easily diverted and naturally jumps from one thing to another. Kipling entertainingly illustrates this in his story of the bandar-log.

But this orang-outang looks like a coherent, deep thinker, with the introspective look of the scientist or the philosopher. There is many a man who thinks he plays an important part in the operation of the universe who has less forehead and whose face is less marked by mentality. Senility, indeed, seems to have invested this old man of the woods with a touch of the human.

He is a gift to the zoo from the Sultan of Serdang and must have had his home either in Borneo or Sumatra. This particular species is restricted to these islands. Look at the old man, exiled from the freedom of his tropical paradise, from the free life in the open with its joy of existence, searching the green, tangled ways for fruits; and the thrill of the headlong flight when the terrible enemy, man, appeared. A sympathetic English writer who recently contemplated the interesting face wrote:

"Now he languishes behind prison bars, gaped at by the curious, doomed to a life of dread and monotony until released by death. But when the crowd has gone and the gates are closed, like the exiled Highlanders who still 'in dreams behold the Hebrides,' perhaps he, too, in his sleep roams once more the forest-clad ranges of his island home, exulting in his visionary freedom until the dawn of another dreary day."

But if the old chap can thus visualize, even in his dreams, he may have sufficient intelligence to know and also to find some consolation in the fact that he has the friendship of thousands of admiring young Hollanders and visitors to the city who have heard of his fame.

Big Freighters for SEA SERVICE

THE size of both passenger and freight steamers is steadily increasing, and, according to present indications, there is no telling to what size these monsters of the sea will attain. The passenger ship is now a floating city hotel sky-scraper, even to the elevator system, and now that eminent experts in such matters have declared that the increase in size of freight carriers is accompanied by a corresponding reduction of the cost of operation, we confidently may look forward to the building of monster freighters.

Before the Association of Civil Engineers, recently, Alexander Gracie brought forward these interesting figures: A cargo vessel 400 feet long and weighing 3700 tons will carry 4000 tons of cargo 3000 miles on a consumption of 500 tons of coal. Each hundred tons of cargo will involve 92½ tons of structural material and 12½ tons of coal per voyage.

In a vessel 500 feet long, weighing 8700 tons, each 100 tons of cargo will require only 77½ tons of ship and eight tons of fuel.

SURGERY as It Was in the STONE AGE

THE savants of the Five Academies in Paris arrive at the conclusion that prehistoric man was so far skilled in surgery as to perform the rather serious operation of trepanning. There is no record of the success of their work, to be sure, but that they really operated is attested by the holes found in skulls that have survived from previous ages. A skull thus perforated has been found among the remains of the cave men. They are numerous among the vestiges of the ancient Gauls, as well as those of the aboriginal American.

Evidently the instrument which served the prehistoric surgeon was a sharpened flint. His dexterity in using it may be surmised from his proficiency in an art now lost, the art of producing fire by rotating flint instruments. That unusual skill was not required in trepanning has been shown by a French surgeon who succeeded in perforating a skull neatly in thirty-five minutes with a flint that had not been especially sharpened. The operation is performed by many savage tribes to-day for the cure of headache and epilepsy, the avowed purpose being to let out the spirit which causes the pain. Probably such was the purpose of the prehistoric surgeon.

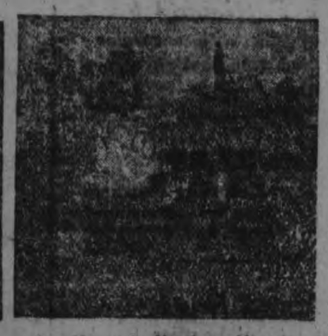
It is a rather curious anomaly in the eyes of the scientists that trepanning was apparently unknown among the most enlightened of the ancients, notably the Greeks. Nor does it seem to be practised among the aboriginal Africans of to-day.

SKY-SCRAPERS That Are Built by ANTS

WHILE architectural commissions are discussing the limitations of the height of modern sky-scrapers, and while individuals and cities are wont to declare loudly the genius of man that dares the stars in these giant structures, it may be humbling—but it will be none the less instructive—to learn that man, the great achiever, has only trailed along in the wake of the little ant. For the ant is the pioneer in the building of "skyscraping" abodes.

Huge Ant Hill Near the Belgian Congo

Section of an Ant Heap



Ant Heaps in Northern Nigeria

The average height of the room in a man-made sky-scraper is about 10 feet, and the maximum height is 51 stories, including the tower. Estimate a 20-foot high ant house on a scale of the relation of the height of structure to the height of the occupants. Given the height of the ant at one-eighth of an inch, his big house would have the estimated height of 810 stories. There is no structure in the world reared by the hand of man which, compared with his stature, can even remotely approach the marvellous work of the ant.

Actual count of the chambers in one of these giant ant's nests, however, will fail to disclose a multiplicity of stories. The section here shown will give an excellent idea of the general structure and arrangement of the chambers. A finely built apartment house, it must be admitted, and it may be of further interest to know that some of these ants, being of epicurean taste, live upon the best mushrooms obtainable, and the fact that, when failing in this particular edible, they take with little less relish fine, fat toadstools, does not alter the joy or the duration of life.

Henri Jumelle and H. Perier de la Bathie have found that the very young larvae live upon the mushroom filaments, which the workers triturate for them. When the larvae are a little older they consume the filaments directly. The adults and the almost fully grown larvae eat the substance of the fungus—at any rate its clear yellow part.

Most ants live in chambered nests of very varied construction, from simple heaps of loose material to houses of more or less elaborate design, sometimes reaching 20 feet in height. The "sky-scrapers" here shown are a typical ant structure in Nigeria and another giant one of totally different construction from the Belgian Congo, where they are numerous. A great variety of choice ferns and begonia plants grow on these houses, natural models for the artificial roof gardens of our civilization, and in many cases they are covered with bamboo 30 feet high.

The Congo house is 77 yards in circumference and the trees on the top are over 20 feet high. Its great size will be apparent on comparing it with the man standing at the bottom. Take a good look at the section of one of these community houses, with its marvellously complex but orderly arrangement of chambers and galleries.

It has been known for a long time that ants which live near toadstools get their food from them. Similar facts have recently been discovered connected with insects of a very different class—the termites—singular and very industrious beings in spite of their heavy and rather foolish appearance.

In Madagascar there are three sorts of termites—those which construct on the hills, those which build on the trees, and those which erect their homes on the borders of the forest. The forest ones make cones of mould from one metre to 1.20 metres (three to four feet) high.

Under a heavy bed of earth there are about 20 irregular rooms varying from eight to ten centimetres (three inches). Most of these chambers are filled with what one may call stacks of toadstools or mushrooms, that is to say, agglomerations of little, tender, moist granules. They are the debris of dead wood that the termites find in the rainy season, going out by the subterranean passages that spread all round their cone-shaped home.

They transform the wood into little pellets by passing it through their digestive tubes.

On the yellow and black parts of these pellets there are threads of mushrooms crossing over and over one another till they make a close but very thin covering.

When the termitarium has just been evacuated, which can easily be effected by cutting down the tree that shelters it, for the termites hate the sun, filaments appear standing upright all over the former smooth-shaven mushroom. This result never takes place where the termites are still in their nest, so that it is evidently due to their presence that the mushroom retains its shaven appearance.

No explanation has yet been offered except that it must be the workers exclusively who would be capable of maintaining the shaven form. In a nest from which all the workers had gone, and which yet held soldiers, males, queens and larvae, the mushroom would take its growing form of external fungus growth. This would soon mean the death of the whole colony.

And while the ant stands as a continual inspiration to achieving man, this latter natural history detail brings to us one of the most salutary lessons. No fungus growth may thrive so as to threaten the very life of our organization while the tireless, effective workers are on the job.

Children Who Live in the Fairyland of Riches

The rich child always misses the supreme joy of building his dream world. His fairyland comes to him ready made, with all the modern improvements and far more full of wonders than any which "real fairies" could devise. The child for whom millions are rolling together while he plays and while he sleeps knows nothing of the joy of contrast.

He knows no unfilled desire. There is no planning necessary to accomplish the longing nearest his heart. His wishes come true before his mind forms them. The palaces of which the poor child dreams are real to him. He lives in one.

The make-believe motor car or the "choo-choo" cars are to him tangible everyday things. He takes his outings in one and in the other he makes his journeys between his town mansion and his country villa.

The fun of fastening a bit of rag to a shingle and blowing it across a mud-puddle, which has become a magic ocean with big, dashing waves, is denied him. But in its place he has a very neat and complete little boat which he sails on the pond in the park while linguistic governesses watch and counsel.

And Yet Like Other Children.

Yet these millionaire youngsters are exactly like other children. They have the same interest in life—in fact, their interest in things of every day existence seems quickened and sharpened by luxury.

Central Park is the New York playground of the children of the wealthy. Along the mall they gather every pleasant day and romp and laugh and squeal in the abandonment of joy which marks the play of all healthy young creatures. It would be interesting to compute the millions which are represented by these rich kiddies.

For example, there is John Rockefeller Prentice, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Parmelee Prentice, and the grandson of the world's richest man, John D. Rockefeller.

Rockefeller's Grandchildren.

Young "Jack" Prentice is now 12 years old. He is quite like any other boy of his age, full of life and interested in all sports which boys usually like. He knows a bit about baseball. He has more or less of an inventive mind and he has the faculty of understanding all about mechanical toys after he has looked them over in the calm way which he possesses, for he has remarkable poise for one of his years.

He has a good physique and can run and throw a ball and wrestle and do a lot of athletic stunts which make him quite a hero with his "pals." His mother was Alta Rockefeller. He has a young sister Mary, who frequently accompanies him in the park. Sometimes the two meet their cousins, Babette and John D. Rockefeller, 3d, and Nelson, who are the children of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Isabel and Avery and Winifred, who are the three eldest children of Percy Rockefeller, the son of William Rockefeller, and then there is a big and jolly play spell.

The onlooker who does not know their identity would never dream that the group of plainly dressed and rosy-cheeked children, looking so exactly like any other comfortably well-to-do "kids," were the scions of the most fabulous fortune in the whole wide world.

One of the most natural children imaginable is young Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt, the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt. She is plump and hearty looking, with roguish, twinkling eyes and cheeks like roses. Ever since she was a baby she has spent most of her life in the open. Nearly all her time is passed at her father's splendid farm at Newport, where she has ponies to ride and drive and a regular menagerie of cats and dogs and chickens and birds.

She loves the outdoor life. She shows it in the way in which she breathes in the air and by the vigor of her play. Each year since she was 3 or 4 years old—she is now 10—Cathleen Vanderbilt has been one of the most regular attendants at the New York horse show, where she has entertained matinee parties of children in her father's box.

Charming Vanderbilt Miss.

Little Miss Grace Vanderbilt is developing out of the children's class and becoming quite a grown-up young lady. She is 15 years old and tall for her age and has the most charming of manners. She is the daughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt.

After all, despite the fact that these are the children of the rich, and that all that wealth can buy is showered upon them, it has not robbed them of their childhood.

They have the most original and surprising viewpoint of life, often much simpler than that taken by poor children. And their ambitions are often so entirely out of any ratio to the place which will involuntarily be theirs that they are most amusing.

As an example of their idea of "what they would like to be when they grow up" may be cited the case of young William Astor, who on his recent visit to New York told everybody he met to call him "Bill" and said he wanted to become a good carpenter.

RICHARD HALL & SON

BABY HUSBANDS WILL BE EDUCATED

Wisconsin Also Sends the Younger Brides to School.

SUPERIOR, Wis., November 10.—There will soon be no excuse for a Wisconsin husband to have his pancakes burned or to have his socks unmended for lack of knowledge of such domestic problems on the part of his wife. The state of Wisconsin is going to be sure that all wives are properly educated.

Under the new state educational code, girls and boys must attend a school until they reach the age of eighteen years. Marrying before that age is reached does not constitute a reason for the discontinuing of one's education. And the law is being enforced.

Orders have been given to the truant officers to bring in any and all delinquent "baby brides" and "baby husbands."

The school system under the law, provides both day and evening classes, which include vocational training in addition to the regular curriculum. And whether the girl or boy be married at a tender age or not, he or she must attend school until the specified age of 18 is attained.

"Baby brides and husbands must atend one or another of these schools," declared the head of the system recently, when discussing the matter. "We offer training especially fitted for them, including cooking, sewing and other household arts for the girls and various trades for the boys.

"And we are going to see that the law is enforced."

DUMB FOR FIVE MONTHS, ANSWERS JUDGE'S QUERY

RUTHERFORD, N.J., Nov. 11.—"Right here," said Walter Boas, skipper of the barge Danaga, when asked by Judge Fake to point out on a model of his boat just where he was standing when a Lehigh Valley tug hit it.

Mrs. Boas fell in a faint. Court proceedings came to a stop. Every one stared in amazement at the barge skipper. Since May 9, when his barge was in the collision, he has been speechless because of an injury to his spine which for weeks deprived him also of the use of his limbs. The words he uttered in reply to the court's question were the first he had spoken in more than five months.

All the preceding questions put to him in the course of his suit against the Lehigh Valley Railroad had been answered in writing. Dr. Howard Cooper, his physician, is of the opinion that Boas's vocal power had been returning gradually and in the excitment of seeing the model boats at the point of collision the restoration became complete.

FORMER MACK SENNETT BEAUTY ASKS $500,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.— Gladys Reed, once a Mack Sennett bathing beauty, and a few months ago the toast of Panama City as a dancer, has filed suit against Roberto Heurmatte, of Panama and New York, for $500,000, charging that his failure to marry her broke her heart and shattered her health.

Heurematte, now living at 420 Riverside drive, is reputed to be a millionaire.

Miss Reid, fresh from the triumphs of a South American tour, was charming Panama City a year ago when she says Heurematte, just twice her years, was introduced to her and wooed her so impetuously that in five weeks they were engaged.

"It seems significant now," she said, "that although he gave me costly presents, an engagement ring was not among them." When she came to New York she learned Heurematte was married.

CIVIL WAR RELICS UNDER WINCHESTER, VA., STREET.

WINCHESTER, Va., November 11, — Workmen cutting down a "hump" in a street have unearthed here a large number of Civil War relics, including many minie balls, a canteen and buttons from Confederate and Union uniforms. Veterans said they did not regard the find as extraordinary in view of the fact that no town North or South saw more actual warfare than did Winchester, taken and retaken 80 times during the conflict. The relics will be placed in the school museum.

LANDRU'S RELATIONS MERELY COMMERCIAL.

VERSAILLES, November 11 (Canadian Press). — That the relations between Henri Landru, "Bluebeard of Gambais," and his victims, were merely commercial, that he purchased furniture and other articles from them and then they went out of his life, is the line of defence adopted by the accused. When asked by jurors to enlighten the jury about the missing women, Landry replied, "I am a furniture dealer—not a detective or an assassin."

SERVICES FOR HARA.

TOKIO, November 11 (Canadian Press). — Services in connection with the funeral of the late Premier Hara were held in the Temple at Morioka yesterday, where great crowds gathered, and the procession which followed the body to the grave was more than a mile long.

The name of Finance Minister Koretiyo Takahashi figures prominently in the speculation regarding the Premiership.

ALPHABETICAL PRECEDENCE IN SEATING DELEGATES

WASHINGTON, Nov 11.—(Canadian Press).— When the delegates assemble in Continental Hall Saturday morning for the first session of the armament conference they will be seated according to what is known as "Alphabetical precedence.'

After delivering his address President Harding, who will have the United States delegates grouped about him in the centre of the Main Section, will retire, leaving Secretary of State Hughes at the centre of the group, which position he will occupy as President of the Conference. The British and French delegates will sit on the right of the United States delegates.

The life of a girl in the jungle, with lions and other wild animals as her only companions, and then in contact with the hypocrisy of civilized society, is told in "A Virgin Paradise," the William Fox special, which is coming direct from New York to the Allen Theatre next Monday.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

WILL. SHAKESPEARE once said: "What's in a name? A rose by any other name would smell as sweet." Now, we think a whole lot of Bill, and admire his works tremendously, but we take issue with him on the truth of the statement just quoted.

Not long ago, when you bought flour or soda crackers or meat, you just simply asked for so much of those articles, but to-day—you are careful to specify by name the particular kind of meat, or whatever it may be that you want.

Buyers generally are gradually coming to the point where they want to know what kind of meat they are buying. They realize that there is as much difference between good meat and poor meat as between a genuine dollar bill and a counterfeit. They know that such expressions as NEW CENTRE are meaningless unless backed by a reputable name.

"BULL-DOG DRUMMOND"

BY "SAPPER" (CYRIL McNEILE)

"It's in the lumber-room, sir—tied up with the old humbrella and the niblick you don't like."

"Great heavens! Is it?" Drummond helped himself to marmalade. "And to think that I once pictured myself skewering Huns with it. Do you think any-body would be mug enough to buy it, James?"

But that worthy was engrossed in a letter he had just opened, and apparently failed to hear the question. A perplexed look was spreading over his face, and suddenly he sucked his teeth loudly. It was a sure sign that James was excited, and though Drummond had almost cured him of this distressing habit, he occasionally forgot himself in moments of stress.

His master glanced up quickly, and removed the letter from his hands. "I'm surprised at you, James," he remarked severely. "A secretary should control itself. Don't forget that the perfect secretary is an it: an automatic machine—a thing incapable of feeling. . . ."

He read the letter through rapidly, and then, turning back to the beginning, he read it slowly through again.

"My dear Box X10,—I don t know whether your advertisement was a joke: I suppose it must have been. But I read it this morning, and it's just possible, X10, just possible, that you mean it. And if you do, you're the man I want. I can offer you excitement and probably crime.

"I'm up against it, X10. For a girl I've bitten off rather more than I can chew. I want help—badly. Will you come to the Carlton for tea to-morrow afternoon? I want to have a look at you and see if I think you are genuine. Wear a white flower in your buttonhole."

Drummond laid the letter down, and pulled out his cigarette-case. "To-morrow, James," he murmured. "That is to-day—this very afternoon. Verily I believe that we have impinged upon the goods." He rose and stood looking out of the window thoughtfully. "Go out, my trusty fellow, and buy me a daisy or a cauliflower or something white."

"You think it's genuine, sir?" said James thoughtfully.

His master blew out a cloud of smoke. "I know it is," he answered dre mily. "Look at that writing; the decision in it—the character. She'll be medium height, and dark, with the sweetest little nose and mouth. Her colouring, James, will be——"

II

At four o'clock exactly Hugh Drummond stepped out of his two-seater at the Haymarket entrance to the Carlton. A white gardenia was in his buttonhole; his grey suit looked the last word in exclusive tailoring. For a few moments after entering the hotel he stood at the top of the stairs outside the dining-room, while his eyes travelled round the tables in the lounge below.

A brother-officer, evidently taking two country cousins round London, nodded resignedly; a woman at whose house he had danced several times smiled at him. But save for a courteous bow he took no notice; slowly and thoroughly he continued his search. It was early, of course, yet, and she might not have arrived, but he was taking no chances.

Suddenly his eyes ceased wandering, and remained fixed on a table at the far end of the lounge. Half hidden behind a plant a girl was seated alone, and for a moment she looked straight at him. Then with the faintest suspicion of a smile, she turned away, and commenced drumming on the table with her fingers.

The next table to her was unoccupied, and Drummond made his way towards it and sat down. It was characteristic of the man that he did not hesitate; having once made up his mind to go through with a thing, he was in the habit of going and looking neither to the right hand nor to the left. Which, incidentally, was how he got his D.S.O.; but that, as Kipling would say, is another story.

He felt not the slightest doubt in his mind that this was the girl who has written him, and, having given an order to the waiter, he started to study her face as unobstrusively as possible. He could only see the profile, but that was quite sufficient to make him bless the moment when more as a jest than anything else he had sent his advertisement to the paper.

Her eyes, he could see, were very blue; and great masses of golden brown hair coiled over her ears, from under a small black hat. He glanced at her feet—being an old stager; she was perfectly shod. He glanced at her hands, and noted, with approval, the absence of any ring. Then he looked once more at her face, and found her eyes were fixed on him.

This time she did not look away. She seemed to think that it was her turn to conduct the examination, and Drummond turned to his tea while the scrutiny continued. He poured himself out a cup, and then fumbled in his waistcoat pocket. After a moment he found what he wanted, and taking out a card he propped it against the teapot so that the girl could see what was on it. In large block capitals he had written Box X10. Then he added milk and sugar and waited.

She spoke almost at once. "You'll do, X10," she said, and he turned to her with a smile.

"It's very nice of you to say so," he murmured. "If I may, I will return the compliment. So will you."

She frowned slightly. "This isn't foolishness, you know. What I said in my letter is literally true."

"Which makes the compliment even more returnable,' he answered. "If I am to embark on a life of crime, I would sooner collaborate with you than—shall we say—that earnest eater over there with the tomato in her hat.'

He waved vaguely at the lady in question and then held out his cigarette-case to the girl. "Turkish on this side—Virginian on that," he remarked. ap"And as Ipear satisfactory, will you tell me who I'm to murder?"

With the unlighted cigarette held in her fingers she stared at him gravely. "I want you to tell me," she said at length, and there was no trace of jesting in her voice, "tell me, on your word of honour, whether that advertisement was bona fide or a joke."

He answered her in the same vein. "It started more or less as a joke. It may now be regarded as absolutely genuine."

She nodded as if satisfied. 'Are you prepared to risk your life?"

Drummond's eyebrows went up and then he smiled. "Granted that the inducement is sufficient," he returned slowly, "I think that I may say that I am."

She nodded again. "You won't be asked to do it in order to obtain a half-penny bun," she remarked. "If you've a match, I would rather like a light."

Drummond apologised. "Our talk on trivialities engrossed me for the moment," he murmured. He held the lighted match for her, and as he did so he saw that she was staring over his shoulder at someone behind his back.

"Don't look round," she ordered "and tell me your name quickly."

"Drummond — Captain Drummond, late of the Loamshires." He leaned back in his chair, and lit a cigarette himself.

"And are you going to Henley this year?" Her voice was a shade louder than before.

"I don't know," he answered casually. "I may run down for a day possibly, but——'

"My dear Phyllis,' said a voice behind his back, "this is a pleasant surprise. I had no idea that you were in London."

A tall, clean-shaven man stopped beside the table, throwing a keen glance at Drummond.

"The world is full of such surprises, isn't it?" answered the girl lightly. 'I don't suppose you know Captain Drummond, do you? Mr. Lakington—art connoisseur and—er—collector.'

Tie two men bowed slightly, and Mr Lakington smiled. 'I do not remember ever having my harmless pastimes more concisely described," he remarked suavely. "Are you interested in such matters?"

"Not very, I'm afraid," answered Drummond. "Just recently I have been rather too busy to pay much attention to art.

The other man smiled again, and it struck Hugh that rarely, if ever, had he seen such a cold, merciless face.

"Of course, you've been in France," Lakington murmured. "Unfortunately a bad heart kept me on this side of the water. One regrets it in many ways—regrets it immensely. Sometimes I cannot help thinking how wonderful it must have been to be able to kill without fear of consequences. There is art in killing, Captain Drummond—profound art. And as you know, Phyllis," he turned to the girl, "I have always been greatly attracted by anything requiring the artistic touch." He looked at his watch and sighed. "Alas! I must tear myself away. Are you returning home this evening?"

The girl, who had been glancing round the restaurant, shrugged her shoulders. "Probably," she answered. "I haven't quite decided. I might stop with Aunt Kate."

"Fortunate Aunt Kate." With a bow Lakington turned away, and through the glass Drummond watched him get his hat and stick from the cloakroom. Then he looked at the girl, and noticed that she had gone a little white.

"What's the matter, old thing?" he asked quickly. 'Are you feeling faint?"

She shook her head, and gradually the colour came back to her face. "I'm quite all right," she answered. "It gave me rather a shock that man finding us here."

"On the face of it, it seems a harmless occupation," said Hugh.

"On the face of it, perhaps," she said. "But that man doesn't deal with face values." With a short laugh she turned to Hugh. "You've stumbled right into the middle of it, my friend, rather sooner than I anticipated. That is one of the men you will probably have to kill. . . .'

DRIVING HOME HIS POINT

President Harding delivering his epochal address on the negro question at the Birmingham (Ala.) Semi-Centennial Celebration.

Her companion lit another cigarette. "There is nothing like straightforward candour," he grunted. "Except that I disliked his face and his manner, I must admit that I saw nothing about him to necessitate my going to so much trouble. What is his particular worry?'

'First and foremost the brute wants to marry me," replied the girl.

"I loathe being obvious," said Hugh, "but I am not surprised."

"But it isn't that that matters," she went on. "I wouldn't marry him even to save my life." She looked at Drummond quietly. "Henry Lakington is the second most dangerous man in England."

"Only the second," murmured Hugh "Then hadn't I better start my new career with the first?"

She looked at him in silence. "I suppose you think that I'm hysterical," she remarked after a while. "You're probably even wondering whether I'm all there.'

Drummond flicked the ash from his cigarette, then he turned to her dispassionately. "You must admit," he remarked, "that up to now our conversation has hardly proceeded along conventional lines. I am a complete stranger to you; another man who is a complete stranger to me speaks to you while we're at tea. You inform me that I shall probably have to kill him in the near future. The statement is, I think you will agree, a trifle disconcerting."

The girl threw back her head and laughed merrily. "You poor young man," she cried; "put that way it does sound alarming." Then she grew serious again. "There's plenty of time for you to back out now if you like. Just call the waiter, and ask for my bill. We'll say good-bye, and the incident will finish."

She was looking at him gravely as she spoke, and it seemed to her companion that there was an appeal in the big blue eyes. And they were very big: and the face they were set in was very charming—especially at the angle it was tilted at, in the half-light of the room. Altogether, Drummond reflected, a most adorable girl. And adorable girls had always been a hobby of his. Probably Lakington possessed a letter of hers or something, and she wanted him to get it back. Of course he would, even if he had to thrash the swine to within an inch of his life.

"Well!" The girl's voice cut into his train of thought and he hurriedly rallied himself together.

'The last thing I want is for the incident to finish," he said fereVntly. "Why—it's only just begun."

"Then you'll help me?"

"That's what I'm here for." With a smile Drummond lit another cigarette. "Tell me all about it.'

"The trouble,' she began after a moment, "is that there is not very much to tell. At present it is largely guesswork, and guesswork without much of a clue. However, to start with, I had better tell you what sort of men you are up against. Firstly, Henry Lakington—he man who spoke to me. He was, I believe, one of the most brilliant scientists who has ever been up at Oxford. There was nothing in his own line, which would not have been open to him, had he run straight. But he didn't. He deliberately chose to turn his brain to crime. Not vulgar, common sorts of crime—but the big things, calling for a master criminal. He has always had enough money to allow him to take his time over any coup—to perfect his details. And that's what he loves. He regards a crime as an ordinary man regards a complicated business deal—a thing to be looked at and studied from all angles, a thing to be treated as a mathematical problem. He is quite unscrupulous; he is only concerned in pitting himself against the world and winning."

"An engaging fellah," said Hugh. "What particular form of crime does he favour?"

"Anything that calls for brain, iron nerve, and refinement of detail," she answered. "Principally, up to date, burglary on a big scale, and murder."

"My dear soul!" said Hugh incredulously. "How can you be sure? And why d n't you tell the police?"

She smiled wearily. "Because I've got no proof, and even if I had . . ." She gave a little shudder, and left her sentence unfinished. "But one day, my father and I were in his house, and, by accident, I got into a room I'd never been in before. It was a strange room, with two large safes let into the wall and steel bars over the skylight in the ceiling. There wasn't a window, and the floor seemed to be made of concrete. And the door was covered with curtains, and was heavy to move—almost as if it was steel or iron. On the desk in the middle of the room lay some miniatures, and, without thinking, I picked them up and looked at them. I happen to know something about miniatures, and, to my horror, I recognised them." She paused for a moment as a waiter went by their table.

"Do you remember the theft of the celebrated Vatican miniatures belonging to the Duke of Melbourne?"

Drummond nodded; he was beginning to feel interested.

"They were the ones I was holding in my hand," she said quietly. "I knew them at once from the description in the papers. And just as I was wondering what on earth to do, the man himself walked into the room."

"Awkward — deuced awkw rd." Drummond pressed out his cigarette and leaned forward expectantly. "Wh t did he do?"

"Absolutely nothing," said the girl. "That's what made it so awful."

' 'Admiring my treasures?' he remarked. 'Pretty things, aren't they?' I couldn't speak a word: I just put them back on the table.

FAKE PROBED IN GAS HOLDUP

Oil Station Manager is Held After He Reports Robbers Took $150.

DETROIT, Nov. 11.—Following a report that a lone armed man had held up the Standard Oil station at Lafayette boulevard and Eighteenth street and escaped with $150, police arrested Harry Rogers, 28 years old, 305 Canfield avenue east, the station manager. Police are holding him for investigation at the Trumbull avenue station.

Officers failed to find tracks in the snow around the station and were told by people who were near the station that no one had been seen to leave it at the time of the reported holdup.

Two men walked into the Standard Oil Company gasoline station at Woodword and Ralston avenues last night and held up Thomas Morris, 660 Temple avenue, the station manager. While one of the men held a revolver to Morris' head the other opened a safe and took $100.

The two robbers drove north on Woodward avenue and Morris, following them out of the station endeavored to get passing motorists to give chase. The drivers of three cars refused.

Wearing a mark "Private Detective" and carrying a revolver, Harry Burns, 42 years old, the Gratiot Hotel, was arrested on Gratiot Avenue between Hastings and Maple streets. Arrested with Burns was Charlie Stull, colored, 21 years old 2717 Hastings street. Both men are charged with robbery armed.

Police say the two answer the description of two bandits who have held up several pedestrians during the last few weeks and that they have already been identified as the men who held up the proprietor of the Wisconsin Hotel, 2114 Brush street, two weeks ago and assaulted him.

Doctor at 82 Finds Mothers Prefer His Formula to New-Fangled Salts And Coal Tar Remedies for Babies

Judgment of 1892 vindicated by world's approval of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, a simple vegetable compound for constipation—So safe, thousands give it to babes in arms—Now has largest sale in the world.

WHEN a man is in the 83rd year of his age, as I am, there are certain things he has learned that only time can teach him. The basis of treating sickness has not changed since I left Medical College in 1875, nor since I placed on the market the laxative prescription I had used in my practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin.

Then the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of my Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other mild laxative herbs with pepsin.

Recently new medicines have been brought out for constipation that contain calomel, which is mercury, salts of various kinds, minerals, and coal tar. These are all drastic purges, many of them dangerous, and the medical profession is warning the public against them. Certain coal tar products will depress the heart; certain salts give rise to intestinal poisoning, impaction and rupture of the intestines. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

From a recent portrait of DR. W. B. CALDWELL Founder of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin Born Shelbyville, Mo., 1839

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with pills and powders and strong drugs, even if disguised in candy? My remedy, too, costs less than most others, only about a cent a dose. A bottle such as you can find in any drug store, will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the babe in arms because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal.

The formula of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is on the cover of every bottle, and the ingredients have the endorsement of the U. S. Pharmacopoeia.

$10,000 Worth of Syrup Pepsin Free

In remembrance of my 83rd birthday I have set aside the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars to be given away in half-ounce bottles of my Laxative Syrup Pepsin. Only one Free Trial bottle to a family. All are constipated now and then, and here is an opportunity for you and others to try Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin FREE OF CHARGE. Ask for your free bottle today, simply sending name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 21 Front Street, Bridgeburg, Ont. Do not postpone this.

JOINS HUSBAND IN MID-OCEAN

Bride in Boat Battle Waves To Transfer From One Ship to Another.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—The acventure of a bride who braved the peril of a transfer by lifeboat in mid-ocean from one liner to another, so she could join her husband, was revealed yesterday when the steamer Maui arrived from Hawaii without Mrs. Peggy Aldrich, who was aboard when the ship sailed from Honolulu.

Mrs. Aldrich had started from San Franciso to join her husband, William F. Aldrich. He had left her in Honolulu and started for a short visit to San Franciso. After arriving here he found he probably would have to make a long visit and cabled her to come and join him.

After the Maui sailed with Mrs. Aldrich aboard, Aldrich found he would have to go back to Hawaii on the Matsonia, to attend the Press Conference of the World in Honolulu.

While at sea the Matsonia's wireless picked up the Maui. Aldrich explained to his wife that he was on his way to Hawaii and that she would have to go to San Francisco. Frantic messages flew back and forth. Mrs. Aldrich declared she would not continue to San Francisco.

Last Friday night at 9 o'clock the two steamers "lay to" half a mile apart in mid-Pacific.

Woman Wins Her Way

There on the Maui was Mrs. Aldrich, headed for San Francisco.

Half a mile away on the Matsonia was Aldrich, headed for Honolulu.

Mrs. Aldrich demanded that she be put aboard the Matsonia. There was a high sea running and launching a lifeboat was a dangerous task. But she insisted. Captain A. L. Soule of the Matsonia and Commander Peter Johnson of the Maui obtained necessary permission from Captain Charles W. Saunders of the Matson Navigation Line offices here.

Gets in Lifeboat

With a life-preserver about her, Mrs. Aldrich was placed in one of the Maui's lifeboats, while orders were given to "lower away." In charge of First Officer Clarence Pape and six sailors the small boat started for the Matsonia, a half mile off in the darkness.

Tossed about like a cork by the heavy swells and forced to fight a stiff wind, the side of the Matsonia was reached after battling the seas for more than an hour.

A lifeline tossed from the Mat- A ladder was then lowered, while sonia was tied around Mrs. Aldrich. those in the lifeboat struggled to keep the small boat from being dashed against the side of the liner.

Passengers Cheered

While the steamer's range light played on the scene, Mrs. Aldrich started the ascent of the rope ladder. Her husband shouted words of encouragement from the rail, and officers and passengers cheered. Within a few moments husband and wife were in each other's arms.

The Matsonia landed Monday at Honolulu, where Aldrich is manager of the Hawaiian Motion Picture Producing Company.

$51,000 ASKED OF LOVE PIRATE

Woman, Suing Estate, Says She Was Drugged and Robbed by Price.

DETROIT, Nov. 11.—Dwight F. Price, alias John E. Harding, the "love pirate," who died recently in Milwaukee, took new guise today when he was discussed by Mrs. Margaret Morse, 10915 Jefferson avenue, who filed suit in the Circuit Court Tuesday against Price's estate for $51,000.

This new aspect is that of the hard-headed business man who is alleged to have used his charming manners and his business ability to separate women from their money by fraudulent business proceedings.

Mrs. Morse, a handsome brunet 35 years old, told the story of her business venture with Mr. Price which cost her some $50,000, she said. It all happened, the woman declared, back in 1914 and 1916, before she met and married her present husband, M. W. Morse, proprietor of two furniture stores.

Widower Of Manufacturer

The woman declared she had known Price before her first husband, whose name was Johnson, owned the Johnson Box Factory, Fort street west, which had river-front dockage, she said. After the death of her husband Mrs. Morse said she decided to go into business with Price in the Northwest in a jewelry store.

"There was no sentiment in the proposition," she said. "I wanted to change my assests to an invesment which would bring in more money. I converted all my ready cash into supplies for a store, then went to Chicago to meet Mr. Price complete our business arrangement, and sell some jewelry of my own which was not suitable for the store we proposed to have.

Why Stay Fat? You Can Reduce

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmola Prescriptions Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are absolutely harmless, entail no dieting or exercises, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A case is sold at one dollar by all druggists the world over, or send the price direct to the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this, you have no excuse for being fat, but you can reduce steadily and easily without going through long seiges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet or fear bad effects.

PEGGY MAY MARRY AGAIN, BUT WON'T ADMIT POSSIBILITY

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Perhaps Peggy Hopkins Joyce will marry again and perhaps she won't. Peggy is not saying. Whatever she does, she is satisfied with the outcome of the divorce proceedings which made her no longer the wife of James Stanley Joyce, Chicago multi-millionaire.

"I have something bordering on a million," said Peggy. "Not so bad."

The decree divorcing Joyce from the former chorus girl, who he asserts cost him more than $1,000,000 in a brief but fervid romance, is expected to be signed soon by Judge Sabath. Judge Sabath indicated he would grant a decree of absolute divorce and approve the terms of settlement agreed on. The divorce will be given to Joyce on the ground of cruelty and infidelity. Peggy's cross-bill and request for temporary alimony will be dismissed.

Reports that Peggy is to be married to Peter C. Merillon, son of a Paris banker, drew only evasion.

"He is my good friend," she said. "I think very highly of him. Of course I don't want to be quoted at this time on the question of my marriage to him—he is just my friend."

Peggy said she bore no rancor toward Joyce. She intimated, however, that Joyce was too slow to travel in her class.

"I hear that Mr. Joyce is going to marry a simple little country girl," Peggy said. "I believe he will be happy with a nice little girl from some small town."

Then Peggy turned to philosophical meditation.

"A woman is just the toy of a man," she saisd. "Mr. Joyce gave me an insight into a life of splendor—he held the curtains open that I might grow to love the living flame of jewels, that I might adore the gowns that were works of art instead of needled models.

"And now—it's awfully hard for a woman to find herself deprived of those things once she has had them."

By the terms of the settlement Peggy receives $80,000 and retains jewelry and other valuables given her by Joyce and valued at more than $850,000. She returns to Joyce the $250,000 home he bought for her at Miami, Fla., and gives up certain jewels involved in a suit brought against Joyce by Cartiers, a Paris jewelry firm. She gets no alimony and surrenders all claim on Joyce's $3,000,000 estate.

What? Grandma Naughty? So Vassar "Prof." Hints

DETROIT, Nov. 11.—Grandma's ears would burn with rage is she knew that Burges Johnson, professor of English at Vassar College, said yesterday at 4.26 p.m., while seated on a certain cretonne davenport at the ladies' entrance of the D.A.C.

"Grandmother has no right to criticize the modern college girl," declared Prof. Johnson. "She probably has a few cain-raising times tucked away in her memory. I don't think that bare knees are any more immodest than the stately hoop skirts of half a century ago.

"The wordly wisdom which the modern college girl attains is more of an advantage than disadvantage, and does not erase the blush of youth and innocence," Prof. Johnson said.

"The college girl of today is a marrying girl as much as she ever was, but she postpones it. During those four years at college she acquires poise, culture and a practical knowledge that enables her to meet situations intelligently.

"The intelligent college girl will help to decrease the great number of divorces in this country. The college girl is in a position to make a more intelligent selection of a mate. She is not forced to marry merely for the sake of a meal ticket because she is qualified to make a living for herself.

"Furthermore man has made a new discovery in the college girl. The majority of men are no longer seeking butterflies for wives. They have discovered that an educated girl can be a business partner as well as a charming wife," said Prof. Johnson.

The last 50 years have brought great changes in the college girl, according to Prof. Johnson, In the old days a college girl was considered a radical. Her social position was jeopardized by her desire for Greek and Latin.

"The girls in those days used lady-like dumbells, and their athletic field was enclosed with a thick evergreen hedge that no masculine eye can penetrate. Today at Vasaar the same field is crowded with admiring men on field days and instead of covering their knees the girls hide their ears."

Prof. Johnson spoke Tuesday evening before the Vassar Alumnae Association at the Woman's exchange. He is touring the country in the interest of the Endowment Fund which is to provide for a material increase in the salaries of professors at the college.

Answers to Correspondents:

TWENTY-FIVE—I can quite understand that you are worried about your skin becoming so dry, because there is nothing that will kill a good complexion so quickly as the dry atmosphere of Canadian houses during the winter-time. And, of course, continuous housework will ruin any hands unless you do something to prevent it. The best thing you can do is rub CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM well into your face and on your hands after each washing, and especially every night and morning. CAMPANA'S is very efficacious and a very wonderful remedy. You can buy CAMPANA'S ITALIAN BALM at any druggist. 40c a large bottle.

MARGARET.

Direct from New York, where it created a decided sensation, "A Virgin Paradise," the William Fox special by Hiram Percy Maxim, is coming to the Allen Theatre next Monday. It is the story of a girl living alone in the jungle, with wild animals as her companions, and her transplanting to civilized society and contact with its hypocrisy. It is played by an all-star cast headed by Pearl White.

The coat dress continues to be featured and is now taking in velvet with collars and cuffs of fur.

LUMBER TRADE BOOMS RAPIDLY

Coast Dealers Report Steady Grain; Predict Record Market by Spring.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 11.—The lumber industry, in the last few weeks, has been rapidly resuming the foreground in the industrial field of the Pacific Northwest.

Rising from the low mark of 60 per cent below normal, registered a few months ago lumber production today is only 13 per cent under the normal output, according to a report of the West Coast Lumbermen's Association.

Normalcy By 1922

Leading lumbermen predict that it will be entirely back to normalcy by the early part of 1922, and they presage that spring will witness the shattering of previous productions.

The recuperation of the North west's industrial mainstay started three months ago, and recovery though with not quite all its old time vigor, was reached during October. The proof is found in reports of production shipments by rail and water and figures on market demand and employent.

Virtually all of the lumber mills and camps in Northwest which suspended operations have resumed activities with complete crews and at full capacity.

Orders Come Rapidly

Market conditions in some sections of the Middle West and East are not entirely satisfactory, but this offset by new orders rapidly coming from the Orient, the Antipodes, the Atlantic seaboard and California ports.

High rail rates are no longer a market handicap, in the opinion of leading lumbermen. They point out that due to the lower price of lumber, the New York maket price today is approximately $21 per thousand less than it was during the period of lower rates.

BLAST IN STILL KILLS A CHILD

Mother and Two Other Children Also Suffer.

DETROIT, November 11. — The explosion of a 25-gallon still cost the life of a child and sent two others and the mother to the Receiving Hospital, victims of poisonous fumes. It is feared they will die.

Patrolmen from the Hunt Station were summoned to 1469 Clinton Street when a passerby, Sam Thomas, 1536 Monroe Avenue, saw a dense cloud of vapour and heard moans issuing from the second floor rooms occupied by the family of Gaspari Bartholotto.

Smashing two doors, the police entered the two rooms of the Bartholotto family and fought their way through the fumes to an inner room, where they found Paulina, the mother, 35 years old, writhing in agony on the floor. One of the children, Grace, 3 years old, was dead, and two others, Angela, 2 years old, and Rosa, 4 years old, lay gasping on the bed.

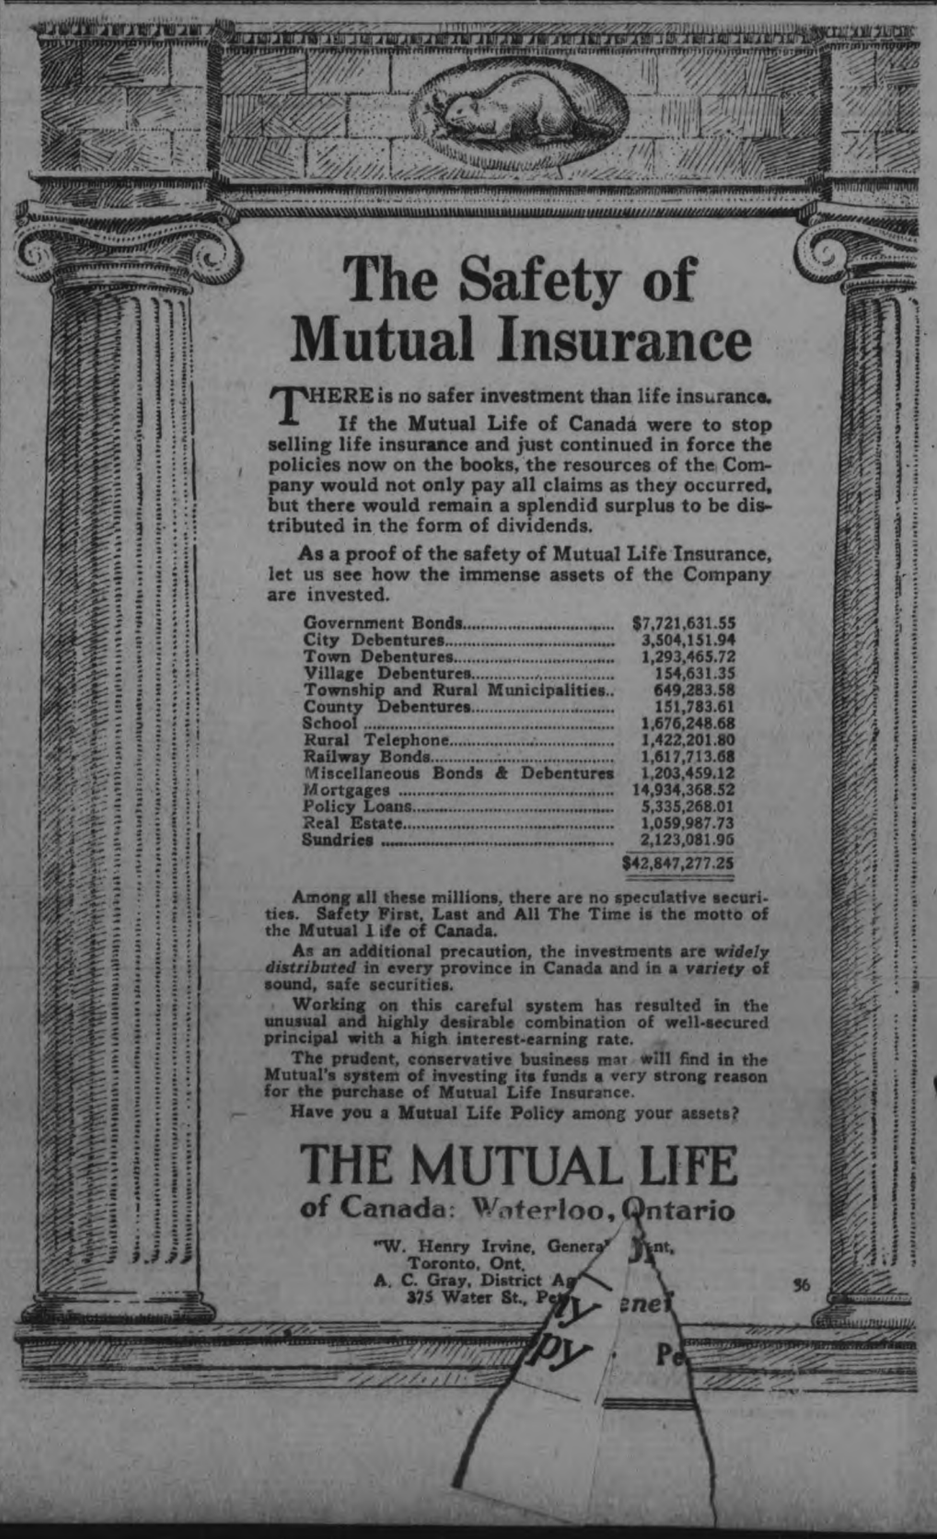
While the Receiving Hospital ambulance was hurrying to the spot, Patrolmen Glenn Hunter, Ira Marsh Ralph Stone, and Roy Retzloff, of Hunt Station, worked over the mother and the two children, who still lived.

Bartholotto, who is 30 years old, was found working a the Stephani Baking Co., Dubois and Chestnut Streets. He was immediately arrested and taken to Hunt Street Station for questioning.

Police believe Bartholotto left for work early this morning, leaving his wife in charge of the still, which had been in full operation. Neighbours said they heard an explosion shortly after 5.30 a.m., followed by screams and moaning.

The family occupied a bedroom and a room which served as a kitchen and in which stood the still. When the officers entered, alcohol had drenched the floor and a quantity of mash was found in a receptacle.

Don't put cheese or onions in the lower part of the refrigerator. They will taint other foods.



The Safety of Mutual Insurance

THERE is no safer investment than life insurance. If the Mutual Life of Canada were to stop selling life insurance and just continued in force the policies now on the books, the resources of the Company would not only pay all claims as they occurred, but there would remain a splendid surplus to be distributed in the form of dividends.

As a proof of the safety of Mutual Life Insurance, let us see how the immense assets of the Company are invested.

Government Bonds	$7,721,631.55
City Debentures	3,504,151.94
Town Debentures	1,293,465.72
Village Debentures	154,631.35
Township and Rural Municipalities	649,283.58
County Debentures	151,783.61
School	1,676,248.68
Rural Telephone	1,422,201.80
Railway Bonds	1,617,713.68
Miscellaneous Bonds & Debentures	1,203,459.12
Mortgages	14,934,368.52
Policy Loans	5,335,268.01
Real Estate	1,059,987.73
Sundries	2,123,081.95
	$42,847,277.25

Among all these millions, there are no speculative securities. Safety First, Last and All The Time is the motto of the Mutual Life of Canada.

As an additional precaution, the investments are widely distributed in every province in Canada and in a variety of sound, safe securities.

Working on this careful system has resulted in the unusual and highly desirable combination of well-secured principal with a high interest-earning rate.

The prudent, conservative business man will find in the Mutual's system of investing its funds a very strong reason for the purchase of Mutual Life Insurance.

"KEEP YOUR EYE ON PAISLEY"

—BEACONSFIELD

(By A. H. McConnachie)

Who can fathom the mind of a great man? Why did Disraeli exhort his fellow countrymen to keep a watchful eye on Paisley? What had he in mind? He was a Jew and some vision must have filled his prophetic soul after the manner of his race. But no man has discovered the nature of the vision or what it portended. Perhaps he had in mind just the rising greatness of the ancient burgh founded by Saint Mivin, a Scot from Ireland! It has multiplied and increased till it approaches one hundred thousand strong. Perhaps he was mightly impressed by the political wisdom of the Paisley weavers. But they were radicals of the deepest dye! Still even from among them a prophet might arise mighty in word and deed. Patricsk Brewster was such a prophet and his monument remains in the ancient burgh to this day.

Perhaps the Noble Lord Beaconfield hailed from afar the time when Herbert Asquith would represent Paisley in Westminster, as he does today! Speculation in vain. Anyway Paisley has been worth watching.

Of the ancient burgh few relics remain. Old landmarks have disappeared; some have been ruthlessly destroyed A part of the ruined Abbey (dating back to the twelth century) still remains and shelters the congregation of the Abbey Church. A great work of restoration was halted by the war. So far as it has gone, it looks like the new patch on an old garment.

Ancient Punishments

The Toll-booth of other days stood in the middle of the town. Here the Council met and transacted business and dispursed justice On a platform outside was erected the whipping-post to which culprits were tied, sometimes nailed by the ear! Not farfrom it, but fastened to the wall of the steeple by an iron chain were he "branks"—a necklet of iron which was often fastened round the neck of an offender to hold him or her in durance vile for a certain number of hours. The "stocks"—knownto Paul in the jail at Philippi—were also in evidence near the market cross. Here the culprit was imposed to the public gaze in the most humiliating fashion.

In those days the market cross was the busy centre and booths were rented to merchants by the Town Council, who also acted as Food Controllers, even in the middle of the Eighteenth Century! "Officialappriser fixed the price of all the goods and no other price could be asked or paid, under penalty of confiscation. No could anything be sold outside the market on market days before or after the appointed time."

Famous Shawls

Early in the nineteenth century Paisley became famous for its manufacture of shawls. Wonderful examples of the weavers' art had been brought by travellers to the Old Land, from Egypt, of Syria and India. Paisley's imitations were most successful, and the Paisley weaver became a man of note. He must have developed great skill at the loom and at the same time dreamed of high and advanced political science, for his opinions were regarded as weighty. What the weavers discussed and settled at their gatherings, were matters for legislation in the next radical parliament —so it was reportedr The protection of the poor gainst the greed of the rich, the abolition of the corn laws, the franchise; these and kindred themes were as daily bread to the Paisley weaver. It is beyond dis ptue that their Radicalism was enlightened and thorough. And they had a preacher after their own heart in, Patrick Brewster, of the Paisley Abbey, a much persecuted man, but famous as a leader in the Chartist movement.

Thred Manufacture

In course of time, the shawl industry waned and Paisley became renowned for its manufacture of thread. The business has grown to almost fabulous proportions. In Paisley alone the plant is valued at quite fifty million dollars. Over ten thousand people are employed in the works, mostly women. The various mills are marvels of organization, and the pension schemes lately introduced, are very generous.

Proud of his Town.

Beaconsfield's prophetic exhortation is justified! The Paisley "body" may well be proud of his town. It is on record that on one occasion he described Glasgow as a suburb of Paisley! As a matter of fact, Paisley has almost become a part of greater Glasgow. It is served by the same street railway, municipally owned and splendidly managed in the public interest. A substantial contribution is made from its funds year by year for the relief of the rates.

Paisley is the envy of the country on account of the gifts made to it by its successful citizens. There is he Clark Town Hall, a lordly pile, donated by the Clark family of thread fame.

The name of Coats is written large all over the town. You have the Coats' Museum, and Library, and Observatory, among the finest in Scotland. The Fountain Gardens is another gift from the princely Coats family. Most magnificient of all is the Coats Memorial Church which has been well described as the non-conformist Cathedral of Britain

Lavish Hands.

But time and space would fail to set forth the munificence and food works of the great men who "made good" in Paisley. One of the Coats family—a multi-millionaire, and very generous —is reported to have said that God gave him money in bucketfuls, and he gave it away in shovelfuls. It is certain that he gave away with a lavish hand.

And the Paisley people have not been slow to help themselves. Improvements have been carried out at enormou cost, so that the good folk have not been spoiled by the generosit yof its merchant princes.

Paisley is worth a visit any time, Its ports and its weaver politicians have passed on, but the present generation are known as a thrifty, industrious people. Paisley is the cleanist factory town in Scotland in every sense of the word.

START TOMORROW AND KEEP IT UP EVERY MORNING

Get into the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath"? you say. Well. it is guaranteed to perform miracles according to hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flusn the stomach, liver, kidneys and intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood, causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

LONDON SHOCKED BY COLD-BLOODED SUICIDE DINNER.

Family of Four Drank Poisoned Champagne—Mrs. Townshed in Canada On Honeymoon.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—London has divided her interest in the Irish negotations with the absorbing details of one of most cold-blooded tragedies of recent history.

The story of a terrible death feast which resulted in the extermination of four persons in the suburbs of the city, shows that one victim, a fomer actress, noted not only for her striking personal appearance but for her individuality and her acting, lived in many cities in Canada with her husband during the war.

Was In Canada

David Townshed took his bride to the Dominion by way of the United States about seven years ago, and the couple spent several years in Toronto and Calgary, as well as on the Pacific coast, living the nomadic life of so many settlers of that time. About two years ago the mother of the bride, who was then in comfortable circumstances, brought her daughter home, her husband not accompanying her. Since that time the family fortunes have taken a turn for the worse, until last week, when the mother, stepfather, halfbrother and Mrs.Townshend were in the straitest financial cicumstances.

On the top of all their money difficulties, the stepfather found himself faced by a serious charge of misappropriation of money belonging to the company by whom he was employed.

Cyanide Used.

The facts that were revealed at the inquest yesterday afternoon have shocked London. It transpires that all four were present at the last meal, at which champagne, in which cyanide of potassium, one of most deadly poisons known to science, was handed round and drunk by all four. A grim feature of the horrible feast is added by the fact that the women dressed themselves in silk nightdresses, in which to die. It is believed that three made a death pact and introduced the son into the bargain, because he was shattered by the war and had frequently expressed the desire to end all his misery. The jury returned a verdict of murder against the stepfather, who is out of reach of the law, having himself committed suicide when the fatal feast ended.

Spoons or forks for the dessert course are not put on the table when setting it, but are placed on the desser table or in position on the, tablye where the dessert is served.

MAN OF 70 GETS HIS FOURTH WIFE, AGED 64, THROUGH AD.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., November 11. — Advertising aided cupid when Samuel E. Snedecker, of Aspers, was married to his fourth wife, Mrs. Anne Rybolt, of Indianapolis. The bride is 64 years old, and the husband is 70 years of age.

The wedding took place in the parsonage of the United Brethren Church here.

Snedecker's third wife died last January, and tiring of single living he advertised for a wife. From a number of offers he chose that of Mrs. Rybolt, who is a widow.

HINTS TO THE HOUSEWIVES

Season a veal casserole with a bit of caramelized sugar.

In making quince jelly try coloring with a few drops of beet juice.

Good "snow mittens" for the kiddies can be made from old sweaters.

If the oven is too hot, a basin of water placed in the bottom will cool it.

The Japanese sauce or catsup made from the black soy bean is excellent for flavoring gravies, soups, etc.

A tablespoonful of vinegar added to the last rinsing water in which silk, crepe de chine and ribbons are washed freshens the colors.

Ether is effective for old paint stains. However, if the stains are too obstinate, it may be necessary to first soften them with vaseline, castor oil or butter.

Don't lose any time and energy trying to clean greasy gas stove pipes with soap and water. Wash with gasoline and wipe dry with a cloth wrung out of gasoline. There must be no fire in the house while doing this.

When sprinkling fine blouses or baby clothes it is difficult to distribute the dampness evenly. Dip a towel in water, wring it out, place the blouse in it and roll it up tightly. Leave for 10 minutes and the article will be found to be evenly dampened all over and ready for immediate ironing.

Silkworm eggs are generally imported to other countries from China.

WISCONSIN OFFICIAL TELLS WOULD-BE BABY VAMPS

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 11. — The baby stare school of vamping as practiced by flappers in opposition to the the more violent Pola Negri-Theda Bara sect, has received its first serious setback. Dr. George C. Ruhland, local health commissioner, sounded a solemn warning against the use of the bella donna.

"Excessive use of bella donna, to dilate pupils and give them that desired baby stare, tends to paralyze the nerves directing the muscles which expand and contract the pupil," he said.

'Paste used to make eyelashes stand out, in imitation of the papilla of daisies, eventually causes reddening of the lids."

NERVOUS, IRRITABLE, AILING WOMEN

Mrs. Britten Tells How She Was Restored To Health After Suffering for More Than A Year.

Another Triumph for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dimondale, Mich.—"I had inflammation and a displacement and weakness, and it had been neglected so long that it caused great pain, and this affected my mind and nerves so that I was very irritable. I had severe pains every month, so that I was often obliged to lie in bed for two days at a time. I suffered for more than a year before my friends said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' So I purchased one bottle after another until I had taken ten bottles, then Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I received so much benefit from this treatment that I am now able to do my own work."—Mrs. W. D. BRITTEN, R. No. 2, Dimondale, Mich.

Another Michigan Woman says:

"I was bothered for a long time with female troubles and was so nervous I felt almost afraid at times. I also had a pain in my right side and was certainly in a bad way. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has relieved me of these nervous feelings and pains and I am much better in every way. I don't know just how many bottles I have taken, but I took it for nearly a year and it has done me a world of good."—Mrs. JESSIE GRANGER, R. No. 8, Box 51, Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Good health is a woman's greatest asset. With it she may be the inspiration of her husband, a happy mother, and the life of the home. Without it she suffers agonies herself, household duties are a burden, and her family is made miserable by her condition.

Is it any wonder that these women were nervous and irritable after suffering so long from such deranged conditions? Such ailments act directly upon the nerves, and it has been said that a large percentage of nervous prostration, nervous despondency, "the blues," and nervous irritabilty of women arise from some derangement of the female organism.

If women who are in this condition would only profit by the experience of others and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, much suffering and unhappiness would be averted, as everyone knows a nervous, irritable, ailing mother makes the home unhappy and her condition irritates both husband and children.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir,—In last night's Examiner there was a letter of Mr J. H. Burnham discussing my position, and in this Mr. Burnham suggests that I am not completely in accord with the Leader of the Liberal Party.

As I have been at the Cobourg Assizes for nearly a week, and have many appointments to-day, I shall not be able to answer Mr. Burnham's letter at length but will deal with the matter at the convention.

I am willing to say to Mr. Burnham, however, and to the public that I do not intend to give any slavish support to any Party or Leader but, if nominated, I intend to support what in my opinion is the best legislation for the toiler and dweller in the humble home, whether that legislation comes from Liberal, Conservative or Progressive source.

As Mr. Burhnam has asked me a question perhaps he would permit me to ask him if he approves of Sir Henry Drayton's allowing the Riordon Company, the directors of which are made up of Sir Henry Drayton's political friends, to owe the treasury of Canada $800,000.00 income tax, while it divided its profits among its many wealthy shareholders..

Yours truly,
G. N. GORDON.

Editor Examiner:

The week of November 12th-19th has been set apart throughout Canada as Children's Book Week and the week of Nov. 19th-26th, as Canadian Author's Week. Both movements have as their main object the endeavor to arouse more interest in the works of our Canadian writers. The public will see and hear a good deal about this movement as no stone is being left unturned to bring the Canadian public to a realization of its duty to its own authors. The clergy will preach about it, the papers will print articles on the subject and the movies will show films in various places, designed to bring the question more clearly to the mind of the people.

If one were to attempt to show how greatly Canadian literature has gone forward during the last twenty five years it would take many long articles to adequately deal with tre subject. Even in our own library we have close upon five hundred volumes written by Canadian authors. The subjects dealt with by them embrace all branches of literature. Many of the writers have obtained more than a continental reputation. But it is not so much on he literature of the past as of the present that one needs to concenrate one's attention. There is springing up a numerous group of writers of fiction whose works bear comparison with the best that can be obtained from the shores of the British Isles or the United States.

The Public Library will do its best to advertise the merits of Canadian authors and their works, but it has to be borne in mind that the best place to go for one's wares is the local bookstores. Our means of purchase being limited, it is only possible for us to obtain such books as have been successfully tried in the crucible of public opinion or has been favorably commented upon by reviewers. If you patronise your local booksellers you help the Library also, for the Library Committee welcomes suggestions from its patrons and can gain a far more adequate idea of tre value of this book or that by the hold it has taken on the reading public.

We shall have a special table showing what Canadian books we have on hand. It cannot be a complete one for in two or three thousand volumes that are always in circulation there will be many that should be in evidence on the table.

We ask the public, however, to come to us, to ask what questions they please and to especially look through our Children's department, in order to note what an important factor it is in our Library service.

SOME HISTORIC CONSTITUENCIES

NOVA SCOTIA.

Cumberland, N. S., was the native county of Sir Charles Tupper, one of the Fathers of Confederation and Prime Minister of Canada for a few months in 1896. In his first political contest—the Provincial elections of 1855—Dr. Tupper, standing for Cumberland, defeated the redoubtable veteran Joseph Howe, who years before, after successively defending a charge of sedition preferred by the Council of Twelve Magistrates at Halifax, had risen to the position of leader of the movement for responsible government in the Maritimes, and enjoyed an unexampled popularity among the people of his native Province. As the Conservative party suffered severe defeat elsewhere through the Province, Dr. Tupper's victory over the great Liberal tribune made him a marked man. In 1863 the young man from Cumberland achieved the Premiership of the Province and began the stormy battle for Confederation. After committing Nova Scotia to the Confederation compact, Dr. Tupper resigned his Premiership, and in the elections of 1867 stood in Cumberland for the first Confederation Parliament. When the smoke cleared Dr. Tupper was elected, but in the seventeen other seats of the Province the pro-Confederation candidates had been snowed under. At the same time the elections for the Provincial Assembly resulted in the return of 36 anti-Confederationists as against 2 Confederationists.

The Imperial Government refused to grant constitutional repeal of the union, and Howe was too loyal to the British connection to adopt other than constitutional means. Sir John A. Macdonald came to Halifax, convinced Howe of the serious danger into which the anti-Confederationists were drifting and finally induced him to go to Ottawa as President of the Dominion Cabinet. In view of Nova Scotia's attitude, Dr. Tupper declined Sir John A.'s offer of a Cabinet appointment, but in 1870 he succeeded Howe as President of the Cabinet Council, and on the occasion of his elevation made a speech containing the first advocacy of the national policy ever made in the House of Commons.

In the present elections Colonel C. E. Best is the Government candidate for Cumberland. He went overseas as Adjutant of the 17th Battalion in 1914 and reverted in rank in order to get to France, in the spring of 1915. He served mostly with the Canadian 48th Highlanders in France, and in the closing days of the conflict was in command of the 3d Canadian Infantry Brigade. He has the following decorations:—C.M.G., D.S.O. and Bar, Mons Star, Victory Medal and Allies Medal. After the war he was appointed Customs Collector at Amherst. The Liberal candidate is Hance J. Logan, who formerly represented the county at Ottawa. Mr. Logan is President of the Maritime Board of Trade.

LUNENBURG, N. S., is largely peopled by descendants of immigrants from Hanover, who came to Nova Scotia in 1753, and, according to William Duff, Mayor of the shiretown, "Lunenburgers can claim closer associations with the reigning house of England than any other section of the Canadian people." Lunenburg, La Have and Mahone, the ports of the county, have the distinction of having built up on the co-operative basis the largest fleet of Grand Bank fishing vessels in the world. In the past Lunenburg has been variously known as the Gloucester of Nova Scotia or the Grimsby of Canada, but since the international fishermen's races this year it has been content to be known by its own name—as the port of hail of the Bluenose, champion of the North Atlantic fishing fleets by virtue of her win over the Elsie, crack fisherman of New England.

In the present election William Duff, who represented the constituency in the last Parliament, is again a candidate in the Liberal behalf. Mr. Duff, who was born in Newfoundland, the Britain's most ancient colony, and educated in Scotland, is a large fish merchant and shipowner. The Government candidate is Dr. Dugald Stewart, one time school master, former member of Parliament and at present a well-known medical practioner of Halifax. In the election of 1911 Dr. Stewart was a successful candidate in Lunenburg, defeating A. K. MacLean, who was later Minister without Portfolio in the Union Government.

Shelburne and Queens gave Hon. W. S. Fielding a seat by acclamation when after the election of 1896 Premier Laurier called him from the Premiership of Nova Scotia to take the position of Minister of Finance in the new Liberal Government and to introduce into the House of Commons the first measure giving preferential tariff treatment to Great Britain: Judge Forbes of Liverpool, who had previously defeated C. H. Cahan, now a well-known financier of Montreal, had retired to make room for the new Finance Minister. In the elections of 1911, following the introduction of the Fielding-Taft reciprocity agreement, Mr. Fielding, who had held the same seat for fifteen years, was defeated by F. B. McCurdy, now Minister of Public Works. When Union Government was formed in 1917 Mr. Fielding who came out as a supporter of it, was again elected for Shelburne and Queens by acclamation, Mr. McCurdy going to Colchester County.

In the present contest Mr. Fielding is again a candidate in his old constituency, running as a straight Liberal. The Government candidate is W. L. Hall, a prominent lawyer of Liverpool, Queens County, who for a time was leader of the opposition in the Provincial Legislature.

Shelburne, the shire town of the western section of the constituency, was during and for a short time after the American revolutionary war the largest town in America north of the Rio Grande, having then a population of over 16,000.

A PHONOGRAPH FOR SHELTER

The article which appeared in last evening's Examiner with regard to a phonograph for the Children's Shelter received a very prompt response. Evidently there are kind hearts in the city who are quick to respond to an appeal of this sort. One lady very kindly offered a machine for the use of the children, with ten records thrown in, which offer was accepted with many thanks.

About fifteen minutes later, the manager of the Heintzman Company, Limited, telephoned the chairman of the Board with a similar offer. On being informed that a machine had already been secured, he said he would supply a number of records instead, which kind gift was accepted with much gratitude.

HEALTH DEPOT HERE PLANNED

ed for the benefit of the juniors, and also to bring this literature to the attention of men's and women's organizations of all sorts, the churches, the clubs, such as the Rotary, etc. The importance of health centres in the community was emphasized, such as well babies' clinics, public health depots, and the assistance which might be afforded such institutions by the Red Cross Society.

With regard to sewing circles, the writer considered that in time of unemployment, as many factory-made garments as possible should be purchased, but special garments, such as pneumonia jackets, hospital jackets, nurses' caps, layettes, might be made by the sewing society.

Re Well Babies' Clinic.

Mrs. Harstone was asked to say a few words regarding the Well Babies' Clinic, and her brief talk emphasized the paramount importance to all classes of the commmunity of child welfare, which should be supported by public as well as voluntary organizations in the city. Information as to proper care of infants, diet and so forth, was dispensed gratis at this institution, and it was an invaluable asset to the community in view of the alarming increase in infant mortality in Ontario.

Election of Officers.

The report of the Nominating committee, with Mrs. R. Denne as convenor, recommended the appointment of Mrs. Jas. Wood as president, with Mrs. J. C. Davidson as first vice-president, the other officers and the executive to remain as at present. This report was unanimously approved by the meeting.

BOOK SHOWER FOR KNOX SUNDAY SCHOOL.

On the evening of November 8 a very interesting event took place in Knox Church Sunday School, when a book shower to augment the Sunday School Library was held. In all, 260 books were given by the people of Knox, and the generosity of the congregation in this gift is appreciated by the Sunday School officers. A very fine set of Dickens was donated by Mr. and Mrs. William Carter, Bolivar Street. The set was owned by their son Gordon, formerly a member of the A.S.K. Class, who gave his life for freedom. These books will be highly prized by the Sunday School.

An excellent musical programme, embracing vocal, instrumental and violin solos, with readings and recitations, was much enjoyed. The sum of $25 was realized from a silver collection at the door and the sale of candy. The committee in charge of the shower wish to thank all those who so kindly endorsed the scheme, and the Young People's Society for their co-operation in helping to make the affair a success.

Women exceed men in Denmark by more than 84,000.

With the exception of royal effigies there are only four statues of women.

In the Treasury Department at Washington there are many women who can count paper money at the rate of 1,000 notes in five or six minutes.

There is a project on foot in Paris to establish a Communist newspaper for women, the object being to educate women regarding their social rights.

Mme. Tetrizanni, the famous opera star, was a prima donna when she was 16 years of age, having at that time filled the chief role at the Florence Opera House.

Mrs. Cordelia H. McDonald, the original Little Eva of the first dramatic production of the celebrated "Uncle Tom's Cabin" first made in 1852, is still hale and hearty at the age of 73. She was only 4 years of age when she first played the role of Little Eva.

Will be Shown at the ALLEN commencing Monday

A PRETTY LAMP SHADE

A beautiful lampshade, simple of construction, can be made by any woman who enjoys making lovely things for the home. The wire frame is properly covered with soft old gold silk—three thicknesses of the thin china silk is sufficient. To give a particularly soft and rosy light make the middle thickness of rose colored silk. The shade will then give an old gold appearance, but the light will be slightly modified by the layer of rose colored silk. Then on the shade are placed four lengths of narrow Chinese embroidery—a little over an inch wide. It is that sort of strip embroidery done on silk, with the edges turned in, worked in blue and white and gold. These strips are caught at the top of the shade under the gilt binding and at the bottom they are bound in a point with gilt braid and end in tassels.

There is no friend like an old friend
Who has shared our morning days,
No greetings like his welcome,
No homage like his praise.

Fame is the scentless sunflower,
With gaudy crown of gold;
But friendship is the breathing rose,
With sweets in every fold.
—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

There is an excellent programme at the Capitol this week-end. Alla Nazimova, in "Camille," gives a wonderful interpretation of the heights to which a self-sacrificing love can lift the very lowest type of humanity. The morbid drama which thrilled Paris seventy years ago has been set to a modern version with a modern setting. It probably does not appeal in the same measure to a staid, sober Canadian audience as it would to the emotion-loving French temperament. We do not sympathize to a great extent with the erring female who sobs because she can't have her cake and eat it too, but, in Nazimova's hands, the career of the erratic, painted woman of the underworld is clothed with a pitiful illusion of lost happiness which probably atones for the bad taste left in the mouth by the hectic scenes of Parisian night-life. The emotional power of the great actress is wonderfully displayed in this story of the French "vampire," who flouts a duke and loses her heart to the impecunious law student. The apple blossom scene in the "Springtime" episode, when Armand and Marguerite read "Manon Lescaut" beneath the fragrant tree is lovely, there is a fine rendition of technique in the scene with the stern father, and "the lady with the Camellias" wins the sympathy of her audience in the gaming-house when she sends Armand away, and her latest lover deserts her for a newer, golden flame. The death-bed scene, with its drifting snowflakes and grasping creditors, where the consumptive calls to her lover with her last breath, is enacted with an emotional breadth and power which has seldom been surpassed on the silver screen.

Dick and Ruby Wren have a clever and bright little offering of Scotch and Irish songs and dances which elicited much applause, while the third member of the trio, the diminutive Wren, was enthusiastically received. An excellent comedy, "In Again," and a number of short reels, complete a fine programme.

Saturday night will see the inauguration of the new policy of two performances for this evening, at regular admission prices.

—Jeannette.

AT THE ALLEN.

ACTRESS TAKES AEROPLANE TO OVERTAKE SHIP

Pearl White, Determined to Get Home, Reaches Steamer Eight Miles at Sea.

Pearl White, the noted Fox film star and heroine of many motion picture perils, went to Bermuda to make scenes in "A Virgin Paradise," the all-star picture which will open at the Allen Theatre on Monday.

When Miss White started back she caught the ship eight miles at sea in order to keep a promise to be home in Bayside, L. I., for Christmas dinner. To get aboard the ship she had to make the trip by aeroplane, and so acquired a thrill more exciting than any she had experienced since she quit serials.

Director J. Searle Dawley finished shooting his last scenes on the island for "A Virgin Paradise" at 11.30 o'clock in the morning, and the company was a number of miles from the setamer Victoria, scheduled to sail at noon. Then began a race by automobile for the vessel, the star's luggage having been put aboard early in the morning. When Miss White dashed up to the pier, the smoke of the steamer was fast disappearing in the distance.

Miss White was frantic— and no other ship for three days. Major Kitchener, of the British air service, heard of the star's predicament.

"Can His Majesty's air service see a lady in distress?" he inquired of his friend, Major Hemming.

Evidently it could not, for as Miss White turned back to her hotel, almost in tears, the two majors arrived with a proffer of a monoplane to take the star to the ship at sea. A wireless was sent to Captain Davis, of the Victoria and, the gallant tar did his part.

When the 'plane with the two majors and Miss White on board came in sight the Captain stopped the ship and lowered a life boat. The British officers maneuvred the 'plane over the craft and let down a rope ladder. Miss White climbed down into the liefboat and was put aboard the ship eight miles at sea.

This was the first time on record that the British air service had come to the rescue of a motion picture star in distress.

ALLEN THEATRE.

With its proverbial knack of selecting not only the best films, but those that particularly appeal to a Peterborough audience, which is ever critical in its choice, the Allen Theatre for this week end has the best seclection of pictures ever seen in this city. It is, as a rule, seldom that a comedy is given much critisism in the press, but "Just in Time" demands more than a passing notice. It is not only a side-splitting comedy but a picture in which Snooky (a baboon) the coachman of a millionaire, once a street car conductor, out Charlie's Charley Chaplin. This wonderful ape actor has the characteristic walk and actions of our old friend Charlie.

Conway Tearle, in a powerful drama, After Midnight, holds the audience spell bound. The play opens in Chinatown, San Francisco. A penniless young man, played by Conway Teare, is seated talking with a pretty little Chinese girl, the daughter of Mock Duck, the proprietor of the restaurant, an opium joint. The real owner of this, the most notorious hop joint in Chinatown, sees the young man and recognizes a startling resemblance between the visitor and a rich opium smoking patron, who is seemingly about to die in a room to the rear. The owner of the joint gets the indigent to play the part of the rich habitue, even to the extent of going to the latter's home, so as to steal bonds and other securities. The rich man's wife, the bride of a few months, as the man playing the double part, thinks the interloper to be her husband, but demands that he be on trial on good behaviour for a month. At the expiration of this time, the interloper reveals that he is twin brother to the near husband. The play is exciting from first to last and ends— but that should be seen by the reader.

This is the first film to show comprehensive pictures of the streets of Chinatown. One sees the mysteries of the Orient, with its barbaric splendor and the squalor.

AT THE GRAND.

'WHAT EVERY WOMAN WANTS' BY JEROME K. JEROME.

One of the most important movements of modern times is that which has resulted in the emancipation of woman. Universal suffrage has only been in the air a comparatively short time, but it is now an accomplished fact, and the sphere of feminine influence has widened immeasurably. I said influence, and with more justice I might have said activity. It is a mooted question as to whether or not the female of the species has not always had a rather large share in the world's destiny, but you know what Mr. Kipling said about their powers. Be that as it may, we are living in strenuous days, and perhaps that accounts for the active part that women play in business, politics and every other line of endeavor.

In his curtain speeches, Mr. Snelgrove told you that the Rex Players would present a play by Jerome K. Jerome, called "What Every Woman Wants," as their next attraction. There seems to be no end to the conjecture concerning the bill and the significance of the title. Some persons may think that the desire of every female is a husband, riches, happiness or what not. Then again, it depends upon individual taste and ambition. What might appeal to one woman, would antagonize another. Some women's whole ambition in life is the possession of beautiful clothes, some women hope they will have a fine day for Monday's washing, an almost universal habit among American housewives. Just now, I fancy that almost every woman wants to cast a vote — the coming election is an important one, and very fortunate, indeed, would a candidate be who proved himself "What Every Woman Wants." Frankly, it sounds like a guessing contest, and as I write this, my mind is taken up with that intriguing question. I wonder if the author answers it satisfactorily? On Monday night, November 14th, our curiosity will receive it's reward, when the Rex Stock Company opens its usual 3-day engagement at the Grand.—Laura.

HULLO CANADA

A series of strikingly beautiful stage pictures with a wealth of richly coloured costumes, the grace and charm of Shirley Kellogg and the unique fun-making methods of Harry Tate made "Hullo Canada" Albert De Courville's big English success at the Grand last night a memorable performance. The lavishness with which the production has been staged, the evident disregard of expense that characterizes the offering did not fail to impress the audience who were ble to visualize the extent of the feat accomplished by Trans-Canada Theatres in bringing an attraction of his magnitude across the Atlantic.

The chief individual honours were of course carried off by Miss Kellogg and Mr Tate. The former won her audience by her charming personality and her pleasing voice which was heard to advantage in the principal musical numbers notably in the duet "All Pull Together" with Mr Tate and in the two solos "Fair India" and "The Rag From Home".

Harry Tate one of England's most popular comedians whose work was witnessed by nearly every Canadian soldier who got London leave during the war supplies most of the fun in "Hullo Canada" and he has a method all his own. His two most important numbers last night were "On the Links" a golfing burlesque in which he got into a lot of trouble with his caddy, his golf sticks and a piece of paper and a hilarious sketch, "Selling an automobile" which had to be seen to be appreciated. Nothing funner than this motor car episode as been seen at the Grand in many a moon and the audience did not get a chance to stop laughing until the number was over.

Henri Rosen, the tramp violinist scored an individual triumph in his musical offering W. Wania's dancing made him a feature of the cast and Isobelle Dorothy was warmly received in her songs "Off we go" and "Whirling."

To properly describe the spectacular ensemble numbers would be to exhaust the supply of adjectives. The Indian Spectacle, the "Old Versailles" number, "The Rag From Home" and "The Lampshade" each in turn converted the stage of the Grand into a fairyland of warm colours and rich glittering costumes Perhaps the most popular because of its patriotic appeal was "The Rag from Home" finely sung by Miss Kellogg and with the chorus furnishing a surprising climax by suddenly forming a huge Union Jack with the strips of silk they had been waving in the dance.

"Hullo Canada" opens in an unique manner with a rehearsal under the direction of a manager who walks down the aisle as the opening overture concludes. The choice of this method of beginning the performance is hardly a happy one for the action seems to drag and as a result the revue gets off to a slow start and does not liven up until the appearance of Miss Kellogg and Mr Tate.

The beauty chorus lived up to all advance notices and if as some papers report some of them are destined to become the brides of Canadian farmers the sing querry of "How're you gonna to keep 'em down on the farm?" seems to be answered.

BRINGING UP FATHER.

Direct from its triumphs at the Manhattan opera house, New York, and the Metropolitan opera house, Philadelphia, and immediately endorsed by a finicky and expectant public, announcement is made of the latest sensational triumph, "Bringing Up Father in Wall Street." This unusual play, which is, of course, based on the ever-green cartoons made famous by their creator, George McManus, is in two acts and five scenes and will be the next attraction at Grand theatre next Thursday, Nov. 17th, matinee and night.

Jiggs Mahoney, whose exploits and adventures are known from one end of the world to the other, this time plunges into Wall street. There, after various vicissitudes, trials and tribulations, he becomes a millionaire, and Maggie, his irrepressible but doting wife, plans once more to conquer the unbidden field of high society. The comedy which also boasts of a champion beauty chorus, has been acclaimed a riot of screams, laughter, bliss and joy from start to finish.

SHIRLEY KELLOGG

Beautiful Miss Shirley Kellogg, with the golden hair, large blue eyes, and wonderful personality, received me in her dressing room.

From the floor of the Princess Theatre, Toronto, she looked very good to me, but at close range she is even more attractive.

Speaking of the difficulties attached to playing one night stands, she says that judging by Peterborough's audience, it hardly pays to play one night stands. "Why fancy," she said, "we fill London theatres, give up so much to come here, and then the people don't seem to appreciate us in the small towns. But I love Canada, especially Toronto. You know I would like to come out and live there. I have met so many charming people—so many wonderful boys—and then their mothers, or wives, as the case may be, receive us so hospitably at their homes." We kept on chatting until Miss Kellogg had to change from that gorgeous silver tissue robe, and I asured her of the big reception I know is awaiting her at Kingston.

She told me of many engagements made for there, and I should say everybody will be pleased with the Hullo- Canada!

An invitation from the Canadian Club of Belleville, was lying open, and Miss Kellogg showed it to me, giving me permission to read it. She will make a special effort to be present at their luncheon to-morrow, and is looking forward to meeting the Club members.

No doubt you were all charmed with the talented star, with her vivid personality and feel that she and Mr. Tate, besides the bevy of lovely girls, were more than well worth while seeing.

The much talked of Fox special, "A Virgin Paradise," by Hiram Percy Maxim, is coming direct from New York to the Allen Theatre on Monday.

FASHIONS IN BRIEF

Corn-colored lingerie makes a successful appearance.

Uneven hems are the rule for day as well as evening frocks.

Coiffure bandeaux are appearing at the theatres these nights, and take the form of metal, or cire leaves.

Printed crepes de chine in general, and Persian patterns on cloth in particular are to be among the big things for spring.

Silvered feathers are one of the prettiest hat trimmings. They are soft and alluring, and add a be ming shadow to the hat on which they are placed.

Poppy red is one of the new and popular blouse shades. It is very effective for one of the long overblouses and may be worn over a slip or self-color or black.

Paris jewellers are displaying an earring about as large as an American silver dollar, made in the form of a picture frame. In this frame is worn the miniature portrait of someone dear to the lady whom it adorns. It is suspended from the ear by a ribbon, and one is worn on each side of the face. A short life, but a merry one, is predicted for this novelty.

The committee in charge of the Examiner road race has allocated the prizes which were donated by the various business men and association whose assistance went far toward the success of this year's revival. To the winners several prizes have been awarded on the ground that they made the race by the efforts they put forth. But all those who finished have been recognized because it was felt thatt in their first race they lacked the experience to do themselves justice. This factor miscalculating their reserve strength and the gaps that were being opened upon them.

The prizes will be presented at a near future if the plans of the committee come to pass. A definite announcement in this matter will be made in a few days.

Senior Prize Winners

FENCE OFF THEIR FISH

The natives of the South Sea Islands take areas of water as they do land, fence them, and stock them with various kinds of fish. They are enabled to do this because the lagoons around many of the islands are fairly shallow. These lagoons are divided off into large and small sections by coral walls. They may be several acres in extent, or only a few square yards. As the waters around abound with all kinds of fish, the natives catch them and place them in their water paddocks until they are needed.

"SEEING CANADA" FILMS FOR EXHIBIT IN EUROPE

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press.)— Another link in the world-wide distribution of the "Seeing Canada" series of films being produced by the Exhibits and Publicity Bureau of the department of trade and commerce has been forged.

Official announceent has just been made by R. S. Peck, the director of the bureau, that an agreement has been entered into with one of the largest European distributors of films in Paris, France, whereby the three countries of France, Belgium and Switzerland will now have an opportunity of seeing many thousands of feet of "Seeing Canada" films, which are produced in their entirety in Ottawa at the local film plant.

LITTLE WANT ADS.

At this time of the year, there are any number of things that are badly needed, either by the man or woman.

These things can be done without, but the Summer is going to be not quite so happy without them, and they need not cost you nearly as much as you think, if you only use the Want Ads. to get them.

So many people lose a vast amount of pleasure simply because they have never learned the value of a simple little appeal to the Examiner Want Ad. Column. Don't let this bright month of June go by without satisfying little extra Summer wants through the Want Ads.

CATTLEMEN AND POULTRY GROWERS APPEAL TO SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Congressional action was completed yesterday on the bill to extend the life of the emergency tariff until permanent tariff legislation is enacted while the Senate Finance Committee was hearing appeals for protection from live stock and poultry growers.

The final legislative action on the bill to extend the emergency act which otherwise would expire by limitation November 27, was concurrence of the House in amendments added by the Senate. The Senate amendments were accepted 233 to 93, most of the opposition votes being cast by Democrats.

WINDSOR HARRIER CLUB NOW A FACT EXCEPT IN NAME

While the formation of a harrier club is being advocated, it is worth noticing that Art Johnson, father and son, have a young and lusty, if unorganized club of their own at the Windsor hotel. Albert Smoke, the winner of the Hamilton Herald road race, flew the colors of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, but the first claim on his allegiance could be made by the Windsor Harrier Club, to give it a name that sounds acceptable, and may be so. And while Smoke was in Hamilton, young Frost, who had trained with Smoke and Art Johnston, Jr., was getting a lot of enlightening experience in the junior Examiner race. The Windsor club is confident that had Frost been amenable to instructions he would have defeated Stacey. He chose, however, it is said, to follow his own ideas, and afterwards admitted that he was wrong. In other words, Frost profited in that race by more than the prize he won. He had stayed up with the pack over the whole course and was beaten only in the spring down George street.

The Windsor squad, five of them, were out in the slush Thursday night with Smoke for a five mile canter. The running game has become firmly established as a prominent branch of athletics in Peterborough, and among those who deserve credit for its enduring is Art Johnston. If he can now enlist a bunch of boys who will take up this sport he will not only have a real harrier club around him but he will be helping the boys to better physical condition and general health by the moderate training they would necessarily have to undergo.

Smoke to Detroit.

Art Johnston, Jr., intends to enter Smoke in the ten mile race in Detroit on the United States Thanksgiving Day He has written for an entry form and expects to receive it this week.

ELECTION NEWS

PREMIER DEFENDS POLICY ON RAILWAYS.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11. — (Canadian Press). — Defending the railway policy of the Government and replying to the statements of Hon. Mr. King, Premier Meighen last night, before four thousand people in the Horticultural Hall, declared that in 1903 and 1904 Canada had been "let into as colossal, as disastrous and as catastrophic a railway policy as ever befell any nation. The Grand Trunk Pacific and Transcontinental were built thirty years before their time, and were political railroads."

The Liberal party, he declared, had not placed the national platform before the people, but had adopted the policy of made-to-order policies for every county in the Dominion. While the tariff was not the only issue, it was made necessary through the determined attacks of the Progressives.

KING SAYS RIORDON PAID DIVIDENDS IN 1917-19.

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 11.—(Canadian Press). — That during 1917, 1918 and 1919, the Riordon Company had declared dividends of ten per cent., and at the same time had been allowed to pay its Federal taxes in promissory notes, was the further charge of Hon. Mackenzie King to an audience of more than three thousand here last night. He declared that the Government had been carrying the Riordon Company in this way until the company had come almost to bankruptcy.

"If Riordon and other companies were entitled to this sort of treatment," he said, "then the same should be accorded the poor man who cannot pay his taxes." He further stated that the losses to the country during the last four years have totalled millions of dollars. Other companies, he declared, also have given the Government their notes.

STUDENTS MUST RECISTER IN HOME CONSTITUENCY.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 11. — (Canadian Press). — Students who are unable to return to their home constituencies to either register or vote will be automatically disenfranchised as the altering of registration rules is impossible, a delgation of students from the Manitoba University was informed to-day.

FARMER OPPOSES LIBERAL.

OTTAWA, Nov. 11. — (Canadian Press).—Jean Lachance, a farmer residing in the northern part of Labelle County, has been selected to contest the riding on behalf of the Quebec Farmers. He will oppose H. A. Fortier, of Hull, who is the ex-member and a Liberal. A Government candidate has not been selected yet.

WEDDING BELLS

McINTYRE—FOWLER
Yesterday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, George street Methodist Church, beautifully decorated with ferns, palms and chrysanthemums, was the scene of a pretty wedding, when Effie, daughter of Mrs. Ellen Fowler, 159 Hunter street, and the late Mr Fowler, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Malcolm McIntyre of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harold Young, in the presence of relatives and a large number of friends.

The bride, becomingly attired in suit of brown broadcloth trimmed with beaver and picture hat of panne velvet, with corsage bouquet of yellow roses, entered the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. A. A. Fowler, to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. J. H. Renwick. The signing of the register was witnessed by Mr. A. A. Fowler and by the groom's brother, Mr. A. A. McIntyre, mayor of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre were escorted to the afternoon train by a number of their friends. After a short honeymoon in Toronto and western points, they will reside at 564 Aylmer street.

The bride was the recipient of many useful and beautiful gifts, tokens of esteem from her many friends, who were profuse in their good wishes for the happiness of both bride and groom.

The evening was spent in dancing and cards, prizes for the latter going to Miss M. McCarthy and Mr. Wm. Meagher. The ladies in charge of serving the dainty refreshments provided, were Mrs. T. Lane and Mrs. J. E. White.

A feature of the entertainment was the excellent musci provided by a junior pianiste and drummer, Masters Willard and Reid. These boys rendered a surprisingly good programme of fine music, in the best dance time, and their efforts were thoroughly appeciated by the guests.

ROW LEADS MAGISTRATE TO ADJOURN HIS COURT.

OTTAWA, November 11 (Canadian Press). — A scene was created in Magistrate Perrault's Court in Hull when some liquor cases were on trial, which caused the Magistrate to adjourn the Court and leave the bench.

Mayor Louis Cousineau was defending David Brousseau, of East Templeton, charged with a violation of the Quebec Liquor Law, and an argument arose as to whether or not the stenographer taking down the evidence should be sworn.

Words were exchanged between counsel and the bench, and Magistrate Perrault held that he had been insulted by alleged insinuations that the bench had received instructions from the Liquor Commission as to the disposition of the cases, and it was no use proceeding with them.

G.N. GORDON THE CHOICE OF LIBERALS

SITTING MEMBER NOMINATED UNANIMOUSLY THIS AFTERNOON TO OPPOSE J. H. BURNHAM, EX-M.P., CONSERVATIVE.

GIVEN GREAT OVATION; MAKES STRONG SPEECH

G. N. Gordon, M.P., will oppose J. H. Burnham, ex-M.P., in the Federal election in West Peterborough.

Mr. Gordon was the unanimous choice of the Liberal Convention in the G.W.V.A. Hall this afternoon.

Mr. Gordon was nominated by R. R. Hall, ex-M.P., who, in a brief speech, declared that Mr. Gordon stands on the same platform to-day as he did in the by-election nine months ago. This platform was broad enough for all classes.

Regarding the Liberal tariff platform, he stated that Canada's golden era was under the Liberal Laurier Government. To-day there was unemployment and a great exodus to the United States under the Meighen Government. A revision of the tariff would check this, he said.

The nomination was seconded by Mr. Fowler, of Smith Township, and made unanimous.

Applause greeted Mr. Gordon when he stepped to the platform to thank the convention.

Mr. Gordon declared that his nomination was by those who stood for good government. He had not wished to take the nomination, but had done so under pressure.

G. N. GORDON.

"But we're going out to win," he declared.

Because Gordon Wilkie, of Toronto, the next speaker, desired to leave on the 3.50 train, the candidate postponed the remainder of his address until later.

There were about 400 present, among whom were many farmers and labor men.

The convention was presided over by J. J. Hartley, president of the West Peterborough Liberal Association, who in opening the meeting referred to the success of Mr. Gordon in the by-election last February and expressed the hope that the choice of to-day's convention would receive as strong support.

George Wilkie

The Liberal party stands in an advantageous position in this election, said Mr. George Wilkie of Toronto, in opening his address.

"Those [illegible] seeking power and felt had no reason to stay with us during the last ten years. Therefore I believe I am speaking to an audience that has stood by its principles without regard to their pockets".

The issue in this campaign was not the tariff Mr. Wilkie said. "It is on older issue. It goes back long before the tariff he worships. 'You're been faithful over few things I will make you ruler over many.'"

Mr. Wilkie proceeded to show that Mr. Meighen had been faithful only to the big interests. He expressed the hope that Peterborough would have the opportunity of hearing James Murdock in this campaign.

"He's coming," said Mr. Gordon.

Referring to the Board of Commerce and its activities Mr. Wilkie said that Mr. Murdock had been so indiscreet as to investigate certain businesses in which the friends of the government were directly interested. One of those was the paint industry in which the Hon. Mr. Ballantyne, a Minister of the Crown, was

SUMMONER OF CONFERENCE AND ITS HEAD.

Warren G. Harding, President of the United States, (left), who summoned the conference on limitation of armaments and made the opening address at its first session this morning, and Charles Evan Hughes, United States Secretary of State, (right), who is likely to be elected president of the conference.

PROMINENT IN BRITISH DELEGATION.

Arthur J. Balfour, acting head of the British delegation to the armament conference in the absence of Premier Lloyd George, and Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador to the United States.

"THE GIRL IN RED"

Under the auspices of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., "The Girl in Red" was presented for the first time last evening at the Grand Opera House to a well-filled and appreciative house. The play, a bright little three-act comedy, was excellently enacted by local talent, who displayed a good deal of histrionic ability. The choruses were bright and tuneful, and received rounds of applause. An outstanding feature of the production was the beautiful costuming of principals and choruses, and the solo work between acts.

The play itself, without having a perceptible theme, is a light, gay, swift-moving offering, centreing around the efforts of two husbands to conceal their rather harmless peccadilloes from exacting wives. James Goodwin, 'a gay old bird,' played by Jack Swan with a broad accent, irreproachable get-up, imperial and tortoise-shell rimmed spectacles, has a 'past' in the form of an old flame named Lucinda Hersey, a past which his wife considers it her sacred duty to never let him forget. He has invented a mythical membership in the 'Doakie' club to cover his nocturnal absences, but when Harry Davis, (Harry Pelton), 'a cheerful liar' who happens to be his son-in-law, also deecides to adopt this pretense, things begin to happen. The first act finds them frantically wig-wagging to each other in a simulated attempt at secret signals.

Miss Helen Morrison gave a fine rendition as May Davis, 'a trusting wife,' and Miss Delossa Walker, in a stunning marcelled coiffure of white, is excellent as Mrs. Goodwin, 'the mother-in-law.' These two ladies are obsessed by a passion for the 'Doakie' lodge, and overlook everything in their pride in having husbands belonging to it. Mr. Smith, from Gore's Landing, played by Sam Whitehouse in a linen duster, red bandana handkerchief, high boots and corncob pipe, who is a would-be 'Doakie,' and undertakes to run to and from the Hunter street bridge ten times as a test for initiation, and Kenneth Anderson as Mr. Morrison, a real 'Doakie,' rather complicate matters for the two deceivers. When the latter reveals the fact that the lodge will hold a ladies' night shortly, Davis and his father-in-law are obliged to get busy, and enlist the aid of Jack Reynolds, 'the trouble,' who suggested the subterfuge in the first place. This, the principal part, is taken by Mr Theodore Bird, with a nonchalant, breezy manner that 'gets across' in great style. He agrees to act as the dressmaker's assistant, 'from Cressman's' and, incidentally, announces himself as Madelon Hersey, the daughter of the Lucinda Her-sey who figured so prominently in Mr. James Goodwin's past. His appearance in a dazzling robe of glaring red, with green stockings and brown wig, brings down the house. Mrs. Goodwin receives him as a living reminder of her husband's youthful folly, and 'Madelon' proceeds to distinguish herself with a number of escapades which conflict with her double part, and culminate in a desperate attempt to get rid of the red gown. The real Jack Reynolds happens to be in love with one of the daughters of the house, Mona Goodwin, played in a very dainty fashion by Miss Muriel Harvey, and his efforts to maintain a sisterly attitude toward her lead to some amusing situations. Morrison happens to be in love also with Lucy Goodwin, another daughter part charmingly played by Miss Elva McIntyre, and their efforts to placate Mrs. Goodwin get some more laughs. The final denouement with its resultant disclosures leads to a happy ending, where everybody is happy, and Mr. Goodwin's 'past' incidentally is buried forever. Miss Florence Harrison makes a very attractive maid, 'Lotta,' and Mr. Cliff Carruthers is an excellent negro 'servant.'

Special Numbers.

The play has a very pretty opening chorus, "For the Glory of the Grand Old Flag," led by Mrs. McKee Bingham, a sweet singer gowned as 'Brittania,' with a chorus of tiny boys and girls, in red, white and blue caps and bands, and waving small Union Jacks. This number was heartily applauded.

Miss Florence Harrison had a very pretty solo, "The Alice Blue Gown," Mrs. Jas. H. Macdonald and Mr. Herb. Rush gave a loudly-encored duet, "The Cynical Owl," their two fine voices blending per fectly in the dainty number, enlivened by a chorus of lovely damsels and their masculine partners, the former in flashing paper costumes and hats of pink, blue, yellow, mauve and green, and the latter with a 'straw hat' chorus. This number received much applause.

Miss Myrtle Succee's voice was heard to great advantage in "The Nest," and a pretty number, "Poppy Land," with a very effective 'glow-worm' chorus.

Mr. Cliff Carruthers sings "Mammy" in great style, assisted by a fetching 'homespun' quintette, and Mr. Sam Whitehouse captured his audience with his lively rendition of "My Old Town is a One Horse Town." Mrs. Bingham and Mr. Kit Picard do "Ching Chong" in fine voice, the former in a dainty, varicolored Japanese costume, and the latter with regulation outfit of pink silk umbrella and long pig-tail. The chorus for this number, also enacted in costume, was very dainty, and received an enthusiastic encore. Miss Bertha Kirn has a pretty interpretative dance in the last act, which was well received, and Miss Eva McIntyre and Mr. Jack Morrison have a charming little duet, "For Love."

The excellent work of Mrs. W. L. Phillips, who acted as accompanist in the most efficient manner throughout the evening, contributed a great deal to the success of the performance.

The adult chorus taking part in this production was composed as follows: The Misses Marjorie Evans, Marion Webber, Beatrice Nurse, Vedea Storey, Seabourne Hamilton, Georgie Stevenson, Hazel Jackson, Muriel Lockhart, Carrie Crookshanks, Jean Roxborough, Barbara Massey-Cooke, Grace Primeau, Maida Conner, Claire Mason, and Messrs Kenneth Poole, Robert Hamilton, Kenneth Sherwood, J. N. S. Dickson, Alex. Donnelly, Wilfred Derry, Harry Tudhope, Fred T-m-

WATER HERE IS NOT DANGEROUS FOR DRINKING

DOSE OF CHLORINE BEING ADMINISTERED SUFFICIENT TO NEGATIVE SLIGHT POLLUTION AT PRESENT.

RIVER TEMPERATURE IS DROPPING RAPIDLY

The water now being used by the citizens is assuming its winter superiority, and the tests show that its present condition is not dangerous. Six pounds of chlorine per million gallons is being administered. This negatives any germs that may have survived the cold. During the last two weeks the temperature has been falling steadily, and it is now down to 38 degrees, and at the rate it is dropping it will not be long before the river is filled with ice.

The Waterworks Department has been busy considering that the time for laying services is nearly past. The Euclid Street main has been constructed after much discussion, and four residents have contracted for water. A number of hydrants in different sections of the city, at the request of the Fire Chief, are being raised to a height he considers necessary for expeditiously controlling them when fire breaks out.

World Sees Futility of Passion's Run, Harding Tells Disarm Delegates

AT OPENING SESSION PRESIDENT IN POWERFUL PLEA FOR "LESS PREPARATION FOR WAR AND MORE ENJOYMERT OF FORTUNATE PEACE" DECLARES THERE CAN BE NO CURE WITHOUT SACRIFICE BY ALL—IMPRESSES ON DELEGATES THAT THEY ARE MET FOR SERVICE TO MANKIND.

WASHINGTON, November 12 (United Press). — The conference on limitation of armaments opened this morning with an address of welcome by President Harding, who declared that "it was no unseemly boast, no disparagement of other nations not represented, to declare that the conclusions of this body will have a signal influence on all human progress."

The tragedy of the war had brought to the world a fuller realisation of the futility of passion's sway, the President said—and a world weary under the burden of armaments demanded that we have less preparation for war and more of the joys of a fortunate peace. But sacrifice by all was necessary.

He stated that the United States entered the conference without gnile, and with no ambitions to conquer.

The President spoke as follows:

"It is a great and happy privilege to bid the delegates to this conference a cordial welcome to the capital of the United States of America. It is not only a satisfaction to greet you because we were lately participants in a common cause, in which shared sacrifices and sorrows and triumphs brought our nations more closely together, but it is gratifying to address you as the spokesmen for nations whose convictions and attending actions have so much to do with the weal or woe of all mankind.

"It is not possible to over-appraise the importance of such a conference. It is no unseemly boast, no disparagement of other nations, which, though not represented, are held in highest respect, to declare that the conclusions of this body will have a signal influence on all human progress—on the fortunes of the world.

Earnest of an Awakened Conscience.

"Here is a meeting I can well believe, which is an earnest of the awakened conscience of twentieth century civilization. It is not a convention of remorse, nor a session of sorrow. It is not the conference of victors to define terms of settlement. Nor is it a council of nations seeking to remake human kind. It is rather a coming together from all parts of the earth, to apply the better attributes of mankind to minimize the faults in our international relationships.

"Speaking as official sponsor for the invitation, I think I may say the call is not of the United States of America alone; it is rather the spoken word of a war-wearied world, struggling for restoration, hungering and thirsting for better relationship; of humanity crying for relief and craving assurance of lasting peace.

Must Banish Misunderstanding.

"It is easy to understand this world-wide aspiration. The glory of triumphs, the rejoicing in achievement, the love of liberty, the devotion to country, the pangs of sorrow, the burdens of debt, the desolation of ruin—all these are appraised alike in all lands. Here in the United States we are but freshly turned from the burial of an unknown American soldier, when a nation sorrowed while paying his tribute. Whether it was spoken or not, a hundred million of our people were summarizing the inexcusable causes, the incalculable cost, the unspeakable sacrifices and the unutterable sorrows and there was the ever-impelling question: 'How can humanity justify or forgive?' Human hate demands no such toil; ambition and greed must be denied it. If misunderstanding rule and make good will regnant everywhere. All demand liberty and justice. There cannot be one without the other, and they must be held the unquestioned possession of all peoples. Inherent rights are of God, and the tragedies of the world originate in their attempted denial. The world to-day is infringing their enjoyment by arming to defend or deny, when simple sanity calls for their recognition through common understanding.

Burden Must Be Lifted.

"Out of the cataclysm of the world war came new fellowships, new convictions, new aspirations. It is ours to make the most of them. A world staggering with debt needs its burden lifted. Humanity which has been shocked by wanton destruction would minimize the agencies of that destruction. Contemplating the measureless cost of war and the continuing burden of armament, all thoughtful peoples wish for real limitation of armament and would like war outlawed. In sobered reflection the world's hundreds of millions who pay in peace and die in war, wish their statesmen to turn the expenditures for destruction into means of construction, aimed at a higher state for those who live and follow after.

"It is not alone that the world cannot readjust itself and cast aside the excess burdens without relief from the leaders of men. War has grown progressively cruel and more destructive from the first recorded conflict to this pregnant day and the reverse order would most become our boasted civilization.

Welcomed With Unselfish Hands.

"Gentlemen of the conference, the United States welcomes you with unselfish hands. We harbor no fears; we have no sordid ends to serve, we suspect no enemy, we contemplate or apprehend no conquest. Content with what we have, we seek nothing which is another's. We only wish to do with you that finer, nobler thing which no nation can do alone.

"We wish to sit with you at the table of international understanding and good will. In good conscience we are eager to meet you frankly and invite and offer cooperation. The world demands a sober contemplation of the existing order, and the realization that there can be no cure without sacrifice, not by one of us, but by all of us.

"I do not mean surrendered rights or narrow freedom, or denied aspiration, or ignored national necessities. Our republic would no more ask for these than it would give. No pride need be humbled, no nationality submerged, but I would have a mergence of minds committing all of us to less preparation for war and more enjoyment of fortunate peace.

When Government Fails.

"The higher hopes come of the spirit of our coming together. It is but just to recognize varying needs and peculiar positions. Nothing can be accomplished in disregard of nation apprehensions. Rather, we should act together to remove the causes of apprehensions. This is not to be done by intrigue. Greater assurance is found in the exchanges of simple honesty and directness, among men resolved to accomplish as becomes leaders among nations, when civilization itself has come to its crucial test.

"It is not to be challenged that government fails when the excess of its cost robs the people of the way to happiness and the opportunity to achieve. If the finer sentiments were not urging, the cold, hard facts of excessive cost and the eloquence of economies would urge us to reduce our armaments. If the concept of a better order does not appeal, then let us ponder the burden and the blight of continued competition.

"It is not to be denied that the world has swung along throughout the ages without heeding this call from the kindlier hearts of men. But the same world never before was so tragically brought to realization of the utter futility of passion's sway when reason and conscience and fellowship point a nobler way.

Met to Serve Mankind.

"I can speak officially only for our United States. One hundred millions frankly want less of armament and none of war. Wholly free from guile, sure in our own minds that we harbor no unworthy designs, we accredit the world with the same good intent. So we welcome you, not alone in goodwill and high purpose, but with high faith.

"We are met for a service to mankind. In all simplicity, in all honesty and all honor, there may be written here the avowals of a world conscience refined by the consuming fires of war and made more sensitive by the anxious aftermath. I hope for that understanding which will emphasize the guarantees of peace and for commitments of less burdens and a better order which will tranquilize the world. In such an accomplishment there will be added glory to your flags and ours, and the rejoicing of mankind will make the transcending music of all succeeding time."

BRITISH PRESS OPTIMISTIC ON DISARM PARLEY

TIMES SAYS LEADERS AT CONFERENCE EARNESTLY AIM TO TRANSLATE ASPIRATIONS INTO SUBSTANCE OF LIFE.

TELEGRAPH THINKS MORAL STATUS OF U. S. RAISED

LONDON, Nov. 12.— (Canadian Press.)— Interest in the opening of the Washington conference to-day is attested by the great amount of space devoted to it in this morning's papers.

Commenting on the conference The Times refers to President Harding's oration over the body of the Unknown soldier. It declares that the President gave a great lead when he spoke of the liberation of the captive conscience of the world.

"Much depends upon leadership and we rejoice to see many hopeful indications that the leaders and initiators of the conference earnestly aim at translating the highest aspirations of our troubled time into the solid substance of the life we have to live," it says.

The Morning Telegraph declares that the conference is the new world's opportunity and in grasping it promptly President Harding has raised the moral status of his country as a great power.

RED RUSSIA'S IDEA.

RIGA, Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press.)—Soviet Russia's idea of the Washintgon conference, as expressed by Karl Redek, of the Third Internationale, is that it will not actually discuss disarmament, but will be only a new introducing of world powers for further division of the spoils of the war.

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

THE MOVIES FORMED SUBJECT OF INTERESTING DEBATE—OFF TO THE HUNT.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 12.—The debate on the subject, "Resolved that Motion Picture Shows are more Injurious than Helpful," given by the A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' Church on Wednesday evening, proved most interesting.

The affirmative was ably taken by Messrs. William Needler and Allen Pitt, while the negative was most convincingly set forth by Miss Lillian Clarke and Mr. David Fowler. The arguments on both sides showed evidence of much preparation, and were carefully thought out. The judges, who finally awarded the decision to the affirmative, were Reeve W. T. Wood, Mr. L. C. Atkinson, manager of the Bank of Toronto, and Mr. A. A. Smith, barrister-at-law. There was a large attendance at the meeting, and a keen interest in the debate was manifest throughout.

Miss Lillian Clarke was appointed delegate to the Provincial A. Y. P. A. Convention meeting next week in Peterborough; a number of the other members also expect to attend the sessions part of the time at least.

The officers of the local association, recently elected, are: President, Mr. R. J. Stone; Vice-President, Miss Green; Secretary, Miss Florence Clarke; Treasurer, Mr. Allen Pitt.

Rebekahs Met.

The "Golden Sheaf" Rebekah Lodge held its usual fortnightly meeting on Tuesday evening, November 8th, with a fair number of members in attendance. The names of some candidates for membership were submitted, but it was decided to postpone the initiation of these until the next meeting, on November 22nd, simply the ordinary programme being carried out, and routine business attended to, at Tuesday's meeting.

Deer Hunting.

Amongst others who have gone north for their annual deer hunt is Dr. H. E. Ellis, V.S., who is in the Parry Sound district. Mr. Wm. McIvor leaves next week for Sudbury, and will doubtless have his usual success.

Mr. L. R. Atkinson, manager of the Bank of Toronto, spent the Thanksgiving holiday at his home in Toronto.

Mrs. Pullin, of Winnipeg, formerly Miss Ada Lord, and her little son, Harold, are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lord.

Mr. Percy Dulmage, of Peterborough, was a business visitor to town on Thursday.

Mr. George McKim, of Peterbor-

WHAT IS THE HEIGHT OF FAME?

OTTAWA, November 12 (Canadian Press). — What is the height of fame? Some persons hold that when a man has had a cigar named after him, there are no further worlds to conquer. But horticulturists would probably maintain that it was more lasting fame to have a flower named after one.

Whether or not Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the National Progressive Party, will become Prime Minister of Canada and write his name large in history remains to be seen; but in any event, his name will be handed down through generations of flower lovers, for a new species of geranium developed at the Experimental Farm in Ottawa has been named after him.

Other species of geraniums have been named after other Ministers of Agriculture, including the John Carling, the Sydney Fisher, the Martin Burrell, and the Dr. Tolmie.

LAKEFIELD HONORS DAY

SPECIAL SERVICES IN THE CHURCH TO COMMEMORATE ARMISTICE DAY.

LIST OF DEAD

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 12. — The memorial service held in St. John's church on Friday morning was fairly well attended. Among those present were a number of High school cadets in uniform. A cross of poppies was on the altar over the brass cross and the memorial tablets of the soldiers were decorated.

The service was simple and consisted of a shortened form of morning prayer and a brief address by the rector, Capt. Frank Vipond. The text was particularly appropriate, "Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friend."

The prayer of remembrance followed the address and the roll call of the Lakefield men who died for King and country. The following is the list:

"The Illustrious Dead."

Men from Lakefield and vicinity who fell in the Great War: Arthur Aldred, Frank Armstrong, John Clayton Armstrong, W. E. Bell, Dalling Barlee, Roland Barlee, Edward Blomfield, S. Maitland Bryson, Wm. John Campbell, Gordon Carter, Roland Carter, George Oron Coones, Keith Cumberland, Bruce W. Edwards, John A. Frankish, Isaac Hampton, Geoffrey C. Hilliard, Wilfrid Hull, Stanley Kidd, Theodore Johnson, Maxwell Johnson, Joseph Jamieson, Percy Lemay, Philip Pattrick, Sherman Mahood, Osborne Montgomery, Jonathan Morris, G. Noble Milburn, Herbert Nicholls, James Howard Rowe, George Rowe, William T. Rowe, Joseph Sabatino, Herbert J. Stuart, Allan Sanderson, George Roper Strickland, Roland Darcy Strickland, Dougall Traill, William H. Walker, Hugh Webster Whetstone, Chas. R. White, Leonard Wingett. Their names live forever more.

After the roll call Mrs. Marling, the organist, played the Dead March in Saul.

The hymn 220, "The Saints of God, Their Conflict Passed" was sung and the bell announced the two minutes' silence, which was reverently observed, and when the bell announced that the time was up the congregation and choir sang the Te Deum. The National Anthem followed the blessing. The service was simple and very beautiful in its simplicity and reverence.

The post office wickets were closed for the two minutes' silence at 11 o'clock on Friday morning.

The flags on the post office and town hall were at half mast till the service was over on the morning of Nov. 11th, Armistice day.

URGED TO DEMOLISH STATUE OF LAWRENCE

LAHORE, British India, Nov. 12. —(Canadian Press).—Mahatma K. Gandhi, the Indian Nationalist leader yesterday urged a large gathering here to remove the statue of Lord Lawrence which stands in the city. Gandhi exhorted his audience to undertake the task "even at the risk of imprisonment or death." Beneath the statue is the inscription:

EVIDENCE FOR LANDRU SAID TO BE FORGED

HE PRODUCES TWO LETTERS FROM ALLEGED VICTIM DATED LATER THAN TIME OF ALLEGED MURDER.

BANK ACCEPTED LETTERS

VERSAILLES, November 12 (Canadian Press). — A surprise was sprung in the Assizes Court here yesterday when Henri Landru, the alleged modern "Bluebeard," on trial for the murder of ten women and the son of one of tnem, produced two letters bearing the alleged signature of Madame Desiree Guillin, one of his alleged victims, dated November and Decembr, 1915, respectively. The prosecution is charging that Madame Guillin, a Brazilian by birth, was murdered in August, 1915.

The letters were addressed to the Bank of France, instructing that institution to dispose of her securities deposited in the bank by her. The bank, satisfied that the signatures were genuine, followed her instructions.

The prosecution called in a handwriting expert, who swore that the signatures were forgeries. The jury was visibly impressed by the fact that the bank had accepted the signatures as genuine.

Counsel for the defence spent a long time in cross-examining the handwriting expert.

The fifth day of the trial ended with the jury still occupied with the hearing of evidence concerning the case of Madame Guillin, whom the prosecution charges Landru wooed, won, and killed while representing himself as 'Georges Petit," French Consul-General at Melbourne.

Both sides expressed the belief last night that the trial would last at least ten days more.

LABOR LEADERS TO PREACH IN PULPITS

BOSTON, Nov. 12.— (Canadian Press.)—Labor leaders are to occupy the pulpits of the 25 churches in and near Boston next Sunday, to "preach workingmen's sermons on religious ideals in industrial relations."

The Central Labour Union, in denouncing assignments of local officers to the churches, included in its list Methodist, Congregational, Universalist and Baptist pastorates and a synagogue.

CABLE AND TELEGRAPH

ASK THAT CREDITORS WITHHOLD ACTION

REGINA, Nov.. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Placing before the government of Saskatchewan and representatives of the financial interests of Canada the problems that are confronting them as the result of the demoralized wheat market, delegates from the Farmers' organizations of the province in a conference here yesterday urged that creditors withhold action for collection of debts against them until the province gets back again to normal conditions. The conference was the one called by Premier Martin to probe financial conditions of the province, principally the conditions of the farmers. Eighty delegates, including the government ministers, were in attendance.

Premier Martin presided at the session and opened it by giving a brief review of conditons. They were serious, he said, but he expresses unbounded confidence in the return of normal conditions.

Several farmer delegates spoke. Like the premier, they all expressed confidence in the future but pressed for creditors not to take drastic action against them for debt collection, or, as some of them stated, they would be wiped out

They were afraid that if one collector commenced action, all the others, to protect themselves, would do likewise.

ARMY OF OCCUPATION OBSERVES ARMISTICE DAY

COBLENZ, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Armistice Day was observed throughout the occupied area yesterday as a holiday for all Allied troops. The German inhabitants here, however, carried on business as usual.

SOVIET PROPOSES RUSSO—AMERICAN PACT

LONDON, Nov. 12.— (Canadian Press.)—The Outlook, a weekly publication, in its issue of yesterday, asserted that the Russian Soviet government had unofficially approached the United States government with a view to concluding a Russo-American alliance in opposition to the Anglo-Japanese alliance. The Soviet overtures were ignored, the periodical said.

SPOKESMEN OF WORLD CONFER TO EASE ARMS

FIVE GREAT POWERS, URGED BY FORCE OF WORLD OPINION, SEEK BASIS FOR INTERNATIONAL FRIENDSHIP.

CONFIDENCE MANIFESTED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(Canadian Press)—With the eyes of all the world fixed hopefully upon them, the accredited spokesmen of te powers will meet in Washington to-day to try to find a way to ease the heavy burden of armaments.

In the historic quest, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and the United States a group which acting together can turn the whole tide of civilization into new channels, all have pledged a solemn and determined co-operation

In addition, China, Belgium, Portugal and The Netherlands, invited because of their vital interest in the pertinent and crucial problems of the Far East will sit in the conference to complete the circle of those who are to strive for the new day of international relationship.

Outward manifestations of confidence in the success of the negotiations never have been more in prominence than on the eve of the assembling of the delegates in formal conclave. Every nation is declared by its leaders to be ready to come to the conference table with a spirit of unqualified good will for every other, and behind there is a great urging force of world opinion seeking translation into the covenants of permanent friendship.

Among the statesmen and diplomats of the visiting nations the great topic of interest last night was the address made at Arlington yesterday by President Harding, who summoned the conference into being and who will welcome it to Washington to-day. Upon every hand were heard expressions of satisfaction that in paying his tribute to the United States Soldier dead, the chief executive grasped this opportunity to renew his pledge of the United States to take its full place in securing and maintaining a better order.

In the fulfilment of that pledge, it is the expectation of all the delegates that the United States Government will place before the conference as soon as it begins its work a concrete proposal for armament limitation.

PEOPLE EXPECT ITS SUCCESS, SAYS COMPERS

New York, Nov. 12..—(Canadian Press).—The people of the world expect success from the armament conference at Washington and they do not want an excuse or a reason for a failure, Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor told the disarmament meeting in Madison Square Garden here last night

"The world war was the high climax of the contest between the old and the new," Mr. Gompers said. "The philosophy of rule by force, by tyranny, by autocracy and militarism, has been swept out of the world

SIGNALIZES JOINING PAST WITH THE FUTURE

LONDON, November 12.—(Canadian Press) — "To-day signalizes future," declared George Harvey, United States Ambassador to Great Britain in an Armistice Day address here last night.

In his address, Ambassador Harvey alluded to President Harding's proclamation making the day a national holiday, and pointed out the coincidence of the day's falling on the three hundred and first anniversary of the arrival of the Mayflower.

SATURDAY, NOV. 12TH, 1921.

A WELCOME ANNOUNCEMENT.

The announcement of the intention of the local branch of the Red Cross Society to establish a public health depot in Peterborough with a nurse in charge who will give her full time to the work, is in line with the peace-time policy, decided upon some time ago by the Canadian Red Cross Society. No more efficient or hard-working organization than the Peterborough branch of the society "carried on" here during the war, and it is apparent that the same enthusiasm, the same desire to be of service has been retained by the membership. A public health depot will be of great community value in Peterborough and its advent will be hailed with satisfaction as another step towards a healtier and better city. The Health Association and the Well Babies' Clinic have been contributing their splendid service to the citizens for some time, and, doubtless, will heartily welcome the reinforcements brought by the Red Cross Society to assist in the everlasting battle against illness and suffering. The co-operation of the public in this fine undertaking should be freely offered.

ECONOMY DEMANDED.

The fact that a Federal election campaign is being fought should not cause the ratepayers of Peterboro to forget that the municipal elections follow closely on the Dominion campaign, and that it is not too soon to begin thinking about the personnel of next year's council. In this connection they should not fail to convey to every aspirant for office their desire to see some measures of economy adopted by the city's board of aldermen for 1922. The upward climb of the tax rate must be checked. Wages are dropping, many property owners are wtihout employment, and the war time inflation of the tax levies is a heavy burden upon the shoulders of the people. The time has come for applying the brakes to the spending departments of the government, and a period of rigid economy will have to be inaugurated. Wherever economical methods can be applied, the people will expect from the council of next year that they will not hesitate to retrench. There is of course a great deal of expenditure over which the council has no control, and for which they cannot be held responsible. Pressure will have to be brought to bear in other quarters to effect a saving in these outlays, but in expenditure that is in the hands of the aldermen, the latter will be looked to for a policy of economy. The tax rate not only must not be allowed to climb higher; it must be reduced, if at all possible.

HELP THE LIVING.

The Armistice Day message to the Canadian people of His Excellency Baron Byng, Governor-General of Canada, is impressive, not only for its brevity, but for its significance. "Honour the dead by helping the living" is the advice given by the hero of Vimy, who as a veteran of the Great War has always the cause of his comrades in mind. The message is no less necessary than timely. The noble dead have passed on; nothing can be done for them but to revere their memory and keep the recollection of them warm in our hearts. But their comrades who survived the manifold's perils of the battle-line are back home. Many of them are out of work; their families are feeling the pinch of want and poverty. They recall the promises they were given when they went away, the assurance that nothing would be too good for them when they returned, and they begin to wonder if public gratitude is, after all, but a slender reed upon which to lean, if the public memory is so short-lived a thing that already their fellow Canadians have forgotten the war, forgotten their services, the sacrifices they made, the danger they braved, the hardships they endured. Baron Byng has been long enough in Canada to realize the situation, and his message is based upon his conception of the need of the hour, "Honour the dead by helping the living." The words should be a challenge to every Canadian worthy of the name, to every municipal government, to the legislatures of our Provinces and to the Federal Government.

REAL PROTECTION

The letter published by the Examiner the other evening from Mr. A. W. Paton, Lindsay, on the question of properly protecting the fishing resources of the district was doubtless read with interest by the angling fraternity of Peterboro. Mr. Paton has unquestionably uncovered the weakness of the present policy. By far the greatest part of the havoc is done by the netting and spearing of fish during the spawning season and by preventing this wholesale slaughter the authorities would ensure a never failing supply of fish in the Kawartha waters. But as Mr. Paton points out the pirates will never be checked unless different methods are adopted. An inspector with a wide territory to cover is faced with an impossible proposition in attempting to guard the fish during the spawning season. While he is at one end of his district the law-breakers are holding carnival at the other. The only solution seems to be to authorize the inspectors to engage the services of a large number of special officers during the few days in which the fish are spawning, giving each a section to patrol. This method would go a long way towards protecting the fish when protection is most needed and most valuable, and the extra expenditure would be more than justified by the results attained.

A CANADIAN RACE.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

Too true, in many cases, is the charge made by Mr. Walter McRaye, of Montreal, in his address at the Kiwanis Club luncheon on Tuesday, that Canadians do not fully appreciate their Canadianism. In some countries, notably the Republic to the south of us, the tendency to "boost" one's country is developed to the utmost degree, even to the extent of boastfulness. Not so with a majority of Canadians. If we are at fault at all, it is in the matter of not pushing our country to the front, and Mr. McRaye's words of advice are not out of place:

"The first pride that every man ought to take in Canada is a Canadian pride. Don't worry about the Empire. We are a race and should assert it. The Empire will not lose because we do. It will be still carrying on as the British Empire long after we are dead and buried. Worry about being Canadians and about seeing that we are recognized as Canadians; that is the spirit."

Mr. McRaye takes the ground that the Canadians are a race of people, and his stand in this respect is consistent with his remarks regarding the name that the pioneers of Canada blazoned for themselves on the European fields of battle. Whatever may be our own view of the matter, it cannot be denied that the people of the British Isles and France, from whence came our first pioneers, looked on these early settlers not as Englishmen, Scotsmen, Irishmen, or Frenchmen, but as Canadians. The same is true of the Dominion's representatives in the war against Germany. It was often argued (within our own borders) that a majority of those in the earlier contingents were of British birth, but such a claim was never heard in the British Isles. The men in the great Armada that crossed the Atlantic in the fall of 1914 to take a place alongside troops from other parts of the Empire, and who held the foe back in those critical days at Ypres, were not referred to as former residents of the British Isles or as descendants of Britishers, but as Canadians. The people of the Old Land were proud to refer to them as such. In other lands the same was true. The United States followed the course of Canada in the war, and the example of the Dominion had much to do with bringing Uncle Sam to a realization of his duty. Even Germany was forced to recognize and respect the Canadians.

So that even if we do not at all times look upon ourselves as a race the world at large has us classified as Canadians, and has faith in us as Canadians. We have only to blame ourselves if what Mr. McRaye says about us being weak in national spirit is true. We can, as he asserts, be hundred per cent. Canadians, and at the same time hundred per cent. Britishers.

NEW MINISTER WAS INDUCTED

REV. JOHN ARCHIBALD TAKES CHARGE AT KEENE CHURCH

KEENE Nov. 11.—On Tuesday last Nov. 8th., the Induction Service, officially placing Rev. John Archibald in charge of the Presbyterian Church, was held at 2.30 p.m.

Rev., Mr. Girvan preached the sermon Rev. D. A. Thompson narrated the steps leading up to the call and delivered the address to the new Minister, the Induction was conducted by Rev. J. A. McKenzie, who also delivered the address to the people. The Choir in full rendered the music for the service.

Immed ately following the Induction Service the Annual Supper of the Church was held. Here in a dainty and sumptuous manner the careful business-like orderliness of the Ladies was demonstrated in a way to show that they are fully qualified to take an active part in the administration of all mutual affa rs with the men and their clear understnding of men was shown in the satisfied and contended manner of the men after partaking of the good things prepared. The juvenile portion of the gathering also showed a grateful apprec.ation of the kind labors of the ladies by their happy and contented behaviour during the festivities.

In the evening a reception was held in honour of Rev. John Archibald, Mr. David Armstrong being the chairman. Addresses were delivered by Reverends Mr. Girvan, D. A. Thompson and W. E. Honey and by Messrs. Harrison and Barnes. Mr. Armstrong then called Mr. Archibald to the platform and the following address of welcome was read to him by Mr. H. McFarlane.

To Rev. John Archibald:

We the members of your congregation here in Keene, with other residents of the village and district, wish to use this opportunity to extend to you our heartiest wishes, that you, as the Minister of this Church will find your congregation ready to meet you in the Christian Spirit necessary that minister and congregation may both get the Uplift of Christianity necessary to all.

We further pray and hope that your ministry will, with the blessing of God, be fruitful for His good, as you would wish it, to feel that your good work is worth while in His sight.

Also we trust, as members of the Community, that you will find all things conducive to a pleasant and agreeable life here not only for yourself but also for your wife and family.

With the best of goodwill, we wish you God-speed in your work and life amongst us.

(Signed)

David Armstrong,
John Renwick,
John Lang,
G. Howson,
E. H. Barnes.

Mr. Archibald very suitably replied to this address.

Members of th choir, together with the organist, rendered very suitable music during the evening, which was brought to a close by the singing of the Doxology and the pronouncement of the benediction by Rev. Mr. Girvan.

One of the pleasing conditions of the day was the presence, both afternoon and evening of Rev. W. E. Honey, minister of the Methodist Church, and also the large number of people of the congregation.

W.T.R. PRESTON ENCOURAGED EMIGRATION

DECLARES SENATOR MULHOLLAND A POLITICAL PREVARICATOR WHEN CHARGING HIM WITH TAKING CONTRARY STAND OVERSEAS.

CRITICISM CHALLENGED

Mr. W. T. R. Preston, the Liberal candidate in Durham, takes strong exception to Senator Mulholland's alleged statement that he (Mr. Preston) discouraged and opposed English immigration to Canada. And the latter gentleman, when taking up cudgels in his own behalf, does not mince words in the following reply to his opponent, published by The Port Hope Guide of recent date:

"To the Editor of The Guide.

"Senator Mulholland is rapidly earning a reputation as the most reckless and deliberate political prevaricator ever produced in this community. He does not hesitate to give his imagination the freest possible scope in the most palpable romancing. In fact, even when the truth is most self-evident, then he is most free with his unbridled tongue.

"This prodigious contestant with truth is busy circulating among the English-born electors the statement that during my immigration propoganda overseas I discouraged and opposed English immigration to Canada.

"My answer to this is given in the following letter over my own signature which appeared in the London Times, January 10th, 1901—twenty years ago. This letter was copied in all the principal newspapers in Great Britain. The letter needs no explanation. It speaks for itself."

Strengthen the Colonies.

The letter quoted from the London Times extolled the moral and material support rendered to Great Britain during the war by all her Dominions, and in plain English form Mr. Preston's pen declared that in return the Dominion of Canada and the Commonwealth of Australia want one thing more than any other that can be named, i.e., population. And, above all, the people most sought after are those who emigrate from Great Britain in tens of thousands every year.

Here, deploring the fact that the bulk of emigration from the Old Land is toward the American Republic, Mr. Preston wrote: "Now, I am firmly convinced that Canada, Australia and other colonies of ours offer opportunities for certain success in life which are not available in the United States, provided the emigrant has the small capital that is required to secure a proper start. In the colonies there are vast areas of fertile land freely offered to immigrants; they are simply invited to take possession. The products of the soil find a ready and certain cash market. No such inducements to become land-owners are now afforded in the American Republic."

He then went on to outline his ideas of what course should be pursued to encourage the retention of British people within the British Empire; and concluded his advocacy of a project to this end in the following paragraphs, which breathe of true patriotism and practically invites emigration from the Mother Country to her own colonies, including Canada:

"The colonies want to increase their population. An increase of population in new countries carries with it development and prosperity, and the formation of a centre of attraction for the emigrating nations of the world. With an increase of 30,000,000 to the population of Australia, South Africa and Canada by 1925—and that is well within the bounds of possibility—Great Britain will be immeasurably more powerful than now, and less vulnerable at any point.

There should be unity of action in a comprehensive Imperial scheme of colonization, having its headquarters at the heart of the British Empire. The colonies have been practically resting upon their oars too long, and Great Britain has quietly slumbered, while too many of her best blood have become citizens of other nations. Surely this subject, with its tremendous possibilities upon the future of the head of the Anglo-Saxon race, is worthy of statesman-like consideration."

Challenges Criticism.

In The Guide Mr. Preston vigorously drives home his protest against Senator Mulholland's attacks by declaring that as a result of the propaganda started by his letter to the London Times, within five years ninety per cent. of British emigrants turned their attention to the colonies, instead of only ten per cent. which had been the official figures.

"I challenge," he exclaims, "honest criticism of the advantages that I indicated would deserve from the adoption of the Imperial and loyal outlook suggested in my letter to The Times, and which encouraged rather than discouraged British emigration to Canada."

ELECTION NEWS

MURDOCK SAYS CABINET INTERFERED WITH BOARD.

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Mr. James Murdock last night named several Cabinet Ministers as men who had interfered with the Commissioners to prevent the Board of Commerce doing the work assigned to it. Leading the list he placed the names of Sir George E. Foster and Hon. Charles Doherty, Minister of Justice. To a lesser extent he charged Hon. James Calder and Hon. C. C. Ballantyne with the same tactics. He intimated there were still more names that might be mentioned.

The names came out during the course of an address delivered by Mr. Murdock at Port Credit in the interests of W. J. Lowe, Liberal candidate in Peel County. The Minister of Justice was the man, Mr. Murdock declared, who spent an hour and fifteen minutes in warning him that the Board must not interfere in any way with established business.

CRERAR ASKS WHY FACTORIES ARE WANTED.

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—This city heard a new political doctrine last night. Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the Progressives, Hon. E. C. Drury, Premier of Ontario, and Miss Mary McCallum, assistant secretary of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, presented their policy and expressed their views on the problems facing the people to an audience which filled Massey Hall. It was Mr. Crerar's first meeting in a big industrial centre, and, although there were interruptions, he was warmly applauded, and when he regained his seat a resolution was adopted favoring placing Progressive candidates in Toronto.

At one point Mr. Crerar was asking what Canada's needs were when a voice replied quickly, "More factories."

"Why do you want more factories?" Mr. Crerar asked, "when half of those you have are closed down?"

Mr. Crerar broke some new ground in his address. On the disarmament conference he took the view that Canada was not represented as she should be as a nation.

Canada, he declared, would not occupy the same position she held at the Peace Conference and at the Assembly of the League of Nations. "We should be represented at Washington in our own right," he stated, "or we should not be represented at all."

To meet the difficulties on the National Railroads, he proposed the greatest possible efficiency in management, the creation of a public spirit in favor of National roads and a reduction in freight rates. Regarding finance, he suggested that arrangements should be completed between the Provinces and the Federal Government and large municipalities with regard to their special needs in taxation.

On the tariff he declared he was not in favor of sweeping away protection "in a night," but that protection was wrong as a permanent fiscal policy.

STEWART REPLIES TO KING'S RAILWAY CHARGES.

OTTAWA, November 12 (Canadian Press). — Dealing with charges alleged to have been made by Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King that the awarding of contracts and the general administration of the Canadian National Railways was unduly influenced by Canadian National directors who happen to be connected with Canadian business concerns, Hon. J. A. Stewart, Minister of Railways, in a statement issued yesterday, declares that the Canadian National directors are "men of outstanding ability and integrity in their respective spheres."

"On becoming directors of Canadian National Railways with respect to which there was no assurance of permanency, and the remuneration of which was only normal, it was not to be expected that, under these circumstances, these men would sever their business connections of a life time, says the statement.

Mr. Stewart declares that the directors have not a free hand in awarding the contracts and that all contracts are let by tender and only go before the directors after each has been scrutinised by departmental heads of the railway and by the company executive.

"It is the definite policy of the board to purchase all of its requirements in Canada, says the statement, when pointing out that this policy limits board to the number of companies manufacturing cars and locomotives in Canada. According to the statement, equipment purchased during the period 1917 to 1920 amounted to $65,200,057.82, and that of this equipment to the value of $51,006,248.39 was purchased from the Canadian Car and Foundry Co.; $14,216,547.92 from the Eastern Car Company; $10,474,949.30 from the National Steel Car Company; $9,508,252.40 from the Canadian Locomotive Company; and $10,093,952.81 from the Montreal Locomotive Company.

You Can Make the Skin Soft, Smooth and Velvety

by using

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

IT is always interesting to make a discovery.

Women, as well as men, find joy in discovering something which they can tell others about.

Many thousands of women have quite accidentally discovered in Dr. Chase's Ointment, a skin beautifier of rare value.

Because Dr. Chase's Ointment is so universally used as a treatment for eczema and the skin troubles of babyhood, its effectiveness as a beautifier of the skin is sometimes lost sight of, until using it for these ailments of the skin its benefit to the skin itself is once more discovered.

With the modern use of powders and cosmetics the skin becomes dry and harsh, irritations are set up, pimples and blackheads are formed.

The use of Dr. Chase's Ointment makes the skin soft and pliable, and restores the healthful action of the pores of the skin which have been clogged by the use of powders.

The woman who is admired for the exquisitely fine texture and velvety softness of her skin is the one who regularly uses Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You can discover this for yourself by giving this delightfully soothing, healing ointment a few weeks' trial.

Eczema

Miss Bessie Stewart, Lanark, Ont., writes: "I first took eczema on my head, and had to have my hair cut. Then the eczema broke out on the fingers of my right hand. It was so itchy I couldn't keep from scratching it, and it began to spread. In reading an old Almanac that mother had, I noticed that Dr. Chase's Ointment was recommended for eczema, so I sent for a sample box. I used the ointment every night, and soon saw a difference. I got a full-sized box at the druggist's, and later another one, but I never needed the second, because after the use of the first box the eczema disappeared from both my head and fingers."

Baby's Skin

Mrs. Everett Roberts, 44 Endicott Ave., Halifax, N.S., writes: "I used Dr. Chase's Ointment for my baby, who had ringworms all over his face. I tried almost everything I knew of without success until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. This completely freed him of this annoying skin trouble in a short time. I would not be without this ointment in the house, and trust this may induce others to give it a trial and be convinced of its merits."

Tender Skin

Many men suffer from skin irritations of an eczemic nature as a result of shaving. In its more aggravated form this is known as "Barber's Itch." If your skin is tender you will find it good to apply Dr. Chase's Ointment after shaving. Wash thoroughly with hot water, dry the skin carefully without rubbing, and apply the ointment. This heals the irritated skin, keeps it soft and pliable, and by its antiseptic influence prevents the spread of skin trouble.

Many Uses

There are scores of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in the home. It is the standard ointment, and is used with great satisfaction for

WRECKS WINE CELLAR IN A FIT OF RAGE

NOTTINGHAM, Eng., Nov. 12.—Standing in a pool of whiskey, champagne and port wine, Harry Ward, a hotel employee, was recently arrested by the police after witnesses had heard the smashing of bottles in the hotel cellar. He was sentenced to two months' imprisonment for the damage estimated at 234 pounds. He had smashed 88 bottles of champagne, 64 of port and 28 of whiskey as well as brandy and bendedictine bottles.

The prisoner pleaded through his counsel, that he did it in a fit of temper because the manager had given him a week's notice of dismissal. Malaria fever contracted in Mesopotamia, it was said, had affected his mind.

WANTS ANNEXATION WITH OSHAWA TOWN

OSHAWA, Nov. 12.— Fifty-one ratepayers of School Section No. 10 have petitioned that Westmount be annexed to Oshawa town. Westmount extends on the south to the lake and west for a mile and a quarter and is estimated to include about one thousand residents. Included in the petition was a request that Oshawa assume all liabilities of that section and proceed to give them water mains, sewers, free mail delivery and light services.

RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is produced by the accumulation of Uric Acid in the blood, and this poisonous substance attacks and inflames the membrane covering the joints and separating the muscles, thus producing severe pains. If the waste products of the human system are not properly carried off, Uric Acid forms and is deposited in the joints and between the different layers of muscles. DR. HENDERSON'S HERB TABLETS will correct this by its action on the kidneys and removing the Uric Acid from the blood. Try them and watch the results. If they fail your money will be refunded.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are put up three sizes—25c, 50c and $1 per box, at Warne's Drug Store, 351 George Street, Peterborough.

WHEN HAIR THINS,

FADES OR FALLS,

USE "DANDERINE"

35 cents buys a bottle of 'Danderine.' Within ten minutes after the first application you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, helping your hair to grow long, thick and luxuriant.

Girls! Girls! Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, thin, scraggy. A single application of delightful Danderine will double the beauty and radiance of your hair and make it look twice as abundant.

GOOD FOR COMPLEXION

Your face should be the livest part of your entire makeup, yet it often looks lifeless. A "dead" skin is pale and withered looking, seamed with fine lines and looks absolutely devoid of moisture.

There are many simple methods of regaining a fresh appearance. The fudamental remedy is a change of diet. A father's advice in a recent play, "Eat two apples and drink a glass of water before going to bed," was laughed at as old-fashioned, yet there is no better beauty rule, having the skin in mind. It gives nature prompt and powerful aid in cleansing the interior of our bodies, and without this unclogged interior there can be no clear, live skin. A mottled pimpled skin is an infallible sign of disarranged digestion.

But the apples eaten at night are not enough. Drink lemon juice slightly diluted with water in the morning. The juice of an entire lemon pressed into the glass and diluted with the same quantity of water will cleanse the stomach and aid in clearing the skin. Another remedy for a dead, mottled looking skin is a teaspoonful of grape juice with the same quantity of olive oil night and morning.

THREE VAGS FROM "OVER THE HILL"

OUT OF JAIL JUST LONG ENOUGH TO BE SENT BACK AGAIN, ALTHOUGH O E GOES TO A BRIGHTER HOME WITH SALVATION ARMY.

Three old "vags" were released from the County Jail this week. Having no home, no friends and no other place to go, they just naturally gravitated back to the police station. One of them made a favorable impression upon Adjutant Buntin, who secured him a place in the Salvation Army's home for old people in Toronto. This man, who once had a farm in Harvey Township, and who lost it partly through the cost of litigation, it is said, has gone to Toronto happy in the prospect of his new quarters and brighter surroundings. He is industrious and amenable to discipline, and will be useful in the Salvation Army's refuge for the aged.

Another of the three strenuously protested against going back to jail. He had had enough of it. "Fed up" on the place and the monotony of it he was. Nor would he go to the Home. His simple tragic problem was quickly disposed of by a recommittal to jail for the winter. Beggars can't be choosers, especially old ones, who are homeless and friendless, even in these days when Corybantic eleemosynary associations with strange names and lofty ideals are busy seeking outlets for their charity and objects for their aims. This ancient had cashed in his manhood and his years of labor and had kept nothing to save him from the journey "over the hill." Illness or mischance may have buffeted him. He might have a perfectly good explanation of his failure, but there are none to listen and none to care.

The third vagrant is becoming helpless, and the authorities had no recourse but to send him back to jail. He is said to be incorrigible, and any sympathy that might be felt for him is chilled by misdemeanours that led to his expulsion from the Home, and that make him something of a nuisance in jail.

Another Out of Luck.

Running in the same vein of hard luck are the stories Relief Officer Miller hears these days. A Scotchman, who said he had never begged before, who had $2,500 from his earnings making munitions during the war, asked for "a little fuel and a little food." He hadn't a cent to his name. Mr. Miller gave him an order for groceries and another for fuel. This man said he had spent most of his savings travelling from the Old Country to Canada and to British Columbia and back hunting jobs.

A resident of North Monaghan, on the city's fringe, told a similar tale of want, but Mr. Miller learned that he lived outside the city and directed him to Reeve McIntosh.

The township had no relief organization, although there was a job to be had at the stone - crusher six miles from the city. To-day it was learned that the township had given this man and his family some assistance.

Referring to the police court cases, Chief Newhall moralized that there were men in the city to-day earning good money but spending it as fast or faster than they got it, and that their end was shadowed forth by the plight of the three old fellows who in the police court records are described as vagrants.

NO LONGER MERE NAME

HOW "FORD" SERVICE HAS HELPED INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION, ETC.

The word "Ford" has come to mean more than a mere motorized vehicle. It has helped to develop industrial and agricultural enterprises; it has done much to stimulate the improvement of the King's highways, which tend to develop business; it has assisted in vastly improving tourist travel; and its business has rapidly grown in Canada.

New lands have been opened to the settler; greater enjoyment has been brought to the out-of-the-way resident; intercourse between farm and city has been quickened; time and space are measured in minutes and in feet, instead of hours and miles.

Because of the quick transportation afforded by either the Ford car or the Ford truck, new values have been placed on land, and the produce therefrom. Outlying farms, distant from the market, suffered formerly under a serious handicap. Distance, and the time taken in covering that distance, was their disadvantage.

From a rental or sales value, farms lying nearer the local outlet for farm produce were better. The soil or the natural conditions may not have been more favorable or nearly so good, yet the price per acre always re-acted to the advantage of the "close-in" farm.

This is no longer so. With a Ford miles are minutes; the towns or cities are not far away; one farm, under equal soil and climatiac conditions, is as good as another. In this way, through no miraculous transformation, but rather through motorization and quick transportation, the farmer is obtaining a true value for his property, fair prices for his produce and withal an added enjoyment for himself and for his family.

DUFFUS MOTOR SALES, Corner Charlotte and Water Streets, the local representatives for the Ford Motor Co., will afford all information desired regarding Ford Cars, Trucks and Fordson Tractors and Ford Accessories.—Advt.

A MASQUERADE PARTY

Unqualified success attended the first masquerade and dance held by the Canadian Woollens Athletic Association in the G.W.V.A. last night It was the largest masquerade dance held in Peterboro in some years and the hall presented a brilliant appearance. Between 300 and 400 members and friends attended, the majority of these being in costumes. There were clowns and pierrottes, ancient ladies and charming gentlemen, soldiers, policemen and others In every way it was a most happy affair and those who attended hailed with delight Mr. J. W. Worth's announcement that the dances would be held every two or three months. He also announced that while continuing the Canadian dances, music for Scotch dances would be provided, at succeeding dances so that Old Country dancers, to whom some of the Canadian dances are an impossible combination will be able to enjoy themselves completely.

Mr. J. W. Worth during the evening made an appeal to the employees of the company to support the Athletic Association so that its good work may continue.

Mr. J. W. Worth and Mr. J. Charlesworth judged the costumes and after due consideration the prizes were awarded as follows:

Best dressed lady—Miss N. Hendry as butterfly;

Best dressed gentleman — Mr. Dick Hillman as Mephistopheles;

Second prize —Mr. E. Binette, as an Indian chief;

Most comical costume — Miss Olive Sanders as a policeman.

Dainty refreshments were served during the evening.

The excellent music for dancing was furnished by Messrs Hartshorn Seger and Marshall.

Millions Who Are Sick Will Soon Be Well

Will Be a Revelation to Suffering Humanity—Cleans Liver in a Few Minutes—Symptoms of Liver Trouble Are: Sallow Complexion, Bad Taste in Mouth on Rising, Tired, Out of Sorts, Etc.

This new drug is called Tanated Calomel. It acts only on the Liver, which immediately relieves many troubles such as Rheumatism, Constipation, Boils, Kidney Pains, etc. No salts, Seidlitz, are necessary after taking, because it is self eliminating. It does not have a nauseating, sickening feeling the next day, like so many similar drugs. You no doubt have been taking all sorts of laxatives, salts, castor oil, etc., with only temporary results. The reason is that some of these draw liquid from the blood and the tissues, causing a great flush. What you need is something like Tanated Calomel, which causes the bile to be excreted from the liver into the bowel, causing a natural elimination of the waste. You know waste allowed to remain in the system causes a multitude of troubles. I can venture to say that 90 per cent. of all sickness is due directly to this very thing. What is generally the first thing your doctor does when you are sick? He gets your bowels operating so as to eliminate wastes in your bowels, which are poisoning your system. Now, in order to be happy, healthy, vigorous, vivacious, bright, alert, keen to observe and understand, you must first keep your Liver clean, or you are coaxing all sorts of trouble upon yourself. Doctors recommend that you take a tablet before eating and one at bedtime. Just get some of these, and I feel assured that you will feel as if you had a new lease of life.

These Tanated Calomel Tablets are for sall by F. C. Webber, Charlotte Street.

THOSE RETURNED MUNITIONS.

(Toronto Saturday Night.)

Billy King started in last week to make a lot of noise over some war munitions which were being landed at Quebec. Where did we get them? When and where were they made? How much did they cost? How many ship loads? Why munitions when the peace conference was about to be convened? Who was meant to be shot He put all this and more into an envelope and addressed it to Arthur Meighen. And then he gave a copy of the dissertation to the newspapers. As Billy has been in the newspaper game for some days, he no doubt thought it a "scoop." It would have been had he waited for the House before publishing his "findings." It has not only proved a boomerang but caused numerous Conservative publications to indulge in a paroxysm of surprising fury.

STARTED WORK NEW FACTORY FOR HASTINGS

National Co-operage Company Break Ground for Erection of Buildings—Employ Many Men.

HASTINGS, Nov 11—The National Cooperage Company started operations with a staff of men and teams Tuesday last at the old Radiator Plant, putting it in shape for the erection of a large saw mill and dry kiln which the company intend erecting alongside of the present factory.

An engineer of the company is expected this week to lay out the buildings and put everything in shape for construction purpose.

The work will be rushed along so as to get the saw mill started this year, if possible.

The big brick building which stands there now will contain the barrel making machine now ready for shipment from their own factory.

Besides the saw mill there will be two large dry kilns erected.

It is expected that the plans will all be completed and tenders asked for before December 1st

This will be good news for the Hastings people, the prospect of having this building, which has stood idle for such a long time, again in operation, employing a number of men and adding prosperity to our village.

EXCHANGE RATIFICATIONS OF GERMAN-U.S. TREATY

BERLIN, Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press.) — Ratifications of the German-United States peace treaty were exchanged here last night at the respective governments at certain minutes between Ellis Loring Dresel, American commissioner, and Dr. Friedrich Wirth, Chancellor. That is to say, the treaty became effective from the housetops last night, according to Foreign Affairs Minister Rosen in the New York Journal of Commerce. "Information that the forts at Heligoland are being rearmed, or that a certain quantity of shells are being stored there, would be so considered. But Mr. Rosen apparently had a different notion.

THOSE RETURNED MUNITIONS.

(Toronto Saturday Night.)

Billy King started in last week to make a lot of noise over some war munitions which were being landed at Quebec. Where did we get them? When and where were they made? How much did they cost? How many ship loads? Why munitions when the peace conference was about to be convened? Who was meant to be shot He put all this and more into an envelope and addressed it to Arthur Meighen. And then he gave a copy of the dissertation to the newspapers. As Billy has been in the newspaper game in his younger days, he no doubt thought it a big "scoop." It would have been had he waited for a reply before publishing his "news," for he not only proved a squib but caused numerous otherwise sane publications to turn on him in surprising fury.

The answer to the questions made everybody

The demonstration at his home was of greater proportions, it was arranged as a non-partisan affair by a committee of seven women, of whom Hamilton Holt, of New York, was the spokesman.

STARTED WORK NEW FACTORY FOR HASTINGS

National Co-operage Company Break Ground for Erection of Buildings—Employ Many Men.

HASTINGS, Nov 11—The National Cooperage Company started operations with a staff of men and teams Tuesday last at the old Radiator Plant, putting it in shape for the erection of a large saw mill and dry kiln which the company intend erecting alongside of the present factory.

An engineer of the company is expected this week to lay out the buildings and put everything in shape for construction purpose.

The work will be rushed along so as to get the saw mill started this year, if possible.

The big brick building which stands there now will contain the barrel making machine now ready for shipment from their own factory.

Besides the saw mill there will be two large dry kilns erected.

It is expected that the plans will all be completed and tenders asked for before December 1st

This will be good news for the Hastings people, the prospect of having this building, which has stood idle for such a long time, again in operation, employing a number of men and adding prosperity to our village.

NEW FILTRATION PLANT DESCRIBED

The following detailed description of Peterborough's new filtration plant, reprinted from The Canadian Engineer, gives an illuminating idea of the magnitude of plant's construction, and its system by which this city's water will be filtered into a purity safe for even raw consumption:

The Peterborough waterworks were first installed by a private company in 1882 and were acquired by the city in 1902. The city at present takes its water supply from the Otonabee river at a point about two and one half miles upstream from, and at slightly higher elevation than the centre of the city. The following points regarding the present system which is a direct pumping one, will be of interest in connection with the following description of the new filter plant and reservoir herein described.

A reinforced concrete dam about 300 ft. long, thrown across the river, impounds the water in the river for the development of power, and as a storage for the supply of the citizens. The depth of the water behind this dam is about 12 ft. and affords an available head on the water turbines of about 10 ft., the suction lift of the pumps ranging from 3 to 10 ft.

Main Pumping Plant.

The pumping station is a substantial building of reinforced concrete framework and brick panels, and measures about 125 ft. long by 40 ft. wide. It houses three sets of water-driven horizontal single-acting triplex pumps, a Worthington centrifugal pump and an auxiliary steam pump. The two oldest pumps were installed in 1893 and are massively built. They have three plungers each 18 in. in diameter, 30-in. stroke, and are operated at 20 r.p.m. when run at full capacity. Each of these are capable of delivering 2 1-4 million gallons per day. The plunger heads are connected to the crank-shafts carrying massive cog-wheels which are driven by pinions from a horizontal shaft that transmits the power from the water turbines through bevel wheels. The water power is developed by vertical Samson turbines with 62-in. wheels running at a speed of 66 r.p.m.

The other triplex pump of similar construction was built in 1909 and has a capacity of three million gallons per day. The plungers are 21 in. in diameter, 30-in. stroke, and driven in a like manner to the other by a Samson vertical turbine, having a 68-in. wheel running at about 80 r.p.m. The bevel gear reduces the speed of the pumps to 22 strokes per minute.

There is a 3-stage Worthington vertical centrifugal pump, also driven by a Samson water turbine. The water-wheel rotates about 80 r.p.m. and by means of an increasing gear, the pump is capable of being driven at about 640 r.p.m. The delivery from the pump is rated at about three million gallons daily.

Auxiliary Turbine Pump.

The steam auxiliary pump, installed in 1915, is a De Laval single-stage turbine driven by a 400-h.p. steam turbine running at about 6,000 rp.m. under 125 lbs. steam pressure. The pump is driven at about 1,385 r.p.m. by the steam turbine by means of the usual reduction gear. This pumping unit is split horizontally for easy access to all parts. The suction is 14 in. in diameter and the delivery 12 in. This pump is arranged to draw water either from above the dam with a sunction lift of three ft. or there abouts or from the tailrace with a lift of about 18 ft., and is rated at six million gallons per day under a total head of about 228 ft. The condensing plant consists of a Schutte-Koerting multi-jet condenser, and a De Laval centrifugal pump working under 35 ft. head at 2,200 r.p.m. and discharging about 700 gallons per minute, and driven by a steam turbine of type T.A.

The pump-house is equipped with an overhead travelling crane carrying a hand-operated 10-ton block tackle.

The water-driven triplex pumps and water turbines were made by William Hamimlton Co., Peterborough. The Worthington turbine pump was built by John McDougal Caledonia Iron Works Co., Montreal, and the De Laval steam turbine and pumps were supplied by the Turbine Equipment Co., Toronto.

Boiler Installation.

There are two 100-h.p. horizontal return tube boilers each 66 in. in diameter and 16 ft. long, fitted with "Cyclone" shaking grates of 34 sq. ft. in area. A fan to induce draft is belt-driven by a 6-h.p. vertical steam engine, and a 6-h.p. Foos gasoline engine is installed to operate the fan when the boiler furnaces are being started. The boilers are not heated until necessity arises. A Cochrane feed water heater and feed pump are installed.

Filtration Plant.

The site of the filtration plant with which this article is particularly concerned has been under construction since April 27th of this year, and is on high ground to the north of the present pumping station. It will include low lift pumps, aerator, cover-of sedimentation basin, filters clear water basin and covered filter water reservoir, the latter also including a second aerator.

The water in the Otonabee river is fairly soft but of high color during the spring and summer months, when it is also highly polluted. There is however, very little turbidity. The temperature of the water varies from slightly above 32 deg. in winter to 84 deg. in summer. The methyl orange alkalinity averages about 68 p.p.m. the year around. The water delivered to the city mains is chlorinated, at present a maximum of 13 pounds per million gallons being used.

The New Intake.

A new intake has been built at the site of the filter plant consistsing of two 30.in. Class A cast iron pipes. These are laid 10 ft. below the surface of the water in the river and their outer end is enclosed in a concrete abutment. The inner ends of thee intake pipes are attached to sluice gates by which the flow can be shut off. The water passes through a double set of screens made with 1-4 in. square holes, into a rectangular suction well.

Low Lift Pumps.

The low lift pumps are at present two in number with provision for two more. They are rated at six million gallon per day each against a total head of 60 ft. and are of the horizontally split double sunction, single stage type and driven by 100 h.p. squirrel cage induction motors. The current used will be 555 volts, 3 phase. They are situated on the floor of the pump pit at elevation 691.0 which is about 12 ft. above the mean water level in the river and suction well. They are controlled by compensators situated on the entrance floor level, and the discharge is measured by a Republic flow meter. The pumps are being built by the Escher Wyss Co. and the electrical equipment by the Canadian General Electric Co.

Aerator.

The discharge from the low lift pumps is carried in a 20-in. cast iron main to the south of the plant and enters it in the centre of the west wall of the sedimentation basin.

Th water rises in a square chamber to elevation 723.0 from which it flows down a series of steps, the purpose of which is to aerate the water and to remove the very pronounced fishy odor of the river water in summer, and also to aid in mixing the alum in the raw water.

The sedimentation basin is constructed of reinforced concrete 78 ft. by 112 ft. in plan and divided into two parts by a wall down the centre, to facilitate cleaning. The water level in the basin is at elevation 718.15 and the floor at elevation 703.0. The water on leaving the aerator passes down below a baffle and the coagulated water is skimmed off the top into a flume at the east end running north and south across the basin.

Provision is made by cast iron drains under the floor of the basin for cleaning out the accumulated sludge. These discharge into a 24-in. vitrified pipe sewer which empties into the river below the power dam The water is controlled within a variation of 6 in. in a regulation valve situated in the pump pit in the discharge from the low lift pumps. This is a hydraulic valve controlled by a float in a chamber on the operating zoor.

Filters.

Provision is made for six filter units of one million gallons per day capacity, but at present only five of these will be equipped. The filter tanks are 24 ft. by 17 ft. 6 in. in plan and 8 ft. deep of reinforced concrete and will contain 18 in. of gravel overlaid with 24 in. of sand.

The gravel is graded from 2 in. to 1/16 in. deposited in layers of about 3 in.

The sand is to have an effective size of from .38 to .48 millimeter, and a uniformity coefficient of not more than 1.6.

The gravel will come from Cape May, N.J. and the sand from near Montreal. The marble is being supplied by the Vermont Marble Co. of Peterborough, Ont.

Strainer System.

The strainer system will consist of a central cast iron rectangular manifold into which are leaded 2 ft. inside laterals, spaced 6 in. centre to centre. The laterals are capped at their outer ends and run crosswise of the filter tanks. They are drilled on their under surface with two rows of 7/32 in. holes 6 in. apart and staggered 45 deg. off the vertical diameter. Warden King & Co. of Montreal are supplying the cast iron pipes for the strainer system.

Wash Water Pumps.

A centrifugal pump of 5,300 gallons per minute capacity will provide the water for washing the filters. It will be situated on the entrance floor level and take water directly from the clear water basin, and discharge through a simplex Venturi meter into the under drain system, no wash water tank being provided. It will be of the horizontally split double suction type driven by a 75-h.p. squirrel cage induction motor. The motor will have a special compensator, started and stopped by push button stations on the operating tables.

Pipe Gallery.

The filters are arranged on one side of the pipe gallery which contains the control apparatus and hydraulic valves for operating the plant. The wash water main is 14 in. in diameter, and the sewer 16 in. all of cast iron. The filtered water discharges through Simplex rate controllers, directly into the clear water basin beneath.

Extending wholly under the filters and the pipe gallery is a clear water basin of 120,000 gallons capacity into which the down pipes from the rate controllers discharge. It is constructed of reinforced concrete and is 112 ft. by 32 ft. in plan and holds 9 ft. of water.

Chemicals.

The coagulent used will be aluminum sulphate, ample storage being provided on the upper floor of the filter building. Duplicate solution tanks will be installed together with usual orifice tanks. Lead pipe will be used to transport the solution to the point of application which will be in the 20-in. discharge main at the low lift pumps.

Filtered Water Reservoir.

The filtered water reservoir has a capacity of 2 million gallons, and is built wholly of reinforced concrete. It is 135 ft. by 165 ft. in plan and holds 14 ft. 3 in. of water It is connected to the clear water basin by a 30-in. cast iron main. Along the east wall of the reservoir is a second aerator of the same type as that used in connection with the sedimentation basin. Wooden covers will be provided for the aerator, to be used during the winter.

Outside Piping.

The outside piping consists of 300 ft. of 20-in. discharge main from the low lift pumps. 240 ft. of 30-in. main between the clear water basin and the filtered water reservoir. 700 ft. of 24-in. main from the filtered water reservoir to the suction of the high lift pumps in the present pumping station, and 1,200 ft. of 6-in. main from the present pumping station to the filter plant. These are all of cast iron, and lead joints are used with the exception of 6-in. main on which leadite is used.

In addition to the above there is 740 ft. of 24-in., 160 ft. of 18-in., 25 ft. of 15-in. and 50 ft. of 12-in. sewer in which vitrified tile pipe is used and supplied by the Clay Products Agency, Ltd. The cast iron pipe used in the above work and also the 30-in. intake pipes was manufactured by the Gartshore Thomson Pipe & Foundry Co., Hamilton, Ont.

Superstructure.

The superstructure is a two-storey building constructed of local red brick with white mortar. The walls are 15 in. thick including a 2-in. air space. The building covers all parts of the filter beds, laboratory, office, chemcal sorage, low lift pumps, pipe gallery and all the equipment necessary to operate the plant.

The walls of the operating room will be furnished with white tile to a height of 5 ft. from the floor and the balance in white plaster, as well as the ceiling. The floor will be covered with composition flooring with border around the operating tables and walls. The roof covering is tar and gravel 5-ply Barrett Specification with copper flashing. The roofs of the sedimentation basin and filtered water reservoir will be covered with 2 1-2 ft. of earth and the walls will be banked to a 2 to 1 slope. These will be sodded to hold them in position.

RUSSIAN SCHOOLS ALSO SUFFERING

Trying to Preserve Them, But Task is Difficult.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 12.—(By a Staff Correspondent of The Associated Press)—Russia's school system has suffered in the general breakdown of the economic system. Lunacharsky, the Commissar for Education, is endeavoring to correct and preserve the free schools by edicts but it is a difficult task.

A great majority of the schools in the famine districts are not opening, and it is extremely doubtful whether they can be opened this year. Even in the great cities like Moscow and Petrograd, it is doubtful whether they can continue unless reorganization proceeds with great rapidity and energy.

In an effort to keep the schools going, parents have made contributions to teachers in the way of money and food and the children have often carried wood daily to the schools to keep warm. Books, paper, pencils and other supplies have been lacking.

Lunacharsky says in a recent statement that the Cheka, or Commission for the Prevention of Counter-Revolution, insists that the schools must be kept free of parental influence. To accomplish this he announces that the government will name committees in each locality to take charge of the schools and will empower these committees to collect money from the parents who are able to pay.

This step is in line with the general decentralization policy which the government is endeavoring to carry out since it altered its economic policy and went back to domestic free trade. Fads which were introduced in many of the schools have largely disappeared. Many of the teachers were extreme idealists in the earlier days of the Soviet government and endeavored to work many innovations.

The plan of having school children do all the janitor work in the schools resulted in such unsanitary conditions that it was abanded in many places and chairmen came back.

Will You Be in Church on Sunday?

Several thousand Christian people in Peterboro have signed up during the past two weeks to attend Church regularly during November in connection with the Go-to-Church Campaign. Have you decided to fall in line with them. These are days when each of us should frequently take time to take stock of ourselves. If we will but do this and are honest with ourselves and with God will we not come to such conclusions as follow:

How Is My Soul Invested?

Is it Temporarily Invested In

1. MONEY MAKING for the sake of money, or as a game?
2. HAVING A GOOD TIME, either in a Decent or Debasing Way?
3. MAKING A NAME FOR YOURSELF, Personally as a Good Fellow, or Professionally, or in Business?
4. SECURING POWER, either Financial, Social or Political?

EITHER OR ALL OF THESE INVESTMENTS OF ONE'S SOUL YIELD
1. A Showy Certificate of Stock of Apparent Success!
2. Dividends That Look Good, But Turn Out to Be Liabilities!
3. Original Capital Wasted and Lost!
4. A Miserable, Discontented Old Age!
5. Eternity Unprovided For!

Or is it Permanently Invested In

1. Living a Good, Clean, Unmistakably Christian Life Among Men?
2. Building Up a Clean-Cut Christian Home?
3. Helping and Encouraging Weak Brothers?
4. Working in a Christian Church Efficiently and Energetically?

SUCH AN INVESTMENT OF ONE'S SOUL YIELDS
1. A Sane, Cheerful Life of Inward Peace and Content!
2. A Happy Home, the Abiding Joy of Your Life!
3. A Wide Influence and Opportunity for Doing Good!
4. A Happy, Contented, Respected Old Age!
5. An Eternity of Blessedness in the Next Life!

Political Comment

(The following extracts from newspaper editorials are published for the purpose of indicating the general trend of sentiment, and do not necessarily reflect the views of The Examiner.)

THOSE RETURNED MUNITIONS.

(Toronto Saturday Night.)

Billy King started in last week to make a lot of noise over some war munitions which were being landed at Quebec. Where did we get them? When and where were they made? How much did they cost? How many ship loads? Why munitions when the peace conference was about to be convened? Who was meant to be shot He put all this and more into an envelope and addressed it to Arthur Meighen. And then he gave a copy of the dissertation to the newspapers. As Billy has been in the newspaper game in his young days, he no doubt thought it a great "scoop." It would have been better had he waited for a reply before publishing his "news," for his bomb not only proved a squib, but it caused numerous otherwise friendly publications to turn on him with surprising fury.

The answer to the King insinuations made everything plain. These munitions were owing Canada by the British Government, and were simply being repaid; and in due time they will be shot away by the country's militia and other military units. There was really nothing to hide, but presume there had been. All Governments at certain periods are given to operating in the dark, so to speak. That is to say, they do not blurt from the housetops nor advertise in the New York Journal the information that the forts at Halifax are being rearmed, or that a certain quantity of shells are being stored. These are secrets of state and should be so considered. But Mr. King apparently had a different notion.

RIORDON OF TICONDEROGA.

(Toronto Globe.)

While the Riordon Company—which in effect meant Charles Riordon and Carl Riordon, who controlled the majority of stock and held the chief executive offices—failed to make provision for the payment of the company's share of the taxes required to carry on the war, what disposition was being made of the accumulating surplus? The Riordons were investing this money in the United States, where they were required to pay taxes promptly to the Government of that country. The annual report of the Riordon Company for 1916, published early in 1917, states that "on November 21, 1916, your Directors purchased a majority interest in the capital stock of the Ticonderoga Pulp and Paper Company of Ticonderoga, New York, who have been our largest customers for many years.

The Mail and Empire of late has said much about "Woods of Missouri" and the danger of "national suicide" through Americanization. Wood of Missouri is an American, long settled in the West, who during the war displayed such sturdy Canadianism that he was offered high office by the Unionist Government. The Riordons of Ticonderoga are Canadians who, in the supreme crisis, invested in an American company Canadian money that should have been used to pay their taxes to the Government of Canada for the carrying on of the war. Which would you rather be—Wood of Missouri or a Riordon of Ticonderoga?

TURN ON MURDOCK.

(London Advertiser.)

James Murdock was praised by the Conservative press when he went on the Board of Commerce. Now he is denounced as a fakir by the same press. Simply because he is carrying into the open the threat he made straight to the Government that he would let the people know how the said Board of Commerce was tied hand and foot by Ottawa Conservatives.

PATRONAGE.

(Lethbridge Herald.)

"There is a judgeship in the Supreme Court, and, I think, two County Judgeships to give. If all of these are not given to Conservatives, then I will resign from the Government." This is the ultimatum of no less a personage than Hon. Edmund Bristol, a member of the newly-formed Meighen Government. Patronage was reputed to be killed by the Union Government, in this it reflected the "genius of the inspiration of the people." But in the bold and open avowal of his being wedded to patronage by a member of the present Government, chosen for the express purpose of making that Government appeal to the people, can it be said that it reflects the "genius and inspiration of the people," at any rate as it refers to patronage?

THE CASE OF OSHAWA.

(Montreal Gazette.)

The case of the town of Oshawa, Ontario, is cited by the Toronto Globe as throwing "a curious light on the claim that progress and prosperity are bound up with Conservative control of the tariff." By "Conservative control of the tariff" is meant, presumably, the maintenance of the principle of protection, though the phrase does less than credit to the record of the Laurier Ministry. The Globe goes on to say that the National Policy became effective in 1879, that in 1881 the town of Oshawa had a population of 3,092, in 1891 it had 4,066—an increase of only 74, and that between 1901 and 1911 the population had grown from 4,394 to 7,436. The increases in wage bills and production are also given, as showing an era of prosperity all "without any aid from the Conservative tariff magicians."

The example is an unfortunate one. The town of Oshawa, during the first period mentioned, suffered, in common with other towns in the near neighborhood of Toronto, from influences and conditions with which the tariff had nothing whatever to do. Despite these conditions and influences, Oshawa, as the figures show, was able to hold its own, and it did so because it possessed two or three active industries which the tariff protected. In the second period mentioned the town expanded, but the expansion was made possible, first by the fact that the Liberal Government maintained the protective tariff, and secondly because there was established in the town an extensive motor car industry enjoying substantial tariff protection. If Oshawa does not owe its growth to the "Conservative tariff magicians," it owes it, unquestionably, to the National Policy.

WHY IT MUST GO.

(Kingston Whig.)

The Meighen Government exists in defiance of the principles of responsible government. In a democratic country like Canada the Government must derive its power from the consent of the governed, and this consent the electorate never gave. The Government of the day has no mandate from the people. It assumed office arbitrarily and held on until its majority became so small that no other recourse was open, in order to avoid defeat in the house, except an appeal to the people.

The people have for some years been clamoring for a change of Government at Ottawa, and they propose to secure it now that the opportunity has presented itself. It would require a miracle to save the Meighen Government, and miracles are not happening today. The Government is doomed. It would, therefore, be folly for Kingston to elect as its member a supporter of a Government that will soon cease to function.

LOOSE TARIFF TALK.

(Brantford Expositor.)

There has been in this campaign, as there has been in previous campaigns, when the tariff was an issue, a good deal of loose talk about the issue of the campaign being one of Protection vs. Free Trade. If by such is meant the obliteration of all customs tariffs, this is an obvious absurdity. There has never been such a policy in force in Canada, at least since Confederation, and the possibility of such a thing, with a high Protection country at our doors, and the huge financial engagements of the country are as remote as the planet Jupiter is from the earth. The difference between parties, according to their platforms, is that the Farmers believe in the total elimination of the principle of Protection from the tariff, with absolute Free Trade in certain specified items. The Liberal platform is of similar view as at present constituted, but the claim is that Liberals of today do not accept a platform which, they say, was largely forced upon them by western Liberals who have since become Crerarites, and that they are still admirers and supporters of the so-called Fielding tariff under which the country enjoyed an unusual degree of prosperity. In other words, they are for a revenue tariff, coupled presumably with some degree of incidental Protection. As for the Government policy, it undoubtedly has Protection woven into every woof and fibre, but just to what extent it dare go, with the present state of public feeling there is no means of telling It is pretty safe to assume, however, that no Canadian tariff will ever be as high as Haman's gallows, and that Red Parlor dictation will never again be so absolute as it was in the N. P. days.

CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

1,000,000 DWELLINGS ARE NEEDED IN GERMANY

Housing Situation Becomes Acute as Winter Nears.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—(Associated Press).—More than 1,000,000 dwellings, apartments or rooms are needed in Germany to relieve the housing shortage, which has been steadily increasing for the last six months, especially in the eastern cities, which are crowded with Russian refugees, says an official statement of the housing office.

In Prussia alone 585,000 rooms are in demand, an increase of 50,000 in three months, and reports from every large city in the Republic declare the housing situation is growing serious with the advance of the winter. The need in 62 of the larger cities is described as urgent.

The Government had indicated its intention of abandoning the "rationing" of rooms within a short time, but the fact that building operations, abandoned during the war, have not caught up with the demands, has necessitated a continuance of control of dwelling space. Families, as well as individuals, are permitted to occupy only such rooms as are absolutely essential.

This regulation has forced many families with large houses to take in lodgers. In such cases the families are permitted to choose their lodgers, fix the charges and make such "living" regulations as are deemed essential. The space, however, must be occupied, and so it has come about that home-owners have invited relatives, friends or acquaintances to share their houses, many being averse to give accommodations to strangers.

On the other hand, a number of house-owners, formerly wealthy, have found the increasing cost of living so burdensome that they are making an active effort to secure foreign tenants, particularly Americans, English, Hollanders and Scandinavians who are able to pay well.

State and city governments and civic organizations are co-operating to solve the problem by a general and energetic construction program which would comprehend the erection of nearly 1,000,000 homes.

"THE BLUE BELL"

Edited by G. O. Cameron, an Attractive Publication.

Mr. G. O. Cameron, the former local manager of the Bell Telephone Company, has blossomed forth into a real, honest-to-goodness editor. Edition number one of volume number one of "The Blue Bell" has been received at this office, with a description as follows:

"The Blue Bell is a monthly journal published in the interests of the employees of the Bell Telephone Company. The idea behind the magazine is not a new one. Employees of a big company like ours, to do their best work, need to know something of what their fellow workers in the other parts of the territory are doing, and by a constant interchange of ideas to get the benefit of the best that is being accomplished in the public service throughout our whole field. The end and aim of it all is that by making them more efficient, more contented and happy in their work, they shall be better public servants in a task of vital importance to the community."

The little sixteen-page booklet, with its extra fine ivory-finish paper, clear cuts and attractive make-up, is an excellent example of the new undertaking. From "The President's Greeting" on page three to Section Lineman Gilbert's fetching little cartoons on the back cover, it is a bright, breezy little publication, with the optimistic spirit of its editor animating even his recital of the reasons for the increase in rates now being agitated for. "G.O.'s" heart is still evidently in the right place, for he makes several references to Peterborough, in his comparison of the flagship "Raleigh" with 'the famous 'Bessie Butler' of Trent Canal fame, back home," and his humorous account of the Peterborough Bell Telephone picnic. Anyone perusing the pages of "The Blue Bell" will assuredly decide that, from all indications, Mr. Cameron is going to make just as much of a success of his new venture in literary fields as he did of his work in the business end of the telephone work.

SIR FREDERICK WILLIAMS-TAYLOR BECOMES PRES. BANKERS' ASSOCIATION

General Manager of Bank of Montreal Assumes Leading Office—Unique Career Affords Knowledge of Canada's Banking Problems.

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—(Special).—At the annual meeting of the Canadian Bankers' Association, held here, the election was announced of Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, General Manager of the Bank of Montreal, as President of the association.

Sir Frederick has had a unique banking experience. Entering the service of the Bank of Montreal in 1878, he was Inspector of the bank from 1896 to 1902, travelling across Canada repeatedly and thus gaining an unusual knowledge of Canadian business. Subsequently he spent two years in Chicago as Manager of the Bank of Montreal. In 1905 he was appointed Manager in London, England, and spent eight years in that important centre before returning to Canada in 1913 to assume General Managership of the bank.

During the entire war period, when so many financial problems were under discussion, Sir Frederick was closely identified with the work of the association, having served as Vice-President since 1914. Following the period of readjustment, other problems have developed for the Government, and a policy of definite financing has yet to be determined in connection with both internal and external financing. In this connection Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor's appointment as President of the association, with his experience abroad, especially in the floating of loans, is opportune.

WILD DUCKS MONOGAMOUS, LORD GREY DECLARES

BERWICK-ON-TWEED, Eng., Nov. 12.—Viscount Grey of Fallodon, formerly Sir Edward Grey, wartime Secretary of the Foreign Office, who was temporary British Ambassador in the United States in 1919, and who has just recently re-entered the political arena, is a naturalist as well as a statesman. In an address before the Berwickshire Naturalist Association he gave an account of his personal observation of the wild fowl which he has reared at Fallodon for the last 37 years.

He said that the Carolina or North American wood ducks were monogamous and domestic life was highly developed among them.

Lord Grey was unable to confirm the statement that wild geese paired for life and that, on the death of one, the survivor took no other mate, but he called to mind a remarkable case of the kind with a pair of red-crested prochard ducks.

The drake kept with his mate until she had to be killed after meeting with an injury. It was expected that he would then mate with another female of the same kind, but he ignored her, and after two or three weeks restlessnss, he flew off and was not seen again.

"It was as if he had gone off on an endless search to find the mate he had lost," remarked Lord Grey.

PREPAREDNESS ONLY PREVENTATIVE OF WAR.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press). — Maintaining that the only way to prevent war would be to so prepare for defence in times of peace that other nations would not want to fight, Major-General J. H. Machrien, Chief of General Staff at Ottawa, addressing the Canadian Club here yesterday, held out little hope for disarmament pacifists.

GLAD HE TRIED THE TONIC TREATMENT

THROUGH ITS USE STRENGTH AND VIGOR WAS RESTORED

To be tired after exertion is natural. Rest and food restore the body to normal after such fatigue. But to be tired all the time is a sympton of an anaemic condition that will not be corrected until the blood is built up.

Such an anaemic condition is so gradual in approach and generally so lacking in acute pains that it is often difficult to persuade the sufferer to do anything for it. But it is not a condition that corrects itself. If the blood is not enriched the trouble will increase. The nerves will be undernourished and neuralgic pains will follow. Digestive disturbances often result from thin blood, sleep is disturbed and a general breakdown may occur.

Mr. Wilson Johnson, Nineveh N.S. says: "A few years ago my system was in badly run down condition My nerves seemed always on edge, and I found myself so weak that I could hardly do any work. I suffered from headaches and from pains in the back and shoulders, and was often so sleepless at night that when morning came I felt as tired as when I went to bed. I was taking medicine all the time, but it as doing me no good. Then I read the testimonial of a man whose condition had been similiar to mine, and who strongly recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I decided to give this medicine a fair trial, and when I had taken six boxes I felt much better. I continued taking the pills until I had taken six more boxes, and I can only say I am glad I did so, as I am now enjoying the best of health, and I advise all men who are run down to give these pills a good trial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cts. a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

GOVT. MARINE MANAGER DENIES EXPANSION REPORT.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press).—Discussing a report in local shipping circles that the Canadian Government Merchant Marine had been so successful in the West India trade that it had now been decided to acquire four ex-German passenger liners to be run between Canada and West Indian ports, R. B. Teakle, general manager of the Government Merchant Marine, stated that he knew nothing whatever of any such proposal.

ELECTION PROTESTS OFTEN REVEAL MUCH

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—The forthcoming general election recalls the fact that similar contests of the past have yielded volumes of interesting facts regarding party politics in Ontario. The chapter which might be devoted to controverted elections would perhaps prove of greater interest than any other.

In the election of 1911 the Conservatives and Liberals in Ontario each filed two petitions against elections of respective opponents. The election took place on Sept. 21st. Oct. 31st was the last day for filing more protests. On that day several lawyers, including A. H. Beaton for the Liberals and W. H. Price for the Conservatives, met in Registrar Holmested's room at the High Court offices between 3.30 and 4 o'clock and waited. As they simply sat and chatted and watched not another petition was filed, and then the clock struck four. It is related that Mr. Beaton had sixteen protests in his bag, and each of the sixteen was signed in due form. Each, too, was against a triumphant Tory. But the Conservatives didn't file any further material and the sixteen documents remained in the official black bag.

Protests already filed were by the Conservatives against W. A. Charlton in Norfolk and A. B. McCoig in East Kent. The Liberals broke even by petitioning against David Marshall in East Elgin and against F. R. Lalor in Haldiman. There was, in addition, a cross petition from Norfolk.

Of the Ontario protests the most interesting was that against Hon. W. A. Charlton by Alexander McCall, the defeated Conservative candidate in Norfolk. A cross petition was promptly filed on behalf of Mr. Charlton.

In his cross petition Mr. Charlton alleged that Mr. McCall and his agents were, before, during and after the election guilty of bribery, treating, personation, undue influence and the usual other charges preferred in such cases.

The petition asked that Mr. McCall be adiudged, disqualified and incapable of sitting in the House of Commons. In all there were twenty-six allegations made against Mr. McCall to off-set those made against Mr. Charlton, which were of the usual nature.

Then followed a long period of hanging fire, and it was not until January 18th, 1913, that the five Ontario petitions were relegated to oblivion. On that date all five were dismissed by Mr. Justice Kelly.

Then came the 1917 election, in which the overseas men voted. In Ontario only one petition resulted. And strangely enough this was against Hon. W. A. Charlton, who on this occasion was elected as Liberal-Unionist M.P. for Norfolk.

The petition against Mr. Charlton was wiped off the slate in somewhat sensational way on March 15th, 1918, when it was dismissed before Middleton and Masten, election trial judges.

In 1917 the Dominion Controverted Elections Act was amended in such a way that the parties must meet within a certain time to have a time and place fixed for trial. It was under this amendment that the judges sat. The petitioners were not represented, but Mr. I. M. Godfrey was present for Mr. Charlton. The petition went by the board because the amendment provides that if the petitioner does not appear at the time and place fixed the court shall forthwith dismiss the petition.

LAST PARLIAMENT 3 YRS., 7 MONS., 7 DAYS

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—The official life of the 13th Parliament, dissolved on October 4th, was three years, seven months and seven days. In this respect it was wholly average. The shortest Parliament in point of time was the second after Confederation, which sat for one year and four months. The 12th Parliament, which remained in office six years, established the record for length of service.

The length of service of each Parliament since Confederation follows:

1st Parliament—4 years, 9 months, 15 days.

2nd Parliament—1 year, 4 months, 3rd Parliament—4 years, 5 months, 25 days.

4th Parliament—3 years, 5 months, 28 days.

5th Parliament—4 years, 5 months, 10 days.

6th Parliament—3 years, 9 months, 27 days.

7th Parliament—5 years.

8th Parliament—4 years, 2 months, 26 days.

9th Parliament—3 years, 9 months, 26 days.

10th Parliament—3 years, 9 months, 4 days.

11th Parliament—2 years, 7 months, 28 days.

12th Parliament—6 years.

13th Parliament—3 years, 7 months, 7 days.

YORK SEATS INCLUDE SECTIONS OF TORONTO

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—In the list of constituencies for the House of Commons the metropolitan area of Toronto is represented by six seats. These are North, West, East and South Toronto and Parkdale. In the Ontario Legislature Toronto has ten seats.

In connection with the elections for the Dominion House, however, it is interesting to note that possibly one-sixth of the voters of Toronto City will cast their ballots in "rural" constituencies.

The residential districts of Earlscourt and upper Oakwood in Toronto are part of the constituency of South York, also a large slice of the more recently annexed North Toronto. The borough of West Toronto, for many years known as "The Junction," is in West York. Very heavily populated parts of the city, formerly known as East Toronto and Little York, are included for Dominion election purposes in the constituency of East York.

It is clear that the ballotting of Toronto residents will have a big influence on the election results of the constituencies of West, East and South York. In fact, it is generally conceded that the percentage of city voters to country voters in each of these ridings is sufficiently large to make them practically urban constituencies.

TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST PETERBORO

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

At a large and representative meeting of the electors of East Peterborough, held at Norwood on Oct. 17th, I had the honor of being the candidate chosen to contest the Riding in the interests of the Liberal-Conservative Party for the General Election to be held Dec. 6th next.

The great issue before the people of Canada today is the tariff. There is no question of defence, and no question of Imperial relations. If once the country can grasp this firmly, can comprehend clearly that it is merely fighting over again the battles of 1878 and 1891 and 1911, then we may confidently abide the result.

It is to the Old National Policy inaugurated in 1878—over 40 years ago, and continued ever since—that we owe our present commercial and industrial stability.

Today that Policy is challenged.

The Agitator and the Opportunist are abroad. A Sectional Policy rather than National Solidarity is the aim of many.

Canada is today facing the most difficult period in her economic life. As you are all aware, this is a time when all civilized nations are staggering under burdens brought about by the Great World War. We are facing a situation unparalleled in the economic history of the world. All the civilized nations at this time are striving to keep their local markets to themselves and to increase their exports. The upset of exchange has forced them into this condition.

Where does Canada stand? Owing to our Fiscal stability we are relatively in the best condition of any of the battle-worn nations of the world. Although shaken by the war, we have not been shattered. We shall not have to build a battered and disorganized industrial and commercial structure. Our Banking and Fiscal system has not broken down. Our chief industries, while depressed somewhat, are still in a strong position. Our vast undeveloped resources and the character of our people insure that all our indebtedness shall be wiped out. We have in Canada vast mineral resources that will one day make us independent.

Canada's per capita trade stands in front of all the nations of the world. While in the United States one-fourth of all employees, or 3½ millions out of 14 millions, are idle, not more than one-tenth of Canadian workers are out of employment. Yet the work of readjustment in Canada is a real man's work. Statesmanship, high courage, broad vision, untiring energy and unquestioned patriotism, are the predominating qualities that characterize the Man of the Hour—the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen.

With a Policy that has triumphed in the past, with consciousness that it battles for the right, and with a Leader of whom any party or nation might feel proud, we can go into this fight with flags flying and unafraid.

To this end I now solicit the hearty co-operation, influence and votes of all the electors who believe in the preservation of CANADA FOR CANADIANS.

Respectfully yours,

JOHN A. SEXSMITH.

EGGS ARE GOING HIGHER IN PRICE

HENS ARE DOWN TO ONE EGG A WEEK SCHEDULE—VEGETABLES PLENTIFUL.

Eggs are soaring skyward with a Bleriot velocity. It appears that by no means, fair or foul, can biddy be made to produce more than one egg a week and so eggs have all but departed the market, and by leaps and bounds the price has trended upward. A week ago they were 65 and to-day on the market were bringing 70 and 75. It was quite a search to find a basket. After long and valiantly following up a clue a basket could be found, but the price was so staggering that most buyers hurried away for relief in the outer market where things were not of such a plutocrat nature. Butter remains steady at 45 cents and chickens were so plentiful they could be bought at 22 to 25 cents. Geese were fairly plentiful at 30 cents and ducks at 35.

The weather to-day was not conducive to long lingering around the vendors on the square and most of the city folk ordered what they wanted and hurried home. Jack Frost has driven many vegetables off the market, and pork, beef potatoes and apples were the leading commodities offered. Potatoes were going at $1.75 a bag, or in 5 bag lots $1.65. Green Mountains and Delawares were considerably offered. Beets, carrots and parsnips were 35 to 40 cents a peck, and scarce. There has been such a demand for parsnips many farmers and vegetable growers are taking them up now rather than wait Carrots and beets are bringing good prices. "When I first started in we were only getting 35 cents a bag for carrots. Times have changed," said a grower to-day.

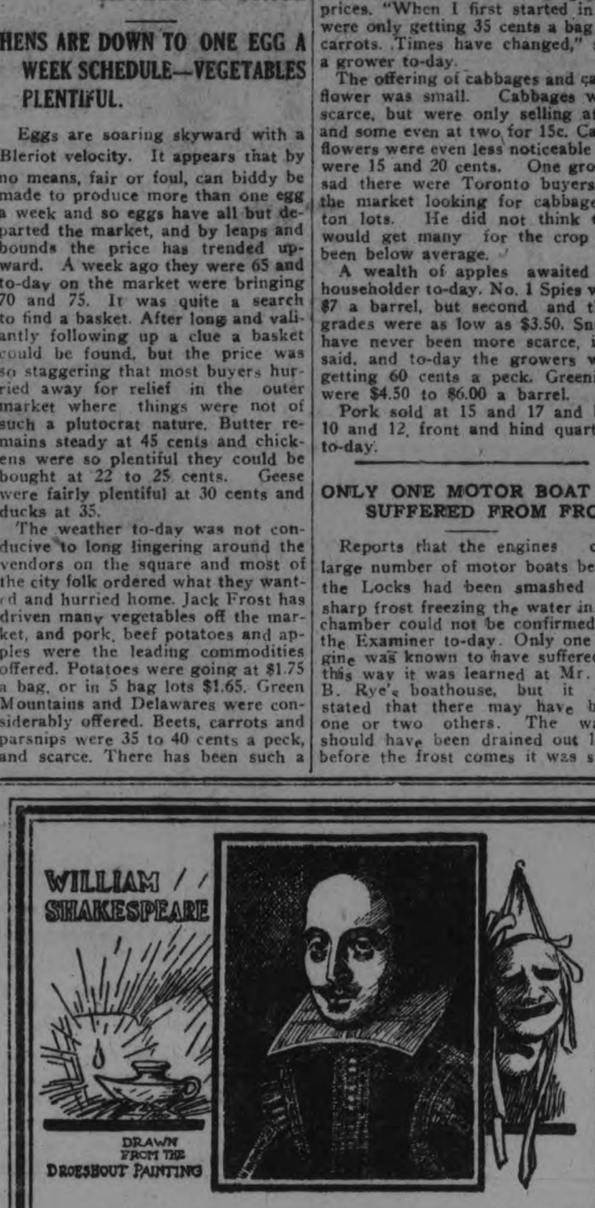
The offering of cabbages and cauliflower was small. Cabbages were scarce, but were only selling at 10 and some even at two for 15c. Cauliflowers were even less noticeable and were 15 and 20 cents. One grower sad there were Toronto buyers on the market looking for cabbage in ton lots. He did not think they would get many for the crop has been below average.

A wealth of apples awaited the householder to-day. No. 1 Spies were $7 a barrel, but second and third grades were as low as $3.50. Snows have never been more scarce, it is said, and to-day the growers were getting 60 cents a peck. Greenings were $4.50 to $6.00 a barrel.

Pork sold at 15 and 17 and beef 10 and 12, front and hind quarters, to-day.

ONLY ONE MOTOR BOAT SUFFERED FROM FROST

Reports that the engines of a large number of motor boats below the Locks had been smashed by sharp frost freezing the water in the chamber could not be confirmed by the Examiner to-day. Only one engine was known to have suffered in this way it was learned at Mr. H. B. Rye's boathouse, but it was stated that there may have been one or two others. The water should have been drained out long before the frost comes it was said.



Shakespeare —Investor

Of Shakespeare, Sidney Lee said that when he wrote "The world is still deceived with ornament which obscures the show of evil,' he was expressing downright hatred—not suspicion—of sham, quackery, or cant."

"With his illimitable command of expression, universality of knowledge and his insight and intuitive power of seeing things as they are," Shakespeare's observations, philosophy and views on practically every line of human activity have a value which grows and increases as the years roll on.

That Shakespeare would have given to the world valuable leads on the subject of investments might be expected.

Shakespeare himself was a shrewd investor and built up a fortune which yielded him the equivalent in present day money of about $20,000 a year, when he returned to Stratford after 26 years writing and acting in London.

We have collected some of his quotations in a series of illustrated advertisements which will appear from time to time.

SOME HISTORIC CONSTITUENCIES

QUEBEC CONSTITUENCIES.

Drummond-Arthabaska.

Drummond-Arthabaska is the eastern townships, and the mention of the name recalls to all Liberals the beginning of the end of Laurier. It was in the famous by-election of 1910 that the Nationalist movement burst into full flame. It was then that Henri Bourassa, Armand Lavergne, the late Hon. F. D. Monk, Hon. P. Blondin, Hon. Albert Sevigny and others preached denunciation of Laurier through the length and breadth of Quebec, some as Nationalists, others as Nationalist-Conservatives, but all anti-Laurier. In 1910 Laurier called Louis Lavergne to the Senate, thus necessitating a by-election. Armand Lavergne is his nephew, but this did not prevent him throwing himself into the fight, and the result was that Arthur Gilbert, Nationalist, was elected by a majority of 207. Mr. Gilbert lasted only a year, being defeated at the general elections of 1911 by J. C. Brouillard. It is the same Mr. Gilbert who is now a leader in the farmers' movement, and again linked up with Mr. Lavergne. Mr. Gilbert was one of the workers for the farmer candidate in the Yamaska by-election some months ago. Hon. J. E. Perrault, Minister of Colonization, Mines and Fisheries, in the Provincial Government was the Liberal defeated in 1910.

Labelle.

Labelle is one of those huge counties of Canada in the point of view of territory which few men can boast that they have completed toured. In 1896 it returned Henri Bourassa as Liberal member, and repeated each election until 1908, when he did not run, turning into the Provincial field and defeating Sir Lomer Gouin in St. James, Montreal.

Quebec East.

Quebec East is linked with the name of Laurier. Sir Wilfrid was elected there for the first time in 1878, and held the seat until his death, through ten general elections and two by-elections. Sir Wilfrid was at various times candidate in other divisions, but always gave them up after election for Quebec East, except in 1911 when being also elected for Soulanges, owing to an internal party fight in Soulanges, he was not able to resign, owing to a contestation.

Rimouski.

Rimouski recalls the days of Baldwin and Lafontaine, who in troublous days formed an alliance. This was previous to Confederation Baldwin was defeated in Ontario, and took refuge in Rimouski, while Lafontaine, defeated in Terrebonne, was elected in North York.

St. Ann's (Montreal).

St. Ann's is known as the Irish division par excellence of Canada and has been the scene of many fights. In 1908 the Rt. Hon. C. J. Doherty captured it from the Liberals, and held it until this election when he was not a candidate.

St Hyacinthe and Rouville.

St. Hyacinthe and Rouville is a county which has had an interesting political history. The two counties were united for Federal purposes for the election of 1917. The late Hon. Mr. Mercier, Prime Minister of Quebec, held St. Hyacinthe as a stronghold in Provincial affairs, and represented the Rouville section at Ottawa in 1872. Rouville also had as representative Hon. L. P. Brodeur from 1891 to 1911, when Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux was elected there, dropping out in 1917 for L. J. Gauthier, who had sat for St. Hyacinthe and who was elected for the united counties.

St. James (Montreal).

St. James, Montreal, had the honor in 1867 of being represented by Sir George Etienne Cartier, who, however, was defeated there in 1872 by Sir Louis Jette, then a young man, but later a big man in the affairs of Canada. Lieutenant-Governor of the Province and father-in-law of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux.

Three Rivers and St. Maurice.

Three Rivers and St. Maurice has had a number of distinguished men as representatives at Ottawa. Sir Hector Largevin, Minister in the Macdonald Cabinet, held Three Rivers for a long time, and Sir Adolphe Caron also held the seat for a time. Sir Adolphe previously had sat for Quebec County. He was Minister of Militia in the Macdonald Government for a time.

Yamaska.

Yamaska is one of the smallest of the rural counties in Quebec. It is purely a farming county and one of those which is bound to be merged with another county or counties with redistribution. It came into fame early this summer when Oscar Gladu, the Liberal member died, and at the by-election A. A. Mondou, who had sat for the seat from 1911 to 1917 as a Conservative, contested it against Aime Boucher, a Liberal. It was a strenuous campaign of two weeks' duration, with heavy artillery in action, and intensive campaigning on both sides. A score of Federal Liberal members and at least that number of Provincial Liberal members were in the fight. The issue was conscription and Mr. Mondou was defeated.

Argenteuil.

Argenteuil is one of the old English counties of the Province of Quebec, though of late years the majority of electors in that county have been of the French tongue. Sir John Abbott, Prime Minister of Canada, held the seat for a number of terms. Abbott was elected for Argenteuil in 1867, the Confederation year, re-elected in 1872 by acclamation, in 1874 by a majority of 4, lost the seat in 1878 to Dr. T. Christie and regained it in 1882 by acclamation. Sir George Perley was elected in 1904, again in 1908 and in 1911, but in 1917 he was in England and the seat turned Liberal, as it had done in Provincial affairs earlier, and O. McGibbon was elected.

Brome.

Brome County is the only county in the Province of Quebec, outside of the city of Montreal, where there is an English-speaking majority. For many years, 1882 to 1911, with the exception of one term, 1878 to 1882, it was represented by the late Hon. Sydney Fisher. Mr. Fisher was defeated in 1911 by Col. G. H. Baker, who paid the supreme sacrifice overseas during his Parliamentary term, the only member of the Canadian Parliament to die on the battlefield.

Dorchester.

Dorchester County brings memories of a bitter by-election contest in 1917. The then member, Albert Sevigny, now Mr. Justice Sevigny, had just been made Minister in the Borden Government, and this obliged him to go before his electors. Lucien Cannon, then Provincial member for Dorchester, resigned his Provincial seat, and, with the commendation of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, threw himself into a fight that lasted over a strenuous two weeks and more. The two candidates held a series of contradictory meetings in every parish of the county, travelling by sleigh over bad roads and through forest some hundreds of miles, and addressing two and three meetings a day. The weather was extremely bitter, sometimes dropping to 40 degrees below zero, but the conversation was hot. There was then the issue of national service, and it was feared at the time that this meant conscription, and Liberal speakers dealt exhaustively with the subject in every parish. The resources of both political parties were strained to the highest degree, and Mr. Sevigny's victory was a noteworthy one. The date was February 10, 1917. It was not long before there was another election in the county. General elections came at the close of 1917. Mr. Sevigny was again a candidate, but having voted for conscription was not permitted to speak in the county, and was defeated by Mr. Cannon.

NEW BRUNSWICK CONSTITUENCIES.

St. John and Albert.

The Federal constituency of St. John and Albert, N. B., has usually been represented in the House of Commons by men of outstanding prominence in the public life of Canada. Sir Leonard Tilley, who as Minister of Finance in the Macdonald Government introduced the "National Policy," was long a member from St. John. Another distinguished representative of St. John was the late Hon. Andrew G. Blair, first Minister of Railways in the Laurier Government, who broke with his chief because he believed the Laurier policy with respect to the National Transcontinental and the Grand Trunk Pacific was unwise. Sir Douglas Hazen, formerly Minister of Marine and Naval Affairs, and at present Chief Justice of New Brunswick, sat for St. John. When he ran his first election the people of St. John were demanding the withdrawal of Canadian mail subsidies from steamships using Portland, Maine, and shortly after his election the Conservative Government of the day acceded to the demand, and the Canadian mail boats in winter were diverted to St. John and Halifax.

The Hon. William Pugsley, Minister of Public Works in the Laurier Government, now Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick, was a member of St. John, city.

Carleton-Victoria.

Carleton-Victoria, N. B., enjoys the distinction of being the first Federal division in the Martime Provinces to return a United Farmer to the House of Commons. In view of the fact that party feeling in this constituency had always run high, the victory of T. W. Caldwell, the United Farmer candidate in the by-election rendered necessary by the appointment of Hon. Frank B. Carvell, Minister of Public Works in the Union Government, to the chairmanship of the Board of Railway Commissioners in 1918, was a great surprise to the old line of politicians. Mr. Carvell held the seat for the Liberals for many years, but only after hard and bitter fights and by narrow majorities.

King's.

The old constituency of King's, N. B., gave Sir George Foster, Minister of Commerce in the late Union Government, now a member of the Senate, his first seat in the House of Commons. This was in 1882. He was elected for York, N. B., in 1896. Sir George was defeated in St. John City in 1900.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

STORY OF "WHILE THE DEVIL LAUGHS."

In the dull, drab environment of New York's lower East Side, Mary Franklin is the practical head of an impoverished family. By day she watches over the destinies of a feeble mother, a hard drinking father, and "Gus" and "Gertie," her little brother and sister.

Her lot has made the girl hard and cynical. The only bright spot in her life is Billy Anderson, also a thief who drives a taxicab. Between the two there has long been a tender bond. Billy is a creature of environment, but really all right at heart. So when he perfects a washing machine that attracts the attention of a capitalist, he determines to "go straight," and breaks with McGee and his criminal band.

He pleads with Mary that she also give up the life she is leading, and pictures to her the happy days they will spend together in California when his machine is sold. Mary promises to do as he asks—when his machine is sold. But in the meantime she must live.

In the neighborhood is a character known as "The Singing Prophet" who sings "for little children and for those who weep." One night he sings for Mary, for her little brother is near death. As she hears the voice of the prophet—singing music she has never heard before — Mary kneels by the bedside of her brother and promises God that if He will spare the boy she never again will do a wrong thing. The child recovers, and Mary prepares to keep her promise.

But this does not suit the purposes of "Fence McGee, who is angry at losing a clever tool. He also is in love with Mary and determines to get Billy out of the way so that he can exert his influence over the girl. Associated with McGee is a criminal known as "The Weasal."

"The Weasal" attempts to shoot Billy when he and Mary are at Cooney Island, but the shot misses the mark and injures one of his gang. Billy is charged with the shooting and arrested. That night Mary's father is injured and a few days later her mother died. Mary can see nothing in "going straight."

In the meantime Mary receives a letter from Billy telling her not to visit him again. Wondering, she obeys. In the meantime, Pearl has visited the prison and tells Billy that while he is languishing in jail Mary is consoling herself with McGee. When Billy is tried and acquitted, Mary is waiting for him at the prison gates; but he curses and spurns him. Then he leaves for McGee's room, determined to "get" the man who took Mary from him.

Fate has whipped Mary into a desperate plight. Cast off by Billy she meets McGee, listens to his pleadings and decides there is no room in the world for a "straight girl." She promises to meet McGee that night.

As Billy with drawn pistol behind McGee's door, Mary climbs the stairs to the room. But the voice of "The Singing Prophet" stops her, and she turns away to try once more to do right. McGee meets her in the hall and tries to make her return. As they struggle a cloud of smoke rolls up the stairs.

The place is on fire. McGee flees. Mary, rushing down to her own apartment, finds the place in flames and "Rags," her pet dog, dragging Gertie to the door. Events follow swiftly.

AT THE ALLEN.

"A VIRGIN PARADISE" IS A SPECTACULAR DRAMA

"A Virgin Paradise," a story of the jungle and of civilized hypocrisy written by Hiram Percy Maxim and produced as a super-special by William Fox, will be shown at the Allen Theatre beginning Monday. The picture created a sensation on Broadway, New York, by its scenic magnificence, spectacular effects and powerful emotional appeal. The scenes include the destruction of the entire population of a South Sea island by a volcanic eruption, with the exception of an infant girl, daughter of a missionary and her native nurse, and the burning of a palatial country place on Long Island.

The girl, Gratia Latham, grows to young womanhood in a half savage state on the island, with lions, apes and other wild animals as her only companions after the death of her nurse. She is discovered by a searching party in a steamer after she has fallen heir to a fortune of $10,000,000, and taken to the estate on Long Island. There she finds it difficult to adjust her character and manners to the expectations and desires of her relatives, and impossible to fall in with the plan of a young man of the family to marry her for her millions. Her manner of repelling his unwelcome attentions is in keeping with her halrf savage upbringing.

The sensational photodrama is presented by an all-star company directed by J. Searle Dawley, with Pearl White, famous for her vigorous acting in serials, in the role of Gratia. Reviewers of the picture while it was running in New York declare that Miss White managed to make the scenes in the Long Island home even more terrific than those on the island with the wild animals and the volcano in eruption.

AT THE GRAND.

"BRINGING UP FATHER."

"Bringing Up Father in Wall Street," based on the famous cartoons of the same title, will be the next attraction at the Grand Theatre, next Thursday, matinee and night, November 17th. This offering, which comes direct from the Manhattan Opera House, New York, and the Metropolitan Opera House, Philadelphia, will be interpreted by a large and capable company. From all accounts, it is the last word in musical comedy and theatrical endeavor. The play, which is the work of Nat Leroy, is in two acts and five scenes and is said to contain more real fun, laughs, screams, surprises, novelties, features, tunes, melodies, scenic investiture and unusual ingredients that any other attraction presented hereabouts in many seasons. The cast contains a champion beauty chorus qualified to set all Broadway and its immediate environs in the fiery throes of argumentative discussion and envy.

REX STOCK COMPANY.

It may be said with reason that all adults are, after all, only "children of a larger growth." A reasonable amount of doubt concerning the details of a plot, anything savouring of mystery and at once people are intrigued. Often one hears the remark, "Half truths are more dangerous than the whole naked story," so powerful is the art of insinuation. Therefore, it may not surprise you to learn that very keen interest is displayed by everybody in the announcement that Jerome K. Jerome's "What Every Woman Wants" is the title of next week's play. The Rex Stock Company offers a wide range of choice in their programmes.

Woman's influence has been so powerful all through the centuries that it seems superfluous to mention the fact that the only thing really new about woman's place in the world today is official recognition of her powers. Women Congress members, women in Parliament and in business are the natural results of universal franchise. Even the Orient has fallen in line and Japan is preparing to give the weaker sex representation in the legislative body. But from the very start of the Christian era, women have exercised their influence over men and nations for weal or woe—mostly thank God for the former. Lives there a man who would hesitate a moment to acknowledge his mother's influence? History presents many pictures of the power behind the throne of petticoat rule, while Napoleon did not hesitate to remark openly that "the hand which rocks the cradle rules the world." But our Miss Hobbs is evidently not so keen on rocking the cradle; at least, Mr. Jerome makes her the newer, later type of female—the efficient business woman with little patience or sympathy for the old order of things. Yet, something must have been lacking, because there is that title, "What Every Woman Wants."

DUCK WITH NUMBERED BAND.

A wild duck shot by Stanley Wright at Buckley's Lake in Douro, a mile east of his home at Lock No. 2, had a band on one leg, stamped "37288 Am. Museum, N.Y." The duck was one of a number shot last Saturday. Mr. Wright has notified the Museum of his find.

SPECIAL FIFTY PER CENT. WATER RATES' REBATE

UTILITIES COMMISSIONERS KEEP FAITH WITH CONSUMERS

Peterborough water consumers will no doubt be pleased on reading elsewhere in this issue an announcement by the Utilities Commission that a special rebate of fifty per cent. will be allowed on all water rates for November and December, 1921 — for these two months only. This rebate is due to the fact that owing to the new water filtration plant not being in operation as early as expected, and only $300,000 worth of debentures for construction having been sold so far, the Commissioners' revenue needs are correspondingly reduced below that level expected when the rates were raised last summer. In thus giving water consumers the benefit of the saving in operation, and in interest on $50,000 of debentures not yet issued, the Commissioners are keeping faith with the public by putting into practical effect their assurance that the public would only be assessed increased rates to an amount actually needed for construction and operating purposes.

Terms for the use of the rink have been received by the City Hockey League and the annual meeting of the League will be held at the Chamber of Commerce early next week. It is practically assured that the four clubs of last season, William Hamilton A. A., who were doubtful some weeks ago, are now certain to be on hand and defend the Fowler silverware.

This winter the League hopes to promote a junior series. An age limit of 18 years for players has been suggested. Definite steps cannot be taken until the hockey season is underway, and the O.H.A. and City League teams cared for in regard to practice hours.

SAYS PETERBOROUGH HOCKEY WORN-OUT.

From time immemorable Lindsay's Intermediate hockey has consisted of deadly struggles between Lindsay and Peterborough. The two old rivals have battled with each other to the exclusion of all others. They have "faced-off" in the Lindsay Street crib as many times as "Cole" has stopped goals. And from all indications they will continue to do so for another year at least.

Now Lindsay fans are beginning to express the wish for a change. They have seen enough Lindsay-Peterborough games to last them the rest of their lives. It has been suggested that the League be broadened out to include four teams. What about Oshawa or Port Hope? They make good baseball rivals and a hockey series with them would be a welcome change. What's your idea?—Lindsay Post.

ATTEMPT TO PROVE LANDRU IS INSANE

STILL FOUND UNDER TRENTON FILM PLANT

TRENTON, Ont, Nov 12. —An extensive still for the illicit manufacture of liquor has been unearthed in Trenton through a raid conducted by Police Chief Bain, Sergeant White and Detective Morrison, the still being discovered in a "dug-out" underneath the premises of the local film company. The investigators found the still while it was being operated by Chas. Moore a native of the West Indies. Forty gallons of mash were on hand and four gallons of proof spirits.

In court Moore was fined $200 and costs for breach of the O.T.A. and is held on a second charge preferred by Inland Revenue officers.

the head. The total capital put into that company was $1,000,000. They issued bonds for $2,000,000, preferred stock in the amount of $2,000,000 and common stock of $4,000,000.

"Their whole stock issue was $10,000,000. And they made you pay for paint prices that made that common stock, pure "water," worth 75 cents on the dollar." Such indiscretion on the part of Mr. Murdock sealed his doom. But he was equally reckless, said Mr. Wilkie, with irony the audience fully recognized, in investigating the shoe industry, one of the leaders of which was the Hon. A. E. Ames, who had been a prominent Minister of the Government Another industry investigated by the Board of Commerce was the pork industry, with Sir Joseph Flavelle at its head

Mr. Wilkie said that these and other activities by Mr. Murdock and his associates were soon ended by the Government.

Got Rid of O'Connor.

"They made life so miserable for the chairman, W. F. O'Connor, that they succeeded in getting rid of him. Then they had a regulation that the chairman was the only man who could undertake an investigation. So the Board of Commerce was left headless and lifeless because the Government refused to appoint another chairman. Nor did they appoint one.

"Yes, Mr. Meighen has been faithful to the Flaveiles, the Ames, and the Ballantynes. But has he been faithful to the people? You know the answer."

The New Cabinet.

Referring to Mr. Meighen's new Cabinet, Mr. Wilkie said it was a weird aggregation. Only one of the members of the former Cabinets in which Mr. Meighen had acted remained to help him. Four of the new Ministers designated were from Quebec.

"Do you know them? Did you ever hear of them before? No one ever heard of them, and after the election no one will ever hear of them again."

Mr. Wilkie alluded to the new party in Federal politics. He had every respect for farmers. He had been brought up on a farm.

"We lawyers never got anything out of the Ontario Government until we had a Farmers' government. I'd like to have seen a lawyer sending in a bill of $50,000 to Sir Oliver Mowat for personal services. Three or four lawyers have sent in bills for sums of about that amount to the present Government, and I hope they'll get their pay."

For the People.

"The Liberal party represents no particular party. It doesn't matter what a man's occupation is he is all one under the Liberal party," said Mr. Wilkie. We believe in government by the people, for all the people, all the time."

"The big party interests have more to hope from others than from Mr. King." Continuing, he said Mr. King came from good stock. "He is a well-trained man. After graduating from university he had two more years in Europe. After he served in best political school Canada has ever known as Minister of Labour in the Laurier government. He was the only Minister of Labour that ever laboured at his job. I say Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King is the best trained man for his job you can find on the North American continent." He praised Mr. King's work for the Rockfeller Foundation highly. He was the best man they could secure he said.

Big Interests.

"Not least among the supporters of William Lyon Mackenzie King is your own Mr. Gordon," the Toronto speaker said. "He is a young man."

"That's what we want," shouted a voice in the audience.

"Yes, that is what you want," said Mr. Wilkie.

In concluding his speech, Mr. Wilkie referred to the support expected from the now franchised women of Canada, and asked Peterborough voters to choose between a government of big interests and a government for equal right for all, when they went to the polls on December 6.

At the time of going to press the convention was still in session.

The remainder of the addresses will appear in Monday's issue.

COULDN'T DO HOUSEWORK HEART WAS SO BAD

Many women get weak and run down and unable to look after their household duties owing to the heart action becoming impaired or the nervous system unstrung.

Nature intended women to be strong, healthy and happy instead of sick and wretched. But how can a woman be strong and healthy when day in and day out she has to go through the same routine of work sweeping, dusting, cooking, washing, etc. Is it any wonder that the heart becomes effected and nervous, has hot flushes, faint and dizzy spells, smothering and sinking spells and can't sleep at night.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Mrs. Daniel Bezanson, Loganville, N.S., writes:—"As I was troubled with a weak heart for nearly two years I am writing to tell you what your great remedy, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, has done for me.

"My heart was so bad at night I could not sleep, I would take smothering spells, and was so weak I could not do my housework. I tried two doctors, but no results. A friend advised me to try your pills. I used six boxes and am completely relieved. I think they are the best remedy for heart trouble there is."

NELL SHIPMAN, IN GREAT OUTDOOR PICTURE, "THE GIRL FROM GOD'S COUNTRY," IS SUPERB

PORTRAYAL OF EXACTING ROLL AND SYMPATHETIC WORK WITH ANIMAL ACTORS MAKES PRODUCTION BIGGEST OF YEAR.

Nell Shipman, as star, author and director of a tremendous outdoor photo-play, "The Girl from God's Coutry," offers the greatest screen attraction of the season. She handles a difficult role in one of the most thrilling action melodramas ever photographed for a motion picture, coming to the Capitol Theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The scenes are laid in the Canadin Northwest, where Miss Shipman repeatedly risked life and limb in the interests of thrills.

The F. B. Warren Corporation will release "The Girl's from God's County.".

The story opens in the North Woods, where Neeka, a girl of the great outdoors, meets a hunting party that includes J. R. Carslake, millionaire areoplane manufacturer who many years before had eloped with Neeka's mother, and at the birth of Neeka had discarded the mother and babe.

Unaware that Carslake is her father, Neeka saves his life when he is on the verge of drowning after his guide shoots a hole in the bottom of the canoe in which they are paddling. The guide, Neeka's grandfather, had sought revenge for the affair in which his daughter paid the penalty.

Carslake adopts Neeka and takes her back to California with his daughter Marion, who closely resembles Neeka. Carslake is unaware of the fact that Neeka is his real daughter.

The entire country is awaiting the outcome of the proposed trans-Pacific flight, in which Carslake's new airplane and the K-12, owned by Otto Kraus, are entered. The only obstacle standing in the way of Carslake's victory is the want of a fuel supply that will enable his plane to make the trip successfully.

For years Carslake has been cunningly defrauding a crazed inventor of his models putting them on the market as his own inventions and reaping a fortune and fame ts a result. This inventor lives in a lonely hut in the sand dunes. Carslake appeals for a formula to be used for the flight and the inventor provides a solidified gasoline which Carslake promptly apropriates for his stolen models.

Kraus in an effort to learn secrets regarding Carslake's activities gets work as a butler in the Carslake mansion. While there he gains the confidence of Neeka and cunningly persuades her to obtain the formula for the solidified gasoline from Carslake.

The newspapers of the country carry big stories of the discovery of solidified gasoline and give credit to Carslake. The crazed inventor hears of this and tries to see Carslake, only to be refused admittance at the aero works. He swears revenge, which comes sooner than he hoped. His mind is restored to normal when the hangar of the Carslake plant is set afire, and he is rescued by Neeka in the nick of time.

Neka, after getting the formula for Kraus, realizes that she has been duped into treason against her benefactor.

Kraus has departed in a plane and Neeka follows in pursuit.

A thrilling battle in mid-air is enacted and Neeka is forced to make a sensational leap in a parachute when the wing of her plane is broken.

The story ends in a manner better seen in the picture than told here.

The balance of a big program and the very excellent music of the splendid Concert Orchestra will complete a great program for the first 3 days of next week.

HEADACHES

Are you persistently troubled with headaches? You fatigue easily, and because you have a persistent, nagging pain in your head you are sometimes cross, and your work goes wrong, or won't "go" at all? You may obtain temporary relief, and by a great effort manage to keep up and around, but then at times all the pain seems to gather its forces for a colossal attack, and for a few hours you suffer with intense pain, which leaves you weak and more unfit than ever to carry on your work.

Modern science has proven that HEADACHES HAVE A CAUSE. The ache is an effect, and treating an effect will do not permanent good. TO ADJUST THE CAUSE IS THE ONLY SOLUTION. It has further proven that the cause is pressure upon the nerves which carry to every part of the body the vital forces, or mental impulses, which are the means of all life in the body. The only place where such pressure by bony tissue can exist is where the nerves emit from the spinal column through openings between the vertebrae.

A headache frequently is a symptom of abnormal function in one or more of the various organs of the body. In other words, it is adaptative to abnormalities in other regions of the body. The Chiropractor determines the abnormality to which the headache is adaptative, then finds the nerve pressure which is causing that abnormality. He relieves that nerve pressure, normal function is restored to the abnormal organs, they then do their work properly and the adaptative headache disappears. This is not theory, but a proven fact. Why suffer longer with headaches.

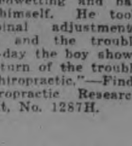
Bladder Troubles in Children

Weekly Health Talk No. 4
By A. P. Rogers, D.C.

One of the commonest ailments among children is bedwetting. Insufficient control at the bladder outlet in many cases is the cause. Sometimes weakened kidneys place an undue burden on the bladder and the child in the unconsciousnes of sleep is not capable of control. To punish a child under such circumstanes is little less than criminal.



Uncle Ben Says
When it comes to health the Chiropractor generally says it with results.

The cause lies in the spine, and the muscles and ligaments of children are so elastic and flexible, that quick results are noted under chiropractic spinal adjustments. When the pressure on the spinal nerves is removed, normal control of the kidneys and bladder follows. Of course cases of long standing, even in children, will not respond so quickly.

RECOVERS IN TWO WEEKS

"My little boy, aged six, was troubled with bedwetting and had no control of himself. He took chiropractic spinal adjustments for two weeks, and the trouble was relieved. To-day the boy shows no signs of a return of the trouble and we credit Chiropractic."—Findlay Walsh, Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement, No. 1287H.

WORLD'S PRESS APPLAUDS PLAN FOR DISARMING

LONDON, PARIS AND NEW YORK PAPERS SURPRISED AT SCOPE OF U. S. PROPOSALS BUT FAVORABLE TO THEM.

LONDON, HOWEVER, INCLINED TO RESERVE JUDGMENT NOW

LONDON, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press). — Overwhelming surprise and a disposition to reserve judgment seems the keynote of the comment in the London morning papers on the proposals of the United States at the Washington conference.

"It may conceivably be found," says the Daily Telegraph, "that the scheme is over bold, but holds up such a magnificent ideal that it will awaken greater enthusiasm among those who long for the world to get its feet set upon the true path of peace."

The Morning Post thinks the scheme will require careful scrutiny, while the Daily News declares a despairing world has been shown the way of salvation. The Times treats the proposals with sympathetic admiration, but emphasizes that they will have to be carefully considered.

JAPANESE AGREEABLE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press). — The impression is general that the Japanese are agreeably impressed, if not actually willing, to accept Hughes' proposals on limitation of naval armaments.

FRENCH PRESS FAVORABLE.

PARIS, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).—While expressing surprise at the suddenness with which the United States' proposals for limitation of armaments were presented, Paris newspapers are most favorable and declare that the problem confronting the conference is the attitude to be taken by Japan. Des Debats says the proposals involve abrogation of the Anglo - Japanese Alliance.

N. Y. PRESS SUPPORTS PLANS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Newspapers of every shade of political opinion are giving exhaustive support to Secretary Hughes' proposals on limitation of armament. All are agreeably surprised at the scope of the plans.

Disarming Plan Requires Least Sacrifice By Us

LONDON, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—The American plan for a ten-year naval holiday and the scrapping of all but a limited number of warships calls for much less sacrifice on the part of Britain than by the United States or Japan, in view of the naval correspondent of the Daily Mail. The proposed sacrifice, he says, would be a heavy one for Japan and the United States. The scheme involves no injury to British interests, for in plain fact the British Navy today is third in post-war ships and ocean-going submarines.

MINORITY REPORT OF ARBITRATORS

OTTAWA, November 14 (Canadian Press). — The minority report of the Board of Arbitrators in the wage dispute between the Canadian National Railways and its employees, signed by George Kelley, was issued this morning, and it supports the action of the company in reducing wages last July some twelve and one-half per cent. Conditions affecting labour in the United States are bound to affect the situation in Canada, asserts Mr. Kelley, who represented the company on the Arbitration Board.

ANNUAL MEETING OF ASSOCIATION

ST. JOHN'S CHURCHWOMEN HAD A BUSY YEAR—THE REPORTS

The annual meeting of the Churchwomen's Association of St. John's Church was held in the parish hall on Friday evening. Reports were most encouraging. The Association has shown during the past year splendid progress in interest membership and work. Besides their usual work of the year, they were enabled to purchase new robes for a choir, a large undertaking financially, and also to renovate the Bishop's room at the Rectory.

Dr. Blagrave spoke a few words at the close of the meeting on the high privilege of church work and his appreciation of the society's work in the past year.. Officers for the year are as follows:

Hon. President—Mrs.. R. C. Blagrave; President; Mrs. Mulholland; 1st vice president—Mrs. Jos. Mills, second vice president, Mrs. G. S. Cameron, Secretary—Mrs. Denne; Treasurer, Mrs. H. Morphet; executive committe; Mrs. C. L. Brewer, Mrs. C. E. Jamieson and Miss Margaret English.

START SEWER WORK IN COUPLE OF WEEKS

Unemployment Conditions Infinitely Worse in 1914.

About the most encouraging information that the city engineer's staff has been able to give to the eighty odd men that have applied for work up to to-day is that the sewer work will be started in a couple of weeks. The plans for work on numerous streets have yet to be approved by the Provincial Board of Health. Just at present there are only about ten men doing odd work for the city, and the arrival of snow has thrown about ten street cleaners and teamsters out of work. While conditions seem dark enough now, City Engineer Parsons said to-day that in 1914 things were infinitely worse, for compared with eighty men on the unemployed list now there were at that time several hundred.

BRITAIN WILL ACCEPT PLANS IN PRINCIPLE

BALFOUR, SAYS OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT, WILL MAKE FORMAL ACCEPTANCE TO-MORROW OF ARMAMENT PROPOSALS.

HEADS OF DELEGATIONS IN CONFERENCE TO-DAY

WASHINGTON, November 14 (Canadian Press). — It was officially announced by the British delegation to-day that the Hon. Arthur J. Balfour will to-morrow accept "in principle Hughes' proposals."

While naval experts of the foreign Powers to-day continued to examine Hughes' proposals for the limitation of armaments, the heads of the United States, British, Japanese, French and Italian delegations conferred to map out a plan of procedure to expedite consideration of the whole question.

Discussion of the proposals for armament limitation started in the Senate an hour after it convened.

Japan's acceptance "in principle" of Hughes' proposals was indicated by Admiral Kato.

United States officials emphasised that the plan presented on Saturday was purely the United States' proposal, and that advance knowledge of it had ben kept carefully from all the representatives of the other Powers. In consequence, it was assumed that several days would be required for the naval advisors of Great Britain and Japan, the Powers chiefly concerned, to prepare an estimate of the acceptability of the sweeping proposals.

PRESENTATION BY HARRY LONG TO ST. JOHN'S

HANDSOMELY WROUGHT ALMS DISH DEDICATED YESTERDAY MORNING BY ARCHDEACON J. C. DAVIDSON.

GOOD LAY WORKER

A simple but impressive ceremony at the 11 o'clock service in St. John's Anglican Church yesterday morning, was the dedication to the service and glory of God of an alms dish presented by Mr. Harry Long, of this city. The ritual was conducted by Archdeacon J. C. Davidson, still non-resident Rector of Peterborough, and former Incumbent of St. John's.

"Alms dish" is the Church's orthodox name for a vessel in which alms for the poor, and other devotions of the people, are collected, but from the purpose for which this and other similar dishes are nowadays used, by many people the term would seem a misnomer. For this gift from Mr. Long is a large plate-shaped receptacle in which the congregation's offerings and dues are deposited for presentation to God at the altar by the minister; and it was, perhaps, the one thing needed to complete the appurtenances of St. John's beautiful chancel.

The alms dish dedicated yesterday is a handsome solid brass vessel 16¾ inches in diameter, of substantial weight, with broad rim and a bowl of generous depth. It is beautifully wrought in ecceliastical decorative design, and the centre of the bowl displays in bold burnished relief, the Church of England's old-time monogram, "I.H.S." the centre character "H," being fittingly elongated into the shape of a cross. Around its brim there is appropriately engraved the text "To do good and distribute—Forget Not," while on the reverse side of the rim is inscribed, "Presented by H. Long," November, 1921." It might be interesting to note here that the monogram "I.H.S." is taken from the first three letters of the Greek word—"IHZOUS," which transcribed into English means Jesus.

Mr. Harry Long, the donor of this handsome and serviceable chancel utility, which in the nature of its manufactured durability, will no doubt go down into the ages, is English by birth, but coming to Canada when quite a young man, has practically lived in Peterborough all his life. For years he conducted a confectionery business on George St., and some few years ago retired. He is still resident in this city during the winter months but in Summer goes west, where he has business invesments. Always a member of old St. John's since settling in Peterborough, Mr. Harry Long gave distinguished service to the church during his four years' stewardship, under the then resident Rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson; and in view of his at all times loyal and active lay support of St. John's Rector, it was peculiarly fitting that he—now Archdeacon Davidson—should dedicate yesterday morning, Mr. Harry Long's thoughtful and, in fact, timely gift.

Lakes-to-Sea Waterway Gets More Support

DULUTH, Minn., Nov. 14. —(Canadian Press).—'Action by Congress within a year" has become the slogan af the Great Lakes, St. Lawrence-Tidewater Association A statement issued by Charles P. MAGISTRATE DUMBLE, K.C., HAS RESIGNED

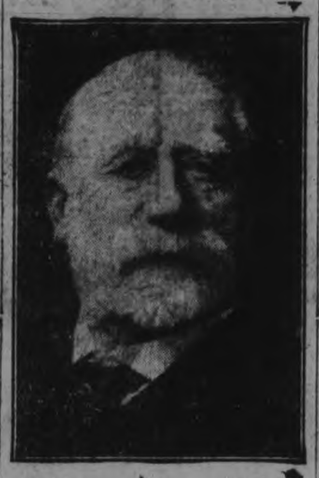
PETERBORO'S VETERAN MAGISTRATE, 85 YEARS OF AGE, SAYS HE IS GETTING TOO HARD OF HEARING.

LANGLEY MAY SUCCEED HIM

The resignation of D. W. Dumble, Police Magistrate of the city of filled for 40 years, has been accepted by Attorney-General W. E. Raney, year splendid progress in interest-for a successor, which, it is understood, will be County Magistrate O. A. Langley, if the matter of salary can be satisfactorily arranged.



MAGISTRATE D. W. DUMBLE.

Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble, when seen by The Examiner this afternoon, frankly admitted his resignation and its acceptance.

"Why did yoo resign?"

"I am getting a little hard of hearing. I don't know whether the Government thinks 40 years is long enough or not."

'What reason did you give?"

"I didn't give any. As a matter of fact, I wouldn't have resigned, only my hearing is not as good as it should be. My heart is all right, though," he said. smiling.

Here is how Magistrate Dumble sums up his 40 years of service on the bench:

"They have been pleasant years. I have tried to do my duty, without fear, favour, or affection, guided by my responsibility to my God and fellow-citizen."

Magistrate Dumble's resignation goes into effect on 1st January.

Magistrate O. A. Langley is conceded to be the likely choice of the Attorney-General, for it is the desire of the Department to combine both benches and pay a single salary, and their usual work of the year, they experience on the County bench.

Magistrate Dumble has been granted no pension by the Provincial Government, and Attorney-financially and also to renovate the Magistrate advising him of the acceptance of his resignation, expressed the hope that the City Council would arrange for a pension.

So far the Council has taken no steps in this matter.

ARCHDEACON DAVIDSON AT ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

At St. Luke's Anglican Church on Sunday evening, Archdeacon J. C. Davidson extended warm diocesan greetings to the congregation. He also referred sympathetically to the death of Rev. Dr. Symonds, of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, and formerly a rector of St. Luke's, Ashburnham, whose demise he characterised as a loss to the whole church. The Archdeacon also made passing reference to the removal of Rev. Mr. White from St. Luke's to Toronto, after efficient pastoral work here; and when extolling the qualifications of his successor, Rev. C. L. Bousfield, from his knowledge he expressed confidence that they would loyally support their new rector.

HEALTH BOARD ASK ITEMIZED ACCOUNTS NOW

CONSIDERABLE FUROR AT THIS MORNING'S MEETING OVER UNITEMIZED BILLS, WHICH WERE FINALLY PASSED.

CONTROVERSY DEVELOPS OVER SEWER EXTENSION

A discussion over the accounts submitted and a final decision that the Board will only pass itemized reasonable accounts featured the monthly meeting of the local Board of Health to-day.

Mr. James Lynch summed up the apparent opinion of Mayor McIntyre, Chairman George Duncan and himself when he said, "I think we owe a duty to the citizens to watch these accounts closely. There is a tendency on the part of some to 'soak' public institutions, and we must guard against it."

The attention and wrath of the Board centred particularly on one account from a fruit merchant, dated September 7, for $2.90 for a bag of potatoes. His entire account caused a considerable furor, for many of the articles were not itemized, and the account read like this: "For goods $7.00, for goods $3.70, etc."

Accounts Passed, However.

The Chairman passed the account, and with it others, for this was not the only unitemized one, and declared that hereafter no unitemized account will be passed, and exorbitant prices, such as $2.90 for a bag of potatoes, when they were only $1.75 anywhere else, will not be tolerated. If tradesmen at present selling to the Board will not submit itemized accounts they will no longer receive the custom.

Asks Sewer Extension.

Mr. Archie Davidson wrote the Board, asking for sewer connection to his lot on Monaghan Road, between Sherbrooke and Patterson Streets. The sewer would have to be extended 150 feet north and the connections put in, he said.

James Lynch stoutly opposed spending at least $300 in putting a sewer up the road to accommodate one man.

Mayor McIntyre and the Chairman were prepared to recommend the construction of the sewer to the Council, and, despite a lusty one-man onposition, the recommendation went through.

"I wouldn't recommend it to the Council. I think it's the worst possible kind of business. Here we have to spend $300 to supply one small house," said Mr. Lynch.

"Well, suppose he builds three houses. The Council as I understand are preparing work and the Government is helping them to do it. I think the Board should do all they can to help. This work will give some employment," defended the Chairman.

"When a man builds a house at the end of the street he thinks he has a divine right for sewer connection and everything else. It would be far better for the city and everything else if the house wasn't there at all," replied Mr. Lynch.

"Mr. Davidson is in a peculiar position. He isn't at the end of the street. There are lots on both sides of him," said Mr. Duncan. "It will show the Board aren't trying to hold up a man on sewer connections."

Isolation Hospital Report.

The report of Miss A. M. Price, matron of Queen Mary Hospital, for the month of October showed that on October 1 there were 28 patients in the hospital, 16 scarlet fever and 12 diphtheria, and during the month, 11 scarlet fever cases and 22 diphtheria were admitted. Of the 61 cases cared for during October, 58 were from the city and 3 from out of city.

During the month there was one death and 28 patients were discharged. On November 1 there were 17 scarlet fever cases and 15 diphtheria.

Upkeep of the hospital for October was $1,838.57, making the total expenditure on the hospital from Jan. 1 $11,930.96. Of the expenditure during October, $1,031.66 was for salaries. Six special nurses, with salaries as follows, $25 $110 $155, $170 $175, $115, swelled the list considerably.

Furniture and furnishings represented an item of $453.66, groceries and provisions $907.08, and drugs and medicines $63.05.

Board's Strength Ebbs.

The strength of the Board was at ebb to-day. Mr. E. F. Mason is hunting, Sanitary Inspector C. S. Stapleton is also in the woods, and Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., was unable to attend because of an operation at the hospital.

Letter of Thanks.

A letter of thanks was received from Miss Geraldine Casey, one of the nurses at the hospital, who contracted a rather severe case of diphtheria while on duty, for the flowers and kindness of the Board. The thoughtfulness of Miss Casey was appreciated by the Board of Health.

He regards the difficulties in the way of the Wheat Board handling the balance of this year's crop as insurmountable, and favors co-operative effort by the farmers and reasonable Government assistance that might be necessary for success "would be entirely justifiable."

SUNDAY SERVICES AT THE Y. W. C. A.

A very helpful service was held at the Young Women's Christian Association yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Haddow, who has spent some years in Bolivia, gave a most interesting account of girl life in that country. Miss Bird sang "In the Garden," and Miss Flossie Chiles was the accompanist for the afternoon.

In the evening the first of the sing songs was held and was well attended. The singing with Miss E. Silsl at the piano, was most hearty.

GORDON FLAYS GOV'T, STATES HIS PLATFORM

STANDS FOR TARIFF REVISION, PERMANENT PENSION BONUS, SENATE REFORM, TAX OFFICE AND G. T. R. ELECTRIFICATION HERE.

REPLIES TO ATTACKS ON MACKENZIE KING

Mr. Gordon has received the following telegram from the Liberal Leader:

Waterous, Sask.,
November 13, 1921.

G. N. Gordon, M.P.,
Peterborough.

Please accept and extend to our friends in Peterborough my hearty congratulations on your re-nominaion as Liberal candidate in West Peterborough.

Believe your re-nomination means certain victory.

W. L. Mackenzie-King.

Flaying the Government unmercifully for its association with the "big interests," the Riordan scandal, its treatment of the returned soldiers, its failure to revise the tariff, its origin and the statements of some of its local supporters, G. N. Gordon, M. P., asserted before the Liberal convention, which nominated him Saturday afternoon, that if elected he would urge the abolition or reformation of the Senate, the establishment of an Income Tax office in Peterborough, electrification of the Lindsay, Port Hope and Belleville lines of the Grand Trunk Railway, making permanent the bonus given to soldiers and widows with pensions, and revision of the tariff.

If successful on December 6, he continued, he would make the same promise to the electors of West Peterborough which he made on the night of the by-election, to protect the interests of all from aggression. This promise, he said, he had kept by his successful fight to have the sales tax on package cereal foods and flour removed, thus saving $4,000,000 a year to the Canadian consumers.

Attacks Riordan Deal.

With regard to the acceptance by the Government of promissory notes for the business profits taxes of the Riordan Company, the candidate declared that Sir Henry Drayton had done this unlawfully. "The heads of this company assisted in raising the Government "slush fund" in 1917 and controlled the Toronto Mail and Empire, the chief organ in Ontario." Drayton, Mr. Gordon avorred, had broken the law in doing this. He presented figures to show that Riordan's total earnings over the period for which the $800,000 in taxes were owed totalled approximately $6,000,000. But as Carl and Charles J. Riordan were president and vice-president of the Mail and Empire and Charles S. Douglas, Riordan manager, was also manager of the paper, the Finance Minister had feared to enforce the law.

Under the business profits legislation, Mr. Gordon continued, taxes were given precedence over all other debts, but by accepting promissory notes for Riordan's taxes Sir Henry Drayton had placed the Government in the same position as any unsecured creditor of a bankrupt company.

In contrast to the alleged favoritism shown Riordan, the speaker cited cases of local men who had been fined for infractons of the Income Tax Law. A number of men, he said, had been penalized for a delay of only two days in paying their taxes. Riordan had delayed four years with impunity.

"Mr. Burnham has a lot to explain," the speaker remarked. Investiagtion of the Riordan case would show that millions of dollars in taxes were owed to the Government by other concerns, he said.

Employment of Griffenhagens.

Mr. Gordon also attacked the Government for employing a firm of German-Americans, the Griffenhag-

The Value of Advertising

No matter what particular merit a preparation may possess, if you wish to bring it before the public, it is necessary to advertise it.

For instance, Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills were just as good a year ago as they are to-day; and while they had a steady sale due to one friend telling another of the benefits derived from them the proprietors recognized this was a rather slow way of introducing them, and for the year 1921 they have placed a contract with this paper for 10,000 lines of advertising.

On another page of this paper you will find their large advertisement, and with merit and advertising we feel confident they will meet with success.

SWEEPING PROPOSALS FOR NAVAL DISARMAMENT MADE

TO-DAY'S NEWS OF THE DISTRICT

BOARD OF COMMERCE WAS HAMSTRUNG SAYS MURDOCK

FORMER COMMISSIONER SAYS IT WAS INTENDED BY CABINET MINISTER AS DOSE OF CHLOROFORM TO ALLAY UNREST OF PEOPLE WHO WERE BEING EXPLOITED.

ATTACKS LABOUR MINISTER

HAVELOCK, November 14.—"We concluded that the entire Act, as intended, was purely camouflage, a dose of chloroform for the Canadian people, to allay the unrest and the belief in the minds of the Canadian people that they were being exploited; that there was no intention in any way, shape or form on the part of the Cabinet, or at least the great majority of it, of permitting the Board of Commerce to do what the Act in its language said should be done."

Such was the measured affirmation of James Murdock, Vice-President of the Brotherhood of Railway trainmen and member of the Canadian Board of Commerce during its stormy but inglorious career in 1919 and 1920, in his address in the town hall here on Saturday night in support of the Liberal candidate in East Peterborough, Captain John Dewart, M.C.

The hall was comfortably filled by an audience that included quite a number of women and farmers and C. P. R. employees.

Quite obviously Mr. Murdock made a deep impression by his plain and unrhetorical account of the stewardship of the Board of Commerce, and the alleged frustration of their efforts to put into force the Act in restraint of combines, and the upholding of prices, with which the Board of Commerce had been armed. But Mr. Murdock declared that their lances were but straws, and that the Board was hamstrung from the very inception.

After the Armistice.

In a brief introduction he traced the events following the armistice, and recalled the relief with which the people turned from war to peace. Almost at once they began to grow restive in the feeling that everything was not as it should be. Prices were soaring even beyond the peaks they had reached during the war, and that for the articles of food and clothing the prices seemed unnecessarily and unreasonably high.

"So we find the Government putting in the statutes laws that seemed intended to create a better feeling in this country, and to enable those earning small wages to get a decent living," said Mr. Murdock.

"Two Acts were passed, one constituting the Board of Commerce and the other concerning investigations, and the restraint of mergers, trusts, and combines, and the upholding and enhancement of the prices of commodities."

Referring to his own appointment to the Board, Mr. Murdock said he had been told he was wanted in a great work for the Canadian people, and how much greater it would be than anything that he had ever done as an official of the railway trainmen.

What Board Discovered.

"I soon found out that all that was expected of the Board of Commerce was to make a demonstration here, get newspaper notoriety there, camouflage somewhere else, and draw my salary, and put in my expense account regularly."

"From the beginning we were prevented from doing what should be done. When we wrote to Sir George Foster asking for prompt action we would hear from him after sending a tracer or two, and breaking in and

ARMISTICE DAY IN LAKEFIELD

MEMORIAL TABLET UNVEILED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON—THE CEREMONY.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 12.—Lakefield crowned her war service on Armistice Day by the unveiling of the handsome bronze memorial tablet to the memory of the men who did not come back. The splendid Community Hall is in itself a war memorial, and the tablet is the seal which dedicates it as Lakefield's tribute to our fallen comrades.

The ceremony was due to begin at 2 o'clock, and long before that hour people were flocking to the hall, and when the time came to begin the proceedings every inch of space was occupied. A community choir had seats reserved near the piano in the north-west side of the hall, and the next of kin of the fallen were given places on the south-east side facing the tablet. A strong and efficient committee of veterans acted as ushers, and displayed on more than one occasion that chivalry, by which the British soldier is recognized, kindness and gentleness with old people and invalids and in looking out for the next of kin that they might be taken to their places, were noted by more than one person.

Guard of Honor.

The guard of honor was under the command of Sergt. Stenner, P.P.C.L.I., and consisted of Pte. T. A. Simpson and a detachment of H. S. Cadets and a patrol of St. John's Scouts.

Very soon after 2 o'clock Reeve. J. Strickland called the meeting to order, and in a brief address announced the purpose for which they were assembled—to honor Lakefield's fallen soldiers. We should be proud of the boys who fought for our liberty, they were on every loud front. About 120 men went from Lakefield, 10 per cent. of the population at that time. This tablet will keep in memory for all time the glorious sacrifice they made. The unveiling was done inside owing to the weather but the tablet will have a place of honor in the lower part of the hall. We expected Bishop O'Brien, General King, Col. Carmichael and Lieut. Michael O'Leary, V.C., but they were unable to be present.

Col. T. J. Johnson, V.C., of the 93rd Battalion, was the next speaker, and he was glad to be in Lakefield for this event. He knew the men, even better than their own parents, had seen them at their best, nobly facing death, and that had developed their manhood in a way nothing else could. They endured, enjoyed and suffered together. In these days of unrest many blame the returned men for the unsettled conditions, but they are not to blame; it is the stay-at-home who should be blamed.

The men returned from France happy in the consciousness of duty well done, and hoped for a realization of it in the people at home, but they found the stay-at-home and foreign element profiting by their sacrifice.

Lakefield is still carrying on its good work for the men, and none is more worthy than the memorial tablet. Those who made the biggest sacrifice of the war are still working for the men who have returned.

Religious Service.

The brief religious service followed, begun by singing "O God, our help in ages past." Rev. T. L. White led the people in the general confession, after which Rev. P. L. Jull read the first fourteen verses of St. John's gospel. Psalm 124 was repeated, Rev. S. F. Dixon taking one verse, and the people the alternate verses. Rev. F. Vipond led the Lord's prayer, recited the collects and gave the blessing.

All joined in singing Kipling's "Recessional," after which Comrade F. Moon unveiled the tablet and Bugler Arthur Webster sounded the Last Post. The choir, under the leadership of Rev. T. L. White, sang "In Flanders Fields." Miss Alice Hunter presided at the piano.

His Honor Judge Huycke was the next speaker, and he found a sad pleasure in being present at this most interesting and inspiring occasion. It was a pleasure to note the appreciation of Col. McCrae's beautiful poem by the choir, who sang it so beautifully. During the war many fine poems were written, but McCrae's is perhaps the very best, written by a Canadian boy who gave his life that others might live. In a conversation with General Morrison, commander of the Canadian Field Artillery at the front, a very interesting account of this poem was disclosed. When in France it was General Morrison's custom, in the dark hours before the dawn, to steal

KICK FROM A HORSE SEVERS JUGULAR VEIN, RESULTING IN ALMOST INSTANT DEATH OF JOHN CATTON.

CAMPBELLFORD Nov. 14.—On Saturday afternoon a very sad accident occurred at Hoard's Station, when Mr. John Calton met with an accident which resulted in his death. While going out to assist Mr. William Snarr, of Rawdon township, who was passing and whose horse had become unruly, Mr. Calton was kicked in the throat, severing his jugular vein, resulting in his almost instant death. Medical aid was at once summoned, but life was extinct. The deceased, who was past the three-score mark, was a man of genial disposition and beloved by all who were fortunate enough to know him. His wife, Miss Haig, who was a sister of Dr. Haig, of town, passed away over two years ago. The funeral will be held on Tuesday, conducted by Rev. J. J. Black, and the remains will be interred in Burnbrae cemetery. The relatives have the sympathy of all in their sudden bereavement.

Obituary.

There passed away on Saturday, at the home of her son, Mr. Richard Meiklejohn, Rawdon township, after a brief illness of pneumonia, Mrs. Charlotte Meiklejohn, relict of the late John Meiklejohn. The deceased who was sixty years of age, was a woman of very lovable disposition and of good Christian character. She is survived by two daughter, Mrs. James Gibson of Rawdon township, Mrs. George Gibson of Seymour township and one son, Mr. Richard Meiklejohn of Rawdon, and Councillor W. J. Meiklejohn, of town, a stepson, also by Mr. John Morton, a brother, Mrs. John Pollock, Mrs. Robt. Scarlet, Mrs. Norman Wellman and another sister in Madoc. The funeral will be held this afternoon conducted by Rev. J. L. Black, of Burnbrae, and the remains will be laid to rest in the family plot at Rylestone cemetery. Mr. Meiklejohn predeceased his wife about eighteen years ago. The family have the sympathy of all in their bereavement.

Mission Circle.

The Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the Methodist church held a very pleasant and profitable evening on Thursday at the home of Miss Hattie Redden, the President, Mrs. Malcolm presiding. Miss V. Miller gave a fine paper on "Indian Missions in Canada" and after the usual business was concluded the remainder of the evening was spent in sewing, etc., preparing for the bazaar which they purpose holding in December. A very dainty lunch was served by the hostess, after which they dispersed to meet again in two weeks.

Attend Divine Service.

A large number of the members of the True Blue and Orange Lodge attended divine service in St. Andrew's church yesterday morning, when Rev. C. F. McIntosh, pastor, preached a very practical and impressive service from Judges, chap. 7, verse 7. And the Lord said unto Gideon. By the three hundred men that lapped will I have you and deliver the Midianites into thine hand." There are events in the history of every nation that will never be forgotten as long as the nation exists. In the British nation the "charge of the Light Brigade," the feats of the men of our Dominion at Ypres will never be forgotten. The Midian hoards had crossed the Jordan and overrun Palestine, leaving destruction in their path for seven years. They had even killed the brother of Gideon. Thus the motive of revenge may have spurred him on. God raised up personal motives of revenge to repel the invaders. The enemy with treir band of 135,000 came towards Palestine. It is instructive to remember how Gideon's band was selected as stated in chap. 6. He sent among the northern tribes of Israel to rally the men. This methods calls to mind the method employed in ancient times in Scotland when the Fiery Cross was used to rally men to the colours. 32,000 men responded to Gideon's call, but this number needed to be reduced; all cannot be depended upon. In Deuteronomy provision is made for allowing the faint-hearted to return home. Israel knew if there were men in the army who had not the spirit it might spread. Gideon was bidden of God to reduce his army. When permission was given, scarcely one-third was left, but still too many remained and another sifting must take place. So the remainder were brought down to the river and allowed to drink. Some kneeled down and drank and were not vigilant, not thinking of the enemy, who might be in ambush. Those who lapped, not putting themselves where the enemy might attack. These could exercise self control and were alert. The qualities of these men were outstanding. (1) Men of courage based on faith in God. They had the opportunity of returning, which would have been an easy thing, but they had the courage to stand before overwhelming forces. The most courageouse men are not those who do not tremble but men who fear but have had faith in the thing they have put their hand to. Gideon had faith in God and the men gathered around him were men after his own heart, but only one against thirty of the enemy. They were the cream of the men, those who could exercise self-control. The things we forget are the most important things. The thing they forgot was themselves. (1) Proper appreciation of the enemy. What the cost to them would be if the enemy prevailed with weapon in hand as they drank, they were ready. See what was accomplished. They go out with Gideon in the middle of the night with torches, surround the camp and blow their trumpets. The enemy became panic-

A Stitch in Time

Quick action is the only hope when kidney disease appears.

There is a whole train of dreadfully painful and fatal ailments which soon follow any neglect to get the kidneys right. Among others are rheumatism, lumbago, Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure.

In Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will find a treatment which is both quick and thorough.

Mr. C. E. Raymus, Lindale, Alta., writes:—

"I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and lame back for more than a year. A friend of mine one day told me of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and acting upon his advice I tried them. After I had taken one box I felt better, so I continued until I had used five boxes. By this time I felt as well and strong as ever, and am glad to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anyone suffering as I did."

NO COALITION KING DECLARES

SAYS PROGRESSIVES MUST WORK WITH LIBERALS NOW IF THEY SEEK TO DO SO AFTER ELECTION.

CARLETON REFUSES SIR HENRY DRAYTON

MELVILLE, Sask. Nov., 14.—(Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—If the Progressives desire unity with the Liberal Party in a joint effort to secure the passage of Legislative measures sought by both of these parties, then the Progressives must seek to bring about that unity before the election by working with the Liberals for success in the campaign. This was the declaration of Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, leader of the Liberal Party, in his first speech on the prairies during his present campaign on Saturday.

"The country is sick of coalitions," declared Mr. King; "if the Progressives have any idea of seeking to work with the Liberals they should seek to work with us in a campaign now, rather than in dividing forces opposing the Government and then hoping to make overtures later."

"The Progressives" said Mr. King gave the people the idea that they had no use for either, of the old parties. If that was the line the Progressives took, said Mr. King, then they could not hope that either of the old parties would "have any use for them."

CARLETON WON'T HAVE SIR HENRY DRAYTON

OTTAWA, Nov 14—(By Canadian Press)—Following opposition to his candidature, Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, withdrew from the Carleton County Government Convention at Stittsville, Saturday afternoon. William F. Garland, Ottawa druggist, and a former member of the House of Commons, was chosen as the Government standard bearer Six aspirants for the nominatios were before the convention, including George Boyce, former sitting member, and Rev. Morris and Clerke Craig to retire, and an attack on the principle of choosing an "outsider" delivered by Rev. Mr. Steacy.

CANADIAN WHO CARRIED ORDER TO CEASE FIRING DEAD

UNITED STATES TO SCRAP 30 SHIPS, BRITAIN 19 AND JAPAN 7, REDUCING THE TOTAL TONNAGE OF GREAT POWERS BY 1,878,043—AUTHORITATIVELY STATED THAT BRITAIN AND JAPAN ARE FAVORABLY INCLINED TO PROPOSALS—ADVANCEMENT OF SUCH SWEEPING PLANS STARTLED DELEGATES

WASHINGTON, November 14. — Canadian Press Correspondent. — A step characterized by one of Britain's delegates as "pregnant with infinite possibilities for good," was proposed by the United States Government Saturday when Secretary of State Hughes, head of the United States delegation, addressing the opening session of the disarmament conference, put forward the following sweeping programme:

1—That there should be a naval holiday for not less than ten years.

2—That the United States scrap 30 capital ships, built and building with a total tonnage of 845,740.

3—That Great Britain scrap 19 capital ships, built aud building, for a tonnage of 411,755; also certain second line ships, making a total British reduction of 583,835 tons.

4—That Japan scrap seven capital and other ships for a total tonnage reduction of 448,928.

In other words, that the powers take their first step from the mad race in naval armaments, by wiping out at one fell swoop 66 of their monster ships, with a total of 1,878,043 tons.

Thus, at the first sitting of the conference, Uncle Sam has placed all his cards uopn the table and it is now up to the other nations to show their hands. Mr. Hughes' programme, unfolded with great care and fortified by a formidable array of statistics, and put forward without the slightest vagueness or indefiniteness, came almost as a bolt from a clear sky. Everybody expected the United States to take some kind of a lead, but nobody expected that it would have a disarmament programme to submit to the first sitting of the conference, or that it would be upon so prodigous a scale.

As the Secretary of State outlined his proposals, it was intensely interesting to note the effect upon the delegates. The Japanese grouped together at the other end of the table, sat motionless, inflexible, inscrutable. No word, no whisper, nor gesture, passed between them; not a sign to reveal what they thought. The Chinese were more outwardly moved. They leaned forward, intent upon every word, listening almost with bated breath. So also the Portuguese, the Minister for the Netherlands and the representatives of Italy. The French, however, appeared less concerned. M. Briand, who with M. Viviani, sat at the right of the United States delegation, and who resembles nothing so much as one of our Quebec M.P.'s, made no sign, while Viviani sat back with thumbs in his vest, apparently oblivious to what was being said. The British, curiously enough, reacted more to the United States statesmen's proposals. Mr. Balfour, who looks much older than when in Canada last, and a little tired, sat straight up in unfeigned surprise; Lord Lee leaned forward with intense interest, and as Mr. Hughes announced the United States' willingness to sacrifice 30 of its capital ships, Lord Beatty swung around in his chair as though he disbelieved his own ears.

The speeches that followed were of course non-committal. Mr. Balfour, who, earlier in the sitting, had moved that Mr. Hughes be the presiding officer of the conference, did not speak again, but the delegates of all the other nations were heard in turn. The Japanese spokesman, who read from a manuscript, reaffirmed Japan's desire for peace; M. Briand favored disarmament "with security" (a significant phrase) and the representatives of the other nations spoke in a similar vein.

Summed up, Saturdays gathering was an epoch-making, solemn and memorable spectacle. Absent were the pomp and tinsel and the booted and spurred diplomatist of a dead and gone diplomacy; in their stead were a gathering off earnest men, the best of the citizenship of the great nations of the world.

In the open, before the eyes of the world, under the glare of five hundred journalists, they met together and with a prayer for Divine pilotage, began a sincere effort to make the world safe for democracy.

THE FIGHT IS ON.

The fight is on in West Peterborough. At a largely attended convention at which his was the only name suggested, and marked by the desire of those present that he should be their standard-bearer, Mr. G. N. Gordon was on Saturday chosen as the candidate of the Liberals of the riding. There is not the remotest chance of either Labour or Farmers entering the contest, so that the electors of West Peterborough will have to choose between Mr. Gordon or Mr. Burnham, who is carrying the Government banner. The campaign will be different from last February's by-election in several respects. In the first place there will be only two candidates instead of five; in the second place there will not be the influx into the riding of the notables of the different parties that characteerized last winter's contest. So far there has been little outward sign of public interest in the campaign; the nomination of Mr. Gordon may, however, have a stimulating effect, and during three weeks that remain before polling day the people of the riding wll doubtless arouse themselves out of ther apathy and awaken to nn apprecation of the fact that they have a responsibility as citizens of Canada which they must discharge.

THE DAWN OF A NEW DAY.

The opening of the disarmament conference has astonished the world, and pessimistic writers who have been predicting that nothing definite nor concrete would be arrived at have been completely bowled over by the totally unexpected proposal made by the United States. The most enthusiastic advocate of a limitation of armaments scarcely hoped that any of the nations represented at Washington would bring down such a sweeping offer as that enunciated by Secretary of State Hughes on Saturday. The scrapping of all the capital ships laid down or in the course of construction by Great Britain, the United States and Japan, the scrapping of a large number of older battleships and a naval holiday for ten years, after which replacement may be carried out on a definite basis of 500,000 tons for the United States and Britain and 300,000 tons for Japan is, in brief, the American proposal. Its acceptance would stop the mad race for naval supremacy and lift a terrible burden from the peoples of the three nations. The scaling down of naval armaments would not only relieve the pressure of excessive taxation, but it would divert to useful purposes the vast sums now being expended upon costly ships of war. The conference has made a wonderful, an inspiring beginning, surpassing the fondest hopes of those who have most eagerly been awaiting the result of this momentous gathering.

EVERBODY MUST SAVE.

The Examiner the other day referred to the necessity of next year's Council observing the strictest possible economy in an effort to keep the tax rate from climbing any higher, or better still, to reduce it a notch or two. There is one feature, however, that must be remembered and that is that if past Councils have been extravagant, the citizens have themselves to accept much of the blame. In the case of large expenditures the consent of the ratepayer was in most instances necessary before the enterprise could be undertaken and in minor expenditures the public has often been an accessory before the fact. Deputation after deputation waits upon the Council each year urging generous assistance to this worthy object or that deserving organization. If their request is refused they rarely think about the tax rates, but go around grumbling at the lack of vision of the aldermen. In most cases, however, they are successful in their demands upon the Council and the aggregate of such grants and donations forms a respectable total. If economy is practised next year—and everybody is unanimous that it must be—the different organizations which have looked to the city for financial assistance must also adopt the same policy and scale down their requests to the lowest possible figure.

JUST GROWN UP BOYS.

Wednesday is to witness the conferring of the charter to the local Kiwanis Club and will therefore be a red letter day for the members, marked as it will be by the presence of large numbers of Kiwanians from outside points. In this connection it might be well to correct a false impression some citizens seem to have formed of the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs. Neither of these organizations is merely a social organization; they stand for service and both of them are built on an appreciation of the fact that men are merely grown up boys and that they respond more readily to any appeal for community work when it is presented as part of a game they are playing rather than as a duty. Remember how Tom Sawyer got the fence whitewashed? Have you ever noticed that a man who wouldn't turn out in a light shower to vote will sit in a duck blind in a pouring rain for an hour before daybreak and two hours afterwards, or that the citizen who is too tired to cut the lawn can do eighteen holes of golf without the least sign of fatigue? That is the way with Kiwanis and Rotary. The members meet every week, sing foolish songs, act like school boys on the first day of the summer vacation, call each other by nicknames, and in the midst of all the noise and fun scores of plans to benefit their fellow men and their home city are evolved, developed and carried through to completion. Peterborough will be the better for both these splendid organizations.

THE NEW HALL OF FAME.

(New York Times.)

Throuhout the country municipal life has been rendered more richly varied by the eletcion. Beginning as near home as is seemly, the new Mayor of Buffalo, Frank X. Schwab, is a brewer, who "featured" h'is campaign with a promise that he would go to Washington in person and fight for modification of the Volstead Act permitting beer. As a preliminary to that expedition he promised to abolish the present Dry Squad of the Police Department which has measurably enforced the law. A last moment incursion by Wiliam H. Anderson in behalf of the Anti-Saloon League is held to have been the decisive factor in Mr. Schwab's success, "down-State" inteference being resented.

In Cleveland Fred Kohler is known to fame as the former Chief of the Police Department, who was dismissed from his post by the Civil Service Commission on charges of conduct unbecoming to an officer. The charge was filed "by former Mayor Newton D Baker." Far from explaining his past, Mr. Kohler did not make a single speech throughout his campaign, relying on his personal popularity and a house-to-house canvass. n Ithe face of the utmost effort at suppression, however, it has leaked out that he is a friend of the people.

Indiana has a truly notable addition to the lengthening list of Who's Hoosiers. Lew (Samuel L.) Shank was elected Mayor of Indianapolis by a majority of some 20,000, the largest ever given in the city. He began life as a clog dancer, and has returned to the vaudeville stage at intervals ever since. He is also known as an auctioneer and as a farmer. His nomination found him in the rustic guise. He said:

"I've got 350 chickens, all with the gapes, doggone 'em; about twenty-five pigs, nearly all of them with the cholera; half a dozen calves—the rest died because I gave them too much skimmed milk; four goats, one billy and three nannies. Believe me, a farmer earns his money!

With this evidence as to his fitness for civic life, he entered the campaign resolutely but without illusions. "I know that I will not receive the support of a single newspaper in Indianapolis. I know they will all jump on me." They did. Busines smen and the self-righteous of all kinds fought Mr. Shank to "the last ditch, regardless of political affiliations." But his fame as a farmer-laborer carried him through—that and sweet memories of his political past. For when a candidate once before he sent a carload of watermelons into the San Juan Hill District of the Athens of the Middle West.

It is, however, the advancing city of Youngstown, Ohio, that bears the palm for the popular recognition of leadership. About three months ago Mr. G. L. Oles came in from the country unknown to fame and established his headquarters at a hotel. His campaign centred in a demand that the street car service be discontinued and a system of buses installed. Those buses alone would probably have elected him, but he promised also to dismiss the entire police force if it did not mend its ways, and, moreover, to permit "spooning" in the city parks under protection of the law. Thus Mayor-elect Oles ran far ahead of the candidates of both Republican and Democratic organizations.

Bilious critics contend that democracy tends inevitably to a drab uniformity. How wrong they are may be seen by any candid observer who will look abroad in the land at the result of municipal elections.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The disarmament conference has started out by disarming the pessimists.

Wonder if the politicians could be persuaded to adopt a similar programme and scrap a lot of their campaign speeches.

Usually, however, the only thing a lot of them scrap is their list of pre-election promises.

Now that Peterborough's water is fit to drink the price has dropped.

Even in the midst of the Federal campaign aspirants for municipal honours are beginning to smell the powder. Their turn to bask in the limelight will soon be here.

One good feature about a political campaign is that it puts a lot of places on the map for a few weeks at least.

Those Carleton folks must have thought Sir Henry Drayton had dropped in to do a little income tax collecting.

REAL WAGES.

The real need is to remember that not the number of pounds paid in wages, but the comfort which pounds will buy is the important fact for Labour; and that wages would buy more if all put their backs into work. Cheap goods mean large consumption, and large consumption means more jobs for the worker. It is impossible in the long run for any industry to pay higher wages than are earned.—London Daily Mail.

ARMISTICE DAY IN LAKEFIEED out into No Man's Land and take observations. A young officer, Col. McCrae, was very anxious to accompany him, and one morning he did, and as they stood on a hill top as day was breaking, they looked back where many white crosses, "row on row," stood, increased very greatly in the previous week as those were the dark days, and the slaughter was terrible. As they stood a lark flew out of a hedge near and flew heavenward, singing its joyous song. That night Col. McCrae handed this poem to General Morrison: it was written on brown wrapping paper. General Morrison still is in possession of that precious manuscript. Not many days afterward Col. McCrae, too, laid down his life that the dear old flag and all that it stands for might live.

A Miracle.

These lads, going out to face the foe, held their heads high, for they were killing—thank God, they were willing to go. It was a miracle of miracles that the best trained army in the world was turned back by our boys with practically no training.

Courcelette, the Somme, Vimy and Ypres are names to conjure with in Canada, our boys took, but never went back; what they won they held; they covered Canada with glory.

We do well to honor these men, and though for those who are left, life can never be the same, we need not worry about our boys — all is well with them.

Capt. John A. Dewart was the next speaker. Three years ago, at 11 o'clock, he was in London, and there the demonstration was unparalleled. The pent up emotion of years broke forth spontaneously and instantaneously, and as one man, the great throngs turned to the man who had shared their anxiety, their sorrows and troubles all these hard days—His Majesty King George. The crowd surged to Buckingham Palace, and there peer and peasant, subject and King rejoiced together; men were there from all parts of the Empire, linking up the outposts with the Motherland.

Canada held the maple leaf on high, and Canadians stood shoulder to shoulder with the regiments of the British army which have centuries of tradition behind them.

Our Canadian nurses were splendid, self-denying, and sacrificing even life itself, in the cause of duty.

Women Did Their Part.

They men and women at home did their part in providing the sinews of war, and so with the men at the front the co-operation was wonderful. There are 60,000 Canadians lying over them—spots forever Canada. They lie beneath the lilies of France and the poppies of Belgium, and we honor them, for they gave their lives as did the Saviour of Mankind, for the cause of humanity.

Mr. W. H. Casement recalled those early days of August, 1914, when the war clouds burst over our land. He recalled handing Dr. M. P. Kennedy a telegram asking him to report at Kingston. He left the same day, and later in the week, Grahame, McHeard and McDonald went. The Government called for 20,000 volunteers, and they got 40,000. Thirty-three thousand men were trained and made ready for service in seven weeks, and it was these men who saved Calais on the fields of Langemarcke. It is indeed fitting to pay them tribute. In May, 1916, Lakefield's quota for the 93rd, reinforced by the men from Apsley and Chemong, marched out en route for Barriefield, before leaving for the front. This tablet will be erected in the Council Chamber that we may never forget what we owe to the men who gave their lives that we might have a free world.

Mr. G. A. Brethen deemed it a privilege to be present on this day. We should crown as a king every man whose name appears on that tablet. Like Judge Huycke, we should be proud that they were willing to go. Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend.

Mr. Sexsmith Spoke.

Mr. J. A. Sexsmith was the last speaker. He did not expect to make a speech, but he was pleased to be present to pay respect to Lakefield's noble dead. He saw thousands go and he saw the remnants return, and admires the splendid unselfish spirit that inspired the men to lay down their lives for liberty. Like Col. Johnson, he contended that the unrest of the present day was not caused by the returned soldiers but by the stay at homes. We should all learn that it is our duty to live as citizens and show the same unselfish spirit which our soldiers showed.

The singing of the National Anthem closed the proceedings.

There were two men present of the original Princess Pat's—that historic regiment that had the honor of being the first to carry the Maple Leaf into France and Flanders—Capt. C. W. Finnemore, who occupied a place on the platform, and Sergt. C. C. Stenner, who was in charge of the guard of honor.

The three candidate for East Peterborough in the coming election were amicably seated side by side on the platform.

Besides the speakers and Capt. Finnemore, Comrade J. J. McFadden, president of the local branch of the G.W.V.A., and Mr. O. A. Langley, County Police Magistrate, occupied seats on the platform. Lieut. O'Leary sent a telegram regretting that he was unable to attend.

The tablet is a very handsome bronze one, with raised lettering.

BOARD OF COMMERCE WAS HAMSTRUNG SAYS MURDOCK

confronting the dear kindly old gentleman with our presence."

It was made plain that there must be nothing doing in the way of embarrassing the business interests of the country. "We were given a new commandment that was set up in Canada and adopted by the Conservative party as their slogan."

A New Commandment.

The commandment given the Board of Commerce, Mr. Murdock announced as follows:

"Thou shalt not prevent our friends from preying on their fellow men; nor shalt thou prohibit them from exploiting a nation's distress."

"When the Minister of Justice was telling us what we should do, and what not, I listened for an hour and a quarter, and then rapped on the table. I told him, 'You're not talking to me at all. I decline to be a party to making a farce of that law. I shall insist that this law means what it says, and it is my duty to see that the law does what it is intended to do. So I left with my colleagues to try to do what we thought should be done. But there was nothing doing.

Necessity was Great.

We found the greatest necessity for that law in 1919 and 1920. I assume that you paid your taxes in those years. I am here to say that you paid the amount of your taxes a couple of times over to the special and protected interests in profits that were exploited out of you, and that the profiteers did it with a tacit understanding with members of the Cabinet governing Canada at that time.

The sugar prices at that time were largely the result of the most gigantic gambling the American continent ever saw.

Repeats this Charge.

Mr. E. W. Nesbitt, the Conservative candidate in North Oxford, said a week ago to-night that the Board of Commerce didn't earn its salt. He is absolutely right. We didn't do what we wanted to do. Mr. Nesbitt could also have said that a member of his family was the most gigantic gambler in Canada at that time. He took $15,000,000 and went to Cuba, bought raw sugar and stored it. He sold some at double what he paid for it without bringing it into the country. Some records show profits of more than 200 per cent.

Mr. Murdock said the impression was created at the time that there was a great shortage of sugar and other products which the profiteers were holding up. Profits of 100 per cent. was taken by the manufacturers of shoes worn by workingmen, and in the building trades the profits ranged from 200 to 500 per cent.

Not all Profiteers.

"It is only fair to say that not all business men were profiteers. Some were working as close to the edge as they could; but somewhere up the line in all these commodities profiteering of the most pronounced kind was going on.

A returned soldier showed me a bill one day in which he was charged 7 or 8 cents more than he should have been for sugar. We found that it had come out of a three car lot on which the price had been increased 16 cents a pound from the time it left the wholesaler until it reached that soldier's table.

And yet we hear members of the Meighen Government telling of their magnanimous consideration of the returned soldiers.

Profits up to 518 Per Cent.

Mr. Murdock recalled the textile manufacturers who told the Board he was not in the textile business for the glory of God.

"We found profits as high as 518 per cent., and yet we were absolutely prevented from doing what the law said should be done.

"I am here to say as a representative of Labour that from my experience it is my conviction that the great majority of the members of the Cabinet never intended that that law should be applied as it was written that they intended it only as a son to pacify the people of Canada, knowing that they had it in their power to see that no hardship came to the special interests."

Reply to Robertson.

Mr. Murdock called attention to a recent speech in Smiths Falls by Senator Gideon Robertson, Minister of Labour.

"Senator Robertson said that the Board of Commerce, increased rather than decreased the cost of living.

"I'll accept his statement as so. And if it is so it must have been as result of the fact that the special and protected interests of Canada and the Cabinet had a mutual understanding that the law was not to be applied, and that the special interests could go as far they liked. If Gideon Robertson says that's a fact I'm willing to accept it."

Mr. Murdock said in parenthesis that members of the Government who had permitted the exploitation of the people were now in the Senate or occupying the most honored position in the gift of the Canadian people, such as the representatives to the Peace Conference.

Government and Labour

Reading the Government's half page election advertisement in the Toronto Telegram of Saturday, November 13th., which proclaimed the great services the Meighen Government had rendered Labour, Mr. Murdock ridiculed "these pretensions." The caption of this latest "ad" was "Champion of Canadian Labour."

"Labour has everything to gain and nothing to lose by returning Arthur Meighen as his reasonable protective tariff stabilizes labour," Mr. Murdock read, and "the Meighen government has done more for Labour in three years than all the other Canadian Governments combined."

The first performance in the list was having invited and paid the expenses of 55 labour delegates to a conference to discuss closer co-operation between capital and labour.

Nothing Resulted.

"I happened to be at that seance" Mr. Murdock proceeded. "It resulted in absolutely nothing for no other reason I charge than that we found a spineless Labour Department that didn't and wouldn't take a set position to guide those who were called to discuss these questions. Nothing was done except talk."

Labour was given representation on the war trades board and the Canada Registration Board was the next accomplishment by the Government in Labour's interests.

"How wonderfully magnanimous" remarked Mr. Murdock scornfully. "I always thought that Labour was a very important section of this country. And Labour was given representation! Surely the Government has nothing to blow their horn about there.

"Took a prominent Labour representative to the Peace Conference', was the next item..

"That appears to be all right. Tom Moore did go", said Mr. Murdock.

Not Permanent Jobs.

"Put into effect the Employment Co-ordination Act by which work was found for 800,000 men and women."

Referring to this Mr. Murdock said: "Did you ever hear the old adage that figures don't lie but liars will figure. Ask the minister of Labour what that item means and he will tell you it represents a day or two days' work for returned soldiers and other looking for a job. But this advertisement tries to make you believe that there was something permanent about the employment, that the government provided jobs for 800,000 people."

"Handout" to Returned Men

"Provided the necessaries of live for every willing worker who could not find employment and assumed responsibility for 12,165 partially disabled and unemployed returned men." Mr. Murdock read.

"Blowing their horn as a Government for the fact that they gave a handout to 12,165 returned men. In heavens' name is that what we promised the soldiers in 1915 and 1916—a handout.

"If the Government had seen to it that the profiteers were held to decent and fair profit and every man in business is entitled to a fair profit; I am here to make the statement that if we had all the excess and unfair profits exploited from the people of Canada in 1919 and 1920 there would be no returned soldier question. There would be money enough to take care of our soldiers for many years to come. That money was gorged out of the people in excess prices on things they needed everyday, and it filled the pockets of the special interests that exploited them."

Most Lukewarm Department

"I don't believe that any of the nations that participated in the war had such a lukewarm Labour department' Not one of those nations but has done more for Labour than is recorded there", said Mr. Murdock tapping the page from the Toronto "Telegram", "and I assume that Meighen and Robertson didn't fail to put on that sheet all their accomplishments.

What Wasn't Done

"The Government through Robertson or others has been ready to condemn any Labour organization that doesn't perform its contracts", Mr. Murdock continued..

"Labour unions have no business violating contracts. But on the other hand what do we find the Government doing? We find the Algoma Steel Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie in November, 1920, agreed to certain standard wages. In two weeks they treated that agreement as a scrap of paper and notified the men of a 17 per cent. cut. The agreement was to have run for a year. The Dominion Iron & Steel Co. and the Nova Scotia Steel Co. played the same game, and the Government took the position that the men were not entitled to the standard comparative wages asked for.

In 1900 and in 1907, under the Liberal government, a fair wage resolution was passed by the House of Commons that Government contractors must pay a fair wage, which was presumed to be the current wage in the place where the work was performed. This was to apply also to all work performed under Government grants. Under the Liberal government workingmen knew what their wages would be by the scale prevailing where they worked.

On the Welland canal this Government paid 13 cents an hour less than the wages of similar occupations in the vicinity. Senator Robertson said the wages were fixed by a Board of Investigation. If that is so I say it was unfair under the law to put a clause on the books and coerce men into shaking the dice box to say whether they would get what the Act said they should get or whether they'd take something lower. They shook the box and lost."

Had Trusted Meighen.

Mr. Murdock said he had at first trusted the Hon. Arthur Meighen because he had prepared the Acts appointing and empowering the Board of Commerce. "But he spent so many months jockeying with Calder and Foster for the Premiership that he got out of touch with us Eleven days before he became Premier he pooh-poohed in the House the possibility of or chance of anyone interfering with the Board of Commerce. In the first place the law conferred powers on the Board and nobody could interfere with the law. When Arthur Meighen made that statement he knew full well that the Board of Commerce was hamstrung and was unable to move hand or foot to do what the law said should be done. Because the law said the Chief Commissioner should fix the time and place for any enquiry by the Commission, but the Chief Commissioner (W. F. O'Connor) was flirting with the enemy. He was being asked by one of the companies we had for investigation to prepare their case so as to beat the Board of which he was the Chief Commissioner.

Regarded Him Traitor.

I told him—"I sent two boys to France and if I heard one of them had gone over to the enemy's lines to help fix his fences I'd expect the boy would be shot as a traitor; and I regard you in the same category because you have been out fixing the enemy's fences."

He resigned and for four months we had no Chief Commissioner There was the cement combine, and the canners' combine to be investigated, but we couldn't do anything. I had a real grouch against the canners because I had heard of cans of gravel being sent in the canned goods to the boys in France. I wanted to know how much water they had in their stock.

We were powerless, yet Meighen and the Minister of Justice says no one could interfere with the Board. If we were out behind a box car you know what I'd say about them, but we have the ladies with us now."

Unity Needed.

Mr. Murdock concluded his address by a striking appeal for a union of all the voters opposed to Meighenism.

"There is no question that the farmers have a right to feel aggrieved as the producers of Canada have been exploited," but that was no reason why the farmers should say they were going to run the country or that Labour should say they would have a government of their own.

"That's what we're trying to get away from," Mr Murdock exclaimed—'class government.' But what we do want is a government big and broad enough for all classes in Canada."

This country needed revenue, its industries and its workers needed protection. The Liberal party had given proof of its genius for bringing prosperity and happiness to Canada and in that party every class and their interests were represented.

Other Speakers.

Reeve Curtis presided and the other speakers were Mr. Dewart and R. R. Hall, of Peterborough

Mr. Dewart lucidly discussed the railway and other problems and exhibited an extensive knowledge of these important questions.

Reeve Curtis amused the audience with the information that De Witt Foster, the man who had sold the government the ancient and spavined horses early in the war was now a purchasing agent for Canada in the United States.

als that the full tonnage of auxiliary surface combatant craft (cruisers, destroyers, etc.) allowed each power shall be limited as follows: United States 450,000 tons, Great Britain 450,000 tons, Japan 270,000 tons.

Submarine tonnage is limited as follows: United States 90,000 tons, Great Britain 90,000 tons, Japan 54,000 tons.

Limitation of naval aircraft is not prescribed.

The powers must bind themselves not to dispose of combatant craft in such a way that they can be used by another power and not to secure additional craft from a foreign source.

As the importance of the Merchant Marine is in inverse ratio to the size of naval armaments, regulations must be provided to govern its conversion features for war purposes, the proposals state.

The proposals are based on four principals:

1—The elimination of all capital ship-building programmes, either actual or projected.

2—Further reduction through the scrapping of certain older ships.

3—That regard should be had to the existing naval strength of the conferring powers.

4—The use of capital ship tonnage as the measurement of strength for navies and a proportionate allowance of auxiliary combatant craft prescribed.

The proposal to scrap capital ships means that the United States must scrap 12 ships now under construction. Great Britain to scrap the four Hoods now under construction, and Japan to abandon her proposed programme of construction.

EPWORTH LEAGUE HELD CONVENTION

DELEGATES REPRESENTED PETERBOROUGH DISTRICT--OFFICERS ELECTED,

LAKEFIELD, November 12. — The annual Epworth League convention of Peterborough District was held in the Methodist Church yesterday afternoon and evening.

A large attendance of earnest, attentive listeners, encouraging reports, and inspiring addresses characterised the entire convention.

At the afternoon session Rev. Jas. Beckel, of Bethany, presided, and conducted devotional exercises.

There are fifteen Epworth Leagues in the District, and of these the following gave three-minute reports—George Street, Trinity, Mark Street and St. James', of Peterborough, Millbrook Senior and Junior, Lakefield, Bridgenorth, Bethel, Bethany, and Ebenezer. All the reports indicated a deep interest in the members and a serious conception of their duty as Christians. The address of Dr. Lorne Pierce, of the Methodist Book Room, Toronto, on "Evangelism in the Epworth League," was described by a listener as so full of good things that to attempt to condense it for reportorial purposes would be to do it inexcuable injutice, therefore we must not err in this regard.

Address in Costume.

After music and the offering, what was designated on the programme "a costumed missionary address" was given by Rev. Kenneth J. Beaton, who is home on furlough from China. Mr. Beaton, robed in costume, representing the following classes: Chinese gentleman, ordinary citizen or working man, mourner, priest, and head priest, all of whom, when actually seen and described by Mr. Beaton, were most interesting.

He also had on exhibition a woman's shoe as worn by the victims of foot-binding, a custom of the most cruel sort, which is gradually disappearing as Western ideas and the Gospel of Jesus Christ find their way into the hearts and lives of the people. Images of Buddha and the Goddess of Mercy were also shown. The latter is the patron goddess of the women of China.

Mr. Beaton's address throughout was educative and instructive and received the closest attention.

At 5.30 the Lakefield League served a hot supper to the visiting delegates and friends, and during the interval between supper and the evening session, a round table conference was conducted, and being informal, elicited many helpful ideas and points of mutual interest and encouragement.

Evening Meeting.

The evening meeting was presided over by Rev. A. McLauchlin, of Pontypool, and was opened by the hymn "Come, Thou Almighty King," sung with heartiness and deep reverence, followed by reading of the Scripture and prayer. The choir of the church, under the leadership of Mr. Kenneth Madill, the organist, rendered an anthem, "We Praise Him," in excellent form. This was followed by an address on Ideals, by Dr. Lorne Pierce, and again one felt the utter inadequacy of anything but a verbatim report, but a few of his presentments were gems whose facets glinted and flashed, riveting attention especially upon them, so we may perhaps be pardoned for singling them out for special word: "Glimpses, snatches of thought from a world that is not our own enter our lives. Angel choirs assail our ears, and angelic messages enter our minds leading our thoughts upward with an ecstasy that becomes an entrancing dream. Let it be remembered that we climb as high as we dream; furthermore, all that we have wished or hoped or prayed for will come true and now. Every man has his great ideal enshrined somewhere or other in his heart—a concrete picture of the ideal man with the visible image of the invisible God before his mind's eye."

The choir again sang an anthem suitable to the spirit of the occasion and Rev. Kenneth J. Beaton followed with an address on world conditions at the present time. He painted a picture not a little disquieting regardng universal affairs describing the political dangers in Korea, India, Japan and China and accounted for all as due to the lack of Christianity, giving examples of the influence of Christian homes and public schools in awakening a desire for purer living and more enlightened thinking. Mr. Beeton, like Dr. Pierce is a fluent speaker, full to overflowing of his theme, and earnest to intensity with the seriousness of it all.

Rev. J. E. Beckel, educational secretary, conducted the installation of the now officers and in a unique way impressed upon the audience the force and power for good in the world that would emanate from the consecrated lives of this army of Christian workers.

HEARTBURN
A SEVERE CASE

Many people are troubled with heartburn who really do not realize just what it is.

In cases of this trouble there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by disturbed appetite. It is generally caused by great acidity of the stomach, and whenever too much food is taken, it is liable to ferment and becomes extremely sour, causing heartburn. In such cases vomiting often occurs, and what is thrown up is sour and sometimes bitter.

The way to get rid of heartburn is to keep your liver active by using

MILBURN'S
LAXA-LIVER PILLS

and you will have no heartburn or other liver troubles such as constipation, jaundice, water brash, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, foul breath, etc.

Miss Agnes Cutting, Shallow Lake, Ont., writes:—"I have had heartburn for a long time. There were gnawing and burning pains in my stomach, and then when I vomited there was a sour and bitter taste. I used two vials of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and they have cleared me of my heartburn. I don't think they can be beaten by any other medicine."

stricken and demoralized. You men know what work you have to do. It is obvious that in your organization, these same qualities are essential. Courage must be based on faith in God. We cannot expect to accomplish anything if we have not that faith. Each man should be able to restrain his appetite. If each feels his indulgence in these things will be hurtful to his work or the cause he represents, he must do without. Each must give his life wholly to the leadership of Christ and be able to do the right thing in the right time. Each must have appreciation of his country's foes and God's foes. The Bible must be the guide of our daily living. We must be alert to combat all forces of evil. In community life, in church or political life men of the calibre of Gideon and his men are needed. The biggest need is of men. We need not more Christians, but Christians of better quality; not more lodge members, but better lodge members.

During the service Miss Emma Meiklejohn in every fine voice, rendered a solo, "Stand true to your colours," and the music by the choir was very much appreciated by the large audiece present.

RICHARD HALL & SON LTD

THE BROTHERHOOD SPREADS GOSPEL

SPEAKER DECLARES A GREAT RELIGIOUS REVIVAL IS SWEEPING OVER THE WORLD.

"I tell you there is going on in the world to-day the greatest revival of religion since the days of Pentecost." William Ward, president of the World Brotherhood Federation, uttered these inspiring words in Trinity Methodist Church last night to a large congregation in the course of an address on the progress of federation work that was hopeful and full of optimism in regard to the spreading of the Gospel. Mr. Ward has just returned from Europe, and he brought the message that religion is making itself felt in Belgium for the first time, and in Czecho-Slovakia there have been since the close of the war 1,000,000 converts.

"There is nothing more miraculous in the Acts of the Apostles than what is taking place in the world to-day," he said. He related the simple beginning of the Brotherhood work and the great achievements made in a few years. He dwelt especially on his experiences in the new state of Czecho-Slovakia, where in Prague the Federation met this year for its third congress. In co-operation with the Methodist Church he said Protestanism has progressed as never before. Churches have been unable to hold the crowds, he said.

As an example of the grasp the Protestant Church has secured upon the people, Mr. Ward related the experience of a friend, a Congregationalist preacher in a small place thirty miles from Prague. When he returned he told a wonderful story. He said that when he arrived at the church it was full. He asked the minister if that was a common thing and the minister replied, "That is nothing. This is the third service we have had to-day."

"The same thing is going on in Korea, and to a lesser degree in England, which is just emerging from the greatest industrial dispute ever known between the miners and the operators. He said the Brotherhood had been so successful in its ministry to the miners, where all other churches failed, that 30 preachers were being sent into Northumberland and Durham to spread the Gospel to the colliers. Mr. Ward also mentioned a plan under consideration to put on a European campaign in which religious literature in every language would be circulated and meetings held throughout the continent.

"And now to-day there is scarcely a country in the world where the Brotherhood flag is not flying. God's holy spirit is at work to-day. 'Your young men shall see visions: your old men dream dreams'."

FORCED TO QUIT WORK, HE STATES

TORONTO MAN TELLS WHY HE HAD TO GIVE UP HIS JOB AND HOW HE OVERCAME HIS TROUBLES.

Characteristic of the statements which have made Tanlac a household word throughout the entire continent is that of James Conlon, a fireman with the Toronto Harbour Improvement, and living at 61 Bartmount Ave., Toronto, Ont.

"I had rheumatism and stomach trouble in a bad form for seven years and never got anything to do me any real good until I began taking Tanlac and that proved to be just what I had been needing all the time. I was in such bad shape I had to give up my job and I began to think my working days were over. My right leg was so swollen and hurt me so bad I couldn't put it to the ground and I couldn't get around at all except by hopping on my right foot. I coudn't bend my back, it hurt me so. I fell off in weight until I was a little more than a shadow and wasn't eating or sleeping to do any good. I had awful headaches, and was told I had high blood pressure.

"Tanlac did even more for me than I hoped for. I am just like a new man now, eating better, sleeping better and working better than in many years. I haven's a trace of rheumatism, am rid of the headaches and my blood pressure has come down. I feel fine all the time. It certainly is wonderful what the right medicine can do for a man."

FRENCH DELEGATION TO DISARM PARLEYS

ARISTIDE BRIAND, premier of France, who heads the French delegation to the Washington Conference on the Limitation of Armaments, is 59 years old. He was once a socialist leader and helped to guide the destinies of France during the most critical periods of the great war. He was born at Nantes, the big industrial city at the mouth of the Loire, and has served, respectively, as Minister of the Interior, Minister of Justice, Minister of Foreign Affairs, President of the Allied Supreme Council, a member of the War Council and four times as premier of France. He has been called "an intellectual colossus" as well as a political dictator and few men have wielded such great influence in French public life.

Briand first became a world figure in the Chamber of Deputies as the author of the law providing for separation of church and state in 1906 and for his victory over syndicalism when, by placing the railroads under military law, he called all the workers to the colors and broke the strike of 1910. He accepted and enforced the principle that "the interests of the whole nation are supreme and must and shall outweigh the interests of any class, section or body."

RENE VIVIANI, former premier, the second member of the French delegation, was also at one time a socialist leader. He has served as Cabinet Minister in several portfolios. He is at present chairman of the League of Nations' Commission to Limit International Armaments.

M. Viviani is no stranger to America. He has visited this country on two occasions, once in 1917 when he came as a member of the French War Mission with General Joffre and again in the spring of 1921 when he was voted the freedom of New York and visited Colonel Roosevelt's grave.

He is 59 years old and was born in Algiers. Educated in Paris, a lawyer, he was elected to parliament in 1893 and served for many years in that body until Clemenceau appointed him a member of his cabinet. He is famous as an orator.

JEAN ANDRIEN ANTONINE JULES JUSSERAND, has represented France as Ambassador in Washington for 18 years and is the dean of the diplomatic corps. He is 66 years old and has been in public life more than 45 years. He was President Wilson's guest on the liner George Washintgon when Mr. Wilson sailed for the Paris peace conference. His wife is an American; her maiden name was Elsie Richards.

Ambassador Jusserand entered the French Foreign Office in 1876. He has been Counsellor to the French embassy in London and Minister to Denmark.

He is a Grand Officer of the Legion of Honor and a member of several British and American philosophical, historical and literary bodies. He has written a number of books including "Americans of the Bast and Present."

ALBERT SARRAUT, French senator and Minister for the Colonies, former Minister of Public Instruction, Governor General of Indo-China and deputy for the Department of Aude, is 49 years old. In the Chamber of Deputies in 1906, Mr. Sarraut struck Deputy Pugliesi-Conti during debate on the Dreyfus restoration bill. A duel resulted and Sarraut was dangerously wounded by a sword thrust in the right breast.

He served in the French army in the world war as a second lieutenant and later he was made pre-consul of Indo-China. When officially opening a native fair at Hanci an attempt was made to assassiante him. He was shot and seriously wounded.

M. Sarraut, early in the present year, drafted the plans for French administration of the Cameroons and Togoland in Africa. Recently he toured French possessions in Africa and requesting the Chamber of Deputies to appropriate 250,000,000 francs for irrigation of the French Sudan.

The staff personnel of the French delegation includes:

Chief Military Adviser, Marshal Ferdinand Foch; Chief Naval Adviser, Vice Admiral Grasset, head of the French Naval General Staff; General Secretary to the Foreign Office, General Philippe Berthelot; Maurice Casenave, Director General of French interests in the United States; Major General Baut, Chief of Staff of the French Army.

Count Charles de Chambrun, former Counsellor of the French embassy in Washington; M. Leger, for the past four years First Secretary of Legation and Charge d'Affaires at Peking, China; General Pierre-Henri Desticker, chief-of-staff and aid to Marshal Foch; Admiral Debon; M. Fromageot; M. Kammerer; M. Cheysson; M. Duchesne; M. Girardeau; Captains l'Hospital and Lumoury and Lieutenant de Soudran. In addition there are a score or more of secretaries and clerks.

LITTLE WANT ADS.

At this time of the year, there are any number of things that are badly needed, either by the man or woman.

These things can be done without, but the Summer is going to be not quite so happy without them, and they need not cost you nearly as much as you think, if you only use the Want Ads. to get them.

So many people lose a vast amount of pleasure simply because they have never learned the value of a simple little appeal to the Examiner Want Ad. Column. Don't let this bright month of June go by without satisfying little extra Summer wants through the Want Ads.

And Now Comes Winter and the Home Takes on the Important Task of Being Comfortable and Attractive

WITH one entire floor and part of another devoted to furniture, and the remainder to Rugs, Draperies, Wallpapers and paints, we are prompted to ask, "Is this store not well qualified to supply the furnishing needs of the home?"

THE STOCKS are carefully selected, and always the interest of our patrons is uppermost in our minds.

UPHOLSTERED FURNITURE of the Chesterfield type is prominent in the assortment and we can unhesitatingly state that nowhere in Peterborough is there a more complete and artistic assortment.

PERSONS with Christmas in mind and whose taste and judgment have directed them to consider furniture as a gift have choice of a wide selection of odd pieces, as chairs, library tables, desks, jardiniere stands, smoking stands, dressing tables, kitchen cabinets, etc.

THERE are also luxurious walnut and oak dining-room suits that truly interpret the dignity and grace of bygone periods, and makes, as Queen Anne, William and Mary and those noted makers and designers, the brothers Adam.

THERE is good choosing, too, in bedroom suites and odd pieces that show a due regard for shapeliness and refinement.

BEST OF ALL, THE PRICES ARE EXTREMELY MODERATE

Two Distinctive Blouses
Trimmed with Hand-made Filet

A Blouse is more than a Blouse when touched with Hand-made Lace and when garnished with a genuine French Hand-made Filet, such as this, then it is something to be proud of.

Both are of White Georgette of an extra heavy and good quality. One is in Semi-Jabot effect, edged with Filet, and worked with Eyelet Embroidery. The ¾-sleeves are edged with the Lace.

The other has a Tuxedo collar edged with Filet and ¾-sleevs edged with the same. The front is pleated.

Both are Priced at $16.50.

Two Camisoles
In Distinctive Patterns and Colors

In these times of transparent Blouses, the Camisole is as important as the Blouse itself. Either of these will furnish a pretty background.

Number One can be had in Maize or Flesh coloured Wash Satin, and just where the shoulder straps join to the Camisole proper is a diamond-shaped Motif, outlined with fine Lace, and filled with cross barred Georgette. Priced at $3.85.

Number Two is of Wash Satin, and can be had in White, Pink or Orchid. Hemstitched Georgette top and a garniture of Flowers. Priced at $3.75.

Spencers
To Wear Beneath the Coat

Some knights of old wore a coat of mail beneath their armour to turn aside the piercing spears that penetrate the outer coat. The sensible woman of to-day wears a Spencer beneath her coat to break the onslaughts of Jack Frost.

These we just received were procured after a diligent search. They are closely knit of a fine Wool, have long sleeves, button down the front, have knitted drawstring at the waist, and a V-shaped neck. Obtainable in Pink, Turquoise, Jade, Black, and White. Priced at $2.69.

Christmas Greeting Cards
A Long Counter Filled with Them

Cards of all sorts and sizes, great and small, in a medley of colours, and inscribed with suitable wording. They are truly the most artistic collection we have ever presented to Christmas Shoppers. Dignified ones with neat, embossed lettering and edges. Semi-comic kinds and a series for Children. Some have the word Father or Mother in handsome script lettering on the outside. Priced from 5c to 25c.

THE WEATHER

A little more snow would give fair sleighing. The early snowstorm which came last year on Nov. 17th, gave sleighing until the first week in December, but the snow that fell in November did not entirely disappear. Whether this present mantle of white will go or stay with us is open to doubt. But as I am entitled to a guess, I will venture the prediction it will disappear before real winter sets in.—W. P.

MAKING GEORGE STREET SAFE FOR JAY WALKERS

TRENCH MOUNDS WILL SLOW UP TRAFFIC AND REMOVE DANGER FROM SPEEDERS

Digging trenches in the pavement on George Street may not meet with general approval, bu it at least has the merit of providing some work for a few men. Then there is another advantage to the pedestrian public that may not be fully appreciated. One of the excavations has already been filled in, leaving a little ridge that should conduce to the lessening of the speed of motor traffic at that point. Opposite hydrants north and south of Hunter Street workmen this morning had dug their way through the pavement, and had thrown up mounds of earth, some of which will inevitably bulge above the surface level after the earth has been thrown in again. By this process the street is being gratuitously equipped with safety devices, for these corrugations do not invite speeding. Apart from the work involved in cutting up the pavement and the wages earned in that operation, the public is indebted to whatever department is carrying on these excavations. If enough of these bumps are strewn along the street, there will be no infractions of the speed laws, and George Street should become a regular paradise for jay-walkers and other saps, without whom the Klaxon and other siren factories would have to close up shop.

ens, of Chicago, to re-organize the Civil Service, asking why the $110,000 paid the Griffenhagens could not have gone to Canadians. Three of the Griffenhagen experts bore the Teutonic names of Heinie, Wieberg and Wolff, and one of them until recently had been a Chicago pickle salesman.

His Fiscal Policy.

Turning to the fiscal policy, the candidate stated that taxation must be evenly balanced and equitably distributed. Business must not be taxed out of existence. The tariff could not be removed cut could be adjusted in order to obtain wider markets. For example, while the farmer was paying $316 for a binder he was receiving only 75 cents a bushed for his wheat and 34 cents a bushel for his oats. This meant that the farmer would buy little, thus affecting all other classes. Agriculture was the basic industry and must receive consideration. The need was a tariff which would provide healthy revenue and adequate protection without giving any industry the opportunity of taking unfair advantage of the tariff.

Defends His Leader.

With regard to the criticism of Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, by J. F. Strickland at the Meighen meeting here November 2, Mr. Gordon declared that Mr. Strickland was supporting a politically dead party. When employed by the Rockefeller Foundation in 1914 to investigate social conditions in the United States Mr. King had many domestic responsibilities. His father was blind, and later died, his mother was an invalid, his brother was in a tuberculosis sanitarium, and on Mr. King fell the duty of supporting the wife and two children of his brother. Mr. Meighen, with no such domestic responsibilities, had not enlisted either, Mr. Gordon stated. Mr. King, he averred, was as good a citizen as Mr. Strickland who had slandered him.

"Mantioba Toryism."

With regard to Premier Meighen, the candidate averred that the Premier had been projected into public life by Hon. Robert Rogers, who had made a fortune by the prostitution of his public office and had been at one time an intimate friend of Rodmond Roblin and his gang, who pillaged the treasury of Manitoba of $1,000,000. It was Manitoba Toryism which was behind the Government at Ottawa and Manitoba Toryism bore the same relation to the penitentiary that a Sunday school bore to a church, "you got into one before the other." This government, Mr. Gordon said, did not represent the Conservative party, which in days gone past had given splendid service to this country. Continuing, he quoted Lloyd Harris, Canadian Trade Commissioner to London, appointed by the Meighen Government, as stating that Canada's export trade was suffering from her present political system and that the Government had less business understanding than a boy.

Cases of Alleged Unfairness.

Turning to the unfairness of the Government, he cited the reduction in the bonus to mail carriers. One hour after the 25 per cent. reduction in the bonus to these men who were paid only $850 a year had been passed, the Premier had moved in the House of Commons to have the salary of the Chief Justice of Canada increased $5,000 a year, to $15,000, of this $10,000 to be exempt from taxation.

As another example he took the investigation into the alleged grafting of $100,000 in the Department of Militia and Defence. While this was in progress Hon. Hugh Guthrie, head of this department, had gone on a pleasure trip to England.

He attacked the concealment of the affairs of the Canadian National Railways and declared that this was what Mr. Meighen really meant when he advocated "protection."

He accused Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, of using a private car every week end to travel from Ottawa to his home in Montreal, in addition to receiving a salary as retired judge and Cabinet minister.

Tariff Taken Advantage Of.

To show how the tariff was being taken advantage of, Mr. Gordon declared that enamel ware was 50 per cent. higher in Canada than in the United States and that as a result all the male members of the Kenp family of Toronto were millionaires.

He accused Canadian sugar companies of forming a combine and keeping the price of sugar in Canada at 25 cents a pound while it was 1 0and 11 cents a pound in the United States. Quoting from the Toronto Mail and Empire of November 2, he gave the following figures on granulated sugar prices:

New York .....$5.20 to $5.34
Canadian Sugar Companies (Toronto) ...$8.34

The Canadian refineries, Mr. Gordon said ,agreed on the same price to a cent. The remedy, he said, was to clip a half cent a pound off the duty on sugar.

Urges Permanent Bonus.

Advocating making the pension bonus for war veterans permanent, Mr. Gordon quoted the case of a local man who before he enlisted was earning $42 to $48 a week as a toolmaker. Ths man had lost his right hand at the front and had been incapacitated for his work. With a wife and two children to support his pension was only $23 a month. What was needed was a pension scale not based on percentage of disability but on a scale of decent living. If a reasonable adjustment of this were not secured, declared Mr. Gordon, he would resign his seat.

Attacks Mr. Burnham.

Turning to the local Conservative candidate, he stated that in Mr. Burnham's ten years in Parliament he had been advocating two things, old age pensions and the abolition of titles. "He as been sitting on those two eggs for ten years and has hatched nothing yet." He characterized Mr. Burnham as "a most successful quitted whenever the party is embarrassed by his policies."

Mr. Gordon paid a tribute to the women voter and stated that they would introduce higher standards of public life and service.

He chaarcterized the Government as being dead, with the hearse waiting at the door. The Cabinet Ministers made "a fine looking bunch of pall-bearers," and while he did not wish to speak unkindly of the dead, this case was an exception.

In conclusion Mr. Gordon made a strong plea for the support of West Peterborough electors who want good government.

9 DEAD IN TENEMENT FIRE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—At least nine persons are believed to have lost their lives in a fire in a tenement house early this morning. Five bodies, all unidentified, were found huddled together near a doorway on the fifth floor of the building, which is situated on West 17th Street, and three more were later recovered from the ruins. One person is unaccounted for.

A test of the new way to beautify teeth

This offer is now made almost the world over. It is published in many languages. Millions of people of many races have thus found a way to fight film on teeth.

All careful people owe themselves this test—all who want teeth whiter, safer, cleaner.

That dingy film

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. Feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Your tooth brush used in old ways leaves much of it intact.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Teeth not clean

Film-coated teeth are unclean. That is why so many teeth brushed daily discolor and decay. Tooth troubles have been constantly increasing, and film is the cause of most of them.

Dental science, therefore, has sought ways to fight the film. Two ways have now been found. Able authorities have proved their efficiency. Now leading dentists everywhere advise their daily use.

The methods are embodied in a modern tooth paste—Pepsodent. And millions of people now enjoy its benefits.

Acts in 5 ways

Pepsodent does more than combat film. It also fights starch deposits on teeth and acids.

It multiplies the salivary flow. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling and may otherwise form acids. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause decay.

Each use brings five effects which modern authorities regard as essential. It is bringing a new dental era.

One week tells

One week will show you what this new method means. It will change all your ideas on teeth cleaning.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Judge then what is best for you and yours by what you see and feel. Cut out the coupon now.

THE ARCHDEACON AT ST. JOHN'S

WARM GREETINGS FROM MANY OLD FRIENDS — CONGRATULATES CONGREGATION ON MARKED PROGRESS.

CHURCH UNION

The visit of Archdeacon J. C. Davidson yesterday morning to St. John's Church, of which he was formerly resident rector for over thirty years, immediately preceding the incumbency of its present vicar, Dr. Blagrave, was marked by the attendance of a large congregation, accompanied with warm greetings from many old friends.

The distinguished visitor prefaced a thoughtful sermon on "the old and the new," with heartfelt congratulations to St. John's congregaion for the wonderful recent improvements to the church's property, and more especially evident in the grand old sacred edifice of which all its members are so fond. Such renovation and additions, he was pleased to see, had been carried through with a spirit of generosity and bigness in keeping with the bigness of achievement characteristic of this age. The Archdeacon also made special reference to the beautiful oak altar and reredos recently presented by Mr. T. H. G. Denne, in memory of his late wife, whom the reverend gentleman feelingly eulogised as a gentle, devoted member of St. John's congregation; he appealed for support in his work for the Forward Movement, which he described as an undertaking of the happiest and most encouraging nature; and he fully appreciated the splendid progress made by this congregation under the exceedingly efficient leadership of Dr. Blagrave, together with his co-operating lay members—a progress which relieved his mind of any anxiety as to the future of St. John's Parish.

Following an earnest plea for a congregational service in the church to the highest degree of unity between chancel and nave, for a service of devotion, and also for a definite, unselfish service for the community in which St. John's has a distinctive part, the Archdeacon briefly touched on the vexed question of church union. While defining no concrete scheme for a consummation of this idea, he honed for some plan of Christian unity by which all should be united as Canadians instead of being divided by churches; a union that agreed on offering to God worship in different words and varied forms, perhaps, but with all living together in loving fellowship.

In conclusion Archdeacon Davidson drew a vivid verbal picture of the dreadful struggle for adequate maintenance of the church to-day in country districts, and he urged that town and city parishes like that of St. John's would use their rich endowments for the greater glory of the whole church and to the advantage of surrounding rural communities.

Last fall I contracted a severe cold, the like I never had, my head and nostrils were so clogged up I could get no vent, and could scarcely get my breath. COLLEGIATE WERE BEATEN SATURDAY BY OSHAWA 9 TO 2

The Peterborough Collegiate, handicapped by the snow covered field, which rendered impossible the running plays that have been so successful, lost their first game of the season at Oshawa Saturday, being beaten 9 to 2. As a result Oshawa can tie up the district by beating Belleville on Saturday, and a sudden death game at Port Hope would be necessary to decide the title. An Oshawa despatch says:

Oshawa, Nov. 13.—In an O.R.F.U. Interscholastic fixture here yesterday afternoon, Oshawa High School surprised Peterborough Collegiate by winning 9 to 2. In the first game in the Electrical City Peterborough were victorious, 17 to 2. They were confident of cinching the championship of the district yesterday, but faithful practise on the part of the local students, together with a knowledge of the visitors' style of play, enabled them to hold them to a low score. The score by quarters was 2-0, 8-2, 8-2 and 9-2. The locals had the edge of the play in the first and last two quarters, but in the second the visitors launched a vigorous attack and made several gains, although they managed to secure only two points.

Oshawa—Flying wing, Jamieson; halves, Hall, Browne Wright; quarter, Bouckley; insides, P. Irwin, Hubbel; middles, N. Irwin, McKay; outsides, Luke, Beath; snap, Moffatt. Subs.: Flintoff, Miller, Wilson, Saunders, Mitchell.

ELECTION NEWS

AT UNION CREEK

Mr. J. H. Burnham opened his campaign at Union Creek Schoolhouse, Galway, on Friday, with a large number in attendance. The candidate said that the issues before the people intimately concerned their welfare His opponent was a man of prominence a good lawyer and a good fellow but he had no policy and did not apparently know anybody who had or at least which he approved of. This the speaker said made it awkward both for the electors and for the speaker and if all hands knew as little of what to do or propose to do as Mr. Gordon said he did, it might be as well for the election to be given up as a bad job. Mr. W. J. Deadman was in the chair. The meeting closed with cheers for the King and the candidate. Mr. Burnham said that the roads were bad and it took him a long time to make the trip.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.— (Canadian Press.)—Shares of companies whose operations may suffer curtailment should the disarmament proposals of the United States Government be carried out, were moderately heavy at the opening of to-day's stock market. Bethlehem Steel fell 1 1-2 points, Crucible Steel 1 1-4 and United States Steel 1-2 points. Otherwise the market was fairly strong, especially for Oils and Equipments. Standard Oil of New Jersey added 3 1-2 points to last week's steady advance and most of the other Oils, domestic and foreign, Mexican Petroleum excepted, were higher by fractions to one point. Prices developed irregularly later, however, as pressure against Steels and Oils became more general.

During the early reversal, in which trading was active, Standard Oil of New Jersey reacted 4 points, and declines among steels and equipments were extended. Some of the transcontinental and coal shares forfeited one point each. The list rallied before noon however, a recovery accompanying the fall in call money from 5 1-2 to 5 per cent. Mex. Petroleum and other oils scored two point gains, specialties comprising the chemical, drug, shipping and textile groups, were strong; notably United Drug, American Linseed, Preferred, Atlantic Gulf, common and preferred, Amer. International and American Woollen, these falling one to almost four points.

TORONTO.

TORONT, November 14 (Canadian Press). — A fifteen point advance in Maple Leaf Common provided most of the thrills on the local Stock Exchange this morning. Opening 3-4 higher at 110, quotations on Maple Leaf jumped 9 points, with sales at 119, followed by another jump to 125 on total transactions of 155 shares. Brazilian on lights ales was off 3-4, with sales on the close at 25. In the bond department fair activity prevailed with prices on the upward trend, with 1937's selling as high as 100.75.

EXCHANGE

NEWYORK, November 14. —Sterling exchange firm. Great Britain, 3.95 3-4; Canadian dollars 8 7-8 p.c. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Nov. 14. Canadian Press. — Opening wheat quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to 3-4c lower, with December 108 1-2 to 108 3-4, and May 1.12 5-8 to 1.13 1-4, were followed by material gains all around.

Scantiness of rural offerings to arrive had a bullish effect on corn. After opening unchanged to 1-4 to 3-8c higher, May 53 to 53 1-4, the market sagged a little, but then scored substantial gains. Oats hardened with other grains, starting a shade off to 1-8 up; May 37 5-8, and then becoming firmer.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, November 14. Canadian Press. — A tendency toward weakness was evident on the local stock exchange during the first half hour this morning. Abitibi, however, was farctionally stronger at 32 7-8, but Atlantic Sugar was down 1-2 a point at 31 3-4. Brazilian was unchanged at 25 3-4. Brompton was weaker by 1-4 point at 26 1-2, as was also Laurentide at 80 and Riordon at 5 3-4.

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Backachy or have Bladder trouble.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatims, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious

Dear Mrs. Latimer — The members of Our Ladies Aid, knowing you have severed your connection with us, wished to spend another social evening with you before your departure from our midst.

DO ALL MY HOUSE WORK

Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could hardly get about.

Cobourg, Ont.—"For many years I have had trouble with my nerves and have been in a general run down condition for some time. I could not do my work half of the time because of the trouble with my monthly sickness. I was told of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by friends and advised to try it. It has done me good, and I strongly recommend it. Since I have taken it I have been able to do all my own work, and I also know friends who have found it good. You can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. ELLEN FLATTERS, Box 761, Cobourg, Ont.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

NELL SHIPMAN IN NEW OUTDOOR PRODUCTION WILL OPEN HERE TO-DAY.

Starting to-day, the Capitol Theatre will offer the greatest picture of the year in Nell Shipman in "The Girl from God's Country."

Movie fans will remember Miss Shipman for her splendid work in "Back to God's Country." She again uses Brownie, the Nell Shipman bear, and her own pack of malamute dogs in new situations in the Canadian North Woods. "The Girl from God's Country" is said to be Miss Shipman's best picture, and her portrayal of a dual role provides the real dramatic treat of the year on the screen.

Miss Shipman is also author and director of "The Girl from God's Country," and critics who have already reviewed this picture have been warm in their praise of her work in this production.

An all-star cast supports Miss Shipman. Such screen celebrities as Boyd Irwin, Edward Burns, Al W. Filson, George Berrell, Walt Whitman, C. K. Van Auker, Lillian Leighton, L. M. Wells and Milla Davenport are seen in roles suitable to their talents.

"The Girl from God's Country" is released by the F. B. Warren Corporation.

The entire balance of the big show offered is one of the very best seen at this theatre in a long time, and includes a brand new Mack Sennett comedy, a Rolin Comedy, the newest episode of the Yellow Arm, Topics of the Day, Pathe News, etc. Just the usual prices.—Fan-Fan.

AT THE REGENT.

LOUISE LOVELY IN A NEW UNDERWORLD ROLE.

With a powerful drama of New York's underworld as her third starring vehicle under the William Fox banner, Louise Lovely, the talented little emotional actress, comes to the Regent Theatre to-day in "While the Devil Laughs," a story telling the regeneration of a girl caught in a web of circumstance that made her a thief, although her soul cried out for all the good that is the heritage of every woman.

Some human sheep follow the spirit of evil down a dark, treacherous path, while others go on in the footsteps of the Good Shepherd. Each year some portion of the human herd is destined to the prisons, while others mount to the heights of happiness. This is the foundation of "While the Devil Laughs."

Miss Lovely portrays the role of a girl crushed by the environment of a helpless family which she has to mother, and is driven to crime in order to provide for those she loves. How she rises from her environment; how she wins although all the forces of evil are against her; how she comes usp from the depths through love and faith, is told in a story of suspense and heart throbs that is said to hold interest until the final scene.

The story is by George William Hill, who also wrote the scenario and directed the picture. Surrounding Miss Lovely is a company of capable players, in which William Scott is the leading man.

Scene From "The Girl from God's Country". At the Capitol, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

JIGGS, MAGGIE AND KITTIE IN BRINGING UP FATHER IN WALL STREET, AT THE GRAND, MAINEE AND NIGHT, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17TH.

AT THE GRAND.

REX STOCK COMPANY.

To-night at the Grand Theatre, the Rex Stock Company presents one of the cleverest comedies of the season. Miss Henrietta Hobbs is a new woman, not that she possesses any physical attributes other than those common to the average female, but she frowns on the flippant, flirtatious members of her sex, gives much sage advice to a couple on the vereg of breaking up their home, and advises the temperamental wife in the case never to be bothered again with that nuisance she calls "husband." Henrietta inspires holy and wholesome respect among all her acquaintances, but a strange man who is not impressed by her theories but only sees in her a charming girl—well I won't say just what happens, but I find it very hard to imagine charming Miss Zana Vaughn as a masculine, domineering, aggressive woman. No doubt the play will solve our wonderment and whatever our imagiantion presents we'll know after to-night's performance. "What Every Wants." Rex will be seen as Mr. Wolff Kingsearl, Miss Vaughn as Henrietta Hobbs, Percival Kingsearl is played by Billy Seymour, Beulah, his wife, by Miss Van Esse, George Jessup, in love with Miss Fairy by Wm Mitchell, and Doctor Cole is a dear, peace making old uncle. Miss Hazel Williams is Miss Fairy, and who does not anticipate seeing Billy Yule as a valet.

LAURA.

"BRINGING UP FATHER."

Fresh from its conquering triumphs at the Manhattan Opera House New York, and the Metropolitan Opera House, Philadelphia, "Bringing Up Father in Wall Street" has arrived in town. According to all accounts this is the best offering of the series thus far and no doubt will enhance the popularity of these ever-mirthful George McManus cartoon creations to a notch of success never heretofore obtained. The new attraction, divided into two acts and five scenes interpolated with tuneful, rollicking, infectious and earhaunting melodies, will hold the boards at the Grand Theatre next Thursday, Nov. 17th, matinee and night. This time poor old Jiggs Mahoney, still pursued and harassed by Maggie, his better half, dabbles in Wall street, where he meets with numerous humorous and side-splitting adventures aided and abetted by the ubiquitous Dinty and the other famous and beloved characters. The company is a large and capable one and an engagement of unalloyed, unstinted and unmitigated hilarity, screams, laughter and joy eternal should be the unusual order of things.

AT THE ALLEN.

SOMETHING NEW IN PICTURES IN "A VIRGIN PARADISE"

"A Virgin Paradise," the sensational and spectacular William Fox special which made a tremendous impression while running on Broadway, New York, will come to the Allen Theatre to-day for a three-days' run. The story, dealing with life in a South Sea Island jungle and with civilized hypocrisy, was written by Hiram Percy Maxim, the famous inventor, especially to provide material for a William Fox super-special.

The scenes include the destruction of a tropic island by a volcanic eruption, with the death of the entire population except two persons, and the burning of a palatial country place on Long Island, New York.

The survivors on the island are the infant daughter of a missionary, Gratia Latham, and her native nurse. The nurse dies while Gratia is still a child, and she lives on with only lions, apes and other wild animals as her companions.

The death of an uncle in New York leaves Gratia heir to $10,000,000, and then relatives charter a ship and go in search of her. She is taken to the Long Island home, where she finds it difficult to adapt her half savage nature to the requirements of her radically altered condition in life. Least of all can she submit tamely to the purpose of a young man of the family to marry her for her millions. Her way of resenting his unwelcome attentions is worthy of her upbringing as the associate and companion of wild beasts.

The role of Gratia is played by Pearl White, famous for her dash and daring on the screen.

TRICK ELEVATOR IS BASIS OF MANY LAUGHS IN "HOLY SMOKE."

With the exception of an automobile that belongs distinctly to the flivver type, there is little to suggest modern methods in "Holy Smoke!" latest of the two-reel Mermaid Comedies, which comes to the Allen Theatre for 3 days to-day. In fact, it is a splendid burlesque on the old time melodrama, where the villains were after the "poipers" and the beautiful daughter was about to be married off to the city crook.

But it is the elevator in the country hotel that reaches the height of humor. It is worked by a system of weights and it is said to supply a series of entirely new situations. When the fat youth, who is the official lifter on the apparatus that is run on the see-saw system gets off the job there are complications that are said to be able to bring a scream of mirth from a dyspeptic.

Jack White, who supervises the makings of Mermaids, has long been known the most successful of animal directors — for it was he who made the first lion comedy—introduces something new in the way of fun with a mule.

"THE WINNIPEG KIDDIES."

There is a subtle fascination in an entertainment staged—entirely by clever children — children who though finished in histrionic art, still retain the naiveness and freshness of childhood. Such is the offering of the Winnipeg Kiddies who will return to the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday, November 18 and 19, in their best and most lavish production. They scored a hit in their former appearance here and with their new and bigger revue should create a sensation. This is an all-Canadian company that has an enviable reputation.

It is doubtful if anything can so stir the heart strings of the public as a real entertainment presented by clever children. With a new revue, crammed with comedy and melody, and with the original cast augmented by new stars, the Kiddies should play to crowded houses.

Did you ever see a baby vamp? Not the flapper kind, but less than ten years old? You see one—several of them—but one in particular will catch your fancy when the Winnipeg Kiddies bring their new and uproariously funny revue to the Grand on Friday and Saturday, November 17th and 18, and you will get one of the bigest surprises of your life. One of these vamps is only eight years old, and Jackie Finesilver falls for 'her' in great style, but he, alas, gets a shock.

Canadians have just cause to be proud of the Winnipeg Kiddies for there is no juvenile road show in the world that can compare with them. They are as popular in the U. S. as in Canada; and Canadians who have seen them before will be doubly proud of them when they see their brand new and elaborate offerings, which is by far the best they have ever produced.

One of the benefits derived by stage training for children is the quickness of mind that it imparts. A little while ago Jackie Finesilver, the Tom Thumb comedian, was delivering an "oration" when all the theatre lights went out. here was a sudden and dramatic pause. But Jackie was master of the situation, and in mock indignation, cried out, "Say, Mr. Manager, why don't you pay your light bills?"

OLD COUNTRY FOOTBALL.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—(By Canadian Press Cable.) — For the first time this season the weather seriously interfered Saturday with the football progress in the old country. The fog, which was confined to the Midlands, caused the abandonment of the amateur international fixture between the Anglo-Irish and Leicester clubs, and Notts Forest vs. Notts County, while the Coventry City-Derby County match was called off when the game was twenty minutes old.

Elsewhere the frost put a stop to several rugby fixtures.

As usual, the London Clubs supplied the surprises of the day, on this occasion with the credit to themselves. A crowd of 30,000 watched arsenal's business-like performance against Birmingham, whom they beat five to two, although Birmingham was handicapped by the retirement of Barton with an injured thigh.

Chelsea, who defeated Sheffield United, and Tottenham Hotspurs against Newcastle United, achieved the distinction of being the only teams in the first league who registered victories away from home. The Chelsea-Sheffield match was marked by some unpleasantness, the referee being obliged to speak to Smith and Gillespie, as a result of which the crowd behind Chelsea's goal indulged in incessant booing.

Everton achieved their fifth successive draw of the season so far, this time with Liverpool as their opponents. This match was featured by the appearance for the first time in League football of Irvine, the Irish internationalist, on the Everton line-up.

Blackburn, with a re-organized team, including McKay, newly acquired from Glasgow Celtics, overcame the stubborn defence of Huddersfield, thus administering to their visiting opponents the first defeat they have suffered since September.

In the second division Stoke's defeat by Hull City, on the latter's was considered extraordinarily severe, taking into consideration the fact that they have lost only ten goals in their previous thirteen matches.

Richardson was responsible for Plymouth's one to nothing victory over Swindon, netting the only score of the match a few minutes after play started, following a most brilliant combination by Plymouth's forward.

Results in the Scottish League provided two unlooked-for events in the failure of the Rangers to defeat Dumbarton and Celtics' loss to Kilmarnock.

In a northern union rugby fixture, Rochdale vs. Australasians, at the grounds of the former, three of the Australasian players were ordered off the field.

YALE BEAT PRINCETON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.— (Canadian Press.)—The smashing, plunging, highly-trained Yale eleven that defeated Princeton 13 to 7, at New Haven Saturday, is ranked, because of that victory, as too strong for the Harvard team, which will meet Yale next Saturday in the last of the season's Big Three games. Princeton has won from Harvard and lost to Yale. Should Harvard win next week, which football experts think unlikely, there would be created the unique situation of a triple tie for the so-called Big Three championship.

NEW YORK, November 14. Canadian Press. — Peter Herman, New Orleans' former world's bantamweight boxing champion, received the judges' decision over Roy Moore of St. Paul, in a 15-round bout Saturday night. It was Herman's first appearance in the ring since he lost his title to Johnny Buff last September.

Herman held a safe lead in every round but the eighth in which Moore had a shade the better, and the 9th which was even. The former champion's in-fighting was effective, with Moore taking severe punishment from fast right and left hand body blows.

"BULL-DOG DRUMMOND"

BY "SAPPER" (CYRIL McNEILE)

"May I drop you anywhere?" he asked, as they stood on the pavement, but she shook her head.

"No, thank you. I'll go in that taxi." She gave the man an address, and stepped in, while Hugh stood bareheaded by the door.

"Don't forget,' he said earnestly. "Any time of the day or night. And while I think of it—we're old friends. Can that be done? In case I come and stay, you see.'

She thought for a moment and then nodded her head. "All right,' she answered. 'We've met a lot in London during the war.'

With a grinding of gear wheels the taxi drove off, leaving Hugh with a vivid picture imprinted on his mind of blue eyes, and white teeth, and a skin like the bloom of a sun-kissed peach.

For a moment or two he stood staring after it, and then he walked across to his own car. With his mind still full of the interview he drove slowly along Piccadilly, while every now and then he smiled grimly to himself. Was the whole thing an elaborate hoax? Was the girl even now chuckling to herself at his gullibility? If so, the game had only just begun, and he had no objection to a few more rounds with such an opponent. A mere tea at the Carlton could hardly be the full extent of the jest. . . . And somehow deep down in his mind, he wondered whether it was a joke—whether, by some freak of fate, he had stumbled on one of those strange mysteries which up to date he had regarded as existing only in the realms of shilling shockers.

He turned into his rooms, and stood in front of the mantelpiece taking off his gloves. It was as he was about to lay them down on the table than an envelope caught his eye, addressed to him in an unknown handwriting. Mechanically he picked it up and opened it. Inside was a single half-sheet of notepaper, on which a few lines had been written in a small, neat hand.

"There are more things in Heaven and Earth, young man, than a capability for eating steak and onions, and a desire for adventure. I imagine that you possess both: and they are useful assets in the second locality mentioned by the poet. In Heaven, however, one never knows—especially with regard to the onions. Be careful.'

Drummond stood motionless for a moment, with narrowed eyes. Then he leaned forward and pressed the bell.

"Who brought this note, James?" he said quietly, as his servant came into the room.

"A small boy, sir. Said I was to be sure and see you got it most particular." He unlocked a cupboard near the window and produced a tantalus. "Whisky, sir, or cocktail?"

"Whisky, I think, James." Hugh carefully folded the sheet of paper and placed it in his pocket. And his face as he took the drink from his man would have left no doubt in an onlooker's mind as to why, in the past, he had earned the name of "Bull-dog" Drummond.

CHAPTER II

In Which he Journeys to Godalming and the Game Begins

I

"I A MOST think, James, that I could toy with another kidney," Drummond looked across the table at his servant, who was carefully arranging two or three dozen letters in groups. "Do you think it will cause a complete breakdown in the culinary arrangements? I've got a journey in front of me to-day, and I require a large breakfast.'

James Denny supplied the deficien from a dish that was standing on an electric heater.

"Are you going for long, sir?' he ventured.

"I don't know, James. It all depends on circumstances. Which, when you come to think of it, is undoubtedly one of the most fatuous phrases in the English language. Is there anything in the world that doesn't depend on circumstances?"

"Will you be motoring, sir, or going by train?" asked James prosaically. Dialectical arguments did not appeal to him.

"By car," answered Drummond. "Pyjamas and a tooth-brush."

"You won't take evening clothes, sir?"

"No. I want my visit to appear unpremeditated, James, and if one goes about completely encased in boiled shirts, while pretending to be merely out for the afternoon, people have doubts as to one's intellect."

James digested this great thought in silence.

"Will you be going far, sir?" he asked at length, pouring out a second cup of coffee.

"To Godalming. A charming spot, I believe, though I've never been there. Charming inhabitants, too, James. The lady I met yesterday at the Carlton lives at Godalming."

"Indeed, sir," murmured James noncommittally.

"You damned old humbug," laughed Drummond, "you know you're itching to know all about it. I had a very long and interesting talk with her, and one of two things emerges quite clearly from our conversation. Either, James, I am a congenital idiot, and don't know enough to come in out of the rain; or we've hit the goods. That is what I propose to find out by my little excursion. Either our legs, my friend, are being pulled till they will never resume their normal shape; or that advertisement has succeeded beyond our wildest dreams."

"There are a lot more answers in this morning, sir." Denny made a movement towards the letters he had been sorting. "One from a lovely widow with two children."

"Lovely," cried Drummond. "How forward of her!" He glanced at the letter and smiled. "Care, James, and accuracy are essential in a secretary. The misguided woman calls herself lonely, not lovely. She will remain so, as far as I am concerned, until the other matter is settled."

"Will it take long, sir, do you think?"

"To get it settled?" Drummond lit a cigarette and leaned back in his chair. "Listen, James, and I will outline the case. The maiden lives at a house called The Larches, near Godalming, with her papa. Not far away is another house called The Elms, owned by a gentleman of the name of Henry Lakington—a nasty man, James, with a nasty face—who was also at the Carlton yesterday afternoon for a short time. And so we come to the point. Miss Benton—that is the lady's name—accuses Mr. Lakington of being the complete IT in the criminal line. She went even so far as to say that he was the second most dangerous man in England."

"Indeed, sir. More coffee, sir?"

500 WORKLESS IN PETERBORO; HE ESTIMATES

SUPERINTENDENT OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYMENT BUREAU, SAYS EXTENSIVE ACTIVITY IS CONFINED TO TEXTILE INDUSTRY.

CONSTRUCTION GIVES WORK, ALSO LUMBERING

That there at at least 500 unemployed in the city is the opinion of Mr. Hugh Robertson, superintendent of the local Ontario Government Employment Bureau. New applicants for work would number about a dozen a day, he said. Form er applicants and new ones would total about 30 a day.

Summing up trade conditions, Mr. Robertson finds the textile and building industries about the busiest with the iron trade the least so. The moulders have been hit very hard by the depression of the iron trade and some have not worked for a year. Just what little work there has been in this trade is emphasized by the fact that moulders are applying for work from the city. A great many machinists and toolmakers are also workless although some of these have been fortunate in getting a measure of work in garages.

Activity in Textile.

General activity in the textile trade is noticeable throughout he province he said. Hundreds of applications for spinners, weavers, dyers and allied. trades have been received and manufacturers have asked for machine operators and fur finishers and dressers in larger numbers than it seems possible to fill. One hundred machine operators are wanted in Guelph, the wages of 18 and 20 cents an hour being offered.

Local textile mills are busy working on orders for fine goods formerly imported and the mills are operating overtime in some cases. While their staffs are filled up just at present the activitiy is encouraging. General reductions in wages have taken place and female workers are receiving 18 to 20 cents an hour, a reduction of 40 or 50 per cent. it is said..

Domestic Demand Strong

Mr. Robertson said there was a steady demand for domestic workers. There are more vacancies than applicants and a huge bundle of applications are registered from Toronto. There are local vacancies as well. Wages range all the way from $15 to $40. Experienced cooks are receiving $35 to $40 a month.

On hundred and twenty-five men have been sent to the bush from Peterboro. Where the men were paid $60 to $80 a month a year ago they now receive $24 to $30. After Christmas last year $40 to $50 was paid. Early this season $35 was offered and this has now been reduced to the lower scale. Few married men are going to the bush, although the companies offer consideration for married men. With low wages cheaper lumber will result and a stimulating effect on the lumber and building trade is looked for.

Construction Good

There are not many bricklayers and carpenters out of work, the Examiner was informed. The addition to St. Joseph's Hospital has given work to a large number and bricklayers are receiving 90 cents an hour a wage that to the workless labour seems a princely remuneration..

Labourers are being offered 30 cents an hour generally, some as low as 25. For short jobs out-of-town 40 cents is being paid.

NO CHANGE IN DEMANDS MADE BY SINN FEIN

THEIR PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT DENIES THAT PRINCIPLE OF IRISH UNITY HAS BEEN ABANDONED.

REFUSE TO RECOGNIZE SOVEREIGNITY OF KING

LONDON, Nov. 15. — (Canadian Press).—Answering questions to-day regarding the counter proposals from Ulster, the Sinn Fein publicity department declared that unity in Ireland remained absolutely fundamental from the Sinn Fein point of view. It did not object to a local Parliament in Ulster, but that Parliament must be part of a single Irish system.

PARIS, Nov. 15. — (Canadian Press).—Sean O'Ceallaigh,Sinn Fein representative in Paris, to-day denied reports that the Irish delegates in London had agreed to recognize the Sovereignty of the King and to accept as a settlement the modified form of Dominion Home Rule. "The demands of Ireland remain unchanged," he said.

REPORTS FROM HUNTERS SHOW HUNTING POOR

BUTCHERS CLAIM THEY HAVE NEVER SEEN SO FEW DEER—TWO BEARS SHOT, BUT NO MOOSE SO FAR.

ONE PARTY, HOWEVER, BAGGED SEVEN DEER

If the few deer in front of the butcher shops is any criterion, the shooting must be poor this year. Only meagre reports have come out from the camps, but they do not seem to warrant expectations of a plenitude of venison with every hunter having great roasts for his friends. Most of the parties are returning on Saturday, some not till Monday. One or two bear are reported shot, but so far no moose are mentioned in the list of killed.

Butchers said to-day they had never seen so few deer. In other years there were plenty of carcases for sale, especially in the second week of hunting, but up to to-day only one or two have been sent in to the shops. On account of the 20th falling on Sunday, the hunters are robbed of an extra day's hunting, for it is contrary to the Lord's Day Act to shoot on the Sabbath. According to the Game and Fisheries Act, the season is from the 5th to the 20th, both days inclusive, but alas! for the gunners the 20th is Sunday, and shooting is absolutely taboo and unlawful.

Shot Seven Deer.

Mr. F. J. Doughty and party of eight have just returned from Mr. John J. Coones' hotel at Apsley, where they had a most enjoyable time and a successful hunt. Although they did not succeed in capturing any wolves, they got a large number of deer, considering the scarcity, and the short time they were out, only six days. The bag consisted of five large bucks, one doe and two fawns. The party was guided by Mr. James Lane. They are manifesting great enthusiasm over the treatment according them by Mr. and Mrs. Coones of the Union Hotel, Apsley, in their excellent catering and their efforts to make the party comfortable.

MESSRS. BURNHAM AND DENNE AT VENTRESS'S

ROLAND DENNE REPLIED TO MR G. N. GORDON

The Liberal-Conservative candidate, Mr. J. H. Burnham, and Mr. Roland Denne held a meeting at Ventress's Schoolhouse, North Harvey, last night, when they spoke to a crowded house. Mr. Oliver was in the chair. Mr. Denne opened the meeting, and spoke of the fact that it was the farmers who elected Sir John A. Macdonald in 1878 with his Protection policy. In the course of half an hour's speech Mr. Denne took up and disposed of many of the arguments of the Liberal candidate, Mr. Gordon,and closed with a strong appeal in favor of the Meighen Government and Mr. Burnham.

Mr. J. H. Burnham dealt chiefly with the remarkable fact that nearly all the chief mergers and combines got their charters and licenses to do business from the Laurier Government. The Canada Cement Co., Dominion Textile, Canada Cotton, The Sherwin Williams Paint Co., Dominion Farmers, etc., all received their charters from the Laurier Government. Criticism of them and of the Conservative Government in that respect came, therefore, with very bad grace from the Liberals now.

The meeting closed with cheers for the King and the candidate.

Messrs. McElderry and Strickland will accompany Mr. Burnham to Buckhorn on Wednesday night.

BANQUET OF LOCAL ENGINEERS THURSDAY.

The Annual Banquet of the Peterboro Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, will be held on Thursday evening next, November 17th, in the Empress Hotel. The speakers will include the President of the Institute; J. M. R. Fairbairn, Chief Engineer of the C.P.R., Fraser S. Keith, General Secretary, and Walter J. Francis Consulting Engineer, and Vice-President of the Institute.

George T. Clark, chairman of the Toronto Branch, will also be present, as will Col. W. H. Magwood, Consulting Engineer, Cornwall, Ont., Chairman of the Ontario Provincial Division.

A strong local committee, under the chairmanship of E. R. Shirley, has the arrangements in hand.

GREAT SACRIFICE BY U. S., BRITAIN

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press).—General satisfaction is expressed in newspapers this morning at Washington reports that the British and Japanese delegates are prepared to accept in principle Hughes' proposals. It is freely stated that the United States offers to make sacrifices both in money and in aspirations which are greater than she asks of the other two nations. At the same time it is remarked that Britain, as a far scattered Empire, is in a quite different position from the self-contained United States.

CUT IN TORONTO PRICE OF BREAD

BAKERS START BREAD WAR AND LOAF DROPS ONE CENT

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Toronto has a war, but one that it welcomes, a bread war. Competition among the bakers is the cause and the housewife will reap the benefit, for a one cent reduction in a loaf is the result. Some of the bakers declare they are selling bread below actual cost. Housewives now buy ten tickets for eighty cents.

BIRMINGHAM PROGRESS IS SHOWN BY PICTURES

PRIVATE SHOWING OF FILM AT NOON---PRESENTED AT CAPITOL TONIGHT.

A number of prominent business and professional men attended the private showing of the film depicting the progress of Birmingham Motors at the Capitol Theatre at one this afternoon.

The 1200 feet of film was taken at Birmingham's headquarters at Jamestown, N.Y., about a month ago on the occasion of the first annual meeting of Birmingham, which was attended by a delegation from Peterborough, including Mayor A. A. McIntyre.

The film will be shown as a part of the regular programme at the Capitol this evening.

The pictures illustrate the progress which the concern is making with the construction of its plant at Falconer, N.Y., a suburb of Jamestown, and show the remarkable test of the Birmingham in competition with a flexible axle and standard axle car on a specially constructed road.

The film shows the first unit of the Birmingham plant, 100 x 75feet, now completed, and the foundation and anchorages for the second building, 400 x 120 feet, and an addition to the first building 75 x 75 feet.

The construction principle of the Birmingham car, which is claimed to make it the easiest riding car in the world, is demonstrated.

In the test the Birmingham was driven at from 5 to 35 miles an hour over a "trestle" of slabs 7 inches thick. The Birmingham crossed the trestle several times successfully, but both other cars came to grief.

U.S. DISARMING PROPOSALS ACCEPTED "IN PRINCIPLE" BY ALL AT DISARM PARLEY

BALFOUR, REPRESENTING BRITAIN, SAYS, HOWEVER, THAT WHILE THE UNITED STATES IS PRACTICALLY IMPREGNABLE FROM ATTACK BY SEA BRITAIN HAS A FAR-FLUNG EMPIRE TO PROTECT AND DEPENDS UPON KEEPING SEA-ROUTES OPEN FOR HER EXISTENCE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. Canadian Press. — Hon. Arthur Balfour was at the conference on armaments to-day prepared to tender the British Government's formal acecptance of the principle involved in Hughes' proposals. He had, however, a number of suggestions for their modification.

There was a notable assemblage at the opening to-day. The galleries were filled with high army and naval officers and members of Congress.

After the preliminaries, Mr. Balfour rose in his place and immediately referred to the events of Saturday.

"If for reasons which I venture to explain, I am the first to take up the challenge, it is because of all members there asembled ,the country which I represent is the most intimately interested in naval questions."

Statesmen of all countries were discovering that the labors of peace were almost as ardous as those required by the conduct of a successful war. In the minds of the Allies and asociated powers, November 12 would prove to be an anniversary not merely to restore peace but to see that war conditions shall never again exist.

"I count myself among the fortunate," he said, referring to Saturday's proceedings. "The secret was admirably kept."

Telling how he heard Secretary Hughes 'proposals Mr. Balfour said he suddenly realized he was participating in a great historical event.

The United States stood solidly impregnable, completely protected from any conceivable attack. "It is not merely that you have a hundred and ten milion people," said Mr. Balfour; "it is not merely that you are the wealthiest nation—the geographical position of your country makes you wholly immune from the perils to which the British Empire is subjected."

After drawing the positoin of Britain as depending on overseas trade and overseas communication for raw materials and practically for its food —Mr. Balfour said:

"Then you understand why it is that every citizen of the British Empire, no matter where he lives — never can forget that it is by sea communication he lives, and without it he cannot live. I do not want my audience to think that I am lamenting over the weakness of my country—far from it. We are strong in the hope and ardent patriotism that binds us together. We have considered the great scheme of our chairman with admiration and approval. We agree with it in spirit and principle and look upon it as the basis of the greatest reform in armament and preparation for war that has ever been conceived or carried out."

Admiral Kato, who followed, accepted the proposal in principle and declared that it would make for the peace of the world. Japan had no desire for a fleet the equal of Britain or the United States, and is ready for a sweeping reduction in naval armament, he declared. This remark was wildly cheered. Baron Kato continued, however, that he would shortly present certain modifications to the proposals.

Representatives of all other allied nations accepted the proposals.

The conference adjourned at 12:45 to meet at the call of the chairman.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Several of the war-time favorites which were subjected to sharp pressure yesterday as a result of the disarmament proposals, rallied briskly at the opening of to-day's Stock Market. United States and Bethlehem Steels were only fractionally higher, but Crucible Steel rose 1¼ points. Standard Oil of New Jersey recovered three points, and Mexican Petroleum advanced 1 3-4 points, but Royal Dutch featured the heavy European Oils. Famous Players, United States Rubber, International Paper and various Metal, Chemical and Drug issues were firm to strong. Transcontinentals led the higher trend among Rails.

Foreign Oils became unsettled at mid-day, especially Royal Dutch, General Asphalt and Mexican Petroleum. This was balanced in a measure by the increased strength of Equipments, Coppers, Sugars and Textiles. The call money rate dropped to four per cent.

Relaxed money rates and the strength of foreign exchange, especially sterling, were among the helpful developments of the morning. Oils, Steels, Equipments and various miscellaneous issues continued their upward course. Mexican Petroleum was the most unstable of the leaders, however, and such specialties as American Tobacco, Industrial Alcohol and National Enamelling were heavy. Coalers were the strongest of the Railroad group under the lead of Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, which rose over three points. Call money opened at five per cent., but soon fell to 4½, and private demand loans were made on a four per cent. basis.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. —(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange irregular; demand, Great Britain, 3.96 3-4; Canadian dollars, 8 15-16 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Initial wheat quotations, which varied from a ½c decline to 1-8c advanced, with December 1.05¼ to 1.05½, and May 1.09¼ to 1.09 3-4, were followed by a moderate set-back all around, and then something of a rally.

Gossip about Government plans for assistance in financing the carrying of the corn crop gave some firmness to the corn market. After opening 1¼ off to 1-8c advance, May 52 to 52 1-8, prices hardened a little all around.

Oats were easy, sympathizing with wheat. The market opened 1-8 to ¼c lower, May 37 1-8, and then underwent a slight additional sag.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Trading on the local Stock Exchange during the first half-hour this morning was dull, almost to the point of non-existence. Only four of the leaders put in an appearance, and only one of them registered any change. This was Riordon, which weakened a half point to 5¼. Abitibi, Atlantic Sugar and National Breweries remained at their closing quotations at 32, 32 and 57¼ respectively.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press). — The sharp advance by Dome Mines and the strength and activity of Victory Loans was off-set by losses in Steamship issues, Detroit United and Steel of Canada, on the morning board of the local Stock Exchange. Dome advanced to 22.50 on sales of over 300 shares, making its gain from yesterday's sale exactly two dollars. 1937 Victory Loans sold at 101.20 for cash, while 1934's, at a close of 96.50, were up 20 cents. Detroit United, selling ex-dividend of 2½, came out at 55.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Receipts, 991; trade brisk. Heavy choice butcher steers, $5.50 to $6; butcher cows, medium, $2.75 to $3.50; calves $10.50 to $11.50; lambs $8.25 to $9; hogs, selects, $9 to $9.25.

SPECIAL SERVICES IN THE METHODIST CHURCH — PERSONAL NEWS.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 15.—The special missionary services in the Methodist Church on Sunday, November 13th, were an inspiration on this important subject to all who were privileged to attend.

Rev. Kenneth T. Beaton, now on furlough from China preached in the morning, and in the evening the pastor, Rev. S. T. Tucker gave an excellent sermon an the Disarmament Conference in its relation to Christian Missions. The choir furnished special music for both services.

Rev. Mr. Beaton is a very fine speaker and all who have been fortunate enough to hear him are enthusiastic in their acknowledgement of his power to make instructive and real the Chinese customs and character and the work of missions amongst them. Beginning his sermon, Mr. Beaton said he was not here to plead a cause but to give a report not to make any apology for missions but to render an account of the dividends being paid on the investment already made. Asking the question "what kind of Christians do the Chinese make?" he said candor compelled the answer that a great many are not much good but it could not be expected that after centuries of heathen surroundings and teaching strong, robust, Christian characters would be developed in a single generation; and he had noticed since his return that even in Canada, after 2000 years of gospel teaching, there are not many whose highest ideal is to acknowledge their allegiance to Jesus Christ and will others to His service But to prove that there are amazingly transformed lives amongst the Chinese after they have come into vital touch with the Saviour he introduced the congregation to four young men and women, whom he chose out of scores that he personally knew, who have felt the impulse of a new life from their acquaintance with the man of Galilee.

The first of these, Mrs. Djang, n the city of Yuin-Shan, which is one of the greatest educational centres in China, belonged to the second group of the four patrician families or classes, who for seven or eight hundred years had controlled the life and furnished the leading officials and gentry of the whole city and the district of which it formed the centre. Yet through a personal acquaintance with Mrs. (Dr.) Smith, whom she first met while calling on a wealthy friend, and became attracted to her, and this followed up by the wise and tactful efforts of Mrs. Beaton and others, Mrs. Djang was finally won to a whole-hearted Christian service. From this not even the bitterest persecution could move her, and she is o-day with her husband, a splendid worker her task being especially amongst a class of women off the street to whom three years ago, she wouldn't even have spoken; and has also now won several members from her own, and the other three leading families because of her conquering passion of devotion to Jesus Christ.

The other three characters of whose lives Mr. Beaton gave a vivid outline, proved equally wonderful and interesting; to teach them the Bible, after their hearts were once opened, was like pouring water into a thirsty soil. A little lad coming into Renshow with a load of wood to sell met Dr. Cox, visited his dispensary unwillingly because the extravagant stories afloat about the strange ways of this foreign medicine man and yet, to-day. Dr. Lin Yeli Tin is one of the four native Christian doctors who graduated last spring from the University at Chentu; and there are only these four for the seventy million people of the province of Sze-Chuan

A green gawky country boy ran away from home a few years ago, came to Chungking and proved a born business man whose every venture prospered. Entering a street chapel one day out of curiosity he heard Mr. Parker preach and was eventually won to Christ body, soul and income. To-day with his wife a'ding him he has established, a Christian home is building schools for boys and also for girls in eight villages of his home district, three being already opened, and has also agreed to build a ten thousand dollar chapel, at Chentu in connection with a high school for boys. Everything above a modest living he gives to God for His work. Mr. Beaton felt assured that this splendid type of Christian character, developed after thirty years of work by Canadian Methodism in West China, is nothing less than a miracle.

Rev. Dai Keli Chew, as he became, was first a Confuscian scholar, who through the influence of Mr. Plewman, became language teacher to Mrs. Macrimman. In three months this man gained such an enlarged outlook he decided to become a preacher of the gospel. Undaunted by family quarrels and persecution he persistently carried on, and was finally sent to a needy field not far from Renshow which was a perfect hot bed of heathenism, and that means it was a maelstrom of iniquity, and had already proved a heart break to several missionaries. Becoming victim of the white plague yet in two years by his triumphant faith and the aroma of a fragrant life, he so transformed the whole attitude of this non-Christian community toward himself that at his death, the whole city gathered to do him honor. There is only one thing Mr. Beaton said, in conclusion, that could take a proud Confucian scholar like Mr. Dai, and make his life so changed, and so fruitful, and that is the irresistible power of a per-

OMEMEE AND THE DISTRICT

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH MISSION BAND HELD A BAZAAR—ARMISTICE DAY.

OMEMEE, Nov. 15.—The U.F.O. club rooms were all aglow on Saturday afternoon and evening when the mission band of the Presbyterian church held their first bazaar. The Mission Band members were conspicuous by their white middy suits and red caps or tams, and the decorations were carried out in red and evergreens, which reminded one that the Christmas season is drawing near. Many useful articles were for sale as well as home-made candy and the wants of the inner man were amply provided at the little tea tables for a small sum. The fish pond also attracted the attention of many. Altogether the proceeds amounted to about $50, which sum is most gratifying to those in charge.

Armistice Day.

For the first time in many years the little village of Omemee remained remarkably silent on Guy Fawkes night, to await the big celebration on armistice night. In the early evening of Friday, Nov. 11th, one could see the smaller boys running too and fro with their Indian suits and other interesting costumes and later the old boys, and in fact many grown ups appeared as negroes, clowns and in almost every other form of attire to conceal their identity. Needless to say the blushing maidens did not lack escort of the masked variety. The town was fairly well crowded with people who came from near and far to visit the village and participate in the big night with the youths of the countryside.

Shortly before 9 o'clock the parade started down the main street headed by the band and the Kaiser on a dray drawn by some of his enemies and then proceeded to 'Sandy Point,' via George street, where a huge pile of stumps, boxes, etc., had been previously placed. On the top of this his lifeless body was erected and burned to the ground. Many fireworks were sent up into the sky, which added greater pleasure to the bystanders, and the cannon was also fired off several times. So ended armistice day in Omemee.

FRANCE AND ITALY REACH AGREEMENT

WASHINGTON, November 15 (Canadian Press). — At a conference late yesterday between Premier Briand, head of the French delegation, and Senator Schanzer, President of the Italian delegation, an agreement was reached for a harmonious attitude toward questions coming before the armament conference. The agreement covers not only questions arising out of the conference on limitation of armament, but also those which may come up during the discussion of Pacific and Far Eastern affairs.

IRISH CRISIS AGAIN DELAYS LLOYD GEORGE

POSSIBILITY OF INTERMITTENT CONFERENCES EXTENDING FOR MONTHS MAY MAKE EARLY VISIT TO WASHINGTON IMPOSSIBLE.

GOVERNMENT REFUSES PROPOSALS OF ULSTER

LONDON, November 15 (Canadian Press). — The negotiations among British, Sin Fein, and Ulster officials regarding the future of Ireland, have now entered a stage in which the negotiators are talking of intermittent conferences extending over months instead of weeks.

The chief interest this possibility has at the moment is that it promises to make impossible an early visit of Prime Minister Lloyd-George to Washington, as he has been hoping to do all along.

This development is assuming great importance in British public and official spheres, because the Washington conference has suddenly attained proportions in British eyes of an event of tremendous and absorbing significance.

ULSTER PROPOSALS REFUSED.

Counter proposals for an Irish settlement to those made by the Ulster Cabinet last week were forwarded to the Ulsterites last evening by the British representatives, informing the Ulsterites that their alternative proposal was not acceptable. No further meeting between he British and Ulster delegates has yet been arranged.

It now seems that Mr. Lloyd-George's diplomacy must be directed to bringing Ulster into a three-cornered agreement. In the meantime, the Sinn Fein will sit on the side lines and await developments.

"The Northerners are the bad boys now,' remarked one of the Sinn Fein delegates.

Ulster's watchword is "No Surrender," but some of the newspapers find comfort in the thought that this is the first stage of all in the bargain-making. The crux of the difficulty rests in the Sinn Fein's claim that Ireland must be a Governmental unit, as opposed to Ulster's claim that if Ireland is to have a dominion status, Ulster must be under independent rule.

The Ulstermen attach special value to the new powers just conferred on the Ulster Parliament for controlling their own finances and police; their newspapers constantly remind the Prime Minister of his promises not to coerce Ulster.

BRITAIN ACCEPTS DISARMAMENT PROPOSALS "IN PRINCIPLE" BUT DESIRES CERTAIN ALTERATIONS

WOULD HAVE REPLACEMENT PROGRAM AN ELASTIC ONE SPREAD OVER PERIOD OF YEARS INSTEAD OF A TEN-YEAR NAVAL HOLIDAY—WOULD OUTLAW SUBMARINE—OBJECTS TO PROVISION FOR AIRPLANE-CARRYING SHIPS—CONFERENCE WORKING UNDER COMMITTEE PLAN.

WASHINGTON, November 15th.—Canadian Press. — Great Britain's acceptance "in principle" of the United States 'proposals for limitation of naval armaments contemplates an alteration of the plan in several important details.

The British acceptance will be presented at to-day's plenary session of the conference by Arthur J. Balfour, head of the mission, who has plenipotentiary powers. Japan's acceptance in principle, although it has been forecast by the statements of Baron Admiral Kato, may be delayed, as the Japanese mission is obligated to confer with Tokio.

Mr. Balfour may not outline the details of the reservations Great Britain wishes to make but they are substantially described as follows:

Instead of a flat ten year holiday, Great Britain wants the replacement programme to be an elastic one—spread over a period of years.

Great Britain would like to see the submarine outlawed from naval warfare; failing this she wants to see their tonnage and equipment distinctly limited. She feels that the submarine fleets allowed by the American programme are too great. She has never had so large a submarine fleet as the proposals would allow her.

Such a programme, the British naval experts say, does not go to the root of the question. Therefore they will propose that, for instance, a one-ship production equipment be left to each nation, to fit in with a replacement programme extending over a period of years, and that the immense properties, equipment, technical staffs and other organizations, which would have to be kept in readiness to take up a replacement programme in ten years, be dispensed with.

DOWNING STREET FAVORABLE

LONDON, Nov. 15. Canadian Press —Officials in Downing street to-day declared frankly that Mr. Lloyd George cordially welcomed the general principle of the United States naval restriction programme as laid down by Secretary of State Hughes at the initial session of the Washington conference, last Saturday.

The Prime Minister is keeping in close touch with proceedings at Washington. A. J. Balfour, head of the British delegation there, already has submitted a report and it was said that there would be daily communication between him and Mr. Lloyd George's Downing street office. The government officials emphasized, however, that it should not be inferred that the policy of the British delegates in United States Capital was being dictated from London.

It was pointed out that while neither Mr. Lloyd George nor Mr. Balfour had the requisite technical knowledge to approve of the United States' proposal off-hand, they were both heartily in favor of the general principles contained in the proposal.

BRITAIN TO BENEFIT MOST.

"The United States naval restriction proposal should be carried out with greater benefit to Great Britain than to anyone else, because of the very fact of our sea communications," declared Rear Admiral Mark Kerr, head of the British naval mission to Greece, in an article published by the Evening Standard yesterday. He said it came as a welcome surprise to find Secretary of State Hughes launching upon the world a practical scheme, well thought out and concise, which if the powers were wise, would go far towards solving the problems which were now exercising most of the human race.

Admiral Kerr suggested in his article that any nation not wishing to build up to 500,000 tonnage might spend what it thus saved on battleships in building aircraft, submarines and destroyers. He asks whether the defensive flotillas of the overseas portion of the British Empire were included in the total tonnage of the British navy, and adds:

"There is no getting away from the fact that battleships are of no use in case of war between countries situated with their bases thousands of miles apart, and where geographical position does not act, as it did in the late war. It is obvious that Great Britain has more than enough capital ships for Europe, and the scrapping of capital ships which are beyond her home requirements, is entirely in her favour and is a great measure of economy as well."

Therefore, he declared the flotillas must preserve the ocean routes, and in this Great Britian has the advantage of her enormous superiority in the number of coaling stations.

Dr. S. W. Stratton has won the distinction of being named head of the United States Bureau of Standards, the only organization of its kind in the world. Dr. Stratton is an authority on weights and measures of all sorts. The bureau is of great service to science, industry and commerce.

A SOLEMN WARNING.

The sentencing of one Toronto motorist whose car killed a man to three years in Kingston Penitentiary, and of another who figured in a fatal motoring accident to a year in gaol serves unmistakable warning upon reckless motorists and speed maniacs everywhere that the killing of people by motor cars is regarded by the law precisely as all other forms of manslaughter are regarded. There is natural sympathy with the men upon whom these drastic sentences have been passed, but the outraged citizens will readily perceive that some check must be put upon those reckless spirits who cannot resist the temptation to run their cars at top speed regardless of the chances they take of killing themselves or bringing death to some other motorist or to a pedestrian. Appeals to the common sense of these careless drivers have been in vain, campaigns calling attention to the necessity of observing safety-first methods have been futile. Nothing remained but to try the effect of a term in gaol or penitentiary for men whose carelessness has resulted in the death of a fellow being. The man who is tempted to ignore the speed limit when he sees a long stretch of good road in front of his car would be well advised to think of the fate of these Toronto motorists. Twenty miles an hour and liberty is much better than forty miles and the risk of death or a gaol sentence.

FORTY YEARS' SERVICE.

The announcement of the resignation from the position of Police Magistrate of the City of Peterborough, after 40 years' continuous service of Mr. D. W. Dumble makes strange reading, inasmuch as his name and that of the local Police Court seem to have always been associated with each other, and the court room will present an unusual appearance with the familiar figure of the veteran Magistrate absent from the bench. For four decades Mr. Dumble has presided over Police Court proceedings in Peterborough, has listened to thousands of cases, inflicted fines that must have reached a huge total and imposed sentences on hundreds of offenders against the law. During his regime the Police Department has increased from a couple of officers to the present force of detectives, inspectors, sergeants and officers, and the duties of the Magistrate have steadily grown more onerous with the growth of the department and the increase in the population of the city. That Mr. Dumble has been able to "carry on" at 85 years of age is a striking proof of the spirit and stamina of the retiring Magistrate. In his long service as Police Magistrate Mr. Dumble declares: 'I have tried to do my duty without fear, favour or affection, guided by my responsibility to my God and to my fellow citizens," and the record of the Magistrate during his forty years in office is proof that he succeeded in living up to the ideal he marked out for himself on entering upon his duties. He is the oldest Magistrate in point of service in Ontario, and although he has decided to resign from the position which he has so long filled with distinction, his fellow citizens will hope that he will be spared to enjoy the rest he has so richly earned.

A NEW VIEWPOINT.

Political meetings like the one at Millbrook last week, in which rival speakers passed the lie to each other, raked up all the scandal of thirty years and indulged in several hours of personal abuse of each other, are about as modern as a high-wheeled bicycle. Fortunately that style of conducting a political campaign has been for the most part abandoned. The old bitterness seems to be dropping out of the contests of today, and men no longer display the frenzied partizanship that was once upon a time regarded as the proper thing in an election camaign. They are coming to see that while the choosing of a Government or the deciding of an issue are matters of great importance there is no reason why the country should be divided into permanently hostile camps, why friendships should be estranged and long associations severed just because people do not see eye to eye with each in political beliefs. Men do not quarrel with each other over their choice of motor cars or clothes. They may not agree as to the respective merits of one make or another and mentally question each other's judgment and taste, but they do not consider it necessary to terminate their friendly relations with their fellow citizens just because they have a different opinion about such things. And now they are beginning to perceive that to quarrel over political beliefs is just as silly as it would be to open hostilities with a friend because they do not like the shape of the hat he is wearing. The new viewpoint has much to commend it so long as it does not tend to kill off interest in politics altogether, and there is no reason why it should.

THE SUPREME PROBLEM.

It is remarkable that the supreme question of immigration is practically overlooked by all three political leaders. There is nothing that Canada so sorely needs as increase of population. In no other way can the heavy burden of taxation which rests upon the country be measurably relieved. We are not so much more fortunate than other countries as we pretend to be. With a population at most of 9,000,000, we have a debt of $2,225,000,000. Indeed, the actual debt is over $3,000,000,000, for railway deficits represent the interest of another billion. We lie alongside the United States which is now in far more fortunate financial situation. It is certain that its war debt will be more easily discharged than will that of Canada. The consequences cannot be otherwise than serious if capital in this country must bear greater comparative taxation than capital in the United States and its industry and cagricultur must struggle under greater burdens.

We have, however, a far greater area of free land than the United States, and far greater advantages to offer to the land-hungry people of other countries. Morever, a new attitude towards emigration has developed in Great Britain. For the first time the Old Country is ready to assist by generous financial appropriations in the transfer of its surplus population to the Dominions. Already 980,000 pounds have been voted to assist emigration. Even British Labor leaders support the movement. Mr. Clynes, leader of the Labor Party, declared in the Imperial Parliament a few days ago, "It would be all to the good if we could use even more fully the lands of Australia and Canada and other great territories within the Empire." It is true that the immediate object of British policy is to provide for the workless thousands in Great Britain, but that is an additional reason for sympathetic co-operation in Canada. Australia recognizes the opportunity which is afforded by the British attitude and is acting in conjunction with the Imperial authorities. Can we afford to be indifferent and inactive?

No doubt there must be careful selection and supervision of immigration, but this is not an insuperable objection to co-operation with the home Government. In the work of the Soldier Settlement Board we have remarkable evidence of what can be done by wise and courageous action. The Board has considered 60,000 applications from returned soldiers. Of these 43,000 have been accepted as entitled to assistance and 27,000 have been actually established and have secured advances to the amount of $100,000,000. On November 1st of last year 9,372 out of 12,174 settlers had made their first loan payments in whole or in part, which aggregated $2,296,000. In addition advance payments were made of over $1,000,000 and there was returned to the Treasury in actual money $2,308,000. In Ontario out of 1,073 settlers 1,034 made their payments. Out of $200,000 owing by the soldiers settlers in that province all but 19,000 was paid and a further sum of $215,000 was collected in overpayments. Over 400 settlers have repaid their loans in full and altogether $4,710,000 have been repaid to the Government.

The actual failures among those who have received loans has been only 6 per cent. On its foreclosure sales the Board has realized $1,654,523 on an investment of $1,662,729. In Western Canada in 263 cases of failure the Board sold the land and buildings at $80,000 more than they cost. Over 15,000 men have settled on lands previously unproductive; five thousand more have been settled on lands inadequately cultivated and the remainder on improved farms. Soldier settlers occupy more than 4,000,000 acres of land and have under cultivation 1,000,000 acres. They have broken tled on lands inadequately cultiproduce crops next year. Last year soldier settlers on the prairie produced more than 10,000,00 bushels of grain, as well as large quanitities of dairy and poultry products. Soldier settlers in British Columbia produced half a million boxes of apples, besides tons of exportable small fruits and vegetables, and it is estimated that these settlements last year, with only 12,000 soldiers producing added $3,000,000 to the revenues of the railways.

Money spent in preventing sickness is one of the most profitable forms of investment that a nation can make. On the lower plane of material benefits it is a sound proposition, since a healthy person is a far more valauble asset to the State than a physically defective one. Actual sickness costs the community far more than the public health measures which aim at preventing it. A study of the sickness and mortality ratios covering a period of years, and of public health services in the community demonstrates conclusively that a good deal of expencive sickness is preventible, and is being prevented wherever there is capable and effective Health Department. Public health, says Dr. Wilmot, has done much more than bring about a reduction of the death-rate, a reduction in infantile mortality, an increase of our days, the reduction of ill-health, and the reduction of the average number of days of sickness incapacitating a man from work. —Cape Argus

Osteopaths know that it takes years of study and training, the grafting of an osteopathic education on top of a medical one, and then years of practice in the operating room and at the bedside to make a passable osteopath, so remarks like that just make him smile.

Osteopathy is the original and only perfect system of healing by adjustment. It handles all classes of cases with signal success.

ROYAL YEAST CAKES

Product of Canada

It was known many years ago that yeast is an excellent thing for the many ills that result from disordered stomach or run down blood condition. Lately eminent scientists have been investigating the matter thoroughly and their conclusions point to the fact that the beneficial effect of yeast has not been overrated. The yeast treatment is very simple and economical - and altogether harmless.

Before each meal eat a Royal Yeast Cake, or take a cake dissolved in water or fruit juices. The scientific investigators say that the curative elements in Royal Yeast are the vitamines and nuclein which it contains. It is certainly well worth a fair trial by those who suffer from any of the ailments mentioned above.

District Convention

Those from the local Epworth League who attended the District Convention at Lakefield on Friday, November 11th, were: Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Byam, Misses Stella Hetherington, Alice Stewart, Lillie Clarke, Pearl Burnham; Messrs. Frank Alcorn and Bruce Dawson.

Hence all delegates who arrived in Lakefield on time had an opportunity of witnessing the unveiling provided they could find even standng room in the Hall.

The Convention itself presented an excellent program, perhaps one of the best ever given at a District gathering and the local league was fortunate in spite of bad roads in having so many of its members able to attend.

Mr. Edward Thorndyke of Millbrook, and Mr. George Fair, Cavan were in Cobourg, last week on the jury.

The W.M.S. of the Methodist Church, in common with all other auxiliaries throughout the Dominion, will observe Thursday, November 17th., as a "Day of Prayer", when there will be six periods of intercession each with its own subject and in charge of a separate leader. CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

LECTURE BY REV. F. E. MALOTT —DIVISION COURT CASES

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 15. — Mr. Garnet Clark spent the week end with friends in Kingston.

Miss Agnes McArthur of Hoard's, spent the week end at her home here.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Malott and Mrs. King, of Peterborough, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Carnahan during their stay in Campbellford.

Large Shipment of Hogs.

Nelson Bros. of Warkworth, made their weekly shipment yesterday of 190 hogs from Campbellford, the price being $8.50 per cwt.

Died in Kingston.

There passed away in Kingston Hospital Mrs. Wynn, relict of the late Christopher Wynn, of Seymour West. The remains arrived at Campbellford this morning and the funeral will be held form the home of her sons, Marshall and Victor Wynn of Seymour West, are sons of the deceased.

Hunters Return.

A party of six hunters returned from St. Ola, Nodth Hastings, yesterday morning with four fine deer. The party included the following: Dr. Watson, Messrs. A. L. Reindeau, Jack Nesbitt, Peter Nesbitt, Percy Denyes and O. Waldron. On the journey home between Milbridge and Bonar Law, Dr. Watson shot six partridges, all on one tree, and this was done, too, as the train was starting to move. The party all report a pleasant outing, and this year, as on previous years, have retained their already good reputation as skilled sportsmen.

Box Social.

The box social and entertainment held in the Opera House on Friday night under the auspices of the True Blues and Orangemen, was a huge success. Mr. C. L. Owen occupied the chair in his usual pleasing manner, inter spersing bits of humour, and wit, with good effect. The opening number, a mandolin solo by Mr. James Macdowell, was heartily applauded. Mrs. C. W. Turner and Mrs. Walter Lowe rendered a duet, which was most hearily encored twice, and to which they responded. The solos by Miss Marion Burleigh and Miss Emma Meiklejohn were, as usual, well received. The duet by Mr. Walter Lowe (cornet) and his little son Adim (drum), delighted the audience and was heartily encored. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holding's duet (violin and piano), was well rendered. Miss Hawley in her usual capable manner, acted as accompanist for the soloists. After the programme, Mr. J. R. Battisby kindly acted as auctioneer and the boxes were rapidly disposed of, the proceeds amounting to over one hundred and thirty-two dollars. The floors were afterwards cleared for dancing and many indulged in the light fantastic.

Mr. John Brown, of Seymour West held the lucky number in the contest and thus secured the washing machine, while Mr. Frank Glenn of Seymour East held the lucky number and thus won the step ladder.

Division Court.

The Division Court docket yesterday afternoon was a light one, there being only two cases. The first was an action brought by a glib-tongued agent of a lightning rod company, carging Mr. H. G. Bertrand with non-fulfilment of a contract. The defendant though admitting his signature, denied knowledge of the contents thereof, claiming that he was only engaged as a chauffeur, driving said agent to interview prospective customers. The case of the plaintiff involved a certain note, said note to be given by the defendant as partial payment on contract, the defendant claiming said note was given as an accommodation having appendage stating note was to be returned when asked for. His Honor ruled out the note in favour of defendant and further upheld the defendant's obligation for fulfilling of the contract less goods returned.

The second case was an action brought by the Interantional Stock Food Company against Mr. Thos. Kerr of Seymour East for alleged non-payment of a certain order given by defendant for goods. The defendant claimed he had paid part in cash and had returned the remainder by express to the company. His Honor Judge Huycke decided to defer judgment in said case until next court in oredr to secure further evidence. His Honor Judge Huycke presided.

"Man in the Moon."

The entertainment given in the Methodist church last evening under the ansoices of the Woman's Missionary Society was a rare treat to those who were able to attend. While the crowd was not as great as might have been expected due to the inclemency of the weather and the many other attractions in town last night, those who attended were amply repaid. The opening number was a pleasing organ solo by Mr. R. T. Cowell, A.R.C.O., after which Mrs. King, soprano soloist of Trinity church, Peterborough, rendered her opening numbers, "Priase God for Life Made New" and "Pass It ... in a sweet, clear tone that ... her hearers. After a few re... the chairman, Rev. H. B. ... King was again call... ontributed a group of ... "Nora," "Mighty ... "Daddy's Sweet... ing her hear... me. ... troduced ... the ... has a ... me.

came the astrologers and they gave the moon a prominent place, and to them we owe the names of the week —Monday being moonday, Saturday Saturn day, etc. After 300 years of scientific investigation we learn by telescope that the moon has been greatly overestimated as to size, 50 moons making one earth in size, whilst it takes 700 earths to make Saturn, who boasts eight moons of her own. The moon is related to the earth, being a daughter of the earth, and the earth daughter of the sun. Scientists tell us many millions of years ago the sun threw off pieces of itself and under great forces, these revolved on their own axis and orbits with mathematical accuracy, thus exploding the theory that the moon is made of green cheese.

The moon has one day every four weeks, while the earth has one day every 24 hours. The moon has mountains and valleys, but shines by borrowed light, and has no water or atmosphere, and great extremes of heat and cold, the temperature sometimes rising to 212 deg. above and falling to 400 degrees below. he moon like a loving daughter never goes far from home, and some nights in the shadow of her mother, earth, she does not appear at all. If we had 30 poles each 8000 miles long tied together we could stand on the rim of the earth and poke the man in the moon in the ribs.

Difficulties of Reaching the Moon. —Aeroplanes require air and 200 miles above there is no air. So we may travel to the moon on the wings of imagination. An ancient Greek who took this imaginary trip in seven days, tells us these lunan inhabitants differ as to dress, the wealthy wearing woven grass while the poor wear copper.

However by means of the modern telescope we can travel to the moon in 1-4 second and scientists know every inch of the surface of the moon better than the surface of the earth. The moon always keeps the bright side out. We have been told that the moon has an aggravating influence on lunacy, while physicians and scientists dispute this old theory, and so many of the old theories regarding the moon have become exploded. The moon does however affect the tides ,and the moon makes people sentimental. Of course there is a man in the moon, not a moon man or moonshiner, but an old legend says Cain, who for his unnatural deed was transferred to the moon. Another says Isaac is there contemplating God's works; another Judas, and another legend says not a man at all but an old mother-in-law who was thrown up there.

Prof. Pickering of Harvard, says a superior race of men live on the moon, while Professor Lane of Columbia University, says the moon is an arid waste and there cannot possibly be life there. As we gaze into the heavens some clear night we are forced to say with the Psalmist "When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars which Thou has ordained; what is man that Thou art mindful of him and the son of man that Thou visitest him?"

Mrs. King then delighted her hearers with another solo. Angus Macdonald, and encore Grandmother Brown, both being heartily applauded, to which she kindly replied, "I want to see Jesus, don't you?"

Rev. Mr. Malott is possessed of rare ability as an entertainer and lecturer, while Mrs. King proved herself a most charming artist, and should they return to Campbellford at some future time, will both receive a warm welcome. A hearty vote of thanks, moved by Mrs. W. H. Ashton and seconded by Mrs. G. A. Kingston, was tendered Mr. Malott and Mrs. King, to which Mr. Malott replied stating that it was a pleasure to assist the W.M.S. in their worhy work. he Tmeeting closed with the Natoinal Anthem.

BRANTFORD, Nov. 15. — (Canadian Press).—Before an audience that included many hostile critics, Hon. T. A. Crerar last night outlined his economic faith. In Brantford the Progressive platform with its plank of free agricultural implements is of particular interest, for the manufactures of the city are mainly agricultural implements, and Brantford was represented in the last Parliament by an unswerving advocate of protection.

Now and then some heckler would break Mr. Crerar's line of argument, but generally he was permitted to develop his views and was frequently warmly cheered, being more fortunate than some of the speakers who preceded him. There were some sharp battles, however, when he referred to the Western farmer and alleged aspersions on their loyalty, and he strongly denied that the farmers had held back in the call to duty during the war.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFIES AND DARKENS HAIR

Don't Stay Gray! It Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

LECTURE BY REV. F. E. MALOTT —DIVISION COURT CASES

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 15. — Mr. Garnet Clark spent the week end with friends in Kingston.

Miss Agnes McArthur of Hoard's, spent the week end at her home here.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Malott and Mrs. King, of Peterborough, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Carnahan during their stay in Campbellford.

Large Shipment of Hogs.

Nelson Bros. of Warkworth, made their weekly shipment yesterday of 190 hogs from Campbellford, the price being $8.50 per cwt.

Died in Kingston.

There passed away in Kingston Hospital Mrs. Wynn, relict of the late Christopher Wynn, of Seymour West. The remains arrived at Campbellford this morning and the funeral will be held form the home of her sons, Marshall and Victor Wynn of Seymour West, are sons of the deceased.

Hunters Return.

A party of six hunters returned from St. Ola, Nodth Hastings, yesterday morning with four fine deer. The party included the following: Dr. Watson, Messrs. A. L. Reindeau, Jack Nesbitt, Peter Nesbitt, Percy Denyes and O. Waldron. On the journey home between Milbridge and Bonar Law, Dr. Watson shot six partridges, all on one tree, and this was done, too, as the train was starting to move. The party all report a pleasant outing, and this year, as on previous years, have retained their already good reputation as skilled sportsmen.

Box Social.

The box social and entertainment held in the Opera House on Friday night under the auspices of the True Blues and Orangemen, was a huge success. Mr. C. L. Owen occupied the chair in his usual pleasing manner, inter spersing bits of humour, and wit, with good effect. The opening number, a mandolin solo by Mr. James Macdowell, was heartily applauded. Mrs. C. W. Turner and Mrs. Walter Lowe rendered a duet, which was most hearily encored twice, and to which they responded. The solos by Miss Marion Burleigh and Miss Emma Meiklejohn were, as usual, well received. The duet by Mr. Walter Lowe (cornet) and his little son Adim (drum), delighted the audience and was heartily encored. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holding's duet (violin and piano), was well rendered. Miss Hawley in her usual capable manner acted as accompanist for the soloists. After the programme, Mr. J. R. Battisby kindly acted as auctioneer and the boxes were rapidly disposed of, the proceeds amounting to over one hundred and thirty-two dollars. The floors were afterwards cleared for dancing and many indulged in the light fantastic.

Mr. John Brown, of Seymour West held the lucky number in the contest and thus secured the washing machine, while Mr. Frank Glenn of Seymour East held the lucky number and thus won the step ladder.

Division Court.

The Division Court docket yesterday afternoon was a light one, there being only two cases. The first was an action brought by a glib-tongued agent of a lightning rod company, carging Mr. H. G. Bertrand with non-fulfilment of a contract. The defendant though admitting his signature, denied knowledge of the contents thereof, claiming that he was only engaged as a chauffeur, driving said agent to interview prospective customers. The case of the plaintiff involved a certain note, said note to be given by the defendant as partial payment on contract, the defendant claiming said note was given as an accommodation having appendage stating note was to be returned when asked for. His Honor ruled out the note in favour of defendant and further upheld the defendant's obligation for fulfilling of the contract less goods returned.

The second case was an action brought by the Interantional Stock Food Company against Mr. Thos. Kerr of Seymour East for alleged non-payment of a certain order given by defendant for goods. The defendant claimed he had paid part in cash and had returned the remainder by express to the company. His Honor Judge Huycke decided to defer judgment in said case until next court in oredr to secure further evidence. His Honor Judge Huycke presided.

"Man in the Moon."

The entertainment given in the Methodist church last evening under the ausnices of the Woman's Missionary Society was a rare treat to those who were able to attend. While the crowd was not as great as might have been expected due to the inclemency of the weather and the many other attractions in town last night, those who attended were amply repaid. The opening number was a pleasing organ solo by Mr. R. T. Cowell, A.R.C.O., after which Mrs. King, soprano soloist of Trinity church, Peterborough, rendered her opening numbers, "Priase God for Life Made New" and "Pass It On" in a sweet, clear tone that charmed her hearers. After a few remarks by the chairman, Rev. H. B. Kenney, Mrs. King was again called upon and contributed a group of three numbers, "Nora," "Mighty Like a Rose" and "Daddy's Sweetheart," further charming her hearers by her richness of tone.

Rev. Mr. Malott then introduced his subject, "The Man in the Moon," by quoting: The night has a thousand eyes, and the day but one, etc. The moon has always tended to make us in love with night. It is to the poets we owe the names of the constellations. They personified the moon, and applied feminine genders. Homer calls her the silver-footed queen, and Swift says, Heavy-came the astrologers and they gave the moon a prominent place, and to them we owe the names of the week —Monday being moonday, Saturday Saturn day, etc. After 300 years of scientific investigation we learn by telescope that the moon has been greatly overestimated as to size, 50 moons making one earth in size, whilst it takes 700 earths to make Saturn, who boasts eight moons of her own. The moon is related to the earth, being a daughter of the earth, and the earth daughter of the sun. Scientists tell us many millions of years ago the sun threw off pieces of itself and under great forces, these revolved on their own axis and orbits with mathematical accuracy, thus exploding the theory that the moon is made of green cheese.

The moon has one day every four weeks, while the earth has one day every 24 hours. The moon has mountains and valleys, but shines by borrowed light, and has no water or atmosphere, and great extremes of heat and cold, the temperature sometimes rising to 212 deg. above and falling to 400 degrees below. he moon like a loving daughter never goes far from home, and some nights in the shadow of her mother, earth, she does not appear at all. If we had 30 poles each 8000 miles long tied together we could stand on the rim of the earth and poke the man in the moon in the ribs.

Difficulties of Reaching the Moon. —Aeroplanes require air and 200 miles above there is no air. So we may travel to the moon on the wings of imagination. An ancient Greek who took this imaginary trip in seven days, tells us these lunan inhabitants differ as to dress, the wealthy wearing woven grass while the poor wear copper.

However by means of the modern telescope we can travel to the moon in 1-4 second and scientists know every inch of the surface of the moon better than the surface of the earth. The moon always keeps the bright side out. We have been told that the moon has an aggravating influence on lunacy, while physicians and scientists dispute this old theory, and so many of the old theories regarding the moon have bacome exploded. The moon does however affect the tides ,and the moon makes people sentimental. Of course there is a man in the moon, not a moon man or moonshiner, but an old legend says Cain, who for his unnatural deed was transferred to the moon. Another says Isaac is there contemplating God's works; another Judas, and another legend says not a man at all but an old mother-in-law who was thrown up there.

Prof. Pickering of Harvard, says a superior race of men live on the moon, while Professor Lane of Columbia University, says the moon is an arid waste and there cannot possibly be life there. As we gaze into the heavens some clear night we are forced to say with the Psalmist "When I consider Thy heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars which Thou has ordained, what is man that Thou art mindful of him and the son of man that Thou visitest him?"

Mrs. King then delighted her hearers with another solo. Aneus Macdonald, and encore Grandmother Brown, both being heartily applauded, to which she kindly replied, "I want to see Jesus, don't you?"

Rev. Mr. Malott is possessed of rare ability as an entertainer and lecturer, while Mrs. King proved herself a most charming artist, and should they return to Campbellford at some future time, will both receive a warm welcome. A hearty vote of thanks, moved by Mrs. W. H. Ashton and seconded by Mrs. G. A. Kingston, was tendered Mr. Malott and Mrs. King, to which Mr. Malott replied stating that it was a pleasure to assist the W.M.S. in their worhy work. he Tmeeting closed with the Natoinal Anthem.

BRANTFORD, Nov. 15. — (Canadian Press).—Before an audience that included many hostile critics, Hon. T. A. Crerar last night outlined his economic faith. In Brantford the Progressive platform with its plank of free agricultural implements is of particular interest, for the manufactures of the city are mainly agricultural implements, and Brantford was represented in the last Parliament by an unswerving advocate of protection.

Now and then some heckler would break Mr. Crerar's line of argument, but generally he was permitted to develop his views and was frequently warmly cheered, being more fortunate than some of the speakers who preceded him. There were some sharp battles, however, when he referred to the Western farmer and alleged aspersions on their loyalty, and he strongly denied that the farmers had held back in the call to duty during the war.

STORY OF JAMES LICKLEY AND THOMAS ROBINSON FAMILIES

LIFE OF EARLY PIONEERS IN PETERBORO' COUNTY ONE OF RESOURCEFULNESS TO MAKE ENDS M.E.T.

FIRST STOCK BREEDER

By F. H. DOBBIN

There was a time when men of marked individuality were scattered over the townships of the county, lending their energy, forethought and heartiness to furthering the progress of the settlers. The life of the pioneer begat resourcefulness. His it was to make ends meet, to do the best he might with what was at hand, both in living and in tillage of the almost virgin soil. His lot and his purpose depended on the locality in which he lived and had decided to make his home. Truly it was in the days when a fellow needed a friend, and there were those who with large hearts and full of optisimn both helped and cheered from day to day. And the farther back "up country," as it was termed, the greater the need.

And so in deference to a call from a rural resident that men of the county should not be forgotten we will tell of the fortunes of one James Lickley, who came in and afterwards located along the Burleigh Road, between Burleigh Falls and Apsley. He was born in Sligo County, Ireland, in 1823. His father John Lickley and his mother emigrated to Canada when he was but nine months old, and as he afterwards said, he had nothing to do with it at all. The entire family resources comprises 20 sovereigns.

Hopes Destroyed

The hopes of his parents that beginning life anew in the promised land would lead to better things were rudely destroyed, for the next day after the vessel reached Quebec, his father while assisting other passengers to land from the vessel, fell into the waters of the harbour and was drowned. This unfortunate beginning in life in Canada left his mother a widow in a strange country, without the means of purchase for herself or her children a meal or a night's lodging, (for the twenty soverigns were in her husband's pocket at the bottom of the St. Lawrence), so she sought the assistance of kind Christian friends who found her a home and then employment as a domestic. From her meagre earnings she maintained herself and educated her son. In 1834 she moved to Montreal where she died from an attack of cholera leaving her boy James an orphan without a relative to exercise for him parental care. This brings us to the fortunes of James Lickley, who was thrown on his own resources.

His Own Resources

For a short time he secured employment as an errand boy, or messenger and afterwards bound out for the term of four years as apprentice to a ropemaker, of Montreal, named John Converse. But fussing about the wharves and talking to the men from the sea he became imbued with the life of the sailor and at the end of his term shipped on board a trading schooner, Capt. Lesperance, who was in the fish trade at Fortune Bay, Cape Cod, St. George, Big River and other forts and points. He was three years in this service

Life was, apparently, to offer variety to James Lickley for he returned to Quebec and for some time was engaged at Hichinbrooke in lumbering, afterwards removing to a point in New York State named Ellenburg and there stayed until the spring of 1862. He had begun to realize his deficiencies in the matter of education and need of a better knowledge of the English language. Assiduous attendance at night school laid the foundation of such success as he attained in after years.

In March 1862 he came to the County of Peterborough and as a first work assisted in the construction of the Burleigh Road, built by the Government, with one James Walsh as the contractor. Lickley was employed in chopping and clearing the right-of-way from Burleigh Falls to the 21st mile post, about a half-mile north of Apsley. This work completed he entered the service of Campbell and Hughson, lumbermen, and was stationed at their supply camp as chief clerk the camp being on the Burleigh road, lot 14, concession 6, Burleigh township. Four years later the firm transferred their interests to Ullyott and Sadler of Peterboro and Lickley was included in the transfer, remaining until the firm concluded its business, disbursing very large sums of money in the course of trade.

Saved Money

Industriously he had laid by several hundred dollars. It is related that in 1863-5 many of the settlers of North Peterboro, who had gone in on lands secured from the holdings of the Canada Company, not having means of purchasing stock, Lickley was induced by what he saw to buy for them a cow each. In accordance with wishes he organized a system of loaning a cow to each applicant, for the term of three years, when she was to be returned to him with the first birth. If by any accident the cow should be killed by falling of a tree or by lightning the loss was his. Sixty-eight cows were so supplied.

His first applicant was Billings Kilborne, farmer and for years rural postmaster, of Chandos township, who located in 1863. During the next ten years Lickley's herds increased to such an extent that he was the largest owner of cattle in he county, notwithstanding that he annually sold a large number. At one time the herd, all told, numbered 260 head, and besides a large flock of sheep, scattered over an area from Young's Point to the borders of County of Haliburton, the value of which (the cattle) ran into many thousands of dollars. Lickley said that if by chance he met a stray cow on the road he never threw a stone at her for fear she belonged to his own herds. Nor would he let others do so for the same reason. He never married, lived the life of a bachelor, honest, ever hospitable and during his life gained the confidence and friendship of all. He knew the lands and woods of the northern townships as if a book were before him. Was consulted on matters of timber, limits, and settlement. A familiar figure in Apsley during the earlier days of that village and until he passed away.

Thomas Robinson

We have been dealing with the affairs of a man who lived "up country," that is north of Stoney Lake. Suppose we come south and say something about a man and woman who lived in the township of Smith, not so very far from the city, on lot 15, concession 8. And whose names were remembered and revered long after they had passed away as of those who exercised the true spirit of helpfulness without money and without price.

Among the first of these to arrive on the lands of the newly surveyed township of Smith—this was the in the latter part of 1818, were comprised the McGibbons, Tullys, Waltons, Bells, Edminsons and others and Thomas Robinson. He came to look out the land and his family followed in 1820. The party, (this was six years before the survey of the future town of Peterboro had been made, and only a trail, marked by the blazes on the trees, defined what we now know as the Chemong Road) having come in from Smith's Creek, (Port Hope), after devious tribulations, halted at that little three-cornered plot of land at the junction of Reid and Stewart streets in fact at the beginning of the Chemong Road, and built a shack or shelter, and there lived while selection was made and future farms located. Once this was done the applicant had to make his way to York, (Toronto) and before the authorities complete the location. Returning afterwards to take formal possession and perform the duties of settlement.

Among these, as has been noted, was Thomas Robinson. The grandfather of our esteemed fellow citizen T. W. Robinson. Thomas Robinson located, built his first rude cabin, industriously cleared the lands and found time to do good. And as what we have to tell relates to the entirely personal side of the man, and his excellent wife, details of the struggle of the pioneer may be ommitted.

Medicine and Religion

In those days when physicians ministers and teachers were not only scarce, but in this locality entirely wanting, the elder members of the Robinson family were for years, among the most ardent, if indeed not the only, practical advisers or amateur practitioners of at least the first two named professions. They inaugurated a series of meetings in connection with the Methodist Church, of which they were most devoted members. These meetings were held in the log cabins of the settlers.

Those who remembered have said that Mr. and Mrs. Robinson were fine singers and were the leaders in prayer and song of the good old-fashioned backwoods meetings. Mrs. Robinson also gained much celebrity as physician and midwive doing all, however, without the remuneration or reward, save what a clear conscience and delight in doing good to her fellow beings carried to her heart. It was quite a common thing for her to go distances of thirty miles on horseback, in the night, through the storms and forbidding forests, across creeks and swamps to render aid to the sick. Many of the sturdy men of the second generation of the county round about were ushered into being under Mrs. Robinson's care.

Extended Friendship

As would be expected there was large apreciation and these combined circumstances led to an exceptionally wide field of friendship, let alone of acquaintance, and when the old couple passed away in 1858 no king or prince could be more lamented by their vassals than were they among the pioneers and their families.

From such parent stock should come men, and women, who would have high ideals for public service. Of the grandsons, one was Rev. John H. Robinson, another Rev. Isaac Robinson, who did yoeman missionary servie in the North West, and the third our good friend Thomas W. Robinson, of 525 Weller street, for many years so prominent in the commercial life of the town and city. A faithful member of George street Methodist church, indentified wih its activities, taking responsibiliy in its intimate affairs and as teacher leader and superintendent of the Sunday School, he has watched the infant church grow and expand, to its present proportions, setting off branches that took root in other sections of the city, growing to size and renewed importance in the faith.
